—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NEW YORK unions complain that semi-skilled men working on subways, nailing up rough forms for holding concrete get "only" 95 cents an hour. Union labor thinks they ought to get $1.50 an hour.

There has been progress since the day not long ago when only one man in the United States, a New England carpenter, was able to earn as much as $1 a day. And he worked 12 hours for that dollar.

CHICAGO, "enjoying a wave of municipal economy," dismisses 1,100 city employes, and will request 1,000 more to resign; 179 employes are dropped from the Health Department, although the commissioner says "my department is wrecked," 473 policemen, young men recently engaged, are discharged after six months' probation, which seems hard.

CHICAGO'S budget is over $85,000,000.

New York City's budget is over $500,000,000, a considerable difference.

From all over the United States, Chicago included, men and women come to spend their money in New York shops, increasing New York real estate values and taxes. That also makes a difference.

IF you printed half the prohibition news you could print nothing else. Senator Borah denounces appointment of certain men as United States attorneys, saying: "The man who drinks liquor in violation of law is unfit to serve as district attorney."

Perfectly true, but you must have district attorneys, and there are not enough of the 100-per cent-pure kind.

PROHIBITION, shocked, learns that liquor found on board a Coast Guard patrol boat, carried for the delectation of officers or crew, was a supply of "Golden Wedding" whiskey that the Coast Guard had confiscated on board the rum ship "Flor Del Mar."

What will Senator Borah say to that?

SENATOR CAPPER, from arid Kansas, dry as a handful of sand in the Sahara desert, joins Senator Borah in demanding better enforcement. The Presidents commission to find out what is the matter with prohibition comes back with the answer that would supply a theme for a Gilbert and Sullivan opera. The commission says "We know but we won't tell."

THE low price of silver worries many nations, especially Mexico, where 100,000,000 ounces are produced annually.

The price is below 47 cents a troy ounce, and but for use of silver in moving picture production, the industry would be even more badly crippled.

George Eastman, of Kodak fame, uses more silver than anybody else in the world, 60,000,000 ounces a year are used in film making.

This is a good time to buy silverware, for low prices will close many of the mines, and later the cost of silver will inevitably rise.

CLARE BRIGGS, cartoonist, is dead, and has reached the day of days, "when a feller needs a friend." Briggs had many friends—thousands—and they feel sure that Briggs has found the friend that all men need at last.

His work made many happy, and hurt no one.

YOU hear much about "30,000 fatalities due to automobile accidents in 1929."

Those accidents are unavoidable, a part of the nation's progress.

YOU hear little about thousands of women that die in childbirth every year, because of ignorance, and brutal indifference.

Those "accidents" COULD be prevented.

H. G. WELLS has invented "a better system of marriage, which will make divorce unnecessary."

The human race had that system before it made marriage legal and binding. The only way to do away with divorce entirely is to abandon marriage.

In the next million years women may complete their task of educating and improving men. Meanwhile you must have divorce to correct unfortunate marriages, just as you have corrections in literature and failures in business. You don't give up literature or business.

PRESIDENT HOOVER announces a total of four billion seven hundred million dollars to be spent in 1930 on public works, railroads and other public utilities.

It's a great deal of money and will help, but what the people earn and spend is the really important item.

WAGE earners, for instance, collect 60 thousand million dollars a year. They spend 40 billions to live, and have 20 billions left over, for amusement or investment — almost five times as much as Mr. Hoover's total. The important thing is to remain cheerful and continue spending reasonably. Prosperity depends on that.

Philadelphia Leader Tells Friends to Circulate His Petitions for May Primary

Leaves for South as Grundy Meets Mellon and Fisher; Other State Chiefs Gather

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—While William S. Vare, Philadelphia Republican leader, was speeding south to Florida tonight, re-echoing that he was a candidate for the United States Senate to the finish, powerful state leaders of the party who will have a hand in the coming primary campaign met at a dinner here.

Three of these leaders were Senator Joseph R. Grundy, Gov. John S. Fisher and William L. Mellon, of Pittsburgh. They were the guests of Jay Cooke, III, Philadelphia banker, at his Chestnut Hill home.

DINNER EXCITES WONDER

Political observers were wondering what the dinner was all about. Cooke, who was chairman of the ways and means committee for Pennsylvania for the Republican National Committee in the Hoover campaign, had said earlier in the day that it would be only social.

Vare, who was rejected by the Senate because of alleged excessive expenses in the senatorial campaign of 1926, before boarding a train for Florida today, declared his name would be on the Republican ballot in the primary on May 20.

When Vare was rejected by the Senate, he announced that he was in the fight for a seat in the Senate "to the finish," and when Fisher appointed Grundy a senator to fill the vacancy, and Grundy announced he would be a candidate in the primary, Vare said the situation was not altered.

STATEMENT STANDS

"There is nothing I can add," he said today, "to the statement I made on the train returning from Washington, and the statement I made when Mr. Grundy was appointed senator, except this: That the first day for getting nomination petitions signed is Wednesday, February 19, and the last day for mailing them is March 31.

"As I leave today I am giving my friends throughout Pennsylvania, at their request and due to numerous letters and tele-

SIR HERBERT AUSTIN

AUSTIN AWAITS 'FLIVVER' JIBES

There will be a new crop of automobile jokes in the United States before long, Sir Herbert Austin, British motor car manufacturer, predicted in an address at a luncheon given in his honor at the William Penn Hotel yesterday by Horace S. Edwards, investment broker.

They will be Austin jokes, he said, and of the same order as the Ford jests. At first, Sir Herbert surmised, the "wise cracks" at the expense of his car will have a bad effect on sales, but eventually they will help to sell the Austin.

The snobbishness of those who turn up their noses at little, low-priced cars is one of the greatest difficulties that has to be overcome in selling the Austin, he stated; but it has been overcome in every country in which sales campaigns have been conducted except the Netherlands.

VOICES OPTIMISM

Sir Herbert declared he has no fear as to the reception his machine will meet in the United States. This will be the fourth

Hoover's Secretary Sues for Son's Hurts

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Walter H. Newton, secretary to President Hoover, today filed two suits aggregating $60,000 against the Minneapolis Street Railway Company for injuries received by his son, John Marshall, last June 20.

He asks $50,000 damages for injuries received by his son whose leg was mangled when he was knocked from his bicycle by a street car. Subsequently surgeons amputated the boy's leg. He also asks $10,000 for medical expenses.

Inventive Judge Rowand 'Electrifies' Courtroom

Judge Harry H. Rowand has "electrified" Criminal Court, where he presides.

An electrical system designed by him to keep secret the names of jurors who have been challenged, will be put into operation tomorrow. The judge previously had installed an electric flash sign to demand silence in the court room, without the tipstaves having to rap and cry out for order. He also has a contrivance similar to a radio loud speaker installed in the witness room, connected with a telephone instrument in the court room, to summon witnesses.

It has been the custom when juries are being selected in the assignment room for the tipstaff in charge of the jury book to signal to Court Crier Joseph Dies, so that he might return the name of a challenger juror to the jury wheel. Jurors soon became aware of the system and watched to see which side challenged them.

Judge Rowand's latest device consists of a panel containing 12 push buttons at the counsel table, connecting with 12 small electric lights concealed in a box at the court crier's end of the bench and the crier alone gets the signal.

CABINET STAYS AS KLINE BEGINS SECOND TERM

Changes Predicted Tomorrow In Magistrates, Assessors; Cain Sworn in as Sheriff.

Mayor Charles H. Kline tomorrow will begin his second term and announce his cabinet. In the absence of reports to the contrary, the belief seems justified that there will be no changes among department heads.

Numerous changes are predicted, however, in the list of police magistrates, property assessors and the higher paid chief clerkships.

Former County Paymaster Robert S. Cain was sworn in yesterday as sheriff by Judge D. Paulson Foster.

VETERAN TO GET PLUM

Cain has declined to make any announcement of appointments in the sheriff's office, but reports have been circulated that he has practically decided to give the juiciest plum at his disposal to John L. Bingham, of 603 Collins avenue, a veteran who soldiered with Cain.

The position, paying $6,000 a year, is that of real estate deputy, and was created by the last Legislature.

While Cain was silent on the subject, there were grounds for believing that he would retain B. V. Coffey as chief deputy and Maj. William R. Brown as chief clerk.

Cain was reported last night to have appointed as sheriff's solicitor, Robert B. Averbach to succeed Assemblyman Joseph C. Marcus.

COUNCIL TO REORGANIZE

The official program for city offices will begin at 10 a. m. tomorrow, when Council will meet to reorganize. The terms of President James F. Malone and P. J. McArdle will expire and those of five members elected last fall will begin.

The five councilmen-elect include W. Y. English, John S. Herron and Harry A. Little, who are present members, and Clifford B. Connelley and M. J. Muldowney, who will begin their first terms. Holdover members having two more years to serve are R. J. Alderdice, Charles Anderson, Robert Garland and George J. Kam-

Morgan Kin Weds Massachusetts Girl

ARLINGTON, Mass., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Miss Rebecca Stickney, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Stickney, today became the bride of Pierpont Morgan Hamilton, of Manchester, nephew of the present J. Pierpont Morgan and grandson of the late financier of that name. Hamilton is a great great-grandson of Alexander Hamilton, first secretary of the treasury.

Hamilton was divorced from his first wife, the former Louise Blair, of Peapack, N. J.

Gen. Smuts Feted On Return to N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Returning today from his Canadian visit, Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, former premier of South Africa, spoke this afternoon at a luncheon given by the committee on the tenth anniversary of the League of Nations. Tonight he was the dinner guest of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University. He also attended a tea given by the New York Bar Association.

Mrs. Coolidge Writes of Life In White House

THE Sun-Telegraph today begins the presentation of one of the most interesting features ever published in Pittsburgh—"My Life in the White House," by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge.

The first of Mrs. Coolidge's series of articles will be found in the March of Events section of this edition. It will be continued next Sunday and following Sundays.

Lighted Match Blamed in Mine Blast Killing 61

Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 4.

AFTER an extensive investigation, Miller D. Hay, chief state mine inspector, had decided the explosion of gas in the Old Town coal mine of North McAlester, which, on December 17, killed 61 miners, was caused by lighting a match smuggled into the mine in defiance of a state law.

Hay said his conclusion was reached by a process of elimination, there apparently being no other possible cause for the blast. He said the law permitted mine owners to search employes for matches. No search was made the morning of the disaster, but Hay said that was not material, as it would be easy for employes to smuggle matches into the shaft.

STUTZ COURT FIGHT DROPPED

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—United States District Judge Robert C. Baltzell today dismissed a petition in involuntary bankruptcy against the Stutz Motor Car Company of America, Inc. Three Indianapolis creditors filed the petition several days ago.

Counsel for the petitioning creditors joined attorneys for the Stutz Company in requesting that the action be dismissed in Federal Court.

E. S. Gorrell, president of the automobile organization, said he had been assured that a suit for the appointment of a receiver filed in a state court also will be dismissed immediately. An intervening suit, he said, also will be dismissed.

"We are assured that all the other suits which have been filed in the state courts also will be dismissed immediately," Mr. Gorrell said, "and the company, with the co-operation of all its creditors, which co-operation has been assured, will proceed with its financial reorganization and expects to enjoy the best year's business in its history."

Mr. Gorrell several days ago declared the petitions had interrupted negotiations for a merger with another prominent automobile concern.

Flee Burning Home In Night Clothing

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Four small children and their parents escaped in their night clothing here early this morning when fire destroyed their home and that of a neighbor.

The fire, starting from an overheated furnace in the home of Joseph Nabors, drove him and his family to the street when flames and smoke awakened them. The house next door, owned by Herbert Conway was also destroyed.

In addition to all their furniture and personal effects, the Nabors lost the father's pay which was in his trousers where he had placed it yesterday.

Mrs. Hoover Still Suffering From Cold

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover is still suffering from the effect of a severe cold and has been confined to the White House for more than a week, with one exception, when she accompanied her son, Allan Hoover, to the train.

It was said at the White House today that her ailment was not serious and that her condition was steadily improving.

Mrs. Coolidge, 51, Spends Quiet Day

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge celebrated her fifty-first birthday in a quiet manner at her home here. Her friends say she retains the vivacity and youthfulness of many women 10 years younger. She enjoys brisk walks daily in the open air with her chow dog Tiny Tim.

Lindberghs Flying To T. A. T. Confab

WINSLOW, Ariz., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh hopped off here this afternoon on their way to Los Angeles, where they will stop a few days while Lindy confers with T. A. T. officials.

The pair expected to spend the night either at Kingman, Ariz., or some intermediate point, and fly to Los Angeles in the morning.

ARTIST FACING RENEWED QUIZ IN CAPITOL FIRE

Painter Admits Taking Drink, Falling Asleep; Awoke to Discover Room in Flames.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Official investigation into the fire which threatened the United States Capitol last night failed to throw much light on the cause of the blaze.

It was determined definitely, however, that the flames started in the model room of Charles Moberly, 61-year-old artist, who was carried out of the smoke-filled room partially unconscious and talking incoherently.

David Lynn, Capitol architect, in charge of the investigation, announced today that Moberly had admitted taking "couple of drinks" yesterday, but had denied that he was intoxicated. Lynn also announced that Samuel Hall, an ex-Capitol policeman, was in the model room with Moberly about the time the fire started.

Close examination of the electric wiring showed that it was in perfect order, and that probable cause was thus eliminated.

LOSS LESS THAN $3,000

The blaze may have been started in oil soaked rags used by the painter, Lynn said.

The damage to the model room and a portion of the House document room is small and will not reach over $3,000. Several paintings of justices of the Supreme Court and the Court of Claims, which were being retouched by Moberly, however, were destroyed and a model of the Capitol was badly scorched. Bound volumes of bills of the Fifty-ninth and Sixtieth congresses were destroyed.

Lynn's investigation centered entirely about the activities of Moberly and Hall in the model room.

Lynn said:

"I understood that Hall discovered the fire and told an elevator man to call the fire department. Yet Captain Gnash of the Capitol police, said that his two sons, who were driving past the Capitol, first saw the smoke and reported to the police. Hall said that as soon as he smelled smoke he went out and got a fire extinguisher and tried to

16 Pay $1,820 Fine In Illegal Deer Hunt

HARRISBURG, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Ten Pennsylvania men and six from Maryland who celebrated Christmas with a deer hunt paid $1,820 for their fun, the State Game Commission today announced. All were residents along the state border line near Flintstone, Md.

Each of the Maryland hunters was fined $100 for killing or hunting deer in closed season and $40 additional for not having a nonresident license. The Pennsylvania hunters were fined $100 each, and one who did not have a resident license paid an additional $20.

The arrests were made by Game Protector Eli Ritchey and three deputies who had been informed of the proposed hunt by an anonymous letter.

MARRIES

AERO CLUB HEAD MARRIES IN N. Y.

Capt. Louis T. Barry, president of the Aero Club of Pittsburgh, and well-known aviator, and Mrs. Barry, who until yesterday morning was Margaret O'Halloran, of Amber street, are on their way to Cuba, honeymooning.

The pair, both Pittsburghers, were married at 8 a. m. yesterday in St. Paul's Church of the Paulist Fathers in New York. Father James Barry, brother of the aviator, performed the ceremony.

They sailed at 10 o'clock for Havana on the S. S. Orizabo.

Mrs. Barry, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James O'Halloran, of 225 Amber street, was formerly a University of Pittsburgh co-ed. She was not especially interested in flying. Barry, who lived at the University Club, is a captain in the Army Reserve Corps, attached to Rodgers Field. He is in the electrical business here.

The couple will live in the Loutellus Apartments upon their return.

Gale Keeps Wales Indoors on Ship

S. S. KENILWORTH CASTLE, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The Prince of Wales, bound for South Africa to resume his hunting trip, broken off by King George's illness last year, today encountered the Bay of Biscay in one of its worst moods and remained in his cabin most of the time.

The gale increased in violence all during the day and huge waves were breaking over the liner's forecastle this evening. Most of the passengers also remained below in their cabins.

Pershing Urged to Face Norris in Senate Fight

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A movement to draft Gen. John J. Pershing for United States senator on the Republican ticket in opposition to Senator George W. Norris was announced today at the close of a conference in the offices of Mark Woods, Nebraska business and political leader.

Gen. Pershing, who has been in Lincoln over the holidays, expressed surprise at the existence of such a movement. He will leave for Washington tonight.

"You can't keep your friends from talking about you," he said. "This is the first I've heard about it."

Asked if he would refuse an offer of the candidacy were it properly made, he replied:

"As I say, I haven't given it any consideration."

Woods said he has been discussing the matter with people all over the state.

Gen. Pershing, Woods said, could take his place in Nebraska's politics with a united front in his support.

"He would have the farm vote, the Legion vote, the women's vote and the business man's vote. He has been a worker for farmers' rights since 1920."

M'COOK, Neb., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, today filed his petition for renomination for United States senator on the Republican ticket, with the treasurer of Red Willow County. He had announced his candidacy several weeks ago at Washington.

ICE BLAMED FOR 5TH AVE. ACCIDENTS

Cars Skid Down Slippery Grade, Strike Trolleys At Oakland Intersection.

Driver of Truck Arrested After Collision Injures 8; Woman Still in Hospital.

Two automobile-trolley car collisions occurred at Fifth avenue and Thackeray street, within two hours yesterday, causing injury to 10 passengers and partly wrecking the street cars.

Eight persons were injured when an empty truck of the Schenley Fuel and Supply Company skidded and the rear end struck an inbound Highland avenue car, crushing in one side.

Shortly after the damaged trolley car had been removed from the scene, a touring car driven by A. E. Duig, a student, of 215 Craig street, crashed into an inbound Hamilton avenue car, breaking the doors and windows.

EIGHT TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Those injured in the first smashup, all passengers on the street car, were taken to Montefiore Hospital for treatment of lacerations caused by flying glass and shock. They were Mrs. M. L. Speirs, 6109 St. Marie street; J. D. Feeley, 1210 Park Building; Dorothy Mahon, 332 South Highland avenue; S. C. Osborne, 415 Park Building; Clara Darby, Uniontown, Pa.; Helen Darby, 832 Bigelow boulevard; J. Kane, 5636 Margaretta street, and W. I. Wilson, 815 Ivy street. Mrs. Speirs was detained for observation. The others were discharged.

DRIVER ARRESTED

C. M. Hamilton, of 1911 Shadeland street, and A. Schlotaback, of Frankstown avenue, were slightly hurt in the second collision. They were able to go home after being given first aid treatment at the scene.

Anthony Caffardo, 48 Boundary street, driver of the supply company truck, was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

Cinders were placed on the slippery surface of Thackeray street, on orders of police to guard against other similar accidents.

Armed Auto Bandits Rob Laundry Driver

Crowded to the curb by two armed bandits in an automobile, Norman Brison, of 5140 Dearborn street, driver for the White Linen Supply Company, was robbed of $80 in Evaline street yesterday, he reported to police.

After taking the money from Brison the robbers warned him against making an outcry and sped away.

Five weeks ago, three robbers held up F. E. Pickering, manager of the company, near its plant, Gross and Cypress street, and escaped with a $1,488 payroll.

New Mob Attacks Against Coast Guards Feared

GANGS BEAT UP ENLISTED MEN AT NEW LONDON

U. S. Attorney Admits Boat Did Not Fire Warning Shot, Backs Them in Killing.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Police were on the alert tonight to prevent a recurrence of attacks on Coast Guardsmen in retaliation for the killing of three rum runners.

The district about the state pier, where the base is situated, and amusement places frequented by guardsmen were under close surveillance. The men themselves were advised to be cautious, as the result of beatings given two of their number shortly after last midnight by a gang of men.

Coxswain George A. Cadoreit, of Pawtucket, R. I., attached to the destroyer Aricsson, was set upon while taking a short cut to the base, and was cut and bruised.

GUARD ATTACKED

One of the gang asked him if he were a member of the crew of the CG-290 which fired on the rum runner Black Duck in Narragansett bay last Sunday, killing three men and wounding a fourth. He said he wasn't, but was a Coast Guardsman.

"Well, that's good enough for us," was the reply, and he became the target of flying fists.

He reported the affair to his superior officers. A squad of guardsmen was sent out to search for the men.

TRAP FAILS

In the meantime, a second guardsman, whose name was not learned, called New London police and said he had been attacked and beaten.

Police were dispatched to the railroad yards near the base and heard the men talking on the other side of a string of freight cars.

When one of the policemen slipped and fell, warning was given them and they fled.

24 GUARDSMEN ACCUSED

With the beginning today of the general courtmartial of Coast Guardsmen charged with intoxication and theft of liquor from a seized rum runner it became known for the first time that 24 men were involved.

Twenty-three are accused of being intoxicated. Three pleaded guilty. One man only is specifically accused of stealing whisky taken from the liquor boat Flor Del Mar, captured a week ago and towed into this port.

Capt. L. T. Chalker, chief of staff, had announced previously that five men were concerned in the thefts of liquor, "several" charged with intoxication.

Eleven of the men are attached to the Destroyer Ericcson, on which six bottles of whisky were found yesterday after a surprise search of all boats had been ordered.

U. S. BACKS "290" CREW

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—United States Attorney Henry M. Boss, Jr., here today issued a statement in which he completely exonerated the crew of the coast guard patrol boat 290 from blame in the killing of three men aboard the rum runner Black Duck last Sunday, and he said he would not produce the crew before the State inquest being held at Newport.

As a result, Attorney General Oscar L. Heltzen said he would be forced to go through the formalities of interstate summons to get the coast guardsmen to testify before the coroner.

Boss declared his information from investigators showed the Black Duck came upon the patrol boat off the Dumpling's bell buoy in Narragansett Bay Sunday morning, and tried to escape after the boat signaled her with horn and lights to heave to.

EIGHT IN THIS TROLLEY INJURED

HIT BY TRUCK—The Highland trolley hit by a skidding coal truck at Fifth avenue and Thackeray street in the second accident of its nature at the same corner within two hours yesterday. Eight passengers in this car were slightly injured.

country in which the company has established factories.

In Germany the Austin is the largest selling car, with annual distribution of 25,000. In Australia the Austin is third in sales, preceded by the Ford and Chevrolet. In England the Austin is first.

Sir Herber said that when the car was introduced in England eight years ago he was constantly asked, "Why don't you put a handle on the back so the nurse can push it?" He pointed out, however, that a car which has won practically all of the speed competitions in Europe, which can be run 10,000 miles on $55 worth of gasoline and oil and which is distinctive in appearance invariably wins public approval.

U. S., ENGLAND COMPARED

He expressed amazement at the manner in which this country has restored public confidence following the break in the stock market. In England similar difficulties have occurred and much more has been made of them in spite of the fact that they are not as serious as the upsets here.

He also commented on the part American bankers take in the development of industry. While bankers in this country lend every possible assistance, the English banks hold aloof from the business of production. His company has never borrowed from its bank in England and he said that he is not sure whether the bank would be willing to extend credit. Officials of the bank have never visited his plants in England, which employ 15,000 men.

A. J. Brandt, president of the American Austin Car Company, who accompanied Sir Herbert to Pittsburgh from Detroit, said there would be three markets for the Austin. It would be bought as a second car for family use; by corporations utilizing large fleets of cars for salesmen and for light delivery, and by young men and others looking for something novel and distinctive.

BANKERS INSPECT PLANT

Production of the Austin at the Butler plant is expected to begin in April, and the plan is to turn out between 50,000 and 100,000 this year. The price will be fixed in a few days, it was said.

Twenty-four bankers and business men attended the luncheon They later went to Butler to inspect the plant.

Last night Sir Herbert was the honor guest of the Butler Board of Commerce at a dinner at the Nixon Hotel, attended by 150 representative citizens. An inspection of the plant preceded the dinner.

Ex-Policemen Nab Suspects Out of Habit

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.

"WE forgot we weren't policemen any more," explained ex-Policemen John Lamb and Frank Kolgraff today after they had captured two alleged bandits who confessed robbing a restaurant.

The two were on their way to turn in their stars and pistols in compliance with an order reducing the police department, when they encountered Beaufort Powell and James Clark.

"When they started to run we knew they were bandits and I guess it was just a matmatter of habit with us because we chased them and arrested them," the former policemen said.

WAVES DELAY PLANE SALVAGE

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Cloudy weather and rough water today halted the efforts of tug crews to raise the wrecks of two cabin monoplanes from the ocean floor near here, where they sank late Thursday after colliding 3,500 feet in the air, killing 10 occupants who were filming a motion picture thriller.

The debris of the monoplane was found yesterday by the Daisy M., and the Diana, commercial tugs, and today the tug Salt was summoned to aid them in snaring grappling hooks on the wreckage, but the attempts were abandoned after rough seas began to hammer the craft.

The planes are resting in 318 feet of water off Point Vicente.

The depth was too great for divers.

It was considered likely that the bodies of the seven missing persons were in the cabins. The remaining three were recovered the day of the accident.

Among the bodies sought was that of Kenneth Hawks, motion picture director.

Hawks was directing the filming from one of the planes when the pilots either misjudged their distances or were blinded by the sun, and collided.

A third plane piloted by Roscoe Turner, trans-continental flier, from whose plane a parachute jumper was to have leaped as part of the picture, was some distance away and landed safely.

RAID ON NORTH SIDE FAILS TO LOCATE BLONDE

Mysterious New Castle Tip Causes Police to Circle Home in Fruitless Hunt.

"The 'trigger woman' is in a rooming house in Boyle street, North Side."

This was the anonymous telephone message to the police chief of New Castle yesterday, the latest clue to the whereabouts of Mrs. Irene Schroeder, the blonde mother who is being sought in connection with the murder of Corp. Brady Paul, of the state highway patrol.

The caller described himself as a taxicab driver.

"Don't take no for an answer," he advised the chief.

Four state police left immediately for Pittsburgh. On the North Side they asked Police Inspector Charles Faulkner for aid.

SURROUND HOUSE

Riot guns were dusted off. Eight policemen and the four troopers surrounded the house, ready for action.

Two state troopers walked into the house. They talked with the landlady and all the roomers. None resembled Irene Schroeder. A blonde waitress came nearest to the description but she easily convinced the investigators that she was not the woman suspected of having fired the shots that killed Paul on the Butler-New Castle road 10 days ago.

Another "clue" falling, the police left. It was typical of many of the Pittsburgh tips that failed to stand inspection yesterday.

PAIR ELUSIVE

Police were told that the mother of 4-year-old Donnie Schroeder and her accomplice, Glenn Dague, were hiding in a Coltart avenue rooming house. Investigation proved this, too, was erroneous.

Another clue was the abandonment of an auto bearing Ohio license plates in Venture street. Residents reported a man and a woman were seen leaving the car hurriedly.

Philip Becker, of 7558 Susquehanna street, told police that a woman answering Mrs. Schroeder's description had applied unsuccessfully for a room at his home.

W. Wedgemere, of 1423 Westfield avenue, reported that in downtown Fifth avenue he saw a couple answering a description of Dague and Mrs. Schroeder in an auto.

MAN IS HELD UP BY GUNWOMAN

A second "trigger woman" operated in Monongahela last night, this time with less deadly effect.

On the Monongahela Bridge the woman, a young brunette, stepped from an auto in which a second woman and a man sat, and held up G. L. Williams, 50, of R. D. 1, Charleroi.

With one hand she kept a revolver leveled at Williams—with the other she took from him $98 and a gold watch and chain.

The auto in which the two women and the man escaped bore a Michigan license.

Except for her dark hair the woman generally answered the description of Mrs. Irene Schroeder, sought for the murder of Corp. Brady Paul, of the State Highway Patrol, but there were no other circumstances to support this theory.

Vacant Farmhouse Searched for Pair

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 4.—Sheriff Ford Moore and his deputies of Belmont County, O., raided the Kildow farmhouse, three miles west of Bethesda, this morning, following a tip that a woman answering the description of Irene Schroeder had been seen there in company with a man last evening. The home was found to be unoccupied.

The house is the former residence of Alice Kildow, of Wheeling, in whose room a dress belonging to Irene Schroeder was found yesterday by Sergt. A. M. Long, of the West Virginia state police. The Kildow girl is a farmer roommate of Irene's.

Western Ohio Officers Trace Occupants of Car

TIFFIN, O., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—County officials had started an intense hunt in this vicinity today for a woman believed to be Irene Schroeder, "the blonde gunwoman," for whom police of three states are searching in connection with the killing of Corp. Brady Paul, Pennsylvania state highway patrolman.

The woman sought drove into a garage here for repairs to a machine which had the ignition "fixed" so that the car could be driven without a key. Two male companions were with her.

Police are of the opinion that the car was stolen. The trio headed toward Fostoria, nearby.

U. S. Gold Production Drops; Silver Gains

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Refined gold production in the United States for 1929 was estimated today by the Bureau of the Mint to have amounted to 2,128,027 ounces, valued at $43,990,200. This was a reduction of $2,175,200 from the country's gold output in 1928.

The 1929 silver output was estimated by the mint at 60,937,600 refined ounces, with a value, at an average price for the metal during the year, of $32,540,678. This was an increase in silver production of 2,475,093 ounces over 1928 output.

2 Planes Speeding To Hunt for Eielson

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Two monoplanes starting to search for Lieut. Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, missing in Siberia nearly two months, were well on their way to Nome tonight.

The two planes—one piloted by Matt Niemenen and one by Pat Reid—hopped off at 8:55 a. m. They carried a passenger each.

They were last reported over Ruby at 11 a. m. They were not expected at Nome tonight because of a snow storm raging in that vicinity.

They planned to land on the ice of the Yukon River over night, proceeding to Nome with the first clearing weather. Arriving at Nome, an Alaskan base will be selected, and the two planes will hop for Siberia.

Plot to Kill Negro G. O. P. Leader Fails

ATLANTA, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Police today were investigating the second attempt within a month to assassinate Berf J. Davis, Negro Republican leader of Georgia.

Davis was shot at five times when he stood on the porch of his home here. The shots, he told police, were fired from the direction of his garage.

A fusillade of shots also was sent into his home on the night of December 11, but the bullets did not find their mark.

W. Va. Poet Tribute By Schools Urged

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The executive committee of the State Education Association meeting here today announced that schools of the state would be asked to participate in a statewide memorial program in memory of Dr. Waitman Barbe, West Virginia poet and professor of English at West Virginia University, who died several years ago.

Third Earth Tremor Jars New Brunswick

FREDERICTON, N. B., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The third earth tremor within the past few weeks was felt today about 10 o'clock in different parts of the city, and while no material damage resulted, furniture and other articles in homes and business houses shook. It lasted only a few seconds, but coming so closely upon the heels of the two previous ones, caused some excitement.

'Safety First' Boat Plea Asks Drys Not to Shoot

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—"Safety first," or "discretion is the better part of valor," might well be used as a title for the letter mailed the United States Coast Guard at the custom house here by the American Car and Foundry Company.

The letter, self-explanatory, follows in part:

"We are planning to have our Wilmington plant deliver a 47-foot cruiser under its own power to Merritt & Chapman in New York.

"The boat is due to arrive in these waters on or about January 6. It is requested that you withhold any machine gun fire in case your warning signals are inadvertently overlooked, as this boat is not navigated from an open bridge; quite on the other hand, the navigator is isolated within the boat by a soundproof glass.

"There will be no time within which to have this craft repaired in case of damage.

"An acknowledgement of this letter is requested."

FOOTBALL HERO—Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. (Bernice Chrysler) Garbisch, married yesterday in New York. He's the forme W. & J. and West Point football hero, she the daughter of the automobile magnate.

MISS CHRYSLER WEDS GARBISCH

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—In a church setting resembling an old English garden, 2,000 guests saw Miss Bernice Chrysler, daughter of Walter P. Chrysler, today become the bride of Edgar W. Garbisch, former Washington and Jefferson College and West Point football star, and all-American center in 1924.

The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Garbisch, of Washington, Pa. The bride's parents once lived in Harrison avenue, Bellevue, when the auto magnate was an ambitious engineer.

The lavishly decorated St. Bartholomew's Church was banked with boxwood trees, Australian ferns and white daisies. In this setting, Mrs. Byron C. Foy served as her sister's matron of honor and Miss Elizabeth Stout, of New York, was the maid of honor. The bridegroom's best man was his brother, Robert S. Garbisch, of Butler, Pa.

The other bridal attendants included Mrs. Beeckman J. Delatour, Mrs. Murray Vernon, Mrs. Harry J. Taylor, Miss Marie Mahoney and Miss Kathryn Jordan, all of New York; Mrs. Robert S. Garbisch, Butler, Pa.; Mrs. Terry Treadway, Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. Henry L. Kinnucan, Detroit.

The ushers included Joseph H. Bialas, of Pittsburgh; Lewis N. White, Dallas, Tex.; Lieut. Charles K. Saltzmus, Washington, D. C.; Edwin H. Garbisch, Wilmington; Orus J. Matthews, Philadelphia; John F. and Walter P. Chrysler, Jr., the bride's brothers; Arthur C. F. Keleher, John J. Haskell, Frederick Suydam, Theodore A. Baldwin, III, Byron C. Foy and C. Lawton Campbell, all of this city.

Boy Shot by Friend Examining Revolver

William Credk, 18, of 110 Park way, Bryn Mawr, is in McKeesport Hospital in a serious condition. He was shot yesterday while Joseph Matmus, 18, of 118 Park way, was examining a revolver Credk had purchased Friday night.

2 MEN KILL 4 WOMEN, SELVES

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Believed to have been insane as a result of heavy financial losses, sustained on the stock market, Albert Wiegand, 60, violinist, killed himself here today after fatally injuring his two sisters.

The tragedy occured at Wiegand's home. He shot his sister Anna and cut another sister, Ida, with a hatchet.

Wiegand's brother, Emil, also is a violinist of note.

COVINGTON, Ky., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Bert Watson, 40, shot and killed his wife, Mrs. Gladys Watson, 35, and her sister, Greda Schroeder, 42, of Latonia, and ended his own life with a gun at his wife's home here today. The double murder and suicide was the result of Mrs. Watson's divorce action against her husband.

Mrs. Watson was killed instantly. Watson and his sister-in-law died in an ambulance on the way to a hospital.

Airplane Patrol for Dry Enforcement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Use of airplanes in prohibition enforcement work along the Mexican border is being considered by the prohibition bureau.

Commissioner Doran said today that he was looking into the feasibility of the use of three planes, one in Texas, one in Arizona and one in Southern California. He said that he had as yet not decided what he would do in this connection.

The prohibition bureau, Doran continued, had three old planes which had been loaned it by the Department of Commerce and which were now laid up as useless. If the plan to use planes should be adopted, they would patrol the Mexican border from the gulf to the Pacific in co-operation with customs and immigration border patrols.

Serves Red Cross 14 Years, Presented Gold Medal

In recognition of more than 14 years of service in the American Red Cross, a gold medal was presented yesterday to Miss Sophie Levin, 5700 Munhall road, by direction of the authorities of the National Red Cross organization in Washington. The medal bears four service stripes and is said to be the only one awarded in Pittsburgh.

The presentation was made by J. Rogers Flannery, organizer and first president of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Red Cross and member of the War Council in 1917-19. Speaking of Miss Levin's service with the Red Cross, he said:

"This medal is a belated honor for one of the most energetic and resourceful women workers in the cause of the American Red Cross. Miss Levin was one of the first volunteers when the services of bright, alert women were required to take the initiative in the campaigns for humanity which were launched by the Pittsburgh Chapter. Her capacity for organization and downright hard work astonished the officers of our chapter and it was no surprise when her ability attracted attention of the national authorities and she was called to Washington to give counsel to the officers there. During the dark days of the war and since she has had a nation-wide reputation for success in advancing the work of the Red Cross.

"It was through the efforts of Miss Levin that the 'Pittsburgh plan' of conducting annual Red Cross roll calls was adopted throughout the country. She originated this system and was called to the Washington headquarters to place it in practical operation."

DRYS TURN ON SEN. BORAH FOR STARTING ROW

Alarmed by Split in Ranks Militant Prohibitionists Rally to Hoover Defense.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Genuinely alarmed over the split that has appeared in dry ranks, and particularly the assaults of Senator William E. Borah, who characterized prohibition enforcement "a national disgrace" and demanded a "top-to-bottom" shake-up in the personnel, the radical prohibitionists rallied strongly today to the support of the existing set-up.

The militant reform organizations, such as the Methodist Board of Temperance, the Anti-Saloon League and others, joined hands with their spokesmen in Congress in condemning such spectacular onslaughts as Borah has been leading.

BORAH ASSAILED

Fifteen months ago Senator Borah was campaigning the country as the leading supporter of President Hoover and the prohibition and reform organizations were all with him; today their statements, while not naming him directly, bristled with allusions to "local politicians and their irritating influence," "unfortunate criticism," "wholesale blasts that attack the faithful," etc.

Thus the forces that combined in the late campaign and rallied solidly behind prohibition presented a spectacle today of division and dissension as to whether the law is or is not being enforced. Borah contends it is not and that it is "a disgrace;" the dry organizations say that it is, and that the present personnel, from President Hoover to Dr. J. M. Doran, the chief administrator, is satisfactory to them.

Today's batch of statements, pro and con, comprised but a prelude to the storm of debate which is expected to sweep Congress in the weeks immediately ahead. Congress returns to work Monday for an indefinite and protracted run.

HOOVER PRAISED

The Methodist Board was lavish in its praise of President Hoover, Attorney General Mitchell and Commissioner Doran and their enforcement policies.

"The organizations supporting the Eighteenth Amendment," said the board's statement, "are formally on record as having the utmost confidence in the purpose and ability of President Hoover to secure enforcement of the prohibition law.

"The attorney general also is regarded with warm approval by the leaders and organizations supporting prohibition. As for Dr. Doran, no one in the nation is better equipped by experience and ability to deal with prohibition enforcement, and if he is protected from the irritating interference of local politicians, there is no doubt that prohibition enforcement will in time become uniformly satisfactory to the most ardent friends of the law."

The board particularly commended Dr. Doran's handling of the industrial alcohol problem, which Borah has repeatedly condemned as "rotten."

GLASS DEMANDS REPORT

And menawhile the administration critics were not idle.

Senator Carter Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, dry, announced his intention of demanding a report from the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission as to what it has done to date. Glass contends that the commission was appointed to investigate prohibition, without running off into byroads of other lawlessness. He said that was what President Hoover promised during the campaign.

Senator Harris (Dem.), of Georgia, announced he intended to move for greatly increased appropriations and personnel for enforcement when the appropriation bill came up for passage, "whether the adminstration wants it or not."

Glass declared it was entirely unnecessary to form a joint congressional committee to consider either the report of the Law Enforcement Commission or to handle additional prohibition legislation.

"The commission was appointed to report to Congress," said Glass. "As for the joint committee of Congress, there isn't one whit of evidence it can obtain that is not already available."

ROUGH SLEDDING SEEN

The report of the Law Enforcement Commission bids fair to be in for rough sledding when it reaches Congress.

Glass again raised the question of whether President Hoover really favors the Volstead act.

"During the campaign I offered a certified check for $1,000 to any one who would point out a single syllable in any of Mr. Hoover's speeches or utterances to show he indorsed the Volstead act. That offer is still open."

Representative Louis C. Cramton (Rep.), of Michigan, who usually speaks for the Anti-Saloon League and the reform organizations on the House floor, issued a statement today deeply "deploring" the assaults on the administration's prohibition policy, and insisting that prohibition was succeeding.

"President Hoover," said Cramton, "is advancing courageously, sincerely and definitely the national program of enforcement. Since the fourth of March very substantial progress has been made.

"He should have the support and co-operation of Congress, states, cities and people."

Kline to Retain Cabinet as Second Term Begins

3 ASSESSORS, 2 MAGISTRATES SLATED FOR AX

Council Reorganization to Open Inaugural Tomorrow; Cain Sworn in as Sheriff.

bach. Kambach was elected by Council to fill the unexpired term of Daniel Winters, who resigned to assume the city controllership.

All signs now point to the election of John S. Herron as president. He will call Council to order at noon and administer the oath of office to Mayor Charles H. Kline.

WINTERS TO TAKE OATH

After delivering the inaugural address, the Mayor will administer the oath of office to Daniel Winters as controller for the unexpired term of the late John H. Henderson.

Council will recess until 3 p. m., when Mayor Kline will submit the names of appointees requiring Councilmanic confirmation.

After the appointees have been confirmed by Council, they will assemble in the Mayor's office where Mayor Kline will administer the oaths of office.

Unless there are eleventh-hour changes, the cabinet will be: James M. Clark, safety; Edward G. Lang, public works; Mrs. Enoch Rauh, welfare; Dr. C. B. Maits, health; Charles A. Waldschmidt, law; Thomas C. McMahon, board of assessors; B. L. Succop, supplies, and Roy D. Schooley, treasurer.

2 MAGISTRATES TO GO

Among the police magistrates it is generally accepted that William J. Soost, Thomas D. Jones and Leo Rothenberg will be reappointed. It seems just as certain that George H. England and A. D. Brandon, the latter of Morals Court, will be discharged. The fates of E. M. Hough, John J. Sweeney and John A. Staley, the latter of Traffic Court, are said to hang in the balance with an "off again, on again" swing almost hourly.

The North Side leaders have agreed to recommend Alderman Ray E. Schneider, of the Twenty-third Ward, and he seems certain of appointment. Hough's only chance now is the awarding of a second magistrate to the North Side.

SWEENEY FATE IN DOUBT

Sweeney, the Democratic party magistrate, according to latest reports, is safe for reappointment, although some of Mayor Kline's friends want to send Sweeney to the block.

When it seemed certain that Staley was to be deposed there were creditable rumors that the place would go to James O'Connors, a lieutenant of P. J. Donahoe, Republican chairman of the Tenth Ward.

The two vacancies to be created in the expected discharge of England and Brandon may be filled by Alderman John P. Kearcher, of the Seventeenth Ward, protege of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, and George Metzier, of the Sixth Ward, a close personal friend of Congressman P. J. Sullivan.

DONNELLY TO GET AX

Among the property assessors there is almost conviction that the only ones in jeopardy are M. B. Donnelly, Joseph W. Brandner and possibly Samuel J. Reno, Jr.

Donnelly, the Democratic party member of the board, as required by law, lives in the Fifth Ward and is a personal friend of James F. Malone, who ran against Mayor Kline for re-election. In the event Donnelly is ousted the place may go to Registration Commissioner James P. Kirk or Ralph Smith.

Brandner has been the target for the political sharpshooters of his ward, the Eighth, where Schooley is chairman.

It is believed that the board of water accessors will remain intact with these members: Chairman James W. Gray, John A. Collins and W. I. Goss

PATRONAGE FOR COYNE

Two vacancies on the Civil Service Commission are to be filled by Mayor Kline in the appointments of Dr. F. H. Frederick, who resigned last fall to manage the Mayor's campaign, and Dr. S. H. Johnson, the Mayor's brother-in-law. The third member of the commission is J. Howard Devlin, Democratic party representative.

James C. Smith, secretary of the commission, is to be let go and the place given to some person recommended by State Senator James J. Coyne.

The commission secretaryship was awarded to Coyne along with other pending patronage about the time Schooley was decided upon for treasurer.

DOAK BOOMED FOR DAVIS' POST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—William N. Doak, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and once a gubernatorial candidate in Virginia, was mentioned to President Hoover today for the post of Secretary of Labor when James J. Davis quits March 4.

A. F. Whitney, president of the trainmen's union, conferred with the President today, but declined to make a statement.

Doak was slated for the appointment at the start of the Hoover administration, but the opposition directed against him by other sections of labor caused Mr. Hoover to ask Secretary Davis to serve another year.

'STRAW BOND' WARNING GIVEN

"A charge of perjury will be vigorously pressed against any person detected signing a bail bond on property they do not own," declared Acting District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt, in the absence of District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, who is ill, when his attention was called to the discovery by North Side police that a "straw bail bond" had been given in a liquor case.

Langfitt said that such cases were very rare, as it was well understood that no quarter would be given in the Criminal courts in fake bail cases.

Still Candidate for Seat In Senate, Vare Declares

grams I have received, full authority to circulate and have my petition signed throughout the several counties.

"I feel that the right of the great state of Pennsylvania to select its own senator must be upheld. The placing of my name on the primary ballot will give the people of Pennsylvania an opportunity to uphold the constitution and the rights of the sovereign state of Pennsylvania."

It had been widely published that Mr. Vare might change his mind about becoming a senatorial candidate and refrain from entering a contest because of his health. Today's statement was his answer to these published reports.

Vare appeared in better health than at any time since he was struck down with paralysis a year and a half ago.

He was accompanied south by his wife and elder daughter, Miss Beatrice Vare. He said he did not know how long he would stay in Florida.

OTHER LEADERS ARRIVE

In the meantime, not only Grundy, Mellon and Fisher, but other powerful state G. O. P. leaders began assemblying here. Former State Treasurer Samuel S. Lewis, of York; Ralph Beaver Strassburger, Norristown publisher, and Stephen P. Stahlnecker, secretary to former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, arrived last night.

At a series of conferences, these and other chieftains are expected to discuss the make-up of a ticket for the state-wide primaries, but the discussions are not likely to reach the state where any agreement will be reached on the candidates for any post. Vare will be represented by Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham, Councilman Charles B. Hall and James M. Hazlett, of Philadelphia.

The Vare group will insist upon naming of Francis Shunk Brown, former attorney general, to the gubernatorial candidacy, it is said.

ARTIST FACING QUIZ IN BLAZE

put the fire out himself. He denied he was smoking.

"Moberly said that after he got through his day's work he went up to the model room and was dozing when the fire broke out. Hall was reading a paper, he said.

ADMITS TAKING DRINKS

"The thing doesn't 'gee' up. The stories of the discovery of the fire conflict.

"I have not discovered any evidence of drinking. Reports do come in every now and then of people drinking in the Capitol.

"Moberly said he took a couple of drinks about 12:30 p. m. yesterday. He said he was not under the influence of liquor at the time of the fire."

Hall's statement was that he was on old friend of Moberly and had gone to the studio to visit him. He said Moberly appeared to be tired and he suggested that Moberly take a nap. Hall then picked up a paper.

Lynn planned to question Hall and Moberly further.

After Moberly was recovering last night under the care of Dr. George W. Salver, congressional physician, it was announced that he would be sent to a hospital. However, it was learned, friends took charge of him for the rest of the night and he was about as usual early today.

INQUIRY PROBABLE

Lynn reported to Vice President Curtis and Speaker Longworth, who have charge of the Capitol. Longworth said he was satisfied the origin was accidental, but the growing mystery of the fire, it was indicated, may result in a congressional investigation.

The portraits destroyed were those of Chief Justice Nott, who was appointed by Lincoln, and Chief Justices Pelle and Richardson. Others were Judges Weldon, John Davis, J. Bancroft Davis, Howry, Drake, Scofield and Atkinson.

The fire in the Capitol, closely following as it did the blaze in the White House executive offices, created much excitement and led to many wild rumors in Washington.

The White House fire, it was learned today ,is going to cost the taxpayers $74,880. A contract to repair the damage was awarded to the C. T. Tompkins Company of Washington, low bidder, which undertakes to make the building as fireproof as possible.

ARMSTRONG'S RETURN SPURS COUNTY WORK

Chairman Ill for Month to Call Meeting; Budget Sessions Will Open Soon.

Allegheny County's business will probably be resumed Tuesday after a month's "shutdown," when County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman, expects to be able to preside at a short meeting of the board of county commissioners.

It is just a month since Armstrong was stricken. He expects to be on hand tomorrow when Mayor Charles H. Kline and the other re-elected and newly-elected city officials are inaugurated.

MAY CALL MEETING

If he is able, and County Commissioner E. V. Babcock is back on the job from Florida, he expects to call a meeting. No meetings of the board have been held since Armstrong became ill.

There is considerable detail and routine business which has accumulated since Armstrong has been sick. No meetings of the commissioners have been held, for shortly after Armstrong was confined to his home Commissioner E. V. Babcock also became ill. After several days in the hospital Babcock went to Florida to recuperate.

With two-thirds of the board incapacitated Commissioner Charles C. McGovern has been holding down the fort alone.

BUDGET HEARINGS DUE

If Armstrong's health permits, hearings on the 1930 budget may be started this week. In the event that Armstrong is not able to stand the rigors of the lengthy budget hearings, it has been a matter of conjecture that Babcock and McGovern may have to go into the budget sessions as the board of commissioners. The county millage does not have to be set until February 15.

A two-man board of commissioners deciding on the budget, when the two men are Babcock and McGovern, has proved an interesting speculation for politically minded persons about the courthouse.

Miriam Noel Wright Given Simple Burial

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Only a handful of friends was present here today when the body of Miriam Noel Wright, divorced wife of Frank Lloyd Wright, noted architect, was carried to its grave after simple ceremonies in an undertaking parlor. The body was laid to rest in Forest Home Cemetery.

It was learned the architect telephoned Mrs. Helen Raab, former artist and close friend of Mrs. Wright, and that he had agreed to pay for the funeral expenses.

Kinzer Candidate For Griest's Seat

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—J. Roland Kinzer, member of the Lancaster County bar, announced that he had accepted the republican nomination for Congressman. He will be the party's candidate at the special election to be held Jan. 28 to fill the vacancy created by the death of W. W. Griest.

The district Democratic committee is still withholding the name of its candidate although it is generally expected that John A. McSparran, who opposed Gifford Pinchot when the latter was elected governor of Pennsylvania,

Manufacturer Takes Out Bond Against Suicide

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.

A NEW YORK chemical manufacturer—name not disclosed—has taken out a surety bond against suicide, it was revealed today.

The bond, believed to be the first ever written, was executed by Vincent Cullen, vice president of the National Surety Company.

It calls for $30,000 and constitutes a guarantee that the manufacturer will not take his own life within the next two years.

CIVIL PENSION BILL INDORSED

The Dale-Lehlbach bill, now pending in Congress, which would provide optional retirement for civil service employes after 30 years of service and having attained the age of 63, and would further provide for a maximum annuity of $1,200, has been indorsed by the following organizations:

Hawksworth Commandery No. 11, Patriotic Order, Sons of America; Lodge No. 1 ,Pittsburgh City Firemen; Mary Glen Rebecca Lodge No. 251, I. O. O. F.; Order of Ben Hur, Tribe No. 50; District Council International Union of Carpenters; Daughters of Honor, Loyal Orange No. 4; National Horse Shoers' Union, Local No. 9; Star of Liberty, Loyal Orange Lodge No. 58; International Association of Machinists, Local No. 52; Ladies Auxiliary to Fort Pitt Lodge No. 1, Fraternal Order of Police; Pittsburgh Branch, National Association of Paper Hangers, and Master Horse Shoers' Association of Pittsburgh.

Democrats Reopen Apportionment War

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—The old controversy between Republicans and Democrats over the present apportionment of Assembly districts was revived here today when the Democratic State Committee announced that the 64 Democrats of the 1930 Assembly polled 37,567 more votes than the 86 Republican assemblymen in the election.

The Democrats contend that the present system of apportionment gives unfair advantage to the Republicans.

Despondent Woman Kills Self With Gas

WELLSVILLE, O., Jan. 4.—Mrs. Elizabeth Lowers, 65, was found dead with a gas hose in her mouth in the bathroom of her home today. Her husband, John, told police she had covered her head with a blanket before turning on the gas. She had been in poor health.

STORE DISPLAY HEADS TO MEET

Display managers of stores grouped under the Retail Research Association, national cooperative organization affiliating 18 of the country's largest department stores, will come to Pittsburgh Tuesday for a four-day study. Meetings of the group will be held in the Joseph Horne store.

The study opens Tuesday with an address by W. H. Burchfield, vice president of Horne's. Other addresses will be made by T. Robb, of the R. R. A.; C. F. Goettman, of Horne's, and H. H. Tarrasch, of Stix, Baer & Fuller Company, of St. Louis. An open forum, followed by dinner in the Horne tearoom, will conclude the first day's program. The addresses will be continued Wednesday.

The study closes on Friday with a general discussion of observations made by the committees and formal presentations of the reports.

Tarentum Rector Going to Sharon

SHARON, Pa., Jan. 4.—The Rev. F. B. Atkinson, former rector of St. Barnabas' Church, Tarentum, will be installed as pastor of the St. John's Episcopal Church here at an early date. He will preach his first sermon Sunday. Mr. Atkinson succeeds the Rev. Dr. E. J. Owens, who died August 29.

BLAME FIREBUG IN MINE BLAZE

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., Jan. 4.—For 14 hours today firemen, farmers and the state police battled ineffectively with a fire which destroyed the Meyers plant of the Brownfield Coal and Coke Company, on the West Newton highway, causing $50,000 and igniting a mountain of slack and slate, which is still burning like a smouldering volcano.

State police beleieve that the fire is of incendiary origin and are carrying on a searching investigation. Just a month ago Albert B. King, for many years superintendent of the plant, was killed when accidentally struck on the head by a falling brace.

The mine had been in continuous operation for many months without the loss of a day, giving employment to 200 men, and was regarded as the most active in the Westmoreland County field. In connection with the plant is a battery of 32 coke ovens.

The fire was discovered at 2 a. m., but Mt. Pleasant firemen, responding to a call for aid, were handicapped by lack of water and the tipple and 100 tons of coal were destroyed. The blaze swept machine shops and the engine house and destroyed several electrical motor lorries. The flames drove back the firemen and when the slack heaps caught fire efforts were turned toward saving surrounding dwellings.

THE STETSON SHOE

Stetson Announces
New Beautiful Pittsburgh Shops

In keeping with its policy of intimate personal service to the public, the Stetson Shoe Company announces the formal opening on Monday, January 6, of the new Stetson Shoe Shops of Pittsburgh, at 203-205 Sixth Street, Loew's Penn Theatre Building.

It introduces a shoe salon quite unique. In reality it is two connecting shops, one for men and one for women.

Ably managed by R. Bruce Murphy, it will set a precedent in shoe service. It will have the character of a direct-factory branch and yet its personnel will be Pittsburgh shoe experts whom thousands of Stetson Shoe customers here know.

Equipped with a complete stock of new Stetson Shoes, it will offer the latest in smartness for those who have a high regard for Stetson Shoe craftsmanship.

With P. Ludebuehl and Son, East Liberty, this new store is the only authorized Stetson Shoe agency in Pittsburgh.

GANDHI HEADS INDIA IN FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

Independence From British Domination Sought by Indian National Congress.

By SAILENDRA NATH GHOSE.
President of the American Branch of the Indian National Congress.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, Indian sage and philosopher, deposed as president of the Indian National Congress in favor of youthful Jawaharlal Nehru, and a year ago champion of the policy of "non-co-operation" with British authority, today stands out as the unchallengable leader in India, in its campaign for complete independence from British domination.

Three thousand delegates, democratically elected by its membership, participated in the recent session of the Indian National Congress, which corresponds in power to the Republican party now in power in the United States government—which voted almost unanimously for the complete separation of India from England.

Only six of the 3,000 delegates dissented from the majority, and the power of the Congress can readily be seen when it is taken into account that the Congress represents the interests of an overwhelming majority of the 320,000,000 souls in India.

Fiery young Jawaharlal Nehru announced the results at midnight on December 31, when India's ultimatum to England regarding the institution of "Swaraj"—self-rule—expired.

SENTIMENT GROWS RAPIDLY

In some ways, the action of the Congress paralleled the Declaration of Independence from Britain promulgated by the Continental Congress in 1776; in others, it resembled the action of the southern states' secession which brought on the American Civil War.

But the National Congress refrained from establishing a revolutionary government of Independent India. This can only be accounted for by the rapid development of the popular sentiment which bewildered even such veteran war-horses as Gandhi and Pundit Motilag Nehru, father of the Congress, president and others.

Gandhi, it was generally understood, was "aspiring not for a life of isolation for India, but an association of India with Britain on equal terms." He was prepared to accept a form of government for India which exists in Canada, Australia and other self-governing dominions of the empire.

ACCEPTS BRITISH OFFER

Thus, when Lord Irwin, Viceroy of India, announced the policy of the British government as that of granting dominion status to India ultimately, and invited leaders of Indian political opinion to a round table conference in London, Gandhi accepted his offer with certain reservations.

Gandhi's tentative acceptance was objected to by the left wing of the congress, led by Subhas Ghandra Bose. The popular sentiment was against the aged philosopher.

Then Lord Irwin invited the Indian leaders to a private conclave with him on December 23 at Delhi, and the conference failed to satisfy the demands of the Indian leaders.

It was this failure to agree which caused the heretofore conservative Gandhi to espouse the cause of the "Independence School." He himself drafted and moved the acceptance of the resolution for complete separation from Britain, and this proved his conversion had been complete.

GANDHI REAL LEADER

This unexpected turn of Gandhi became the band-wagon of the congress, and band-wagon psychology alone accounts for the overwhelming success of the vote for complete independence.

But, wise and shrewd, Gandhi, although deliberately precipitating the situation, did not lose his head. He persuaded the Nationalists to accept a step-by-step program to achieve Indian independence.

He made the Congress accept the program of civil disobedience including non-payment of taxes. He won the 896 to 816 vote deploring the bombing of the Viceroy's train. He engineered the avoiding of a program of aggressive violence, for he knew well that India needs proper consolidation of strength before force can be effectively used.

India, psychologically, is independent. The psychological effect of the acceptance of the Nationalist declaration of independence is the positive contribution of the Congress held at Lahore and Gandhi remains the unchallengeable leader of Indian today.

ORCHARD PEST STUDY CALLED

A two-day horticulture and orchard pest school will be held Tuesday and Wednesday in the North Side Carnegie Library basement, featured with a field demonstration.

A question box will be a feature at the closing session under auspices of the Allegheny County Agricultural Extension Association, Henry R. Eby, representative. The session opens at 10 a. m. Tuesday with discussions on new small fruit varieties and their culture by J. L. McCartney, of State College. The second hour will be devoted to orchard fertility under J. U. Ruef, of State College.

The field demonstration will be held the first afternoon, beginning at 1:30 p. m. at the Allegheny County Home in Woodville. Debudding, bracing, fertilizing, pruning and grape culture will be studied.

All-day discussion will be held the second day, disscussions being as follows: Orchard disease and their control, R. S. Kirby; how to know orchard insects and their control, two discussions, by J. O. Pepper, and a hunt for apple scab spores by Mr. Kirby. All speakers are from State College.

Trial of Slayer Suspect Delayed

DENNISON, O., Jan. 4.—Frank Toneletti, Barnhill, charged with first degree murder of Charles Orland Eggan, 30, Midvale stable boss, September 27, 1928, was granted a continuance until 1:30 p. m. next Monday to enable Toneletti's counsel to prepare his defense. Mrs. Gertrude Ohler, Barnhill, held as material witness, was placed under arrest as a suspect.

T. A. T. Planes Fly 4,346 Passengers

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., carried 4,346 passengers for a total of slightly more than 2,000,000 passenger miles in the first six months of operations, J. V. Magee, vice-president, announced today.

The operating ratio, obtained by balancing the number of miles scheduled against the miles flown, was reported as 90.5 per cent. Out of 669 trips scheduled, 578, or 86.5 per cent were completed and 70.6 per cent of the planes arrived on time.

Magee was optimistic over the outcome of the first half year's operations. If 4,300 persons adopted the air line as a means of travel in six months, he said, there is no reason why 43,000 will not make use of the service in 1930. The T. A. T. operates an air and rail service from coast to coast.

DETROIT POLICE CATCH REPUTED CHIEF OF GANG

Thitry - Five Now Held In Roundup Following Shooting of Inspector.

DETROIT, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Peter Licavoli, reputed leader of the "River Gang," which police link with the shooting Thursday of Inspector Henry J. Garvin, head of the police crime and bomb squad, was arrested for investigation today shortly after he had been released under a $10,000 bond by federal authorities who have sought him on a bribery charge.

Licavoli was surrendered to Gregory H. Frederick, chief assistant United States district attorney, by his counsel. He is charged with bribing a customs border patrol inspector.

GANG ROUNDED UP

Arrest of Licavoli in connection with the shooting of Garvin and the subsequent wounding of an 11-year-old school girl who was passing by at the time was said by police today to bring into the case practically all those claimed to be "River Gang" members.

Federal authorities also have sought Licavoli. He escaped from them on the Belle Isle Bridge the night of December 5, although more than 20 shots were fired after him. He had been stopped that night by customs officers who found him driving from the island to the mainland.

This brought the total arrests made in the Garvin shooting to 35.

BLIND PIGS RAIDED

Twelve more men, reported to be members of the "river gang," were held for investigation today. They will be questioned together with five alleged members of the gang taken yesterday.

The police also descended on a score of small blind pigs and gambling resorts last night, turned patrons into the street and wrecked the establishments as part of their investigation.

The 12 latest arrests were made in a garage where Peter Licavoli, one of the reputed leaders of the gang, is said to have kept his cars. Eight automobiles were found in the garage.

GARVIN RECOVERING

Several of the suspects today were seeking their release on writs of habeas corpus. They were led by Joe Moceri, who obtained a writ returnable today. Moceri, one of the five arrested yesterday, is said to have threatened to "get" Garvin.

Inspector Garvin was reported recovering from his wounds at receiving hospital today. The girl, Lois Bartlett, who was struck by five bullets, still remained in a critical condition.

READING, Pa., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—To enable him to stay in the state police, with his hand mutilated with buckshot, John R. Stewart, a trooper who arrested Harvey Nicholas, Negro fugitive, after Nicholas had shot him in the hand and face, will learn to shoot and handle weapons with his left hand. The thumb of his right hand may have to be amputated.

Stewart is in a hospital here, while in another ward, under constant guard, is Nicholas, who was wounded before he was subdued. The man was wanted on a charge of attempting to assault a girl 16 years old.

3 Convicts Escape Connecticut Prison

WETHERSFIELD, Conn., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Three prisoners escaped from the state prison here today. They are: Roland A. Lalone, of Worcester, Mass., one of the "ice box" bandits serving a life term for the murder of State Policeman Irving G. Nelson in April, 1928; Leo Landry and Walter Moulthrop, sent up from Danbury for burglary. The men apparently left the prison by forcing a window in the kitchen, and then running along a roof to a vantage place that let them into the outside world.

Wallpaper Firm Opens Store Here

Featuring wall paper in 1,500 color schemes, Asam Brothers, Inc., Philadelphia manufacturers, have opened a local branch at 115-117 Ninth street. E. J. LeCato is the manager. The branch handles lines of imported French, German, English and Zuber, hand blocked scenics. Other branches are maintained at Camden, Harrisburg, Reading and Baltimore.

34 Saved, 5 Missing When Ship Grounds

ALESUND, Norway, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Thirty-four members of the crew of the Dutch steamer Hofflein were rescued today when the vessel went aground and broke in half near Start. Five of the crew were still missing and it was feared they had been drowned.

Ice Pick Victim's Condition Serious

James Mimidis, 30, of Monessen, was reported in serious condition in McKeesport Hospital yesterday with five knife wounds in the back and two near the heart. The wounds were inflicted with an ice pick, police were told. No arrests have been made.

Panama Canal Sets New Toll Record

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—An all-time record for tolls collected at the Panama Canal was set during the year 1929 with $27,592,715.84 paid by 6,430 commercial vessels.

The former record was set in 1928 when 6,334 vessels paid $26,375,962.41.

During the last six months of 1929 the tolls collected were $13,828,634.16, against $13,363,295.23 for the same period of the previous year.

California Drought Sets 54-Year Record

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—H. B. Hersey, government meteorologist, said today that the drought which set in here last July had extended over a longer period than in any previous year since the establishment of the Weather Bureau 54 years ago. During the dry period but .32 of an inch of rain has fallen in Southern California, that amount being recorded in September. The last rain of appreciable magnitude was recorded April 4, 1929.

10-Year Sunday School Record Set

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 4—A perfect attendance at Sunday school for 10 years is the record established by Mrs. T. G. Witman, of First street. She is a member of the First Baptist Church.

In the 10-year period she has been out of the city only once on a Sunday, and on that occasion attended another Baptist Sunday school to maintain her perfect record.

Prehistoric Canals To Be Photographed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Prehistoric irrigation canals near Phoenix, Ariz., are to be photographed by the Army Air Corps to develop archaeological data for the Smithsonian Institution.

The Smithsonian requested the War Department to have the work done because the canals, which are situated along the Gila and Salt Rivers, are being obliterated by local farmers and present-day irrigation projects.

Jealous Ex-Husband Kills Man and Self

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—T. J. O'Brien, 50-year-old commission merchant, was shot to death last night in a dance hall by John McKee, who then shot his divorced wife, Mrs. Anne Ticknor, in the head and shoulder and slashed his own throat.

McKee died. Mrs. Ticknor is expected to recover.

Friends told police a quarrel leading up to the shooting was the result of jealousy.

WRITER TELLS HARDEST TASK FACING WOMEN

Holding Husband Problem for Millions; Love Succeeds, Asserts Beatrice Burton.

By BEATRICE BURTON
(Written for Sun-Telegraph by Famous Author of "Lovejoy.")

The hardest job in the world today is the job held down by millions of women everywhere—the job of holding a husband.

Every year more and more women are coming into the divorce courts to free themselves by law from husbands whom they couldn't hold.

"He wouldn't give me his money," is one story they tell.

"He fell in love with that stenographer of his," is another.

"No matter what I did I couldn't please him," is still another. "I kept the buttons on his shirts and I cooked the things he liked—and still I couldn't keep him happy."

Certainly not .... Buttons and vegetable soup and a chifforobe full of clean linen never kept any man happy.

LOVE MEANS ALL

And neither did anything else except the simple everyday commodity known as Love.

For man is the romantic sex.

All his life he is looking for romance—and if he doesn't find it at home he is sure to look for it somewhere else. In his office, in the front row of a musical comedy chorus, in his neighbor's house.

This is the stubborn truth. And when women find it out the divorce courts will stop doing a land-office business and there will be a lot more peace and happiness along the Main Streets of the world than there is today.

A man can forgive his wife for not being a good cook.

FORGIVES SPENDING

He can forgive her for spending too much money.

He can forgive her for gadding about instead of staying at home where she belongs at least part of the day.

He can forgive her anything—if only he loves her.

For a man marries for just one thing—love..

And if a woman gives him love and understanding and gay companionship there never is going to be much unhappiness between them.

Women sometimes marry for a home, or for money, or for position, or for children.

It's true that they marry for love nine times out of ten. But men marry for love TEN times out of ten—and if they don't get it their bound to feel cheated and behave accordingly.

DIVORCE PROBLEM

The above contribution by Miss Burton will be all the more interesting because this gifted author uses the problem of divorce as the theme throughout her new serial story "Lovejoy," which starts in the Sun-Telegraph next Wednesday. Don't miss the first tingling installments. Order your Wednesday's Sun-Telegraph NOW.

In the meantime, the Sun-Telegraph is offering $250 in gold for the best letters on "How to hold your husband?" or "How to hold your wife?" and invites readers to express their views in a letter of 250 words or less.

$250 IN GOLD

The Sun-Telegraph offers $250 in gold for the best letters submitted. The prizes will be divided as follows: For the women: First prize, $50 in gold; second prize, $25 in gold; thing prize, $10 in gold; next eight prizes $5 in gold; next 50 prizes, two tickets each for the best attractions at the leading motion picture theaters in Pittsburgh. The same prizes will be given men contestants.

The above awards will be doubled for winners who have the Sun-Telegraph delivered to their home by carrier boys or get it by mail subscription. For full details see the advertisements in another part of today's Sun-Telegraph.

The contest is just starting in the Sun-Telegraph and will end Sunday, January 12. All letters must be in before Tuesday, January 14, addressed to Lovejoy Contest Editor, the Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

You don't have to wait until the end of the contest. You can submit your letter today—if you wish.

UNCLE OF BRIDE HELD AS BOMB CLAIMS THIRD

Police Arrest Relative by Marriage of New Year Day Victim; New Clues Found.

SEAT PLEASANT, Md., Jan. 4—(AP.)—While the deaths from the bomb outrage on New Year's day mounted to three, police revealed today the arrest "for investigation" of an elderly uncle by marriage of Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady—the 18-year-old bride who exploded the bomb on opening a supposed Christmas package and was the first to die.

Clarence Brady was taken into custody last night, but his identity was withheld at first. The authorities said they feared a highly aroused citizenry might become prejudiced by the arrest and attempt violence.

SLEUTHS STUDY EVIDENCE

Meanwhile an augmented force of detectives studied evidence which they said might provide clues to the sender of the gaily-wrapped bomb. This consisted principally of what appeared to be a two-inch section of fuse, fragments of a lead pipe, and two remnants of cardboard, one of which bore part of the name of a local hardware firm.

Early in the day the third fatality in connection with the tragedy was recorded when 4-year-old Dorothy Hall, sister of Mrs. Brady, died in a Washington hospital. In the afternoon a joint funeral for Mrs. Brady and her 19-month-old brother, Samuel Hall, had been arranged.

THREE IN HOSPITAL

Three other members of the Hall family were unable to attend the funeral. They were confined to the hospital with injuries received when Mrs. Brady's "Christmas present" blew up as all gathered around to see. Mrs. Nora Hall, mother of the bride, was said to be in a critical condition, but her two sons were recovering from injuries which mangled their hands.

PUT OFF CAR, WOMAN SUES

Alleging that the conductor of a Pittsburgh Railways Company car ejected her from the car while ill, Mrs. Katherine Scott, of 862 Phineas street, North Side, has filed suit against the company for 20,000 damages.

She claims through her counsel, U. G. Vogan, that the ejection resulted in serious injury to her. Mrs. Scott asserted that in February, while on her way home, she became ill. The conductor asked her to leave the car. She said she could not comply with his request because of her condition. She declared he then forcibly put her off the car and that she fell and became unconscious. When she regained consciousness, she was lying on the sidewalk in Federal street, near the Fort Wayne Station. Mrs. Scott alleged she received sprains of the back and side and has not recovered from the injuries. Her husband, William Scott, joins in the action.

AVERT STRIKE ON ERIE R. R.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—G. Wallace W. Hanger, member of the United States Board of Mediation, announced today that an agreement has been reached between trainmen and officials of the Erie Railroad, averting a strike of 3,500 men which has been pending since December 5. Mr. Hanger said that the agreement was signed this morning at a conference at which the final difficulties were settled.

The 3,500 trainmen had called a strike for December 5, when they were unable to reach an agreement with the Erie officials over grievances of employes.

Mr. Hanger, acting for the board, offered to mediate the dispute and the strike order was held up temporarily pending the mediation.

"All matters have been disposed of in the agreement," Mr. Hanger said, "and the strike order definitely cancelled."

Only one of the disputes dealt with wage increases, which were asked for 13 trainmen in "mine-run" service on the Wyoming (Pa.) division of the Erie.

The other grievances were brought by individuals or groups of employes at various points along the line over local working conditions and conveniences.

Wireless Operator Swept From Ship

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Caught by mountainous waves on Christmas eve, Albert S. Kiel, 24, of Rotterdam, wireless operator aboard the Dutch steamer Alasum, was washed overboard, it was learned late today when the vessel arrived here after a tempestuous crossing from Rotterdam. Capt. K. D. Teensman declared that no less than 19 gales and storms were encountered in the passage.

Crowds in Wild Scramble For 6 Tons of Free Candy

Not since the first Armistice Day has there been so much thrilling excitement in the downtown district of Pittsburgh as that of yesterday noon. The distribution of 50,000 10c packages of "Teenie Weenie Toffies" by a crew of 25 Sun-Telegraph men created a near-riot on the prominent street corners. It was a made scramble for something for nothing and the distributors at times were nearly swept off their feet.

It was the original plan to give these boxes of candy to women only, but the surging crowds became so great that the rule had to be quickly changed. It was the men who made the mad rush for the candy. Nothing like the excitement of this big distribution—more than six tons of sweets—has been known in Pittsburgh in years.

This unique promotion idea was the result of a warm personal friendship between Beatrice Burton, author of "Lovejoy," the new and thrilling love romance starting in the Sun-Telegraph next Wednesday, and William Donahey of Chicago, creator of "Teenie Weenie." When Miss Burton, some months ago told Mr. Donahey that she had in preparation a new serial which she hoped would be "the sweetest story every frankly told," Mr. Donahey said "I'll give you 50,000 boxes of 'Teenie Weenie Toffies'—the sweetest candy ever made—to advertise your new story." And that's how 50,000 boxes of candy happened to come to Pittsburgh.

Mr. Donahey also sent 1,000 additional one-pound tins of the same delicious, chewy confection. So, on every one of the 50,000 boxes of candy that went out yesterday, there was pasted a serial number. One thousand of these lucky numbers will get one of these full pound tins of "Teenie Weenie Toffies."

If you were fortunate enough to get a box of candy yesterday, hold your coupon and watch tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph for the first list of lucky numbers. Incidentally, "Teenie Weenie Toffies" are made by Reid, Murdoch & Co., of Chicago, who co-operated with Mr. Donahey in sending this carload of candy to the residents of Pittsburgh.

In the meantime, don't miss the installment of "Lovejoy" starting next Wednesday in the Sun-Telegraph.

JEWISH EXILE OF 4 CENTURIES ENDED BY SPAIN

De Rivera Calls Special Cabinet Meeting to Plan Re-Immigration Details.

By Z. H. RUBINSTEIN,

Special Representative of Universal Service and the New York Jewish Day.

MADRID, Jan. 4.—I have just returned from the presidential palace, where I had an hour's interview with Gen. Primo de Rivera, Spain's strong man and virtual dictator.

What he told me amounts to one of the great romances in history, for Premier de Rivera, through me, invited the Jews of the world to come back to Spain after a separation of more than 400 years.

"You can tell the Jews of the world," Primo de Rivera said to me, working apparently under the great stress of emotion, "that Spain is willing to welcome them with open arms.

"The days of race prejudice and religious bigotry are now definitely over, and there is room in Spain for everyone, Jew or Gentile, who is interested in the progress of the country and the great prospects for its development.

WHOLEHEARTED INVITATION

"I always thought Spain committed a great mistake when it expelled the Jews, for the decline of my country dates from the very moment in which its useful element of population left it to seek other havens of refuge.

"This great mistake can be expiated only by a wholehearted invitation to all Jews who care to come back to Spain and make their home here."

So interested was the Spanish prime minister in the idea of recalling the Jews to Spain that he would not rest content with merely sending out an invitation. He has already called a special cabinet meeting with the view of working out a detailed plan on the basis of which the re-immigration of Jews into Spain might be effected as speedily as possible under conditions existing in the country.

The Jews had migrated to Spain from Babylonia and the Eastern countries about the beginning of the tenth century, and until the time of Columbus had pursued closest relations with the Spanish people. Exactly 430 years ago, King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella signed the decree expelling all Jews from the Spanish realm, even though it was Spain that saw the great efflorescence of Jewish learning in the twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. Now, for the first time in four centuries, this unusual and touching devotion is finally to be rewarded; Spain once more is to take the Jewish people to its bosom and the long period of parting is over.

INTERESTED IN REACTION

Primo de Rivera is much interested in the possible reaction of Jewish public opinion abroad to the proposed plan. He has followed with great interest the efforts made by Jewish communities to settled in Palestine, in Ukraine and in Crimea, and thought the efforts essentially worth while in intention and results.

"Given the indomitable energy of your race, plus the capital which American Jewery can invest," he said, "there is no reason in the world why this experiment of re-settling Jews in Spain should not be a tremendous success.

"The Spanish-Jewish combination is the most excellent you can find anywhere. It produced, prior to 1492, a galaxy of men such as Jehuda Halevi, Iban Cabiro, Iban Exrah and Maimonedes. Even Spinoza was a descendant of one of the Jewish exiles from Spain."

Nor is the prime minister alone in his belief.

OPPORTUNITIES AMPLE

"Spain has ample room for thousands upon thousands of Jewish immigrants," I was told by Dr. Angel Pulido, brilliant scientist and vice president of the Spanish Senate.

"Economic opportunities are ample and you can rely upon the genius of the Jewish people to take full advantage of them to their own benefit and the greater glory of the Spanish nation."

Small as is the Jewish community here in Madrid, so great was the enthusiasm that Don Jose Feracha, a prominent Jewish leader, came to me with tears in his eyes, expressing his great joy over the great event in Jewish history. He cried:

"Once more Jewish life will spring up on this ancient soil of Jewish culture. For 400 years we have had no standing here. Now, with the renewed Jewish immigration, we can once more count upon a Jewish renaissance."

NEGRO SUSPECT ADMITS KILLING

BALTIMORE, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Alzono Price, who, police say, confessed killing Reuben Heyman and attacking Mrs. Dorothy Burgess early yesterday, was under constant guard today at Mercy Hospital, where physicians said he would recover from wounds received in the pistol battle that resulted in his capture.

In the meantime the state attorney's office set machinery in motion for a trial as soon as Price should be able to appear.

Mrs. Burgess, whose story started an all-day search before the Negro was caught by a Towson patrolman just as he was to board a train at Lutherville for Harrisburg, Pa., was under care of a physician.

Detectives say they got a deposition signed by Price and verifying the young woman's account of the crime in detail. The Negro believed he would die from the combined effects of two wounds from the pistol of the patrolman and of poison he took. Price's wife, however, said after a visit to the hospital that he had suffered from shell shock in the World War and that today he remembered nothing of yesterday's events.

I. C. C. MODIFIES NEW RAIL RULE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.) Modification of the Interstate Commerce Commission's order for railroads to cease transporting private passenger cars of other roads without charge was made today so that it will not become effective until February, instead of on January 15.

It was said at the commission's offices that the action was taken to permit a finding by the District Court of Western Kentucky, to which the roads have taken an appeal from the order. The commission expects to file its brief in the litigation on Tuesday.

The Louisville and Nashville, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Big Four and Illinois Central have carried the case into court, acting also on behalf of other roads.

In its order the commission held that the transportation or movement or private cars, including so-called office cars, by one carrier for another or its officials, free or at any other than rates charged for chartered private cars was unjustly discriminatory.

PETITION ASKS STATE TO BUY 100,000 ACRES

Sportsmen Set Forth Desirability of Land In Western District.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 4.—The State will be asked to purchase 100,000 acres of additional forest land in Western Pennsylvania, part of which is situated in Westmoreland County, according to a petition being circulated in Greensburg by the Sportmen's Association of the Ligonier Valley.

Because of this district being the most suitable as forest land and a game hunting country, and because the land sought to be purchased is contiguous with that already owned by the State, the purchase is recommended.

The following tracts are suggested as available in this county: A 1,400-acre tract known as the Clearfield tract in Ligonier township; a 600-acre tract known as the Shirey tract in Cook township; a tract of 8,000 acres known as the Blair Lumber Company tract situated in Cook and Donegal Townships, near Powder Mill Run, and near the Somerset County line.

4 HURT AS CAR CRASHES TRUCK

Four persons were injured, one of them seriously, when an automobile in which they were riding yesterday skidded into a delivery truck at Washington road and Park way, Mt. Washington. Mike Shunjr, 31, R. D. No. 2, New Brighton, was confined to St. Joseph's Hospital in a serious condition.

His wife, Mrs. Jennie Shunjr; Cldye Eiler, 38, of the same address, and Rade Granonich, R. D. No. 1, New Brighton, driver of the car, were treated for minor injuries at the hospital and were able to go home. Granonich and Domenick Grande, 823 Wylie avenue, driver of the truck, were arrested by South Side police and will be given hearings on charges of reckless driving.

Brothers Go to Jail, Facing Deportation

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The brothers De Castro, Marquis Rafael Clura and Count Jose Clura, bond salesmen, real estate dealers and promoters of an airplane safety device, were held at police headquarters today in default of $500 bond each.

They were arrested last night by a United States immigration inspector and were held when unable to give bond to leave the United States March 11, when extension of their passports ends. The brothers had announced they had purchased manufacturing rights for an airplane safety device. Authorities said they learned the brothers in the last two days had been attempting to borrow money to take up checks returned by a bank and marked "insufficient funds."

COWAN'S WILL FORGED, TWO EXPERTS CLAIM

Court Withholds Decision on Petition for Revoking Pittsburgher's Testament.

DELAND, Fla., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Decision on a petition to revoke a will formerly probated in Volusia County, was withheld today by County Judge J. E. Peacock after handwriting experts testified that signatures on the document were forged.

Margaret I. Curley, Pittsburgh, joined by her husband, filed a petition for revocation of the will of her father, Joseph P. Cowan, which left the bulk of his estate to his second wife, Catherine Cohen Cowan, and made her executrix.

Cowan died at Daytona Beach, April 25, 1929, and the will, dated April 20, 1929, was probated in the county judge's office May 4, 1929.

At the hearing on the petition yesterday, Attorney C. F. Wells and his stenographer, who witnessed the will, testified they were present at the time Cowan, then confined to his bed, affixed his signature.

J. Vreeling Haring and August Hartkorn, handwriting experts, testified that the signatures on the will were forged.

The will gives the daughter, who seeks revocation, two orange groves in Lake County, Fla. The remainder of the estate, including an apartment house at Daytona Beach, a $5,000 life insurance policy and collateral and notes valued at $24,000, goes to the widow under the terms of the contested will. Bequests of $10 each were made to two sons, who are said to have received sums from their father during his lifetime.

Youth Missing Week Found at Sewickley

BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Unable to explain his disappearance and apparently unaware of the search that had been made for him, John H. Caldwell, 24, was found walking the streets of Sewickley today after having been missing for a week. He was returned to his home at Evans City, near here.

STUDENTS HIT SPORT SUBSIDY

PALO ALTO, Cal., Jan. 4—(AP.)—Opposition to subsidies in any form for college and university athletes was expressed in a resolution adopted by the National Student Federation of America, representing schools throughout the United States, at the opening of its fifth annual congress.

The federation defined a subsidy as money paid directly or indirectly without requirement that the recipient do labor other than his athletic performance. The resolution included a recommendation that there be no disrimination in giving employment to athletes and that wage scales for the campus stars and other students be the same.

The congress tabled a motion that it go on record opposing any method of transferring tickets as a means of curbing ticket scalping. It was decided scalping was a local problem in each case.

Robert Keith, of the University of California, told the 250 delegates from universities and colleges throughout the United States that the honor system at his school was the "most complete failure" he had ever seen.

ROSELIA HOME INVITES PUBLIC

The Roselia Foundling Asylum and Maternity Hospital will observe its annual day of greeting and thanksgiving Sunday, January 12, from 2 until 6 o'clock. All visitors will be welcome. Members of the board of directors will be present to show friends and strangers through the institution and explain the work.

Roselia is the only non-sectarian foundling asylum and maternity hospital of its type in this part of the state, and one of the few in this country. It has a daily average of more than one hundred inmates.

Directors are anxious that the general public shall become acquainted with the work being done, and the invitation they have issued for the reception is to everybody interested.

Judges Scan Essays On Traffic Problem

Essays submitted by the public and parochial schools of Pittsburgh to represent their student bodies in Division I of the traffic improvement essay contest have been placed in the hands of judges. This contest was sponsored by the education section of the Better Traffic Committee under leadership of Walter Rosenbaum. The writers of the best essays, comprising the pupils of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades, will be awarded 45 cash prizes, totaling $205. The writers of the three best essays in each public and parochial school of the city for Division I of the contest will receive either a certificate of merit or a cash prize.

TOBACCO HEIR, OUT OF JAIL, TO ESCHEW AUTOS

Reynolds Finds English Prison 'Not So Bad,' but Says He'll Never Go Back.

By F. A. WRAY
International News Service.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—"It will be a long time before I drive an automobile again," was the first remark of Richard Joshua Reynolds, scion of the multi-millionaire American tobacco family, after his release from Wormwood Scrubs prison on a charge of manslaughter while driving a car.

"The English prison was not so bad after all," Reynolds added. "At first I was in Wandsworth jail, but sundry crooks heard that an American millionaire was languishing behind iron bars, and one of their number had himself put away on a short sentence. This crook tried to get my sympathy with a view to exploiting me on my release.

GIVEN TRANSFER

"The prison authorities heard about it and so I was transferred to Wormwood Scrubs. This was really a change for the better from the viewpoint of conditions, but it made me terribly homesick. Located right near London, I could hear the roar of subway trains running past just 50 yards from my cell."

Reynolds declared he was treated very well during his prison term.

"I went to work in the library, which is the special privilege of prisoners serving in the second division," he said. "Prisoners are well fed, well clothed and better housed than many of them would be outside. All the cells are steam-heated, which is more than many of the London houses of the better sort can boast.

WARDENS FRIENDLY

"Except for the loss of liberty I did not really mind it. Taking them all round I found the wardens a friendly crowd. They did an unpleasant job as nicely as possible.

"Anyway, I know one thing—I am never going to jail again."

Reynolds was sentenced to prison after being found guilty of causing the death of a motorcyclist on the Windsor road while driving his car in an intoxicated state.

Officer, Joy-Rider Shot in Gun Fight

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Patrolman Van Doren Hughes, formerly of Steubenville, O., was shot in the back, wrist and leg late last night in a gun fight with George Wharton, a Negro joy-rider, he arrested. Although dropped by the Negro's bullets, Hughes continued to fire at his quarry from the ground, dropping him with a bullet in the leg. Physicians said both patients will recover.

Poles in Rage Over Bombing of Statue

WARSAW, Poland, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A monument to Polish insurgents erected after 1920 in Katowice was partly destroyed in an explosion today. The outrage has caused strong indignation among the Polish population.

The authorities said they believed the explosion was engineered by an intransigeant German element dissatisfied with the partition of Silesia between Poland and Germany.

Ferguson Heads U. S. Trade Board

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—G. S. Ferguson, Jr., a member of the Federal Trade Commission since November, 1927, has been elected chairman for this year. Announcing the election the commission explained that Ferguson was in line for the office which was held last year by Commissioner J. Edgar McCullough. The chairman receives an annual salary of $10,000.

Survey Completed For Perry Highway

MERCER, Pa., Jan. 4.—The new route of the Perry Highway from Sheakleyville north has been completed by surveyors. The survey, the third of a series made by the state in order to determine the best route, runs from Sheakleyville to Geneva, five miles west of Custards. The present route goes to Custards and a third goes east of Custards to join the Meadville-Franklin road.

Meteor Kills 130 Reindeer; Nomads Flee

Associated Press.
PETROPAVLOVSK-ON-KAMCHATKA, Siberia, Jan. 4.

A Nomad tribe of native "Koryaks," who arrived here to trade furs for clothing and ammunition, report that a few months ago, a gigantic meteorite struck the northern part of Penjinskoe district in the vicinity of the River Pal, and killed 130 of their reindeer.

The meteorite went deep into the frozen ground, forming a small lake.

The fall of the "scorching devil" terrified the "Koryaks" to such an extent that they drove their herds of reindeer over 200 miles of frozen tundra before venturing to pitch camp. Even now they cannot be tempted to approach the vicinity of the "Devil's Lake."

FIND BANK LOOT IN WOMAN'S CAR

FREDERICK, Md., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Maryland and Virginia authorities today were combing the Catoctin Mountains near here for Francis Lindsay, young Lovettsville, Va., farmer who is alleged to have held up the Farmers and Merchants Bank, Hamilton, Va., yesterday.

Frederick police recovered $2,367 of $4,000 loot. While the police were talking with three men from Hamilton who had been pursuing Lindsay, an automobile sped through Frederick. They gave chase in another car and later found an auto abandoned at Yellow Springs.

In the car was a badly frightened girl who said she was Lindsay's wife. At her feet was a sack containing part of the bank's money and an automatic pistol. She denied knowledge of the robbery, but is being held by Frederick police.

As Lindsay escaped to the mountains, apparently unarmed and without supplies, the authorities say his capture is certain.

Yough Canal Confab In Capital Tuesday

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 4.—Officers of the Youghiogheny River Improvement Association and three Western Pennsylvania congressmen will meet in Washington on Tuesday to prepare an outline of evidence to be submitted to the Army engineers at Pittsburgh, asking for approval of canalization of that stream.

The caucus has been asked by Representatives Samuel A. Kendall, Adam M. Wyant and Clyde Kelly. The river improvement committee will include Charles H. Shaw, of McKeesport, president; Maj. J. K. Blake, Connellsville, vice president; C. S. Stevenson, West Newton, secretary-treasurer, and Maj. Moorehead, West Newton, technical advisor.

Rabbi Suffocated By Gas in Bathroom

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Rabbi M. G. Papermaster, of St. Paul, Minn., died here late yesterday in the home of a friend, the victim of gas fumes. His body was found in a bathroom by Max Sandler, his host.

Tulsa friends said Rabbi Papermaster was nationally known in the Jewish orthodox faith. He came to Tulsa several weeks ago from St. Paul to work for the establishment of an orthodox Jewish school. His widow resides in St. Paul.

Two Negro Artists, Sculptor Win Prizes

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Two artists and a sculptor were announced today the winners of the Harmon Foundation 1929 fine arts awards for distinguished achievement among Negroes.

William H. Johnson, 29, a native of Florence, S. C., received a gold medal and $400 and gold medals and $100 were awarded to Alexander Smith, 33, of New York, now studying art in Paris, and Sargent Johnson, 41, a sculptor and wood carver, of Berkeley, Cal.

Musician Wounds 2 Sisters, Ends Life

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Unemployment and financial worries caused Albert Wiegand, 60, prominent musician, to kill himself here today after shooting and probably fatally injuring his sister, Anna, 59, and fracturing the skull of another sister, Ida, 65, with a hatchet.

He was single and lived with his two unmarried sisters.

Goodwill Industries Ask Clothes, Shoes

Because of unusually heavy demands which have been made upon the Goodwill Industries this winter, the Rev. A. G. Curry, director of the organization, has made an appeal to the general public for assistance.

According to the Rev. Mr. Curry, there is an immediate need of warm clothing and shoes. The largest sizes are needed for work in the shops where the men may be temporarily employed. Donations of money will also be acceptable, according to the director.

Hobo King to Pay Pittsburgh Visit

SHARON, Pa., Jan. 4.—On his way to Pittsburgh, Leon Lazarowitz, king of hoboes, stopped here for a short visit. He has been "on the road" for nearly 10 years and is now serving his second term as head of the Bonafide Hoboes' Union. The only country he has not visited is Russia, he says.

STOCK CORNER RULED FRAUD

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—A corner in the stock market comprises a fraud, according to a decision unanimously handed down by justices of the New York Appellate Court today.

The effect of his decision will be that, when evidence of an attempt to corner the market is obtained, the Bureau of Securities and other agencies will have an immediate case for an injunction and prosecution.

The case which led to the appellate decision was that of the state against a number of defendants operating in the stock of the Schickerling Radio Tube Corporation.

In commenting upon the decision, Attorney General Ward said:

"The operation of a corner is one of the most effective devices of the stock swindler because the security he wishes to sell can be listed in the over-the-counter market, or on some exchange. In this fashion the quotations of such a stock can be published. High pressure salesmen then call attention to the daily quotations and the rising market price of the security as evidence of the value of the security and the large demand for it."

Police Dog Away On Motor Ride, $80,000 Stolen

International News Service.
NEW YORK, Jan. 4.

If Rex, the police dog, had been home—

But he wasn't, so bandits experienced no difficulty in looting the apartment of Jules Muller, owner of a string of restaurants, and getting away with jewelry valued at between $50,000 and $80,000.

Pawnshops were being watched by the police today.

Where was Rex? Motoring with Mrs. Muller and the baby.

2 Rich Opium Dens Raided in Brooklyn; Six Chinese Seized

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Two prosaic looking brownstone front homes in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn were raided by police and federal narcotic agents who said their interiors were fitted out in oriental splendor as opium smoking rooms.

Six Chinese, all of whom the police said were actors, including Ching Wing, owner of the houses and manager of a group which operates the Chinese Theatre in Manhattan, were arrested. Seven opium layouts and $2,000 worth of the narcotic were seized.

The Chinese were charged with possession of narcotics.

SEA FREEDOM SEEN ONLY AS ALL WAR ENDS

British Rear Admiral Says Nations Must Agree to Abolish Maritime Strife.

By REAR-ADMIRAL K. G. B. DEWAR, Retired
Naval Aide-de-Camp to King George.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The term "Freedom of the Seas" is used in various senses, but it may be taken to mean complete freedom of passage to neutral shipping in time of war.

This sounds a plausible method of safeguarding supplies in the event of war and thus justifying a drastic reduction in naval expenditure.

But our food and essential commodities mainly come in our own ships, and no international agreement can prevent a power at war with Britain from sinking British ships.

If it were possible to insure the immunity of belligerent as well as neutral ships, the raison d'etre of navies would disappear. But this is to imagine war as something quite different from what it is.

The methods of waging maritime war can be renounced when war itself is abolished.

WOULD CAUSE FRICTION

But to return to the immunity of neutral ships, if it were practicable to enforce this idea, it might not be to this country's disadvantage, although in the special case of the late war, it would probably have prolonged Germany's resistance.

The main objection is, that it would cause intense friction between belligerents and neutrals, and would inevitably break down when put to the test.

Is it conceivable, for example, that in the event of war between Mexico and the United States, the latter would allow British ships to supply the Mexicans with munitions any more than she would have allowed them to take coal into Santiago during the Spanish-American War?

Again, in the late war, is it reasonable to suppose that we would have allowed American ships to pass through the Dardanelles with mines and torpedoes for the Turks?

REASONS FOR BLOCKADE

It may be said that contraband of war would be excluded, but the difficulty is to decide what is absolute and what is conditional contraband.

So long as there is war, there must be interference with neutral trade. The right of stopping contraband and enforcing a blockade is based on the nature and necessities of war, and no theory about the freedom of the seas will alter that fundamental fact.

If it is in the power of a belligerent to prevent it, he cannot be expected to allow a neutral to perform for the enemy a service which the enemy has been rendered impotent to perform for himself.

The demand for freedom of the seas primarily comes from the U. S. A., which twice has been dragged into European war by interference with her oversea trade. On neither of these occasions was it the legitimate rights of blockade and contraband to which she objected, and which she exercised when the occasion required, but their extension beyond the recognized limits of international law.

OPINION OF WRITER

In the late war, it was the illegal German submarine campaign and our illegal orders in council that caused serious friction with the U. S. A., but in our case it was not so much what we did as the way we did it.

Although, in the opinion of the writer, the idea of the freedom of the seas is impractible and would not, in any case, justify a reduction in naval armaments, a great deal can be done to free innocent inter-neutral trade from interference, and those uncertainties and delays which it is in the interests of both parties to eliminate.

But we must tread warily. In 1908, the British government, inspired by the same idea, initiated an international conference in London. The result was the declaration of London, which attempted to make things easier for neutrals by codifying the customs of international maritime law with regard to neutral shipping.

CONFUSION IN ORDERS

There is irony in the fact that our efforts in 1914 and 1915 to reconcile the actual requirements of war with the terms of the declaration of London, as adopted by orders in council, caused confusion and uncertainty, and was the principal cause of friction between ourselves and the United States of America.

If, in 1908, we were willing to renounce rights which were essential to our security six years later, there is no guarantee that another code of rules may not mean the abandonment of some other doctrine essential to our future salvation.

New conditions arising from increased facilities of transport should be met by new methods of certifying and guaranteeing trade such as were gradually organized during the war by the Netherlands Oversea Trust.

The principal cause of friction between neutrals and belligerents will always be the difficulty of distinguishing between innocent neutral trade and supplies for the enemy.

The impracticability of searching modern ships at sea has also greatly increased these exasperating delays and detentions, which are always liable to turn into active resentment.

If nations are anxious to abolish war, it is absurd and illogical to encourage war trade.

Even Great Britain was extremely careless in this respect, for at one time large quantities of cocoa and other commodities found their way through Scandinavia into Germany from this country. Under these circumstances it was natural that the U. S. A. should strongly object to interference with her trade.

It is not suggested that neutral governments can, even if they would, prevent their subjects' growing rich from other countries' wars, but they can assist to build up an organization as Holland, Denmark and Norway did, which will enable belligerents to distinguish between war trade and normal trade and thus facilitate the passage of innocent cargoes.

The world is moving towards the international supervision of the circumstances which lead to war, and it seems that the League of Nations might undertake the compilation and publication of trade statistics which would enable it in time of war to operate an international machinery of certification and guarantee.

Burning Toy Balloons Injure Aristocrats At American's Party

ROME, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Several members of the Italian nobility were burned slightly this morning when a patented lighter exploded toy balloons which were part of the decoration at a party given by the Princess Jane Di San Faustino. She formerly was Miss Jane Campbell of Staten Island, New York.

Those injured were the Princess Marina Ruspoli, daughter of Count Volpi, former minister of finance, the Prince and Princess Del Drago, the Baroness Elena Campagna, Lieutenant Cottafavi and a waiter.

The explosion occurred at the Ambassador's hotel in the course of a brilliant dance. The women suffered greater injuries when the burning rubber fell on their bare necks, arms and backs.

RARE EXAMPLES OF ART GLASS IN HOME HERE

Mrs. George Taber Owns Fine Collection of Treasures Handed Down in Family.

By PENELOPE REDD.

An enviable group of objects reposes in a cabinet in the home of Mrs. George Taber, of Bigelow boulevard, which would stir the cupidity of any enthusiastic collector of old glass. While Mrs. Taber regards her glass only as family treasures to be cherished, collectors would be amazed to discover probably the choicest authenticated examples of Sandwich glass, thus incognito in Pittsburgh.

This is all the more ironical, inasmuch as all experts writing on American glass as an art visit Pittsburgh while gathering material because of the city's pre-eminence in the glass industry. It was Pittsburgh's strong competition that was really the beginning of the end of glass manufacture at Sandwich, Massachusetts. So yesterday's prosperous industry becomes today's eagerly-sought art.

Mrs. Taber remembers her father, George Lafayette Fessenden, the "Lafe" mentioned in all accounts of Sandwich, visiting Pittsburgh in the early eighties to investigate Pittsburgh's strength as a rival in the glass industry. Shortly afterwards, Mr. Fessenden retired because of ill health.

TRIUMPH OF SANDWICH

Fessenden was the manager during the quarter of a century that was Sandwich's glory. His book of formulas is now in Mrs. Taber's possession. The legends turquoise, opal, pomona green, pearl gray, canary, chrysophrase, Iris, dove, pale green and white alabaster, describe the search for pellucid color.

The triumph of Sandwich, however, was the "Gold Ruby." While all the books say that gold coins were used, Mrs. Taber remembers distinctly the "gold ribbon" in long strips of almost coin thickness.

Mr. Fessenden's formula book states the proportion as four ounces of gold to 300 pounds of sand. The superb gold ruby pitcher which Mrs. Taber owns gives the long-lingering resonant tone, when tapped by the thumb nail, indicating the finest quality of cut glass.

FINE PIECES CUT

The gold ruby pitcher and all the others of Mrs. Taber's finest pieces are of cut, not pressed glass. One cut dish of white glass flashed with ruby, which means that a veneer of ruby glass was placed on the white surface before cutting, gives the effect of being composed of gems.

Another flat dish in the group is cut in what is evidently the dewdrop design. The use of barytes or "heavy earth" in the mix gives it the appearance of transparent silver.

A historic piece in Mrs. Taber's group is a punch bowl specially made for exhibition at the Centennial in 1876. Evidently it is similar to the Daniel Webster bowl noted in every article on Sandwich glass.

A bottle of "good canary," a gold-like yellow, etched with graceful floral, design is a presentation piece etched with the name of donor and recipient.

HAS RARE COLLECTION

Mr. Fessenden endeavored to get the most skilled glassmen from Europe. One of the French craftsmen taught the Fessenden children French, as well as teaching the workmen the refinements of glass design.

An interesting thing about Sandwich glass was its adaptanaming of its designs. The politically inspired Grant and Harrison Log Cabin group; the Cable design from the laying of the French cable.

Sentimental designs were made, such as the heart design for the cup plates used as tokens between friends. The cup plates, smaller than a saucer and larger than a butter chip, were used to place the cup upon while one lapped hot liquids from the saucer. They were made in pressed glass so fine as to seem lacelike.

Mrs. Taber has cup plates, finger bowls, goblets, sauce dishes and many other types of dishes now obsolete which were the table furnishings the Fessenden family used daily. Now any museum would enjoy exhibiting them in a de luxe installation.

All Germany Pays Schurman Tribute

BERLIN, Jan. 4. — (AP.) — All Germany listened to a farewell oration on Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, retiring American ambassador, broadcast by Prof. Arthur Liebert, president of the Kant Society, today. Prof. Liebert voiced the regret of the German people in losing a friend to whom the country "owes deep gratitude for his warm heart and understanding mind. At the pinnacle of popular veneration, he is the recipient of best wishes from the nation to which his affection ever inclined."

Many Notables Injured In English Hunting Field

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The English hunting field took an aunusually heavy toll of life during 1929. The recent death of Harold Lowther, brother of Viscount Ullswater and a former resident of Billings, Mont., was the ninth fatal accident of the year.

Four of the eight other hunting deaths were those of women, among them being the fatal accident of Mrs. Viccars, who was killed during a run of the famous Quorn pack.

Another Quorn tragedy was the death of Capt. Campbell Johnston, who was killed in March.

The Earl of Harrington was killed in November while out with his own pack of hounds, and other victims of the hunting field included a prominent Leicestershire rider and one of the whips attached to the South Notts hunt.

Accidents without fatal termination were innumerable.

The Duke of Gloucester, the King's third son and a very fine horseman, was thrown twice; while Lord Cromwell, Lord Cornwallis, Mrs. Dudley Coats, Lady Conyers, the Hon. Mrs Edward Lascelles and the Hon. Nancy Astor, Viscount and Lady Astor's only daughter, all had more or less serious mishaps.

HIGHEST COURT FAST CLEARING LONG CALENDAR

First Session After Recess Expected to See Virtually All Pending Cases Ended.

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan 4—(INS.)—The Supreme Court will take a long forward stride toward cleaning up its calendar on Monday by handing down many opinions prepared in a recess of more than three weeks, it was predicted today.

Having taken the lead in an attempt to speed court procedure throughout the entire country, the high court under Chief Justice Taft already has brought its work virtually up to date this year, and is believed to be one of few courts in the nation in which there is no congestion.

With only 38 cases argued and ready for decision when the present recess began and comparatively few writs of review to consider, it is expected most of the pending cases will be decided on decision day, Monday.

IMPORTANT CASES

Among the important cases awaiting decision are:

Appeal of Tagg Bros. and Moorhead to test constitutionality of packers and stockyards act insofar as it gives the Secretary of Agriculture power to fix commissions to be charged farmers by livestock commission merchants.

Legality of the action of the International Shoe Company in absorbing the W. H. McElwain Shoe Company. The Federal Trade Commission attacked the purchase as a violation of the Clayton anti-trust act and won in the lower courts.

Validity of Interstate Commerce Commission order cutting freight rates on deciduous fruits from California to eastern points, involving interpretations of Hoch-Smith resolution by which Congress directed the commission to consider the depressed condition of agriculture in fixing rates.

Appeal of Wabash Railway to overturn a lower court decision ordering dividends of more than $5,000,000 to preferred A stockholders.

CASES FOR ARGUMENT

Many highly important cases are slated for argument in the court in the next two weeks. Among them is the government's appeal from a lower Federal Court holding illegal the indictment of former Representative Harry M. Wurzbach (Rep.), of Texas, on a charge of soliciting campaign funds from government employes.

Constitutionality of the act of Congress making solicitation a crime is questioned by Wurzbach in the case. The court's decision may amplify the famous Newberry decision, in which it was held the government could not prosecute a United States senator-elect for alleged frauds committed in a primary campaign.

Special Master Charles Evans Hughes is expected to present his report to the court in the Great Lakes diversion case, in which he recommended the gradual reduction in the amount of water which the Illinois Sanitary District at Chicago may withdraw from Lake Michigan.

PROHIBITION TO FORE

Prohibition cases will take a front rank again in the court's deliberations in the near future. The Department of Justice has taken steps to obtain a review of a lower court decision holding there can be no prosecution for purchase of liquor under present laws.

In this case Alfred E. Norris, of New York, was convicted for conspiracy, his acts including the telephoning of liquor orders to another in Philadelphia. The Circuit Court reversed the case.

Attorney General Oscar L. Heltzen, of Rhode Island, is expected to formally present on Monday a petition to compel Federal Judge Letts to permit Alvah H. Richardson, dry agent, to be tried in state courts. After he was indicted for theft, following a liquor raid, the case was transferred to the Federal Court.

Two tax cases, involving the right of brewers to lower their income tax by claiming depreciation of their property and good will as a result of national prohibition, will be argued soon.

Peer Gynt Feature Of Today's Concert

Dr. Charles Heinroth will play the Peer Gynt Suite No. 2, by Grieg, this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Carnegie Music Hall.

The program: Overture to "La Gazza Ladra," Rossini. Canzona in F Minor, King-Hall. Peer Gynt Suite No. 2, Grieg. 1. The Abduction, Ingrid's Lament; 2. Arabian Dance; 3. Peer Gynt's Return (Stormy Night on the Coast); 4. Solfejg's Song. Evening Star, from "Tannhauser," Wagner. Sonata in the Style of Handel, Wolstenholme. 1. Introduction Allegro; 2. Adagio; 3. Minuet. Cantilena in A Minor, Grison. Torchlight Dance in B Flat, No. 1, Meyerbeer.

South High Parents Will Meet Thursday

The Parent-Teacher Association of South High School will hold the second meeting of the year at 2 p. m. Thursday. The program consists chiefly of musical numbers to be arranged by the mothers, and an address to be given by H. H. Johnson, vice principal. Tea will be served by the home economics classes of the school.

Candy Salesmen End Convention

A three-day sales conference and convention of representatives of the Hein Candy Company, 32-34 Isabella street, North Side, closed last night with a banquet in the Roosevelt Hotel. Sales representatives from five states were present. John J. Hein is president and C. R. Adamson, sales director.

JAIL 28 REDS FOR OUTBREAK AT WASHINGTON

Demonstration Staged Before Mexican Embassy Seen As Communist Protest.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.) Twenty-eight persons who described themselves as Communists were arrested today after a demonstration in front of the Mexican embassy and one of them, Josef Winkowsky, was sent to a hospital to be treated for minor injuries after a scuffle with the police. Three others were held as leaders of the group.

The remainder were released at the request of Ambassador Tellez, of Mexico, who apparently attached no importance to the incident. He asserted that the demonstration, said to be a protest against the imprisonment of Communists in Mexico, represented youthful exuberance rather than political conviction.

TROUBLE AT STATION

Winkowsky was hurt after a disturbance arose in the police station. Previous to this there was some disorder in making the arrests, but it was brief.

The group carried banners denouncing President-elect Ortiz-Rubio, of Mexico, and the Mexican government and one said: "Ortiz-Rubio and Hoover, both enemies of the worker."

Several weeks ago a group, who also described themselves members of the young Communists League, were taken into custody after a demonstration in front of the White House. They were held for a few hours and released at the request of President Hoover.

ORITZ-RUBIO IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—President-elect Pascual Ortiz-Rubio, of Mexico, visiting Chicago as part of a goodwill tour of the United States, today conferred with Mexican government engineers stationed here to study American engineering principles and complimented them on the work they were doing "for the good of Mexico." He said he would continue their stay here under his administration as long as possible.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Sixteen rioting Communists were under arrest today following an attempt to break up a "White Russian" lecture by Victor Chernov. Four policemen were injured in the melee at a lecture hall.

Escapes Hospital, Man Killed by Train

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Palmer F. Smith, 49, of Bath, who escaped from the Allentown State Hospital, clad in a flimsy night shirt, was killed today by a Central Railroad of New Jersey freight train on which he was attempting to get away.

Smith was in a line of patients being led to breakfast, when he eluded the guards, smashed a door window and crawled out. As he fled he cast away his sole article of clothing.

The train crew did not see him board the freight, but found his severed body when they passed through the local railroad yards.

Smith was married and had four children.

Blind Student Wins Oratory Honor

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Jan. 4.—H. Loy Sumner, Ellwood City, blind student at Geneva College, won the honor of representing that institution in oratorical debates in the tri-state district and the nation. Sumner is in his junior year.

SECRET

MARRIED—Edna Aldine Rodgers, co-ed and classmate whose wedding last Oct. 21 to Jack B. Kiefer, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Perry Kiefer, Edgewood society people, became known only yesterday. They're students at Duke University, North Carolina.

BURKE'S WIFE GIVEN RELEASE

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Viola Brennerman, 34, common-law wife of Fred Burke, Chicago gangster and slayer of Patrolman Charles Skelly, of St. Joseph, was released on her own recognizance today from the Berrien County jail.

The woman, who had been held since December 14 after Burke had slain Skelly and fled from the city, was arraigned on a charge of receiving stolen property. She waived preliminary examination and was bound over to Circuit Court.

The slaying of Skelly after an automobile accident in which Burke was involved, led to the discovery in the Burke home of bonds stolen from a Jefferson (Wis.) bank and the disclosure that Burke figured in the machine gun massacre of the "Bugs" Moran gangsters in Chicago last St. Valentine's Day.

Rumania Disturbed Over Carol's Plans

VIENNA, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Dispatches from Bucharest, Rumania, reported today that considerable agitation among the people had been caused by renewed reports that the regency council will resign and that former Prince Carol may return to Rumania.

The Rumanian police seized a special edition of the newspaper Cuvantul, which is devoted to Carol's interests and which had prepared the edition for publication today on the anniversary of Carol's renunciation of the throne.

INVADER RIGHTS PERIL GERMAN, FRENCH ACCORD

Both Sides Firm in Dispute Over Sanctions at Hague; Britain Follows U. S. Lead.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.
Universal Service.
Special Cable.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 4.—France's demand for sanctions, which in effect is the right to invade and occupy sections of German territory in the event Germany should fail to make its reparations payments, has quickly become the dominating question at The Hague, around which the struggle behind the scenes has begun.

The United States, in its special German debt settlement agreement, waived all sanctions or rights thereto, with a clause that the American government considers "full faith and credit as the only security and guarantee for fulfillment of Germany's obligations."

The French not only have no intention of following this example of expressed confidence by America in the good faith and good will of Germany, but are inclined particularly to resent that clause in the disliked separate agreement concluded before the conference convened.

LUNCHEON PARLEY FAILS

In some quarters close to the French, it is openly said that it "looks almost as if America and Germany are trying to put one over," and that this German-American special agreement nullifies the Young plan.

German Foreign Minister Curtius this morning communed long with the sad North Sea waves in a walk all alone on the shore.

At noon, the German ministers were guests of French Premier Andre Tardieu at luncheon, at which French Foreign Minister Briand was also present, but no one from the other delegations.

That the Germans and French came no nearer their respective attitudes on sanctions was evident from the glumness of Curtius afterward, and it hardly needed "nothing happened" as confirmation.

BOTH SIDES FIRM

Premier Tardieu is sticking to the French view for sanctions with that doggedness characteristic of him, while the German delegation knows that no return to Berlin with a document in which they have signed to France the right, in principle, to repeat the Ruhr invasion, is likely to mean the overthrow of the present cabinet.

The Germans say they are willing that France shall have the right to sanctions through the World Court and League of Nations, but not directly and without control as a treaty right in the Young plan.

Under France's demand and interpretation of sanctions, the Germans assert they would not have the right of appeal to the league or even the right of protest against military invasion.

The British have practically declared they are disinterested in sanctions and are disposed to follow America's example, accepting Germany's good faith, and desire no sanctions for themselves other than those applicable under international law against a debtor nation. However, they seem very disinclined to intervene between the French and Germans on this point.

PAYMENTS SPECIFIED

In the special agreement between Berlin and Washington, Germany, I understand, is obligated to pay the United States annually 40,800,000 gold marks, or approximately $10,000,000, for 51 years, ending March 31, 1981.

According to Germany's own calculations, she already has paid between $12,000,000,000 and $14,000,000,000, including cash, wares, railways, former German territory, ships, liquidation of confiscated German properties, and so on, but not including the surrendered colonies.

The Young plan provides that Germany pay another $9,000,000,000, the last payment to be April 1, 1988. In addition, the French demand that Germany shall guarantee the separate reparation payments of Austria Hungary and Bulgaria, her former allies.

Seize Drug Cache, Arrest Suspect

Vincent McKee, 30, an alleged drug peddler, was arrested at his home, 1734 Brighton road, by Federal Narcotic Agent Joseph Colebob and City Detective Frank Ferris. They reported confiscating 400 grains of morphine, which they said, McKee brought from Detroit several days ago. He was released under bond. According to the government agent, McKee served a term in the Atlanta penitentiary for violating the Harrison narcotic act and also has a case pending in Federal Court charging him with sale of drugs.

Still Kills Chance To Be Police Head

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Jan. 4—(INS.)—Nels Perry, prominent Cheyenne citizen, today had lost his chance of becoming chief of police after a raid on his ranch near Albin by state officers revealed one of the largest stills ever found in Wyoming. No charges were made against Perry, but Cal Holiday, mayor-elect of Cheyenne, announced he would necessarily drop Perry as leading candidate for the police appointment.

Man Almost Scalped By Pittsburgh Auto

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Jan. 4.—Eli Nicovich, 50, Ambridge, was almost scalped today when he ran into the side of an automobile, driven by R. Felman, 400 South Aiken avenue, Pittsburgh. Nicovich was taken to Valley Hospital, Sewickley. His scalp is reported torn from front to back, and his skull probably fractured.

TILDEN, DEFEATED, BOOED BY PARIS CROWD

PANTHER FIVE STAGES SPURT IN LAST HALF

Capt. Hyatt Plays Brilliant Role as Mates Score Victory Over Huskers.

Westerners Hold Blue and Gold Quintet Even in Opening Two Quarters.

THE dashing Panthers of Pitt added another big victory to their unbroken string last night at the Stadium when they measured the flaming Cornhuskers of Nebraska for a setback in a furious battle. The score was 34 to 27.

Charley Hyatt.

The attractive country boys from the mid-western plains appeared to be big enough to overpower Dr. Carlson's little team, but with Capt. Hyatt leading them in an exceptional floor action, the home basketeers were able to offset the physical advantages.

The first half brought out a session of remarkable basketball, the period ending with the contestants in a 14-14 deadlock. The outlook wasn't brilliant after the invaders had taken the lead in the second half, but when Hyatt and his boys began to do their stuff like they can, the picture was quickly turned. About the middle of the last half the Panthers jumped out with a fairly comfortable lead which they nursed carefully to the finish.

TIED AT HALF

MacLay, the invading center, was the first athlete to get the ball through the hoop. This tall lad scored a field goal before the game was a minute old, but a lad of contrasting size made it all even when Arture caged the ball. Hyatt shot a foul a moment later to put the Panthers in front. The invaders put on a little spurt and took the lead, but the contest waged close and furious as the period progressed. Fouls were numerous, but neither side was able to do any unusual shooting of the free style. The foul trend of the contest had a tendency to slow up the last half of the period, but the closing minutes were fraught with exciting play. Kowallis' foul shooting put the home team ahead for a minute, but Nebraska tied with a free shot. The half ended with the two teams tied at 14—all.

HUSKERS BREAK DEADLOCK

The second part of the fight was scoreless for two minutes before Maclay took a rebound off the board and tipped the ball through the hoops to break the deadlock. Fisher also counted with a field shot. Foul shots by Zehfuss and Hyatt followed and the next moment Hyatt made the fans roar with a long shot through the hoops. Arture came through with another to put the Panther out in front. The Carlson outfit soon had a five-point lead through its cleverness. The invaders put on a scoring spurt, but the Panthers matched it. Pitt had a five-point lead with less than five minutes to go.

Capt. Hyatt was given a big ovation as he left the contest with less than two minutes to go. Wrobleski took his place. The Panthers were in a pretty stride at the close. The lineup:

Pitt.		Nebraska.
Hyatt	F.	Grace
Zehfuss	F.	Fisher
L. Cohen	C.	Maclay
Arture	G.	White
W. Kowallis	G.	Lewandowski

Score by halves:

Nebraska	14	13—27
Pitt	14	20—34

Substitutions—Pitt, Wrobleski for Hyatt, M. Cohen for Wrobleski; Nebraska, Hakuf for Lewandowski. Scoring: Pitt field goals—Hyatt 4, Zehfuss 2, Arture 2, L. Cohen 3. Nebraska field goals — Grace 2, MacLay 6, Witte 1, Fisher 1, Lewandowski 1. Foul goals—Hyatt, 4 out of 6; Zehfuss, 5 out of 7; Arture, 1 out of 3; W. Kowallis, 2 out of 2; Grace, 2 out of 5; Fisher, 3 out of 5. Referee—Brickley. Umpire—Snyder.

FRESHIES WIN, 30-27

In a fast preliminary, the Pitt Freshies defeated South High, 30 to 27. The victory made it 29 in a row for the Panther Yearlings over a three-season stretch. George Kowallis is the coach. The lineup:

Pitt Fresh.—30.		South High—27.
Cross	F.	Zakrewski
Alperts	F.	Goldstein
Leech	C.	Niedzwicke
Smith	G.	Mervosh
Rodgers	G.	Lengwin

Subs—Pitt: McGinnis for Cross; Lewis for Alperts; Davis for Lewis; Lewis for Smith; Pepper for Cross; Friedler for Davis; Joyce for Davis. South High: Joyce for Goldstein; Popow for Niedzwicke; Stainich for Lengwin. Field goals —Pitt: Cross 1, Alperts 2, Lewis 1, Leech 3, Rodgers 4, Smith 1. South: Zakrewski 5, Lengwin 2, Goldstein 1, Mervosh 1. Foul goals—Pitt: 6 out of 16. South: 9 out of 17. Referee—Cal Bolster.

Panthers Reach Needles; Visit Grand Canyon Today

By JESS CARVER,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

NEEDLES, Cal., Jan 4.—There ought to be a law against a guy having to travel to California one way with one football team and then travel back to Pittsburgh the same way with another. Sure, there should, let's get one passed.

Anyway, the Pitt football party, with which your correspondent is traveling, left here this evening for Williams, Ariz., and a visit to the Grand Canyon. The Pitt boys early this morning left Los Angeles, where, on New Year's Day, they took a walloping from Southern California in the annual Tournament of Roses game in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena. The Panthers are headed for home, and a shift in the plans of the Steel City party calls for the arrival of the Blue and Gold tourists in Pittsburgh Wednesday night instead of Thursday. Tomorrow we take in the Canyon, which hardly has had a chance to change much since I looked it over with the Carnegie Tech outfit early in December. If it has changed, I'll take notes and let you know all about it. Might be a great break for the real estate men.

Sharkey-Schmeling Title Bout Next June New Plan

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, will battle Max Schmeling, of Germany, in a bout for the world title in June, if the plans of one of several promoters are successful, it was learned this afternoon.

Madison Square Garden Corporation would like to stage the battle at one of the New York baseball parks. William F. Carey and Frank Bruen, representing the Garden, discussed the possibility of a Sharkey-Schmeling contest in June with Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, when plans for the Boston heavyweight to battle at Miami, Fla., next month, fell through.

Carey and Bruen informed Buckley they believe that a Schmeling-Sharkey contest will draw $1,000,000 in New York.

Jack Dempsey is, in the field for a Sharkey-Schmeling contest for one of the Chicago ball parks. He has had several long-distance telephone calls with Buckley from New York, where he is appearing on the stage.

Dempsey informed Buckley that Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, is willing to sign for Max to battle Sharkey in the Windy City.

The former champion has lost $60,000 promoting bouts at the Chicago Coliseum and he realizes that a Sharkey-Schmeling match will enable him to recoup his losses and make a substantial

BILL IS JEERED FOR PROTESTING LINE DECISIONS

'Put On Your Glasses,' Yank Tells Official; Leaves Court Amid Cat-Calls.

Jean Borotra Victor in Four Sets in Final of French Indoor Championships.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Staging a demonstration that caused him to be booed by a large crowd of spectators, William T. (Big Bill) Tilden went down to defeat today in the final of the French indoor tennis championships. The victor was Jean Borotra, who won in a bitterly-contested four-set match, 6-4, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1.

Bill Tilden

Tilden objected continuously to the decisions of the linesmen, and he incurred the displeasure of the spectators when he finally lost his temper and shouted to one of the referees:

"Put on your glasses."

The crowd was not the least bit hesitant about expressing its disapproval of this display of temper, and the lanky American left the court to the accompaniment of boos and cat-calls.

RECORD CROWD

The largest crowd that ever gathered for covered courts tennis in France witnessed the match. More than 1,000 persons were in the street outside unable to get into the packed arena.

Speed defeated Tilden, who seemed blinded at times by his opponent's dazzling stroking. The Bounding Basque, always at his best on wood courts, stormed the net at every opportunity while Tilden elected to play a baseline game. The match was keenly contested with Borotra tallying 114 points and Tilden 106.

TIRES IN LAST SET

Despite his defeat, Tilden seemed as able as a year ago, although he tired somewhat in the last set. His famous "cannonball" working perfectly, Big Bill served 11 aces.

The crowd, which overflowed onto the court, bothered both players. Many of the spectators were sitting just behind the baseline and along the sidelines and sometimes actually interfered with the players' strokes.

Tilden leaves tomorrow for the Riviera, where he is paired with his young countryman, Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., in doubles.

Did Dive To Shires —Dan Daly

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The Ohio State Journal tomorrow will say that Dangerous Dan Daly, Arthur (the Great) Shires' opponent when the baseball star entered the pugilistic world in Chicago early in December, in an interview said today that "he took a dive" in the Chicago bout. He refused to name the men issuing the instructions that he permit Shires to win.

Dangerous Dan Daly is Jim Gerry, a Columbus lad.

Following is the interview with Gerry:

"A few days before the fight I received a wire from Cleveland asking if I wished to box in Chicago. I accepted without the slightest idea of whom I was going to fight. I arrived in Chicago on Sunday, the day before the fight. They treated me like a king and when I worked out in a gymnasium on Sunday afternoon a large crowd assembled, including many newspaper reporters and photographers. I had, of course, been registered at the hotel as Dangerous Dan Daly and was told to forget, for a few days at least, my true name.

FEARED A "RIDE"

"Monday afternoon, I was taken on a sight-seeing trip and one of the places visited was the county jail. There were a lot of fellows in the hospital ward all bandaged up who might have been slugged after being taken for a ride. Well, when they told me just before the fight that I was to 'take a dive' or else, I thought about those poor fellows in the workhouse and the fact that I had only three dollars in my pocket. I was told that the crowd was larger than

Two Panthers on Sun-Tele's All-America Eleven

THREE NOTRE DAME ACES ARE GIVEN PLACES

Donchess, at End, and Montgomery, at Guard, Among Jess Carver's Choices.

Cannon Regarded as Outstanding Star of Season; Welch at Fullback.

(The extensive travels of Jess Carver, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph football writer, during the gridiron campaign which came to a close with the Pitt-Southern California game at Pasadena, New Year's Day, have served to qualify him exceptionally well for the task of selecting an all-America eleven. Carver witnessed games in the Tri-state district, the East, the South and the Mid-West before going to the Pacific Coast to "sit in" on three big grid battles. His selections are of additional merit in that they were made after ALL of the football "returns were in.")

By JESS CARVER
Staff Correspondent.

NEEDLES, Cal., Jan. 4.—If it possesses no other claim to fame, or the attention of those of the football public still interested in all-America selections, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's 1929 team, presented herewith, may at least boast of being the latest of the season. A few all-America selections took on a very sour flavor during the series of post-season games recently completed in California, while by the same token, there rose to the heights new stars, possibly as deserving of all-star rating as those honored earlier.

It always is well to make as complete and detailed study of the collegiate crop as is possible before putting on paper any sort of an honorary setup, and it is this correspondent's belief that the Sun-Telegraph's team has had the benefit of as skilled and competent choosing as could be obtained. No fewer than eight nationally prominent coaches, as many football writers and a regiment of players themselves aided in its selection.

SIX FROM MID-WEST

The players given places on the first team were chosen, first, for consistency; second, for ability, and third, for the class of their opposition. Eight of the first 11 took part in post-season intersectional games and played as well in these stressful contests as they did during the regular season. Six are from the mid-west, four from the east and one from the far west. Pittsburgh, with two, and Notre Dame, with three men on the first team, are the only schools to land more than one player.

Joe Donchess, Pitt's great wing, and Tappaan, of Southern California, are credited with being the greatest ends of the year. Donchess played sterling football throughout the regular campaign, and then stood out as at least one bright spot in the drabness of Pitt's defeat by Southern California on New Year's day. Tappaan, good all year, played fine football against Carnegie Tech and against Pitt, and deserves to be paired with the Pitt ace.

Nemecek, New York U; Muller, Stanford; Schoonover, Arkansas; Carlmark, Army, and Fesler, Ohio State, were other outstanding ends. Carlmark lost rating in the game against Stanford, but otherwise played great football for West Point this year.

NAGURSKI AT TACKLE

Bronko Nagurski, Minnesota's husky all-round star, and Ted Twomey, of Notre Dame, have been consistent stars for their teams all fall. Nagurski is regarded as one of the greatest football players in Gopher history. He starred as a tackle, a fullback and can play an end with the best of them.

Dr. Spears, coach at Minnesota, says his protege is best at tackle, being of more value to his team at that position than any other.

Twomey was one of the bright stars of Notre Dame's season, and rivaled Jack Cannon for individual honors for the Ramblers. He was a powerful defensive star, performing in outstanding manner against U. S. C., Tech and the Army.

Other tackles who stood out during the season, but not with the color and class of Nagurski and Twomey, were Wakeman, Cornell; MacMurdo, Pittsburgh; Sleight, Purdue; Perry, Army and Richards, Nebraska.

CANNON YEAR'S BEST

Jack Cannon, Notre Dame's great guard, was the outstanding football player of the year. Cannon's name will go down in football history. Because Cannon was a great, great lineman, he could do anything, and frequently did, on the defense, and was invaluable to the Notre Dame team on the offense.

Paired up with Ray Montgomery, Pitt's line ace, Cannon would make any football team an all-America one. Montgomery, too, played great football, and along with Donchess strove manfully to hold up the Panthers against Southern California.

Other guards such as Bromberg, Dartmouth; Schwarz, California; Barrager, Southern California; Dreshar, Carnegie Tech, and Firpo Greene, of Yale, were good enough. But not to rank with Montgomery and with Cannon.

Ben Ticknor, undoubetedly, was the best center of the year. He made his reputation as a defensive man, but his passing was accurate at all times. Heinecke, Stanford, and Siano, Fordham, were capable and worthwhile pivot men.

With Carideo to do the kicking, Cagle the passing and Glassgow and Welch keeping the defense in the air at all times, wondering just what they would do, the backfield quartet named here would be a world beater.

CARIDEO FINE GENERAL

Carideo was the outstanding quarter of the year. His generalship at all times was unquestionable. He was a good passer, a fine punter and no slouch as a ball carrier.

Glassgow won the recommendation of almost all the middle western coaches and critics for a halfback job. Fast and elusive, he made an excellent ball carrier, and besides, was an expert blocker and an able defensive back.

Cagle, playing on a team far too weak to permit him to do his stuff as only Cagle can, is nevertheless of all-America vintage, and is accordingly awarded one of the halfback posts. Cagle played his best against Notre Dame, but was a constant threat to Stanford, even though the Army plan of attack did not utilize Keener as much as it should.

Pest Welch, who has been a star at Purdue for three years, is placed at fullback over Parkinson, of Pitt, and Holm, of Alabama, because he was the more consistent. Parkinson had a tough day against Southern California, principally because the Trojans played a close defense against him. Had Pitt passed some, and forced the U. S. C. defense to spread, Tom certainly would have punctured the Southern California line more than he did.

There were many, many good backs seen in action this year, but it is generally conceded there were few better than the four named. Albie Booth, Yale; Benny Lom, California; Saunders, Southern California; Smalling, Stanford; Holm, Alabama; Elder, Notre Dame; Masters, Penn; Hinkle, Bucknell; Sloan, Nebraska; Brazill, Detroit, and McEver, Tennessee, were of great value to their respective elevens and played brilliant football at times, and would be welcome additions to most any man's team.

Just in passing, it might be mentioned that your correspondent had the good fortune to see 10 of the 11 men on the first team play this year. Welch did not appear in the East nor on the Coast, so we missed him.

Assisting in the selection of this team is a very representative board—unofficial, of course, but nevertheless, a competent one. Thanks are hereby tendered to Pop Warner, Stanford; Howard Jones, Southern California; Dick Hanley, Northwestern; Andy Kerr, Colgate; Jock Sutherland, Pitt; Wally Steffen, Carnegie Tech; Nibs Price, California; Slip Madigan, St. Mary's; Dr. Clarence Spears, Minnesota, and Biff Jones and Maj. Sassce, of West Point, among the coaches, and Warren Brown, Chicago Herald-Examiner; Mark Kelly, Los Angeles Examiner; Bill Leiser, San Francisco Examiner; Pat Frayne, San Francisco Call; Daniel, New York Telegram; George Trevor, New York Sun; Curly Grieve, Denver Inter-Mountain, and Dick Hyland, New York Journal, of the Fourth Estate.

THOMS RUN BOOTERS SCORE UPSET VICTORY OVER PIERPOINT

SURPRISE—Thoms Run defeated the Pierpoint Motors team and Heidelberg Eagles won over Clan Douglas in the second round of play in the National amateur cup soccer competition yesterday. Both games were decided by the score of 1 to 0 and each result was an upset of the dope. In the picture above, George Thompson, Pierpoint fullback, has just cleared the ball away from the goal after an attack led by George Chappel, inside right of Thoms Run, in the first half of the game at the Homewood playgrounds.

EAGLES, THOMS RUN VICTORS IN SOCCER GAMES

Chartiers Valley League Entrants Advance in National Amateur Cup Competition.

Pierpoints and Clan Douglas Eliminated by 1-0 Scores In Thrilling Duels.

By TOM BIRKS.

THE season's surprises in local soccer came yesterday afternoon in the national amateur cup, when the two members of the Chartiers Valley League, Thoms Run and the Heidelberg Eagles, passed into the second round of the tourney. Thoms Run defeated the Pierpoint Motors eleven by a 1-0 score at the Homewood playgrounds, and the Eagles found their success at Swissvale, where they defeated the Clan Douglas aggregation by a 1-0 score.

It certainly was a disastrous day for the two members of the District League. Pierpoint and Douglas were overwhelming favorites to win, but the pluck and determination of the Chartiers Valley boys turned the tide in their favor.

VICTORIES DESERVED

And there was nothing fluky about the victory of either clubs. Thoms Run outplayed the Pierpoints throughout the game, and the Eagles gave Douglas a great battle. The Clansmen fought hard in the latter part of the game, but could not tie the score.

Thoms Run outplayed Pierpoints in the first half. The field was icy and this stopped the players taking any kind of chances. Howard Mangus scored the only goal of the game in the second half, a scrimmage around the goal mouth giving Mangus his chance.

ANDY HUMBLE SCORES

Harbin and Stenzel, together with Thompson and Schang, were good for Pierpoint, but the forward line was disappointing.

At Swissvale, Andy Humble turned the trick in the second half, beating Wakemen.

The scorers of both the winning goals are former members of the Heidelberg national amateur championship team. The lineups:

Thoms Run—1.		Pierpoint—0.
Darkus	G.	Marshall
Gardner	R.B.	Thompson
Smart	L.B.	Schang
C. Mitchell	R.H.	Von Jura
Mangus	C.H.	Harbin

profit in addition.

Atlantic City promoters would like to pit Sharkey against Schmeling at its new auditorium, which has a seating capacity of 40,000.

Johnny Buckley said he was willing to sign for Sharkey if guaranteed $250,000.

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's pilot, is opposed to Atlantic City as the scene of the contest. He believes it would draw more in Chicago or New York.

Representatives of the New York milk fund have also made an attractive offer for the Sharkey-Schmeling bout. They are prepared to stage it in either New York or Chicago.

Sharkey has also expressed a willingness to battle Phil Scott, British champion. Scott is one of the three men named by William Muldoon, veteran member of the New York Boxing Commission, to battle for the world heavyweight title.

SEEK CAMPOLO-CARNERA GO

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Admitting themselves defeated in their efforts to persuade Jack Sharkey to accept Tuffy Griffiths as an opponent, the Madison Square Garden Corporation today turned their attention to the possibilities of a meeting between Primo Carnera, the Italian mastodon, and Victorio Campolo, the huge Argentine, at Miami in February. Carnera's advisors, including Bill Duffy and Leon See, conferred with Garden officials this afternoon about the match and left promising to reach a decision within a few days. They said they were not certain that Carnera's inexperience would fit him for a match of such magnitude this early in the game. His career numbers only 17 fights.

However, the big money value of this freak of the prize ring was further impressed upon the Garden heads later in the day when they watched him work out at a local gymnasum. The fans fought for foot room in the inadequate hall, while thousands of disappointed citizens waited in the street for a fleeting view of the monstrosity. Campolo, who is expected to arrive in America next Wednesday, is no pigmy himself, being 6 feet 6 inches in his own right.

Wheeling Driving Club Cards Meet

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The Wheeling Driving Club has arranged a 16-day running race meeting to be held April 9-26 at State Fair Park here, it was announced today by Mrs. Bert H. Swartz, secretary.

The meeting will be featured by a $5,000 added derby in commemoration of the Golden Jubilee year of the West Virginia State Fair Association.

UNION SWITCH GALLATIN FOE

TODAY'S GAMES.
National Amateur Cup.
Union Switch and Signal at Gallatin.
CHARTIERS VALLEY LEAGUE.
Glendale at Cecil.
Kramers at Horning.

The eyes of soccer fandom locally will again turn to Gallatin this afternoon, where Sickles and his mates fight their battle in the national amateur cup with the Union Switch and Signal eleven of Swissvale.

We have heard so much of Gallatin of late that it would appear the up-river club is taking the place of Heidelberg in the affections of the fans in the national cup ties. Gallatin had a hard game last Sunday to beat Cecil, in fact the Chartiers Valley club put on a finish that had the Gallatin supporters worried until the final whistle.

GALLATIN STRONG

Gallatin, however, is playing the type of soccor that wins cup ties. Forgetting all playing to the gallery the up-river club must concentrate on puncturing the net at every possible chance, and Fontela will have to be in superb shape to offset that Gallatin front line this afternoon.

"To be or not to be." That might be the quotation regarding the Holley Carburetors game with the Pierpont Motors team scheduled for next Sunday at Detroit. But last night it developed that Holley is not keen about paying the Pittsburghers the guarantee for their trip to the Michigan city, and that for a paltry $600 the Western League professional club would rather take a chance of showing in Pittsburgh next Saturday. These professional clubs with the big payroll a much mooted drawing power certainly have the gall. When the professional League was organized during the national convention at the Hotel Statler last June, dollars seemed to be a negative part in the proceedings. All of the clubs had money to burn, and all could pack in 5,000 to 10,000 fans in their home games. Now in the first round of the national cup, we find the Holleys trying to side-step paying the Pittsburgher's guarantee of $350, and sending down a legally worded contract, that has the Pierpont committee up in the air.

NEW IN SOCCER

This is something new in soccer, and the Pittsburghers might do well to also let some friend of the legal estate take a peek at those intricate wordings, or else the Motors might, for the second time this season, be furnishing their own transportation back from Michigan.

At conventions these Sunday towns cry to the world their drawing power and wonderful gates, but as yet outside of the Arden-Scullin Steel game, in St. Louis, the writer has yet to see 10,000 fans packed into a Sunday soccer game. And while the committee frowns on Western Pennsylvania because it must play Saturday football, we find powerful clubs, with a great backing, wanting to take advantage of the Saturday teams, and travel. Of course it would be a good thing for the game to bring Holley Carburetors club to Pittsburgh. It has been a long time since a professional soccer team flashed its stuff in Pittsburgh, and should Carl Ekequist and his mates decide to put on the game here, the fans should put a shoulder to the wheel and put the game over.

Penn Athletic Teams Win 98, Lose 66 Tests

Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.

FIFTEEN athletic teams at the University of Pennsylvania won a total of 98 contests and lost 66 during the year 1929. This is one of the best records for many years.

Two championships were won, and one tied during the year, the basketball team winning the Eastern intercollegiate title, the cross-country team the I. C. A. A. A. A. flag, and the baseball team tied with Dartmouth for the quadrangular cup title.

The soccer team will present a claim for the Eastern championship at a meeting of the association within the next week. Its record of eight games won and two lost ranks it as one of the best collegiate elevens in the East.

Glen Wild, Famous Race Horse, Expires

BALTIMORE, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Glen Wild, Dr. J. Fred Adams' Maryland-bred son of Meridian-Lazuli, considered one of the best 3-year-olds of last season's racing campaign, died today at Dr. Adams' farm at Catonsville. Paralysis after several days' illness caused the racer's death.

Glen Wild made his debut last year in the winning column by taking the North Shore Handicap at Arlington and came on to win the $25,000 Riggs Memorial purse at Pimlico, his most important winning. Dr. Adams had been training the horse for the $140,000 Agua Caliente Handicap to be run in March.

East Liberty Y Beats Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 4.—East Liberty Y. M. C. A. scored an impressive victory over the Johnstown Y passers here tonight, 34 to 31. Swede Carlson was the leading scorer for the Pittsburghers, caging six baskets. The lineup:

East Liberty Y.	15	19—34
Johnstown	13	18—31

Substitutions—Hobbs for Waugaman; Bateman for Brown; W. Seitz for Jones. Field goals—Waugaman 2, Carlson 6, Cyphers 2, Brown 2, Hobbs, Bateman, W. Seitz, Moore 5, Anthony 2, Seitz 4. Foul goals—East Liberty, 6 out of 13; Johnstown, 7 out of 15. Referee—Jones.

Brady Paces Miami Open

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Mike Brady, former Metropolitan open champion, led a field of 130 entrants at the end of the first day's play in the Miami open golf championship here today.

With a 74 for the morning round and a 76 for the afternoon, Brady turned in a card of 150 to nose out by one stroke Willie Klein, of Wheatley Hills, N. Y., and Al Heron, of Reading, Pa. Heron had led the field at noon with a 72.

Gene Sarazen, defending champion, who for three years began the winter golf season with the Miami open title dangling from his belt, was quoted at odds of 2-to-1 to repeat his past victories, but at the end of 36 holes he was tied with four others for fourth place with a card of 76-79 for 155.

Willie Klein, also a favorite, missed an opportunity to top the biggest field ever to compete for the $3,000 in prizes by blowing up on the thirty-sixth hole. He took a 7, which is 2 over par.

The possibility of spectacularly low scores was precluded by high winds, and many of the matches, due to the size of the field, scampered over the last nine holes two steps ahead of total darkness. In view of this, and to prevent play from extending over to Monday, officials of the tournament are eliminating all those with cards of more than 175.

Leading scorers were:

Mike Brady, Mamaroneck, N.Y.	76-74—150
Willie Klein, Miami Beach	74-77—151
Al Heron, Reading, Pa.	72-79—151
Charles Rice, Summit, N. J.	74-79—153
Eddie Williams, Cleveland	73-80—153
Arthur Straub, Bloomfield, N.J.	78-75—153
Cyril Walker, Tuckahoe, N. Y.	78-76—154
Nick Costello, Elmsford, N. Y.	77-77—154
Dave Spittall, Toronto	77-77—154
Vincent Eldred, Bradenton, Fla.	75-69—154
Harry Hampton, Chicago	79-75—154
William Leach, Overbrook, Pa.	79-76—155
Gene Sarazen, Newport Richey, Fla.	76-79—155
G. Smith, New York (amateur)	80-75—155

Pirate Skaters Meet Rangers in New York Tonight

AMERICANS FOE IN ONLY HOME TILT, SATURDAY

Game With Champs, Originally Carded Here, to Be Played in Boston Thursday

Fray With Conacher's Men at Garden Likely to Be Bitterly-Contested Battle

By CARL W. SHATTO.

NEW YORK hockey clubs will provide two-thirds of the opposition which the National League schedule specifies shall be meted out to the Pirate icemen this week. If Manager Frank Frederickson and his Bucs have their way about it, New York's part in the picture will be limited to making up the background.

The other third of the week's opposition probably will be at least 100-proof, for it is to be supplied by the Boston Bruins, 1928-29 world champions and title favorites in the present campaign.

The Pittsburgh puckmen are to open their new seven-day drive tonight, when they meet Les Patrick's Rangers in New York. On Thursday they will be received in Boston much after the manner in which gents about to offer up a sacrifice are wont to receive a lamb at the altar. Next Saturday night will be the only really big night for local fans, for it is at that time that the Pirates will be at Duquesne Garden to receive the New York Americans — and they propose to make the reception a hot one.

RANGERS FAVORITES

In two previous meetings with the Rangers this season the Bucs were compelled to accept the short end of 5-3 and 5-1 scores. This would indicate that the wearers of the red pants will be odds-on favorites to grab the decision tonight, but Pittsburghers who have witnessed their favorites' improvement in recent games would not regard a Pirate triumph as a startling upset. Johnny MacKinnon's return to playing form and the acquisition of Gordon Fraser and Jess Spring have tended to bolster the Buc defense, and Hib Milks, back at center after shaking off an attack of grip, has put new life into the attack.

Frederickson and Herb Drury still are incapacitated by injuries, but Pilot Freddie's return to the helm after spending 10 days in a Toronto hospital has strengthened his team's morale. In two of their last three games the Pirates have "taken" Detroit and Ottawa in decisive fashion, and right now the Rangers do not appear much more formidable than either of these two victims. Patrick's men have annexed only one decision in their last four starts. This record prompts the belief that they are not exactly invincible.

MEET BRUINS THURSDAY

The Thursday night game with the Bruins originally was scheduled to be played in Pittsburgh, but league officials recently went into a huddle and when they came out of it it was to announce that the fray had been transferred to Boston. A post-graduate in optimism would be extended to visualize a Pittsburgh victory over the world champs on Hub ice. Last Thursday the Bostonians turned in a win and equaled the National League record of 11 consecutive victories. There is no reason to suppose that they propose to permit the Bucs to snap this triumph string, and other foemen have found that the champs do just about as they please.

The Pirates' joust with Lionel Conacher's New York Americans here next Saturday night gives promise of developing into a real battle. An exchange of veiled charges of unsportsmanlike conduct has engendered ill feeling between the two clubs, and it is certain that quarter neither will be asked nor given.

CHARGES EXCHANGED

After the Bucs had handed the spangled skaters an 8-1 jolt here on December 14, the Americans returned to New York and gave out a report that they had been double-crossed, contending that the Pirates had asked them to show them some mercy because of their crippled condition and then had shown no inclination to be merciful themselves. After taking time out to brand this report a pipe dream, the few Bucs remaining in harness invaded New York to permit the Americans to try to get their threatened revenge.

Milks joined MacKinnon, Frederickson and Drury on the hospital squad during the week that elapsed between the two frays, and it was well for the Americans that he was downed by an attack of grip, for they experienced plenty of trouble in winning by 3-2 when four Buc aces were out of the lineup. When the Pirates returned home they matched the New Yorkers in the matter of courtesy by hinting that the final period had been abbreviated by a margin of some five minutes so that the locals would not have an opportunity to knot the count or win the decision.

Such an exchange of courtesies does not make for deep and lasting friendships, and if any love is lost in the fight here it will be of the curdled variety.

GREENSBURG BEATEN

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 4.—Displaying the best form of the season, but not able to equal the smooth-working combination of the Monessen High quintet, Greensburg High fell victim for the fifth time at the High School gymnasium last evening. The lineup:

Greensburg—16.		Monessen—28.
Wright	F	Stevenson
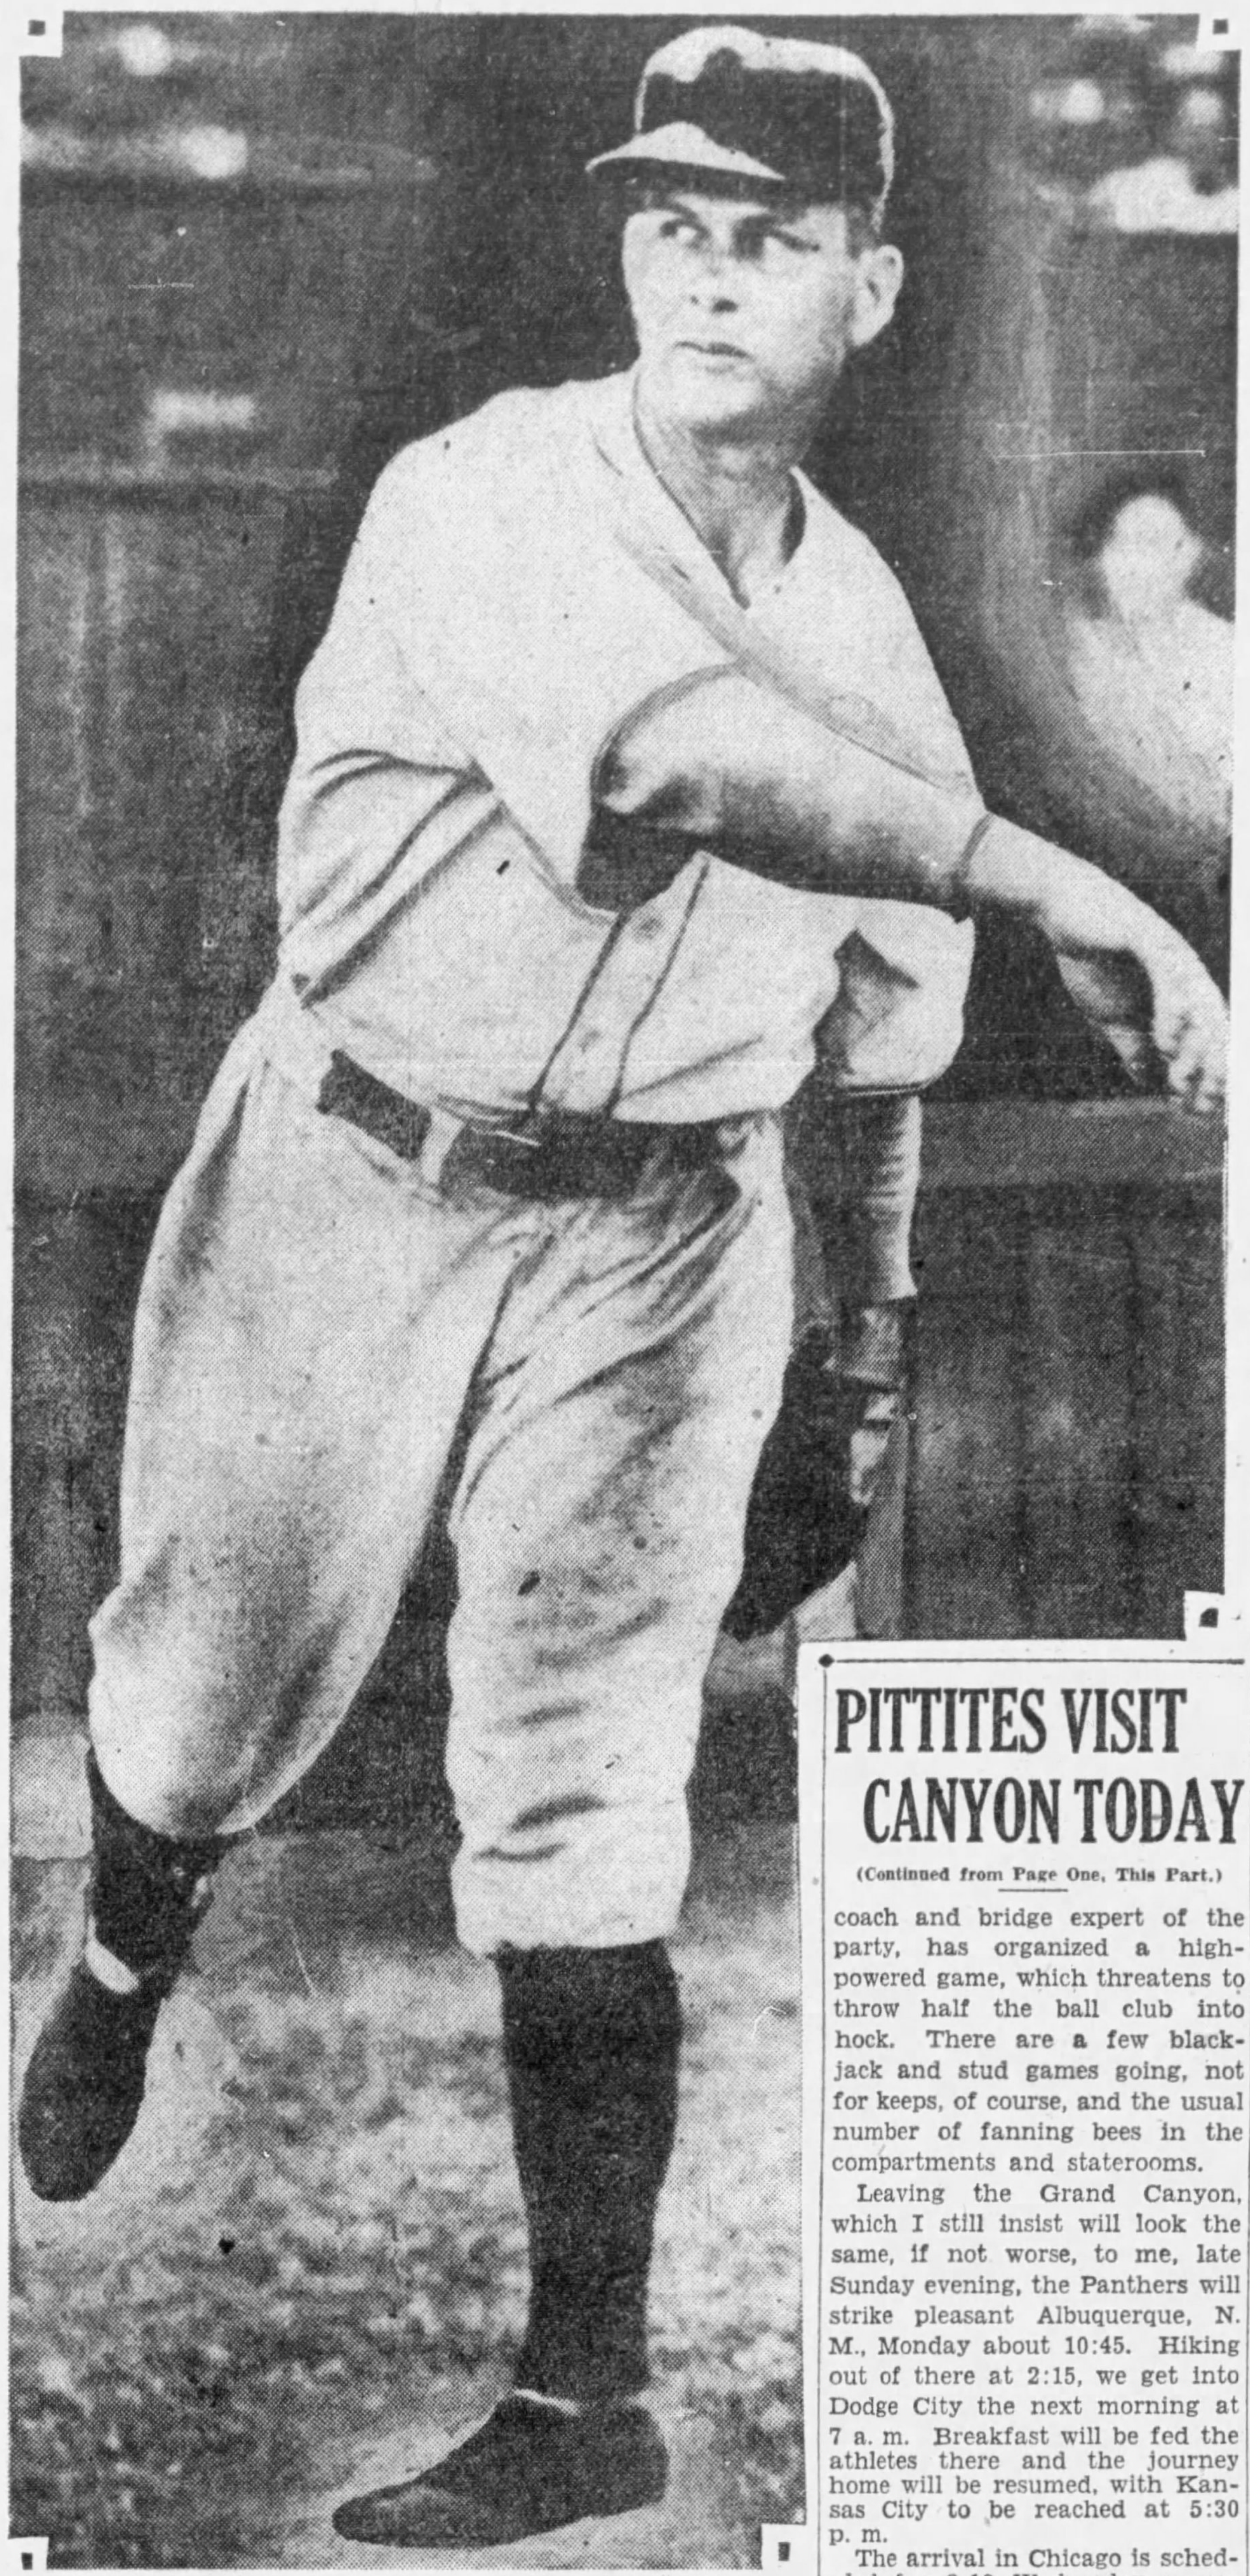
E. Anderson	C	Janosik
Shaffer	G	Currie
Cravotta	G	Feldman (C)

Field goals—Wright 2, Page, Anderson 3, Hibbs, Stevenson, Sahotti, Janosik, Currie 5, Feldman 4. Foul goals—Greensburg, 4 out of 7; Monessen, 4 out of 10. Referee—Herklotz.

NEW PIRATE PITCHER A VETERAN



RELIABLE— He's listed as a "recruit," is Lil Stoner, but the new Pirate pitcher carries the stamp of experience and Manager Jewel Ens expects a lot of help from the erstwhile Detroit Tiger in the next baseball campaign. Stoner was a member of the Detroit club when things were "not so good" with the Tigers. He starred for Fort Worth, of the Texas League, last year, the Buccos purchasing him from that team.

Hawks Buy Tulsa Star

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The Chicago Blackhawks, of the National Hockey League, made another move to strengthen their defense today by purchasing Edward (Teddy) Graham, defense star, from the Tulsa Oilers, of the American Association. The Hawks sent Ralph Taylor and cash for Graham.

Graham's acquisition is the second in as many days for the Blackhawks. Stewart Adams, star winger, of the Minneapolis American Association club, was purchased yesterday.

Twenty-four years old and weighing 175 pounds, Graham led all defense players in all professional hockey leagues last year in scoring. Even among the wing men in his own league he ranked high, finishing in sixth place and helping the Oilers win the American Association championship.

Graham and Adams will make their start with the Blackhawks tomorrow night against the Detroit Cougars.

Seaver Long Beach Leader

LONG BEACH, Cal., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—It remained for 18-year-old Charley Seaver, amateur of the Los Angeles Country Club, to show the leaders of professional golf the way around in the second half of the qualifying trials for the Long Beach open championships today.

Playing uncanny golf, young Seaver shot 66 to break par by six strokes and lead the field for the first 18 holes of the 54-hole grind. Seaver shot his first nine in 31 and came back in 35, having five birdies and two eagles.

He played in a threesome with Johnny Farrell and Bobby Cruickshank, both of whom qualified for the final two rounds scheduled for tomorrow. Farrell had a 68 and Bobby a 71.

Dallas Jeffers, Long Beach Country Club professional, shot a 67 to place second today and equal the scores of Charley Guests and Olin Dutra, which were low for the first half of the qualifying round yesterday.

Horton Smith, winner of the Pasadena open, barely qualified. He had a 73.

Among these who failed to make the grade for the finals tomorrow were Mel Smith, Portland, 79; Chet Beer, Bakersfield, who had a 78; Fred Morrison, of Midwick, who had a 78, and Frank Walsh, of Wisconsin, who had a 75. It took a 73 or under to qualify.

Gus Copulos Cue Victor

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Gus Copulus today defeated Harry Schuler, of Brooklyn, in the national three-cushion billiard championship tournament at Palm Gardens here. The final score was 50 to 34. Schuler had a high run of 5, while Copulos' high run was 6.

Otto Reiselt defeated Augie Kieckhefer, of Chicago, 50 to 36, in 55 innings. High runs were, Reiselt 8, Kieckhefer 7.

PITTITES VISIT CANYON TODAY

coach and bridge expert of the party, has organized a high-powered game, which threatens to throw half the ball club into hock. There are a few blackjack and stud games going, not for keeps, of course, and the usual number of fanning bees in the compartments and staterooms.

Leaving the Grand Canyon, which I still insist will look the same, if not worse, to me, late Sunday evening, the Panthers will strike pleasant Albuquerque, N. M., Monday about 10:45. Hiking out of there at 2:15, we get into Dodge City the next morning at 7 a. m. Breakfast will be fed the athletes there and the journey home will be resumed, with Kansas City to be reached at 5:30 p. m.

The arrival in Chicago is scheduled for 8:10 Wednesday morning, and at 8:35, the galavanting Pittites begin the last lap of the trip home, arriving in Pittsburgh about 8:35 Wednesday evening.

EASY TO BELIEVE

Unless the team you are backing figures to be 30 per cent stronger in all departments than any given western team it may be playing in an intersectional game in California, especially Southern California, and no matter how rabid an adherent of said team you may be, never, never bet on your team to win in Cal. The going is too tough.

In the first place, those West Coast boys, living in the outdoors all the year round, and fooling with a football nine-tenths of that time, are bound to have a decided edge over the weather-handicapped easterners. An eastern team cannot hope to beat a far-western team, in the latter's own backyard, without a good passing game. That is where Pitt made its big mistake—in not passing right off the bat.

Those West Coast babies know how to handle a football. They do not confine their football to three or four months. Not a bit of it. They are out there, foolin' with the pigskin three-quarters of the year.

PLENTY TOUGH, YES

They are tough, rugged and, besides being acclimated, do not have to play under the handicap of the excitement of the long and more or less pleasant trip out.

Don't kid yourself about this climate proposition. Whether you are an athlete or not, you notice it. It makes you lazy—or, if you must get personal—more lazy. The Army spent a week trying to get used to the warm sunshine and balmy breezes of Palo Alto and was soundly kicked about. Pitt and Tech spent a day in Pasadena in advance of the game and took their lickings. There is no way to beat it and there never will be—unless the eastern team is much more powerful than its western opponent.

Dean and Mrs. John Egan, well known Pittsburghers, will remain in Los Angeles until next Tuesday. John served as field judge at the Pitt-U. S. C. game.

Johnny Gossett and his bride were in Los Angeles for the Pitt game and have gone to Agua Caliente for a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Gossett were former Beaver Valley and Grove City residents, now are living in New York City.

BUCCOS EXPECT LIL STONER TO DO 'COMEBACK'

Manager Ens Confident That Former Tiger Hurler Will Be Winner for Pirates.

New Corsair Moundsman Failed to Shine for Either Ty Cobb or Moriarity.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

WHEN Manager Jewel Ens of the Pirates sounds the clarion call to pitchers in Paso Robles next month a recruit will step forth who will have little of the nervous mannerisms that go with the rookie reporting to a spring training camp.

The stranger will not feel out of place in a uniform, for L. E. (Lil) Stoner, the hero of this tale, has faced the first-line fire of the big league trenches on many occasions although this will be his debut to National League patrons.

Lil Stoner, righthander, spent most of his somewhat streaky career with the Detroit club during the turbulent days of the Cobb-Moriarty regimes. Each of these celebrities will be remembered romantically wherever baseball is played, but as managers they were not as appealing as they were in their playing days. In all events, Stoner has many backers who think he would have remained indefinitely in the big show had he been directed by other bosses.

MANY YEARS WITH TIGERS

Be that as it may, Stoner is now a full-fledged member of the Pittsburgh team and Jewel Ens expects some good things from the erstwhile Tiger. He was yanked onto the Pirate brig from the wilds of the Texas League where last season he led the pitchers in the point of earned-run efficiency. He was a member of the Fort Worth Club.

As you have surmised from the foregoing, Lil's record at Detroit was nothing to get wrought up about. He seems to have been a paragon of mediocrity while fighting under the banners of Cobb and Moriarty. His lithographs show him to have been a members of the Detroit team on three separate occasions, his last and longest stay dating from 1924 to 1929.

Born in Texas in 1901, Stoner began his professional diamond career with Oklahoma City, of the Western League, in 1919. He was pitching like a future star for Okmulgee, of the same circuit, in 1921 when the Tigers purchased him.

Lil began his major league career the following season, he winning four and losing the same number before being placed with Birmingham, of the Southern Association. Hurling for the Barons under Carleton Molesworth, the young man won seven and lost six.

Back to Detroit went Stoner as per the optional agreement, but at the start of the 1923 season he was farmed out to Fort Worth, of the Texas League. And in the big Texas town, Lil proceeded to have his banner season in the sport. The embryo Tiger won 27 and lost only 11 games, the Fort Worth Panthers winning the flag largely on account of his skill. The Tigers naturally recalled him and the five succeeding seasons found him a member of the Jungaleer slab staff, where he had varying success.

In those days the Tigers were not as ferocious as their nickname would indicate. The record books indicate that Stoner pitched some good ball, judging from the quality of the club, but last spring he was sold back to Fort Worth.

KNOWS HOW TO PITCH

Stoner did not have an impressive card of victories in the Texas belt, he winning six games as against four defeats but his earned-run percentage of 1.98 made him stand out. Then, too, he did things on the mound that convinced good baseball men that he belonged in the big leagues. The agents of the Pittsburgh club liked the actions of this seasoned performer and accordingly he was purchased.

Stoner is a strong athlete, he is built along sturdy lines, his poundage being around 185 with a height of five feet nine inches.

Throughout his career the new Pirate is credited with having been a smart performer. He does not possess a strikeout fast ball, yet he has a fair share of speed with a dandy curve to set it off. Then, too, his control is said to be good and he knows what he is doing all the time.

Another new boy who will be wearing Pirate spangles for the first time when the team goes to spring training is Floyd Young, versatile member of the Greensboro (N. C.) club, of the Piedmont League.

Young divided his play last season between second base and the outfield. He was discovered by Carleton Molesworth, who now is one of B. Dreyfuss' most trusted scouts of the bush league belts.

Moley it was who sent a baseball gem of purest ray serene to the Buccos when he directed Rolly Hemsley to Forbes Field. Just a short time back, Hemsley was one of the most obscure young players in the Oakland Orchard, but you couldn't coax him away from the Dreyfuss household now for anything short of a fortune.

The promising kid from the Piedmont League is only 22. He played in 127 games last season, 82 of them at second base. In both positions he acquitted himself favorably and managed to bat .284. Manager Ens plans to give him a lot of chances to play the keystone bag.

Young apparently is blessed with a good physique. He is five feet nine inches in height and weighs 162 pounds. He bats and throws righthanded.

GETS JOB

WITTMER—Al Wittmer, former Allegheny High School star, and later Princeton football luminary, who will succeed Bill Roper as varsity football coach at Princeton after next fall.

'Stars' in Giants' Suit 'Limited'

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. Callahan declined today to make the Giants' family row a free-for-all and include Magistrate Francis X. McQuade and Country Clerk Daniel E. Finn as defendants in the minority stockholders' suit for an accounting.

Justice Callahan denied the motion made by Leo J. Bondy, treasurer of the Giants, and himself a defendant in the suit, together with Charles A. Stoneham, president; John J. McGraw and other directors.

These are being used for a $500,000 accounting by William F. Kenny and other minority stockholders, who claim that Stoneham and the others diverted that sum from the treasury of the Giants to other corporations.

AL WITTMER TO SUCCEED BILL ROPER

Former Pittsburgher to Replace Veteran Mentor at End of Next Season.

Nassau Grid Chief to Retire After Another Campaign Due to Failing Health.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Concluding 14 years of service as head coach of Princeton football, William W. Roper will retire after the 1930 season and will be succeeded by Albert W. Wittmer, Jr., former Pittsburgher and present line coach, who will enter upon a four-year contract, it was announced today.

COACH— Wittmer already is varsity basketball coach at Princeton, and his brother, Ed, was the fullback of the Tigers during the 1929 season.

Pressure of his business and political duties in Philadelphia, where he is a member of the City Council in addition to dealing in insurance, was given by Roper as the principal reason for his decision.

Teaching sound football and emphasizing the psychological element, Roper has been turning out formidable football teams at Princeton since 1919, and also served successfully as head coach in 1910 and 1911.

A capable end in the days of Big Bill Edwards and Arthur Poe, he was graduated at Princeton in 1902. He is 47 years old.

Against Yale and Harvard, Roper's Tiger elevens have met with enviable success, winning six games and losing one against Harvard and taking seven out of 13 from Yale. The 1929 Princeton team, however, was considerably below par, failing to win a major game.

Al Wittmer, the young lawyer who has been selected to succeed him, is an elder brother of Eddie Wittmer, now a senior at Princeton, who was the backfield star of the team for the last three seasons and is captain of the basketball five.

In addition to his football duties, Al holds the position of head coach of basketball and it is expected he will continue in that capacity.

Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of the board of athletic control, said Wittmer's selection was for the football seasons of 1931, 1932, 1933 and 1934.

Prior to his graduation in 1922, Wittmer starred in football as fullback and center and also played basketball.

'Movies' Keep Hagen, Diegel Out of Tourney

Associated Press.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Jan. 4.

WALTER HAGEN, British open champion, and defending champion in the $3,500 Long Beach open golf tournament, and Leo Diegel, national professional champion, were scratched from the list of competitors in the tournament today after they failed to appear in time to tee off at the appointed hour in the second day of qualifying round.

The reason given for the failure of the two prominent golfers to appear was that they had been detained at a motion picture studio, where they are working in a golfing comedy.

Shawkey Alone in Changing Baseball Training Plan

JAMES J. LONG Sport Comment

Other Pilots Stand Pat.
Still Favor Two Squads.
Grantham Is Mending.

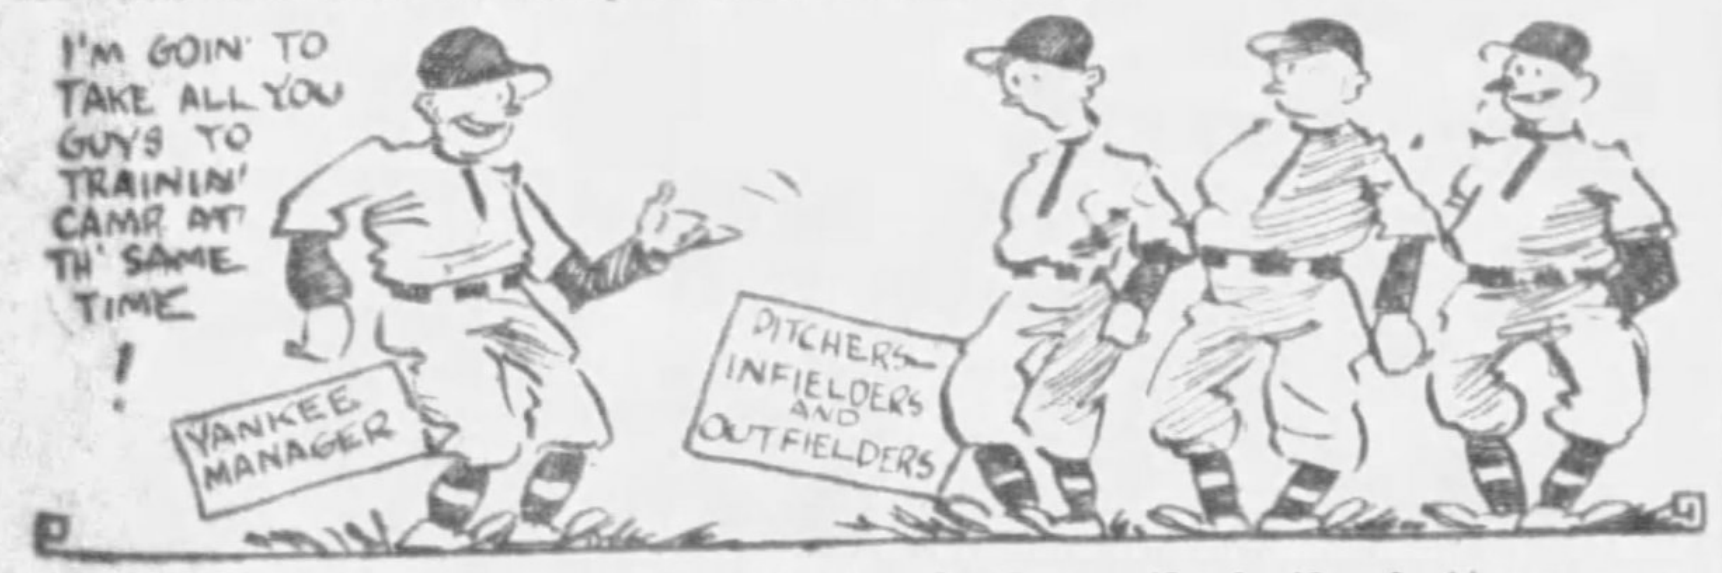
Football's Future Safe.
Selfish Grid Coaches.
Fight Game Unsettled.

EARLY START BY HURLERS IMPORTANT

THE first move made by Bob Shawkey, the new manager of the Yankees, in his preliminary plan of campaign for the coming pennant race in the American League, is a radical departure from established baseball customs in the big circuits and a step that will hardly be given the approval of the older major pilots.

It is Shawkey's intention to abandon the two-squad idea. He will not send his battery men to the spring training camp in advance of the main guard of infielders and outfielders. Instead, they'll all go together, and no department will get any more conditioning time than the others.

IN EXPLAINING his decision to set aside the system so long followed annually by his predecessor, Miller Huggins, and other managers, Shawkey says he can see nothing to be gained by shipping the pitchers and catchers to camp ahead of the rest.



I'M GOIN' TO TAKE ALL YOU GUYS TO TRAININ' CAMP AT TH' SAME TIME !
YANKEE MANAGER
PITCHERS—INFIELDERS AND OUTFIELDERS

The new skipper of the Yanks declares that the battery men, when ordered South first, "take it easy" anyhow, and declares that they never do sufficient work to warrant their being given a week or more at the practice grounds than the other players.

THE wisdom of Shawkey's step is open to question. He is merely returning to an old system that was dropped by practically all major league clubs years ago in favor of a plan that has proved to be in every way a better one.

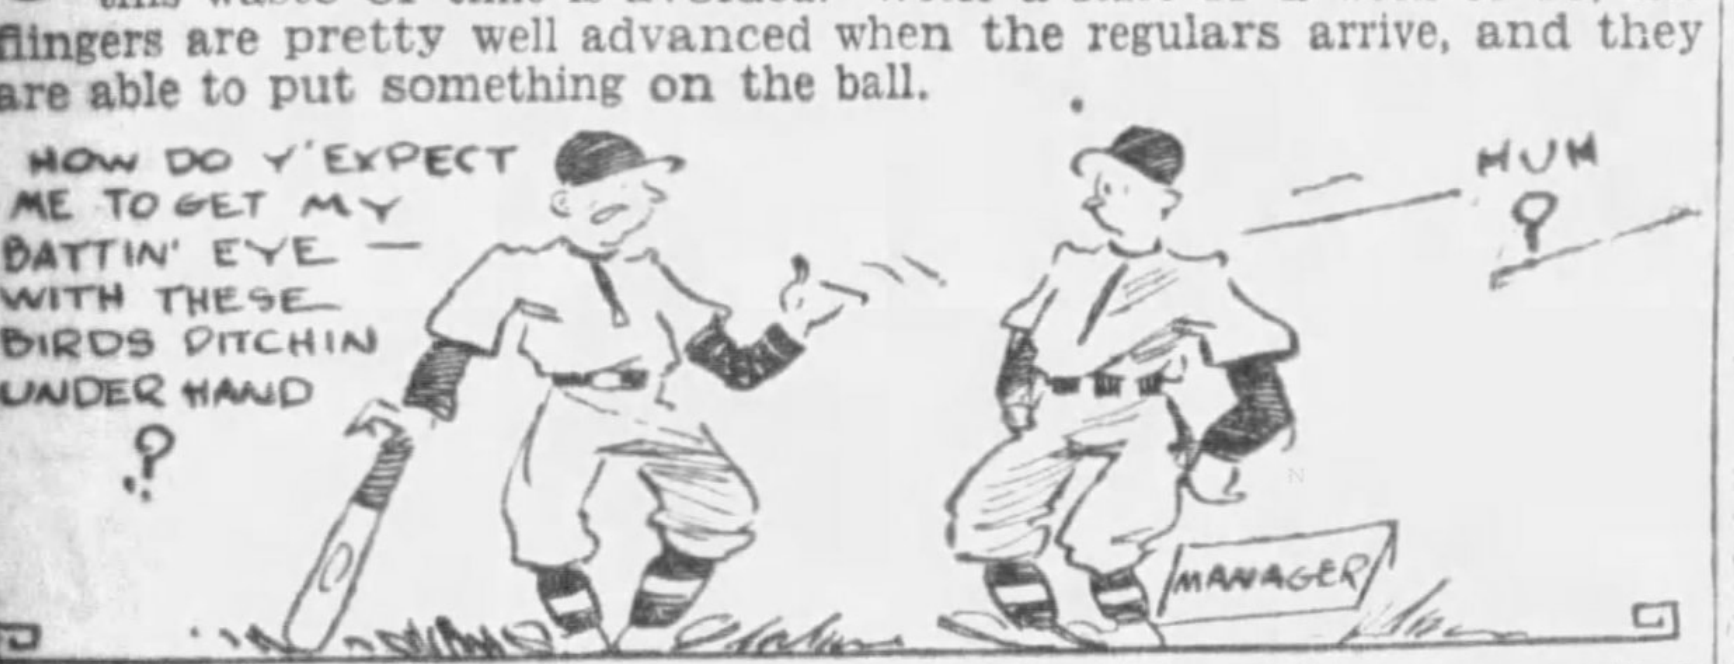
All that Huggins' successor says about the failure of the battery men to do sufficient work to warrant their being sent South ahead of the regulars may be true of the Yankees, but if so the fault would appear to lie with the management and not with the system itself.

ANY fan can see with half an eye the advantages of having the pitchers well advanced in training by the time the regulars arrive. If all the players start work together, the batting practice that the infielders and outfielders get is nothing more than a joke. The hurlers can only lob the ball to the plate with nothing on it, and as a result it is the easiest thing in the world for the batters to clout it all over the lot.

HITTING practice of that sort has no value whatever. What the batters need after a winter of idleness is a chance to train their eyes and time their swings against the kind of pitching they must expect to encounter when the championship season begins.

The more they get of this kind of practice the better prepared they will be for the early pennant games. Batting against lobbed pitches delivered by hurlers who have no speed, curves or control only delays their arrival at the required form.

ON THE other hand, when the pitchers are sent to camp first all of this waste of time is avoided. With a start of a week or so, the flingers are pretty well advanced when the regulars arrive, and they are able to put something on the ball.



HOW DO Y'EXPECT ME TO GET MY BATTIN' EYE — WITH THESE BIRDS PITCHIN UNDER HAND ?
HUM ?
MANAGER

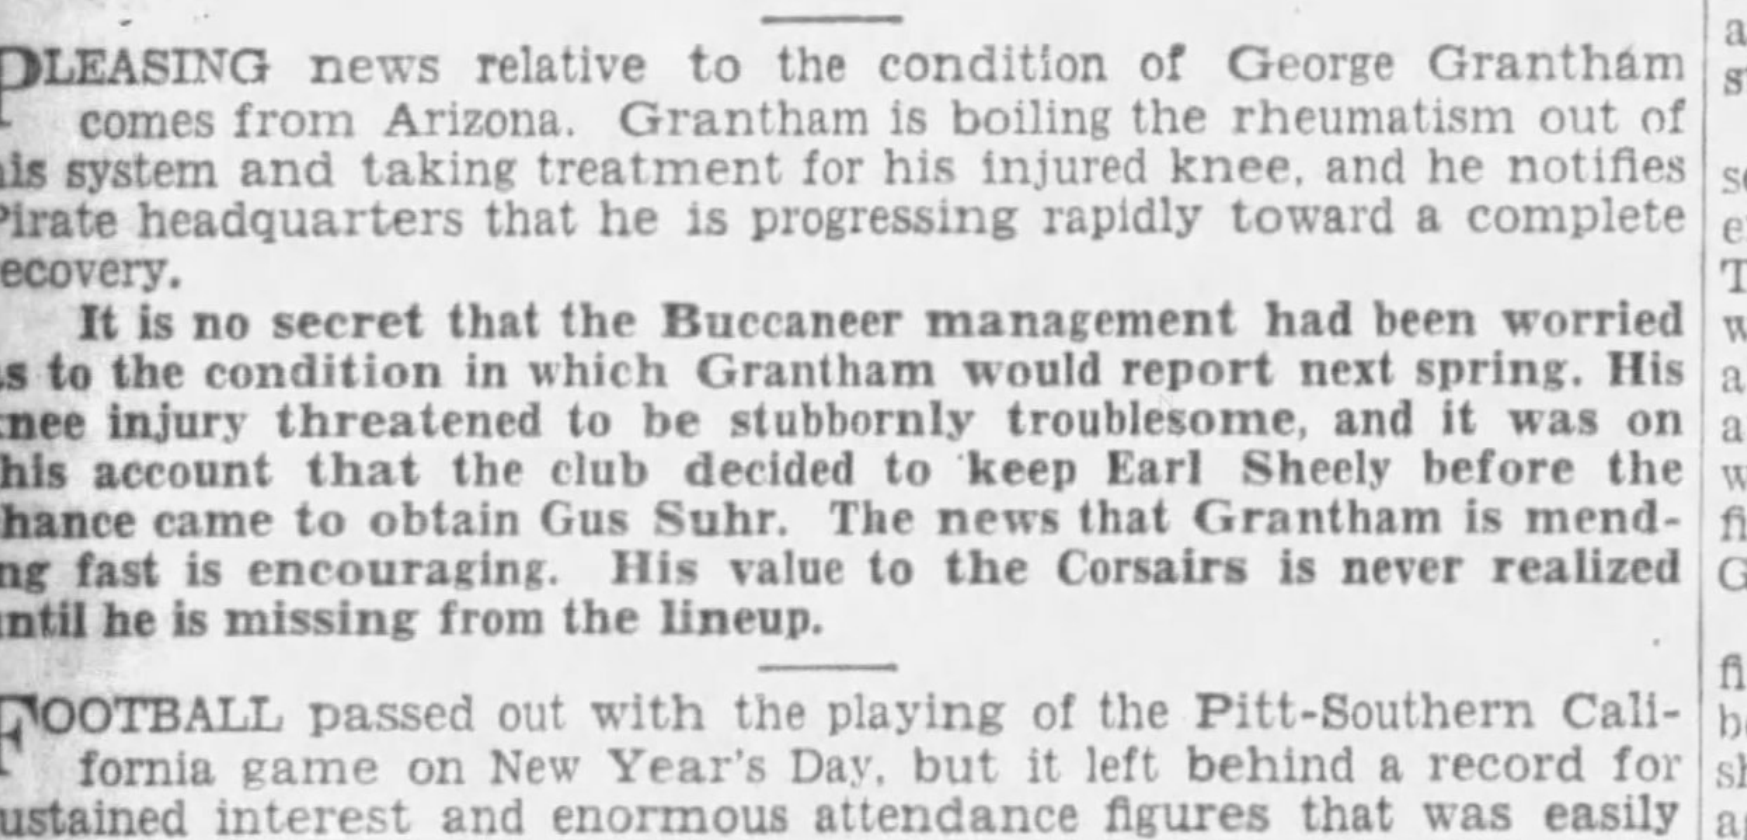
Practice then counts for considerable. The hitters are called upon to face pitching akin to the real stuff, and it enables them to become accustomed all the sooner to gauging and swinging against the high-grade chucking with which they must cope during the regular season.

HAVING found the two-squad system the better one after following it since 'way back in the days of Fred Clarke, the Pittsburgh club naturally will cling to it the coming spring. The battery men will be sent to Paso Robles first, as usual, and the regulars will not land in camp until at least a week later. Practically all of the other clubs, excepting the Yankees, of course, will follow the same plan. Shawkey will be just about alone with his one-squad idea, and the chances are against his getting the results he expects.

PLEASING news relative to the condition of George Grantham comes from Arizona. Grantham is boiling the rheumatism out of his system and taking treatment for his injured knee, and he notifies Pirate headquarters that he is progressing rapidly toward a complete recovery.

It is no secret that the Buccaneer management had been worried as to the condition in which Grantham would report next spring. His knee injury threatened to be stubbornly troublesome, and it was on this account that the club decided to keep Earl Sheely before the chance came to obtain Gus Suhr. The news that Grantham is mending fast is encouraging. His value to the Corsairs is never realized until he is missing from the lineup.

FOOTBALL passed out with the playing of the Pitt-Southern California game on New Year's Day, but it left behind a record for sustained interest and enormous attendance figures that was easily the best in its history.

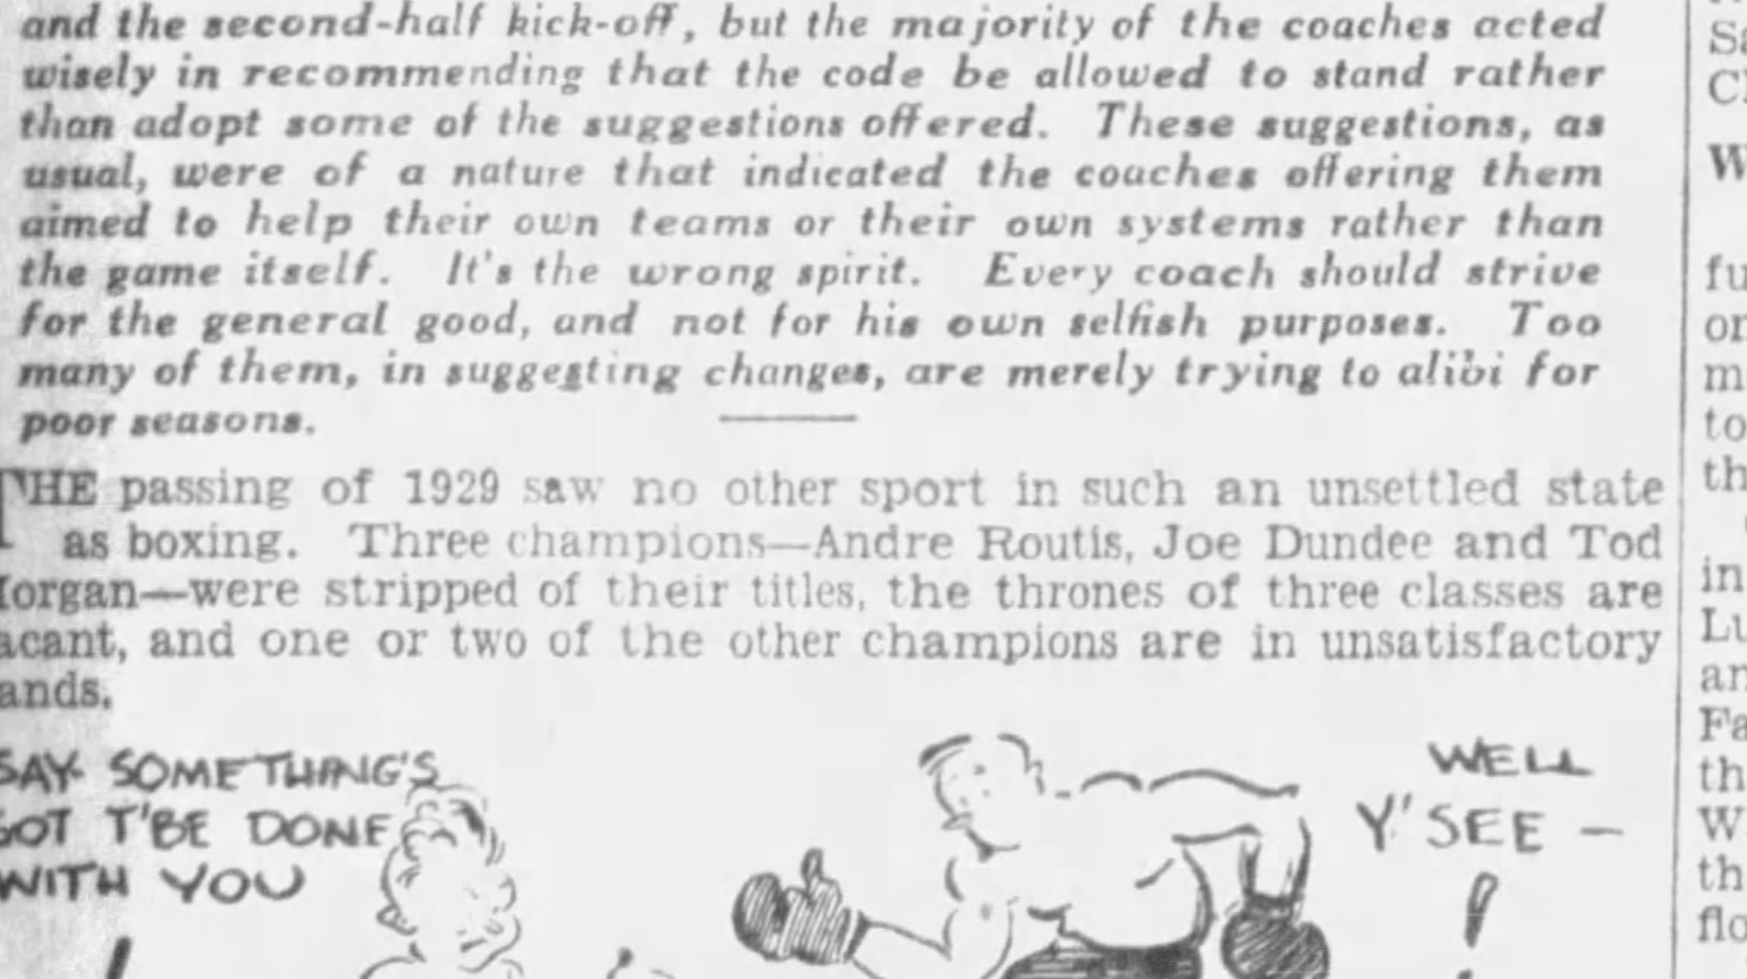


THANKS !
BOY—YOU HAD A GREAT YEAR—AN' YOUR FUTURE IS SAFE !
FOOTBALL
THE OLD YEAR

That it made this record in the face of the continued attacks of the "overemphasis" objectors, reinforced by others who sought to bring the pastime into disfavor from new angles, assures that football's future is safe and secure. It is easily the healthiest of present-day sports.

AND the leading coaches, at their annual meeting in New York, acted in a manner to help keep the game that way by voting to recommend that the rules be allowed to remain intact. Many fans would have welcomed the abolition of the present fumble rule and the second-half kick-off, but the majority of the coaches acted wisely in recommending that the code be allowed to stand rather than adopt some of the suggestions offered. These suggestions, as usual, were of a nature that indicated the coaches offering them aimed to help their own teams or their own systems rather than the game itself. It's the wrong spirit. Every coach should strive for the general good, and not for his own selfish purposes. Too many of them, in suggesting changes, are merely trying to alibi for poor seasons.

THE passing of 1929 saw no other sport in such an unsettled state as boxing. Three champions—Andre Routis, Joe Dundee and Tod Morgan—were stripped of their titles, the thrones of three classes are vacant, and one or two of the other champions are in unsatisfactory hands.



SAY SOMETHING'S GOT T'BE DONE WITH YOU !
WELL Y'SEE— !
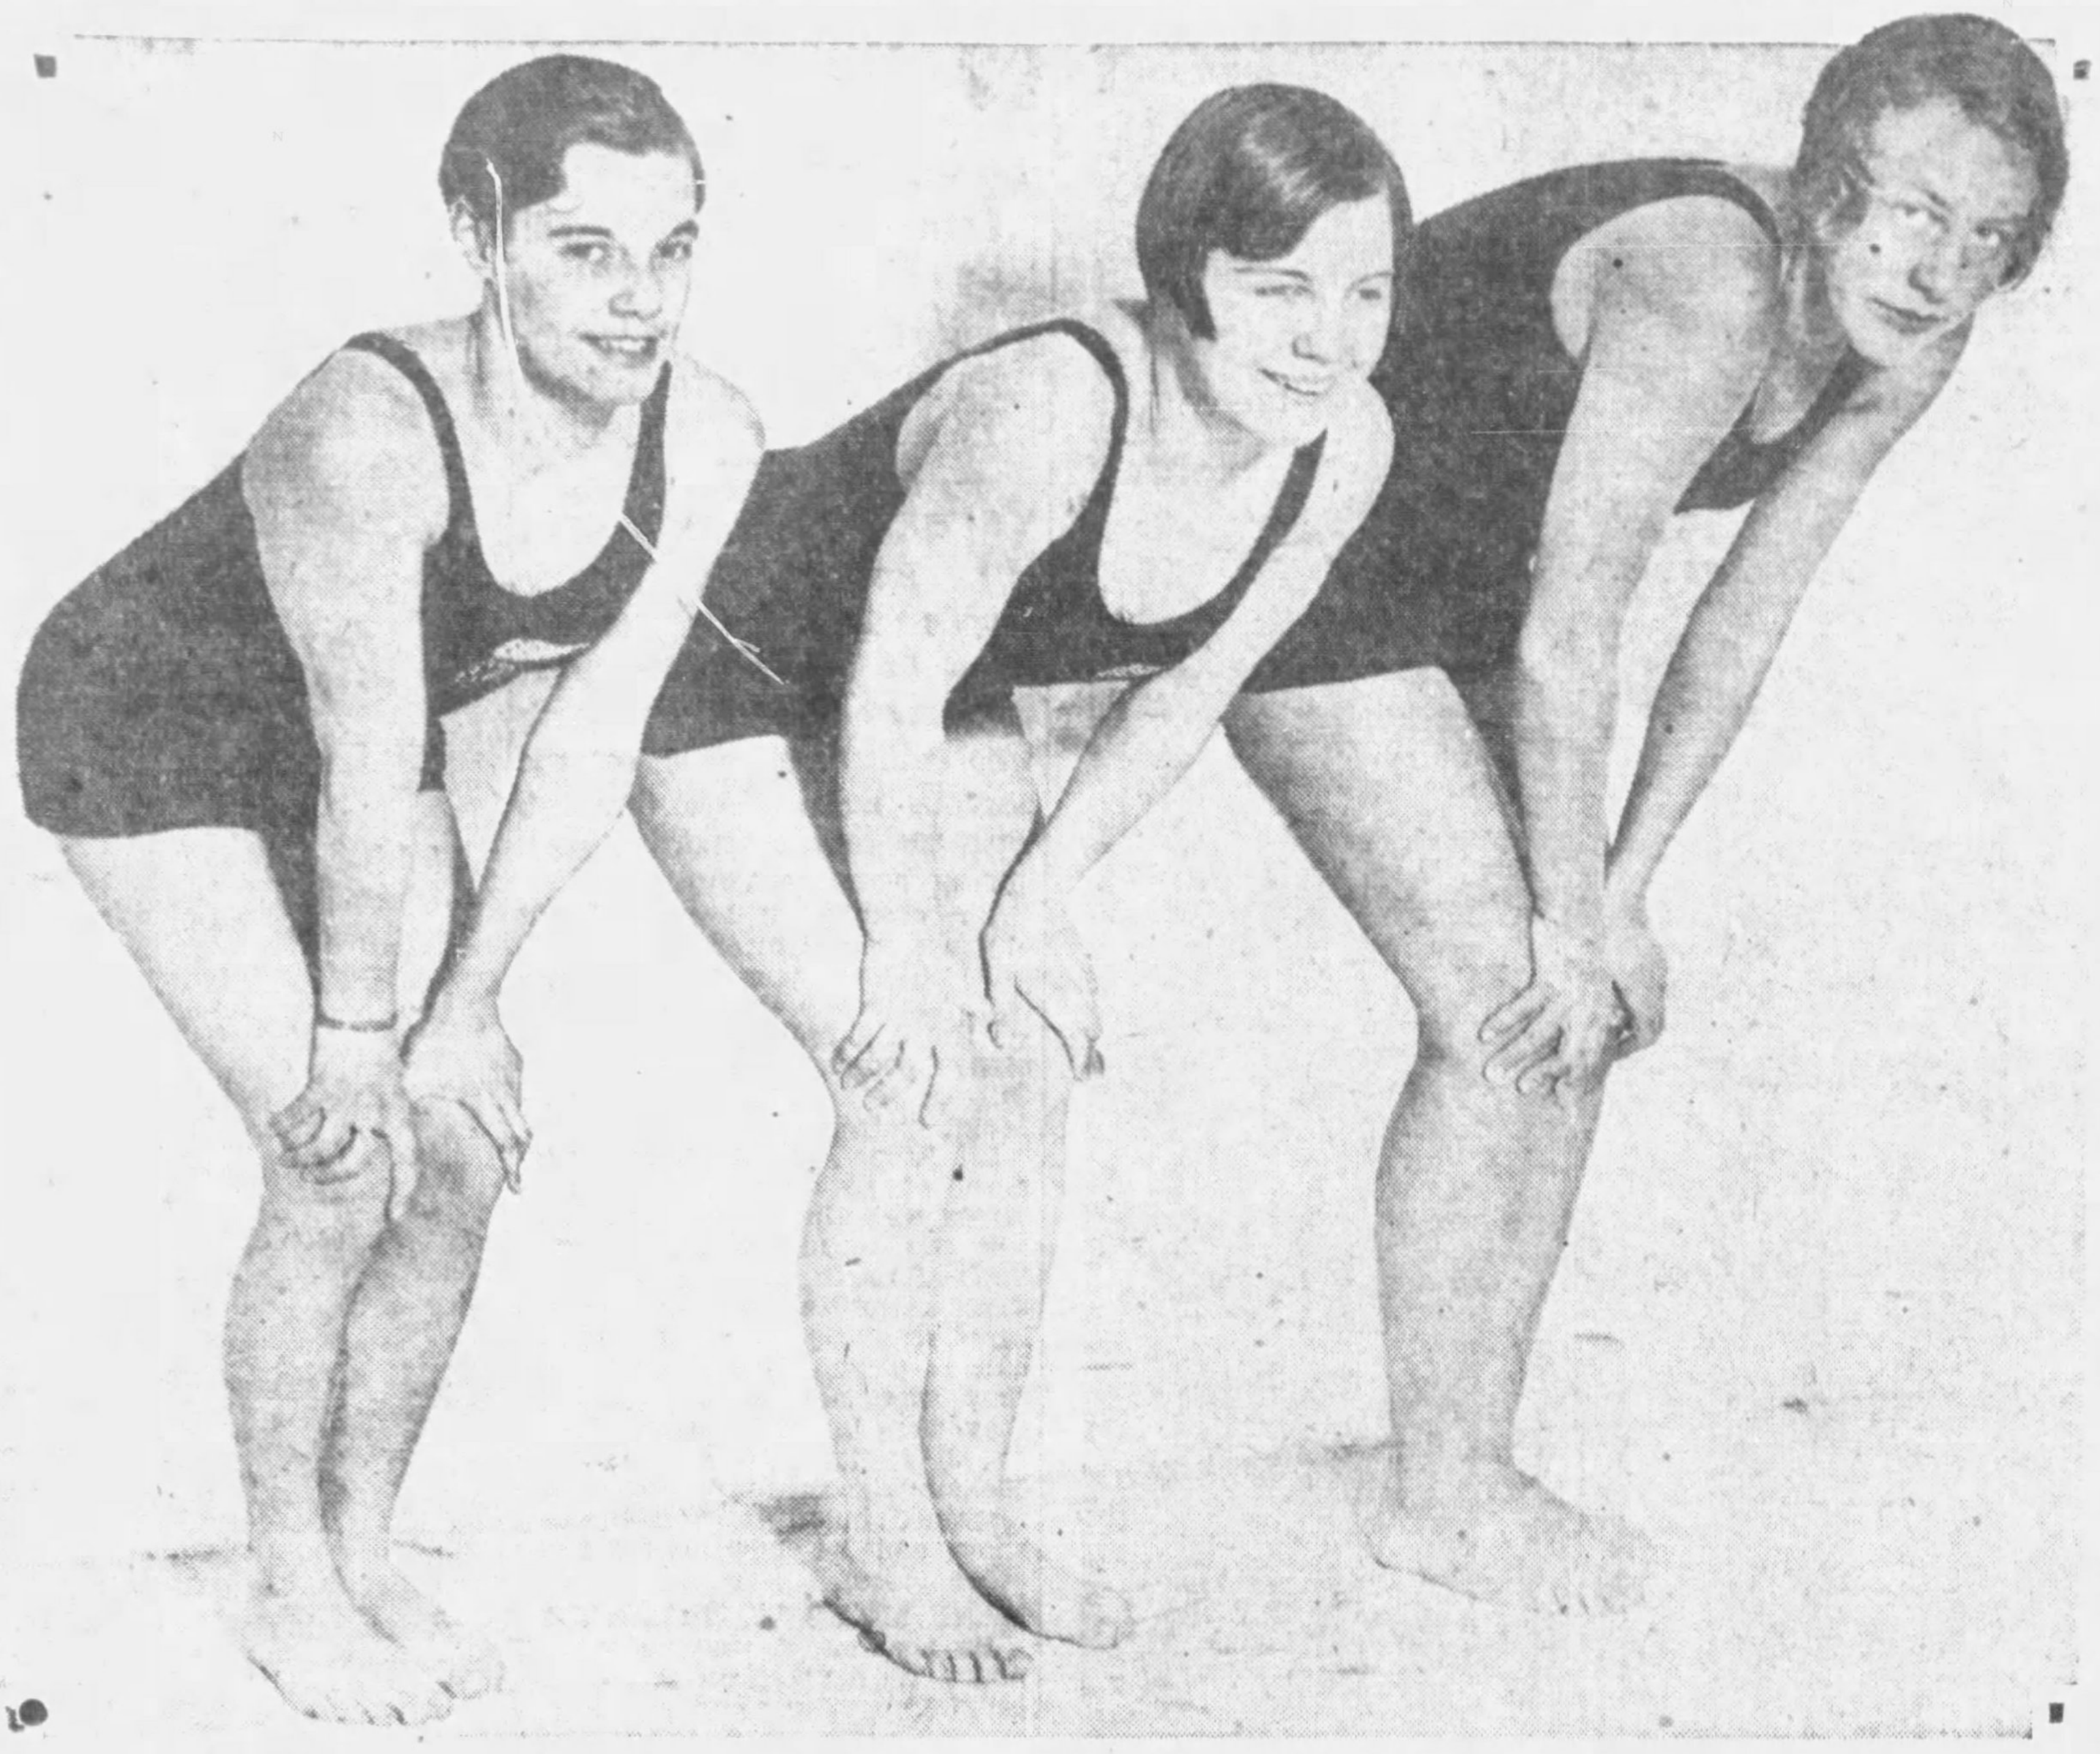
BOXING GAME

Possibly 1930 will straighten things out a bit by producing recognized leaders of the heavyweight, light-heavyweight and flyweight classes, but there are indications of further scrambling in other directions, with a promise of at least two new champs. One is Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight, and the other is Kid Chocolate, featherweight. Bl ck Bill and Earl Mastro are a couple of others who also appear to be going somewhere.

FAIR MERMAIDS TO SWIM IN LOCAL POOL



Eleanor Holm — Lisa Lindstrom — Martha Norelius

STARS—These expert swimmers will feature a swimming carnival to be held in the pool of the Keystone Athletic Club, downtown, on the night of January 30. Miss Holm was the all-round champion of last year, Miss Lindstrom earned her laurels in the last Olympic Games, and Miss Norelius won the Wrigley Marathon swim for women. All represent the Women's Swimming Association, of New York. Local stars also will compete.

Skibo Five Eager To Check Panthers

Tartans Hope to Break Losing Streak of Eight Straight.

THE opening of the annual series between the Pitt Panthers and the Carnegie Tech Skibos features the most pretentious basketball schedule offered the followers of the collegiate sport in the tri-state district this week. The Panthers and Skibos are scheduled to renew their feud of many years in the gymnasium Wednesday night.

Both teams have been setting a torrid pace in basketball this winter. The Skibos are showing a big improvement under the coaching of Ralph Hogan and likely will present a strong front against the Panthers.

The Skibos have suffered eight straight defeats at the hands of the Panthers and they believe it is time to put a halt to that winning streak. The game is the first of a three-game series. The second contest will be played in the Stadium Pavillion on January 24 and the third in the Skibo gym on February 25.

FLOOR REMODELED

The entire Carnegie Tech playing court has been remodeled and a new electric scoreboard installed.

All three of Pittsburgh's higher schools of learning will be actively engaged during the next six days. The Panthers open up their tough week by engaging Montana State at The Stadium tomorrow night and then rest until their game with Tech Wednesday. Saturday finds the Panthers opposed to Georgetown at The Stadium.

Montana State, which makes its first appearance in this city, boasts a remarkable record and should present a strong front against the Panthers. In Captain Ashworth (Cat) Thompson, the Westerners boast a forward who compares with the greatest in that section of the country. Other members of the team are Frank (Pop) Ward, center; Orland Ward, forward; Max Worthington, guard; Gilbert (Peck) McFarland, forward; Ed Buzzetti, forward; Harry Sadley, forward.

The Skibos face two hard games this week. Following the Pitt battle, the Tartans invade Penn State Saturday night when they meet Dutch Hermann's Lions. The Skibo Plebes and Penn State Frosh meet in the preliminary.

Duquesne University likewise has two tough games on its list. Tomorrow Chick Davies' passers invade Waynesburg to meet an old rival in the Yellow Jackets, while Saturday finds the Bluffmen in Cleveland to tackle John Carroll.

WASH-JEFF BUSY

Wash-Jeff will have its hands full with Allegheny and Bethany on its program. The Presidents meet the Methodists in Washington Wednesday and the Bisons in the same town on Saturday.

Geneva meets two old opponents in Thiel and Canisius, meeting the Lutherans in Greenville tomorrow and the Buffalo passers in Beaver Falls Wednesday. After meeting the Dukes tomorrow night, Waynesburg turns its attention to the Allegheny battle on the same floor Saturday night.

West Virginia meets its arch rival West Virginia Wesleyan at Morgantown Wednesday night in the big game of the week in West Virginia. After this game, the Wesleyan passers turn their attention to the game with the Franz-Burka Collegians, carded in Clarksburg Saturday night. Clem Crowe's St. Vincent's passers has two hard games on its hands, meeting the Uniontown Pitt Junior College in Uniontown Wednesday and Canisius at Latrobe Friday.

GRADE SCHOOL CARD ARRANGED

The Department of Hygiene of the Pittsburgh Public Schools yesterday announced the grade school basketball schedules for the 43 schools having eight grades. The schools are arranged in 11 groups and three districts. Group, district and city championships will be decided:

The schedules are purposefully short to alloy time for an intra-school schedule of inter-class and inter-group games.

The only modification of the playing rules is that the dribble is limited to one bound. The schedule follows:

EAST END DISTRICT.

Fort Pitt Rifle Club To Dine Saturday

After enjoying a most successful trap shooting season during the year 1929, the members of the Fort Pitt Rifle Club will be dined and entertained at a banquet next Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock in the Assembly room of the Fort Pitt Hotel.

This affair will mark the twenty-fourth annual meeting and dinner of the veteran rifle club, which is affiliated with the National Rifle Association of America.

The principal speaker on the elaborate program arranged will be Dr. Thomas E. Wineoff, scientist research authority. He will give an illustrated talk on wild life conservation in Pennsylvania.

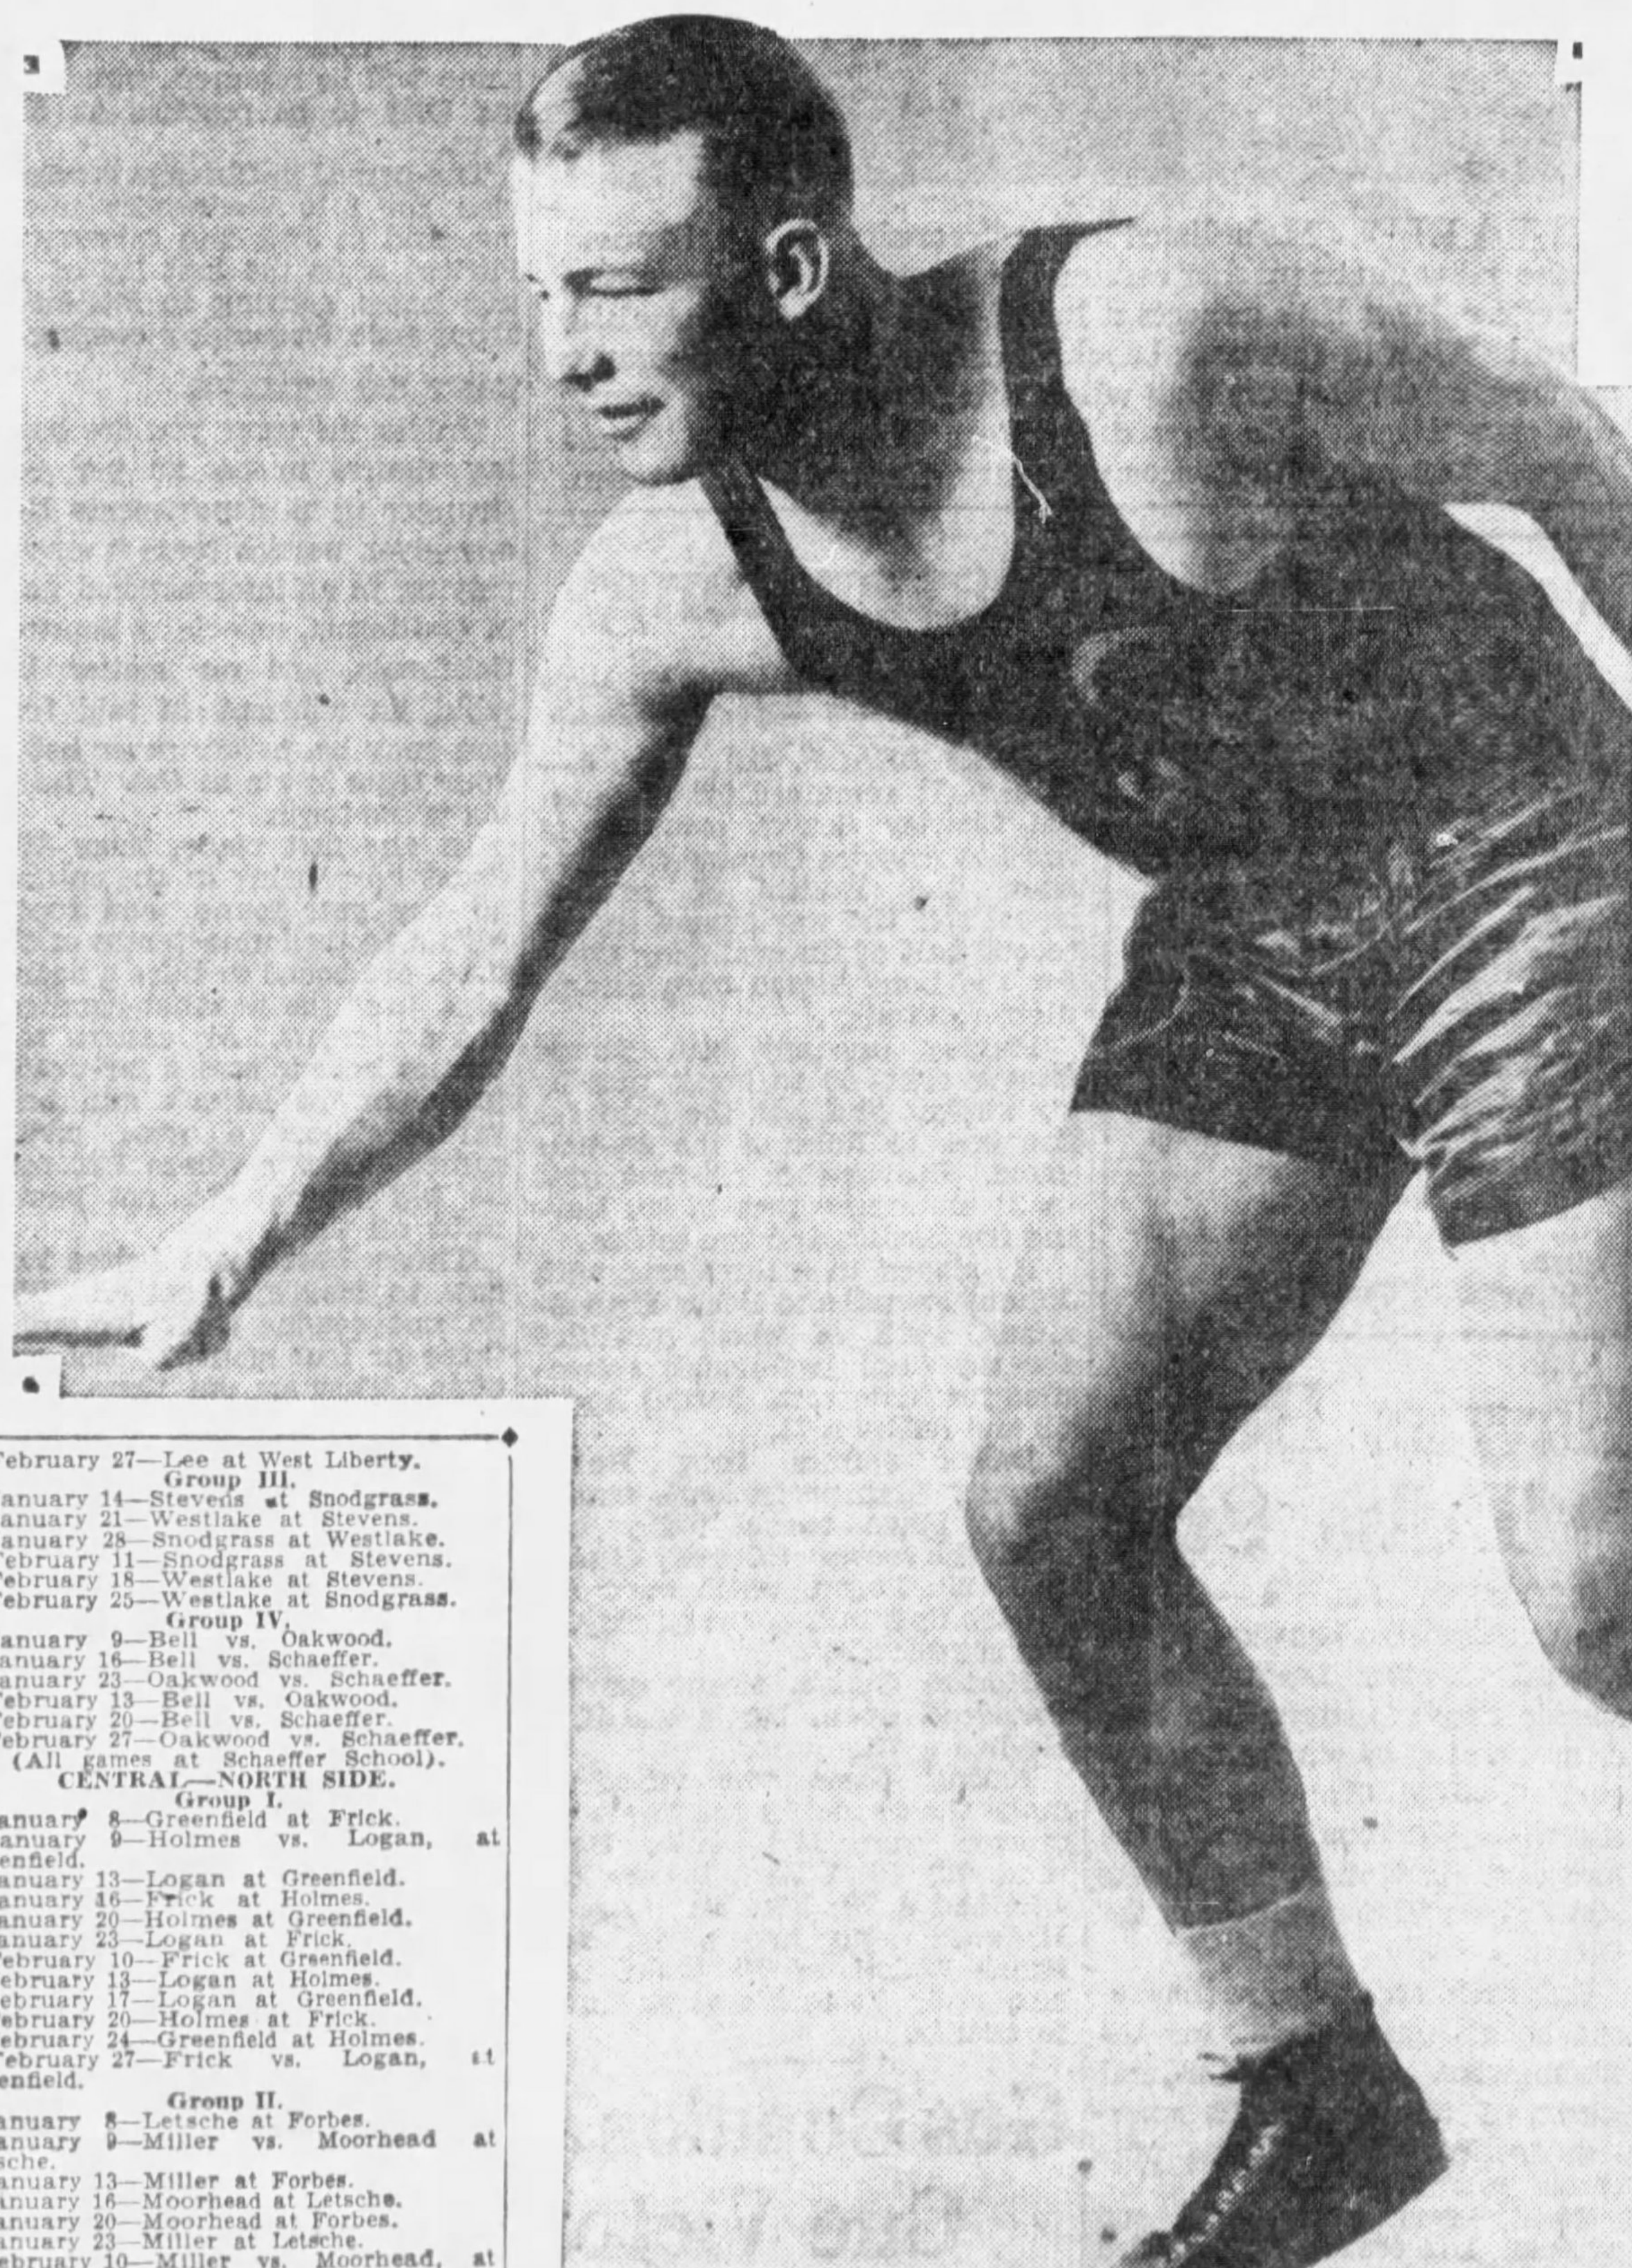
Auto Speed Trials Dates Are Changed

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A decision to set the annual automobile speed trials here for March 15 to 30 instead of March 1 to 15, as originally planned, has been reached by Val Haresnape, director. He said he had asked the contest board of the American Automobile Association to sanction the change.

CHESS PLAY OPENS

With 10 players participating, the annual Western Pennsylvania chess championship tournament will get under way tomorrow night in the rooms of the Westinghouse Club, Wilkinsburg, and the Pittsburgh Chess Club, downtown. The best players in the district are entered.

NATIONAL FLOOR STAR HERE



THOMPSON—Gaze upon the worthy Ashworth (Cat) Thompson, all-America forward of the Montana State College floor team, which battles the Pitt Panthers in the Stadium Pavilion tomorrow night. He is known as the Blond Dynamo of the Western machine. He averaged 16.3 points per game last season and is one of the most spectacular players in the college ranks.

JACK DEMPSEY On Boxing

Headgear Is Useful.
As Training Aid.
Saves Boxers' Faces.

Jack All for 'Em.
Discounts Faults.
That Are Claimed.

GERMANS IMPROVE ON DEVICE

SOMEBODY in Germany went the American headgear a few better by inventing a complete mask for a boxer to wear while in training.

It has holes for the ears, eyes, nose and mouth, but on the outer edges of those built-up holes is plenty of heavy padding. The chin and cheeks are entirely encased in padded leather, thus making an almost perfect protection for the face.

Nobody can smack the beak of a boxer while wearing that outfit; nobody can split his lip or his forehead or cauliflower his ears. A ringman using that device is immune from getting his complexion ruined.

The introduction of the boxing mask reopens discussion as to whether the use of any mask or headgear harms more than helps a fighter so far as battle result is concerned.

NOT A HANDICAP

Many contend that a man who trains with a headgear and knowing he will not get seriously hurt becomes rather indifferent to blows aimed for the head, a habit which he may carry into the ring with disastrous results.

"And," they declare further, "when a boxer uses a headgear he is fully protected from shocks and doesn't get his jaw accustomed to solid blows. When he discards the gear and goes into a fight he is in danger because his chin hasn't been toughened up by punches."

I'm all for the headgear.

I don't think the use of one makes a smart fighter careless, and if a fighter isn't smart he will take plenty on the whiskers whether he trains with a headgear or not. So far as taking punches on the jaw to toughen up that jaw is concerned—well, that's hokum. I never found that letting sparring partners hit my chin made it any stouter. In fact, I believe that EVERY PUNCH a fellow takes softens him.

PREVENTS PUNISHMENT

You cannot toughen the resistance of a human body by having somebody smash it with a solid fist that carries the entire bulk of another body behind it. And the jolts one gets in training camps, although not so stiff as are suffered in actual battling, leave their impression on the body and head.

So why should a fighter take a pounding in the gymnasiums when he can avoid it by using a headgear?

Why run the needless risk of a broken nose, a split lip or a battered ear while training for fights? Why not use the headgear that generally protects him from all that?

NEW MASK AN AID

I don't know how that German mask will work out. Maybe it will be too cumbersome, or it may encase the face so much that it produces excessive perspiration. But if it has no such faults and is an improvement on the headgear now used, it ought to be mighty helpful in keeping fighters' faces from being pounded out of shape in training.

Titles at Stake in League Basketball This Week

LOCAL PASSERS NEAR HALF-WAY MARK IN RACES

Fintex May Clinch County Championship With Wins Over Allentown, Sianos.

I. K. S. and Manchester to Battle for Laurels Friday; Y. M. H. A. Advances.

By JULIUS LEVIN

WITH the first-half races in the various basketball leagues operating in this vicinity this season rapidly drawing to a close, this week's contests likely will have a deciding bearing on the final standings in the local circuits. In some instances teams that are running neck-and-neck for the titles are scheduled to come together in battles that will more than likely determine the championship for the first half of the season.

The Fintex team, setting a fast pace in the Allegheny County League, may clinch the championship of the loop this week by winning its two league counters. The Allegheny County League is entering the sixth week of its schedule, and as the first-half runs only eight weeks, the Fintex combine can do much to settle the issue by defeating the Allentown Club at Duquesne University and the Sianos at Columbus Temple Thursday night.

Local Y. M. H. A. Gets National Floor Tourney

THE second annual national Young Men's Hebrew Association basketball tournament will be held in the local Y. M. H. A. some time in March, according to a letter received today by Arthur W. Scher, athletic director, from Henry Stuts, of Newark, N. J., chairman of the tournament committee.

Last year's tournament was staged in Atlantic City, Philadelphia Y. M. H. A. winning the championship. Pittsburgh's entry, winner of the A. A. U. and Institutional League championships, was eliminated in the first round.

Teams from all sections of the east and middle west will be entered in the tournament.

SIANOS SEEK REVENGE

The Sianos, however, will prove no set-up for the leaders, despite the fact the Fintex team defeated them earlier in the season by a wide margin. The Sianos have been coming along in great fashion after an early-season slump and they are eager to turn the tables on their rivals for the bad lacing handed them at Duquesne University.

In the West Penn League, the Young Men's Hebrew Association, boasting five straight victories, is pressing the Ray Schneiders for first place. The two contenders for the title each face tough opponents this week, the Schneiders meeting Community House and the Knickers, while the Y. M. H. A. plays the same clubs. The addition of Lou Alman has helped the Oaklanders to climb in the race, the team winning five straight with the former Rauh star in the lineup.

TITLE AT STAKE

In the Central Pittsburgh League, the battle next Friday night between the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House and Manchester Community House on the I. K. S. floor will settle the issue once and for all. The two teams have been running a close race for the championship, and at the present time are deadlocked for the top position.

Manchester Community, under the guidance of Coach Jim Black, is the only team to score a victory over Ziggy Kahn's charges, and will be out to repeat Friday night. The two clubs are evenly matched, and indications are that the return meeting will draw a capacity crowd. The Settlement passers have been working for this game ever since they dropped their only contest to Manchester on the latter's floor.

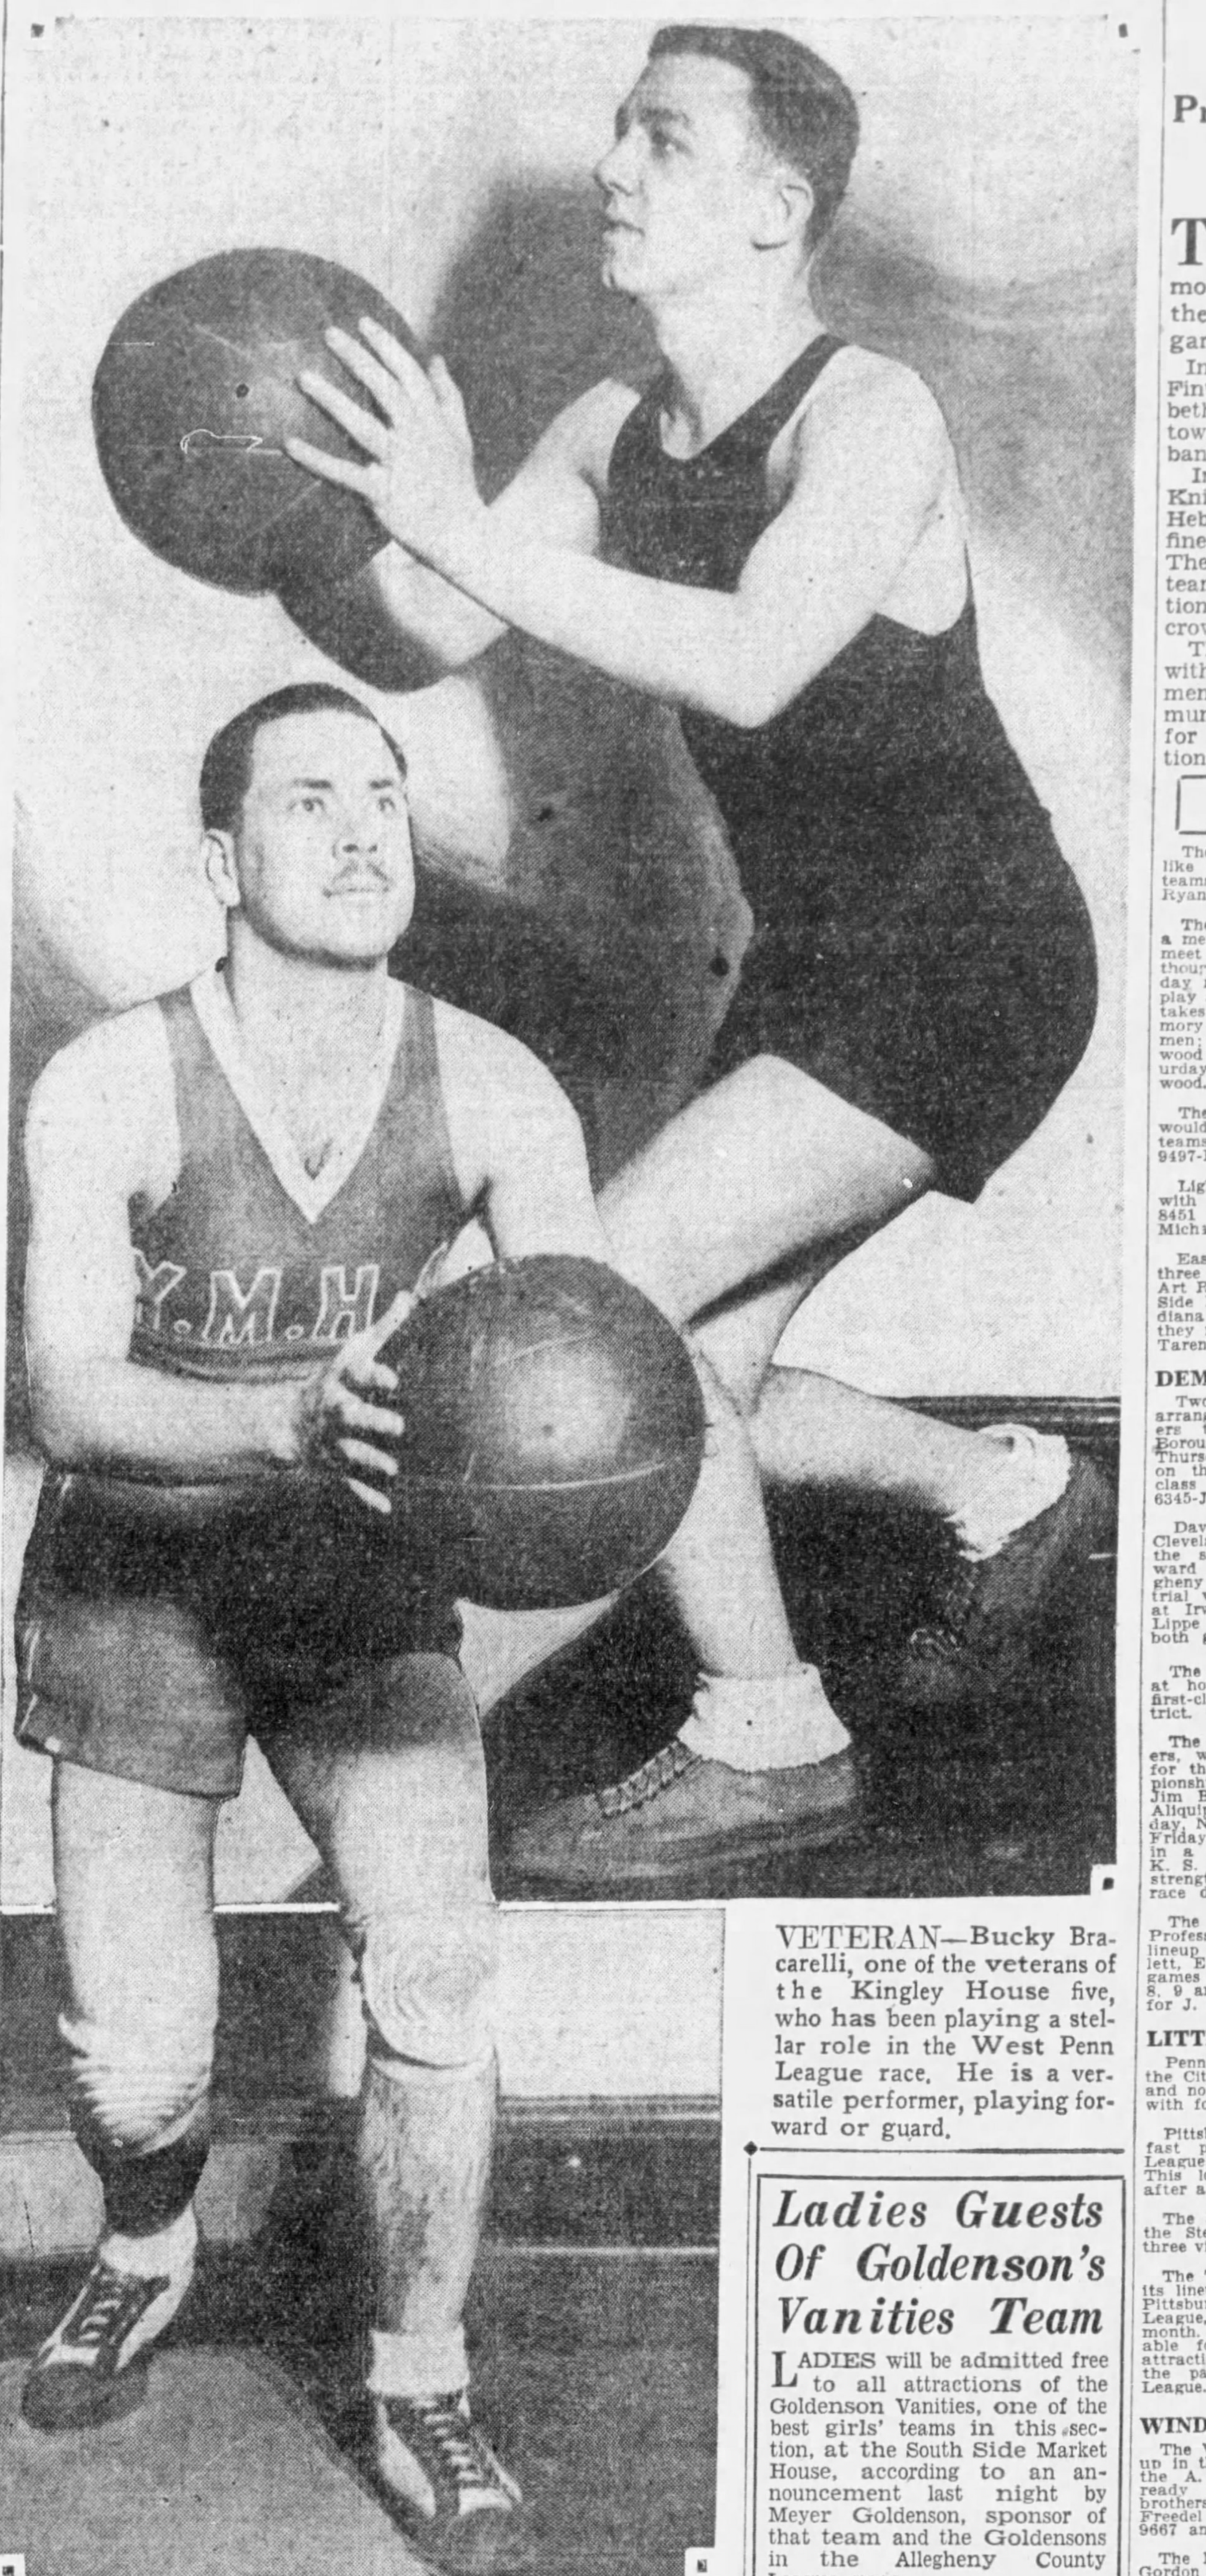
The Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad passers, led by Herman Strahl, appear to be "in" insofar as the Commercial-Industrial League race is concerned. The railroads, boasting one of the best teams in their history, have scored five straight league games without a defeat to mar its record.

The race in the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League still is in its infancy, the season having opened on New Year's day. This loop is composed of evenly matched clubs, and if the early-season games can be taken as a criterion the race should be close from start to finish.

Detroit Ice Team Gets New Wingman

DETROIT, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Stan McCabe, star Olympic (International League) wingman, was with the Cougar squad when it left this afternoon, to face the Blackhawks in Chicago. Bernie Brophy, of the Cougar squad, was left behind and will play center for the Olympics against Hamilton, Ont., tomorrow night.

SHINE IN WEST PENN RACE



VETERAN—Bucky Bracarelli, one of the veterans of the Kingley House five, who has been playing a stellar role in the West Penn League race. He is a versatile performer, playing forward or guard.

SHOWS GREAT FORM—Lou Alman, former star of the Enoch Rauh Club in the Allegheny County League, whose return seems to have "made" the Young Men's Hebrew Association team in the West Penn League. The Y. passers had lost three straight games after winning their opener from the Penn Five when Alman joined the team. Since his injection into the lineup, the Oaklanders, last year's A. A. U. and Institutional League champions, have won five in a row and are pressing the Ray Schneiders for first place. Alman is assisting Art W. Scher, athletic director, in coaching the team.

District Scholastic Fives Face Big Court Week

Having pried off the lid of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League basketball campaign last Friday with the favorites coming through as expected, scholastic quintets in this section of the state face another busy week-end with games carded in every section of the circuit.

Fifth Avenue High School, last year's city champion, and a contender in the W. P. I. A. L. play-offs, started its campaign on the right foot by defeating Taylor Allderdice. The Fifth team is a veteran one and is picked to carry off the crown for the second straight year. This week's schedule follows:

Ladies Guests Of Goldenson's Vanities Team

LADIES will be admitted free to all attractions of the Goldenson Vanities, one of the best girls' teams in this section, at the South Side Market House, according to an announcement last night by Meyer Goldenson, sponsor of that team and the Goldensons in the Allegheny County League race.

Both the Goldensons and the Vanities play all their home games at the South Side Market House Wednesday nights. The South Siders are the first of the local professional clubs to admit ladies free of charge and a large crowd is expected next Wednesday night when the Vanities meet the Canonsburg Tiger Girls in the preliminary to the Goldenson-Charleroi Lion County League attraction.

Shady Side Floor Program Arranged

The Shady Side basketball team will play a schedule of 16 games this season, including two contests in the Tri-State Prep School League, according to the program announced yesterday. The schedule opens Tuesday with Perry High School as the opponent at Aspinwall.

February 15 Shady Side meets Nichols School of Buffalo in a league game at home, and on March 1 University School of Cleveland is met in Cleveland. The complete schedule:

January 7, Perry, at home; January 10, Westinghouse, at home; January 14, Ford City, at home; January 17, Catholic High, abroad; January 21, Aspinwall, abroad; January 24, Turtle Creek, at home; January 28, Kiski, at home; February 1, Western Reserve Academy, abroad; February 5, Edgewood, at home; February 8, Butler, at home; February 11, Sacred Heart, at home; February 15, Nichols School, at home; February 18, Aspinwall, at home; February 22, Kiski, abroad; February 25, Catholic High, at home; March 1, University School of Cleveland, abroad.

FREE TO THE LADIES

This ticket, when properly signed, will admit one lady free to the basketball game between the GOLDENSON VANITIES and the CANONSBURG TIGER GIRLS at the SOUTH SIDE MARKET HOUSE, Wednesday Evening, January 8, at 8 O'Clock.

Be a GUEST of the GOLDENSON FURNITURES, the SOUTH SIDE'S only entry in the ALLEGHENY COUNTY LEAGUE, and the GOLDENSON VANITIES, Pittsburgh's outstanding girls team.

Large Crowds See League Games Here

Present Floor Season One of Most Successful For Amateurs, Pros.

THE present basketball season among the professionals and amateurs likely will go down in the records as one of the most successful in the history of the sport here, judging from the large crowds that are turning out at the various league games.

In the Allegheny County League, Fintex, Sianos, Goldensons, Elizabeth, Homestead, Charleroi, Allentown and Duquesne are playing to banner crowds.

In the West Penn League, the Knickers and the Young Men's Hebrew Association are drawing fine crowds to their home games. The Schneiders, one of the best teams in the loop, are an exception, having failed to attract the crowds as expected.

The Central Pittsburgh League, with the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House and Manchester Community Lyceum staging a fine race for the title, is drawing exceptionally well.

DRIBBLES

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad would like to book games with light first-class teams. Call Lafayette 1075-R and ask for Ryan.

The Homewood-Brushton Y. M. C. A., a member of the Institutional League, will meet four strong opponents this week, although none is a league attraction. Tuesday night the Downtown Y Hoosiers will play at Homewood; Thursday Tom Winnie takes his passers to the Washington Armory to meet Jack Hurley's Tylerdale Firemen; Friday Homewood meets the Edgewood Deaf Mutes in Edgewood, while Saturday Westinghouse Tech is met at Homewood.

The Whoopee Athletics of Moon Run would like to arrange games with junior teams at home and abroad. Call Carnegie 9497-R and ask for Bill or Harry.

Light first-class teams desiring games with St. Joachim's quintet call Atlantic 8451 between 6 and 6:30 and ask for Michael.

East Liberty's Y. M. C. A. passers face three tough opponents this week. Tuesday Art Ritenbaugh's passers engage the North Side Buicks at Javor Hall; Thursday Indiana Y is met at Indiana, while Saturday they return to their home court to engage Tarentum Y.

DEMOLAY FIVE BUSY

Two high-class attractions have been arranged for the Allegheny DeMolay passers this week. Tuesday night North Boroughs Y. is met at Bellevue, while on Thursday the Agenda Club is engaged on the Oliver High School floor. First-class teams desiring games call Cedar 6345-J and ask for Charles.

Dave Kerr, acting manager of the Cleveland Rosenblums, was pleased with the showing of Nate Lippe, star forward of the Fintex team of the Allegheny County League, who received a trial with the pro champs in the games at Irwin and Monessen last Wednesday. Lippe made a favorable impression in both games.

The Ocean Park Five is open for games at home and abroad with the leading first-class teams in the Pittsburgh district. Call Ben Wilson, Yukon 29.

The Manchester Community House passers, who are making a determined fight for the Central Pittsburgh League championship, face a hard week of games. Jim Black's passers are slated to meet Aliquippa at Aliquippa Tuesday; Thursday, National Music in a league game, and Friday, Irene Kaufmann Settlement House in a return league encounter at the I. K. S. The addition of Albert Giggam has strengthened the North Siders for the race down the home stretch.

The Chicago Bruins, of the American Professional League, including in their lineup Nat Hickey, Honey Russell, Al Kellett, Ely and Tillie Vos, are available for games in the Pittsburgh district February 8, 9 and 10. Call Lafayette 4297 and ask for J. J. Freund, Jr.

LITTLE FIVE IN FRONT

Penn Little Five is setting the pace in the City Junior League with five victories and no defeats. The Peffer Club is second with four victories and no defeats.

Pittsburgh and Lake Erie is setting a fast pace in the Commercial-Industrial League with five victories and no defeats. This loop resumes operations this week after a layoff due to the holidays.

The J. J. Veronas are in first place in the Steel City League with a record of three victories and one defeat.

The Toledo Red Man Club, including in its lineup Pip Koehler, former star of the Pittsburgh Morrys in the old Central League, will invade Pittsburgh late ethis month. January 14, 16 and 17 are available for first-class teams desiring this attraction. The Red Man Club is setting the pace in the National Professional League. For games call Lafayette 4297.

WINDSLOW CLUB BACK

The Windslow Club, last year's runner-up in the light first-class championship of the A. A. U., has reorganized and is ready to book games abroad. Stutz brothers, Dugan, Hiller, Spokane and Freedel compose this club. Call Grant 9667 and ask for Spokane.

The North Side Trojans meet the Lou Gordon Juniors in the preliminary to the Fintex-Allentown Allegheny County League attraction at Duquesne University tomorrow night. Teams desiring games call Fairfax 6621 and ask for Ralph.

The Central Postoffice is represented on the floor this winter by a first-class team, including in its lineup Davy Wilder, Izzy Mandell, McCormick, Caniston, Parisky, Merton, Olio and LaCasio. For games call the Central Postoffice and ask for Zip or Joe in the dispatching department.

The Cleveland Rosenblums will wind up their second exhibition tour in Western Pennsylvania tomorrow night when they meet the Sharon Buhl Club in Sharon. The tour was one of the most successful ever undertaken by the pro league champions, and was arranged by John J. Freund, Jr., local basketball promoter.

The Pittsburgh Silents would like to arrange games abroad with first-class teams. Write Thomas P. Ross, Jr., 830 Western avenue, or call Cedar 9903 and ask for Stanley.

Iowa to Make Third Reinstatement Plea

IOWA CITY, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The third attempt of the University of Iowa to regain re-admittance into the good graces of the Western Conference will have its inception here next Thursday when a special committee of Western Conference representatives comes to Iowa City.

While the committee will visit the Hawkeye campus primarily to investigate the status of 13 athletes suspended by Old Gold officials for participation in the now famous "trust fund," Iowa officials hope their visit will open the way to the early presentation of a new petition for the Hawkeyes' reinstatement.

Twice since the Big Ten faculty committee voted to sever athletic relations with the University of Iowa, effective January 1, have the Hawkeye athletic officials sought to have the action rescinded. Both attempts have failed.

STO-ROX SPORT FETE PLANNED

The second annual banquet of the Sto-Rox Athletic Testimonial Association will be held at the Chartiers Heights Country Club, Tuesday evening of next week. The committee, of which Wally Wickline and other prominent McKees Rocks and Stowe Township citizens are members, has been working hard on the program and there is every reason to feel that the affair will prove more of a success than the initial banquet, held at the High School last year.

Three McKees Rocks boys who have made a name in the athletic world will be the guests of honor at the banquet. Octavius (Toby) Uansa, Pitt's sterling halfback, needs little introduction, and it is the intention of the committee to present Uansa with something of a lasting nature at the affair. Toby's brilliant dashes across the collegiate gridiron have brought fame to himself and the little town on the Ohio River, so Toby will be very much in evidence when the speakers get busy. Frank Rogzer, Rox boy, who made a creditable showing with the Chambersburg club of the Blue Ridge League, and Charley Winoski, of the Duquesne University squad, will be the other honor guests.

Frank Lanahan will be toastmaster for the occasion, with Dr. Wallace Petty, of the First Baptist Church, among the speakers. Quite a number of luminaries in the athletic world will be on hand. Jock Sutherland, coach of Pitt; Assistant Coach Bob Waddell, of Carnegie Tech, and Elmer Layden, of Duquesne, have promised to attend. A table has been reserved for the players of the University of Pittsburgh team.

Just as last season, Honus Wagner will be on hand. The Hon. Dr. Steedle, of McKees Rocks, will be among the speakers.

A dance will conclude the program.

NATIONALISTA WINS

MANILA, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Young Nationalista, of Manila, retained the featherweight boxing title of the Far East tonight by defeating Billy Gordon, of Portland, Ore., in the second round. The referee stopped the fight after Gordon had been knocked down several times.

MUCH-TRAVELED PILOT

STREET— Gabby Street, who is to pilot the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1930 flag race, is one of the most-traveled men in baseball's big show. He has been associated with 16 teams in several leagues, and has spent 24 years in the diamond "bushes." He caught Walter Johnson's fast pitches for four years when the Big Train was in his prime and showed so much skill as coach of the Cards last season that he was elevated to the managerial role for the 1930 campaign.

Chamber and City Council To Honor Pitt, Schenley

Thursday evening of next week will be a red-letter day in Pittsburgh in the realm of sport, as this is the day when the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce will unite and tender a hearty reception to the college and scholastic football champions of the city at the third annual city football championship award dinner at the Chamber of Commerce Building.

The University of Pittsburgh eleven, back from its trip to the coast, will no longer feel any sting of its defeat when it will be heroically treated as only champions deserve to be. The Panthers will be the recipients of two beautiful trophies, emblematic of the city collegiate championship. One is from the City Council and the other from the Chamber of Commerce.

The Schenley High School football team, winner of the city's scholastic honors, also will be guests at this dinner and will be presented with a beautiful trophy in reward for its gridiron victory by the Chamber.

LIMBERT TO EXHIBIT

Bob Limbert, known as the man from the Sawtooth Mountains, will entertain the Allegheny Chapter, Izaak Walton League, at the league's session to be held Monday night of next week at the Elks' Temple, North Side. Limbert's performance will consist of motion pictures of wild life, hunting narratives and anecdotes concerning his associations with Indians.

Variety of Guns Causes Stir Among Sportsmen

SHOT AND PUMP RIFLES CENTER OF BIG DEBATE

Illegal Shooting of Game Forces Wardens to Lift Licenses of Many.

Novices More Successful in Fields With Double-Barrel Weapon, Experts Say.

By GIB MARSH

INCLUDED in the list of stories in a recent issue of a sportsmen's magazine was an article in reference to repeating shotgun or pump gun, the writer contending it was not a sportsman's gun but a hunter's weapon for slaughter of game. Well, the various sportsmen's associations about the country have brought about a reformation in the hunting pastimes and have made sportsmen out of hunters, the latter going into the fields chiefly to "get the meat" rather than for the enjoyment of the shooting and recreation. This drive against the use of the pump gun, also the magazine gun, or automatic shotgun, is not based on sound thinking.

Gib Marsh

Every state in the Union has its game code, and, while some gunners may take home a few game birds, rabbits and waterfowl in excess of the legal limit, it is not a safe undertaking, especially in states where the game wardens are vigilent. It is a hazardous undertaking in Pennsylvania and every year some thoughtless hunter is detected and deprived of his hunting franchise for a couple of years.

HARD TO MASTER

HOWEVER, the pump gun is not a weapon which is easily mastered and in the hands of a novice it will not contribute to the slaughter of game, simply because it contains six cartridges. The novice will miss many shots with the pump gun, whereas with a double-barrel gun he probably would be more successful. It requires much practice to use a pump gun with accurracy and expediency.

Unless the shooter is experienced in handling a pump gun the recoil from the first shot will jar the butt of the stock from the breeching place against the shoulder. The gunner is now preparing for the second try. He must operate the fore end backward and forward to place the second cartridge in the muzzle chamber. Unless he is experienced the muzzle of the gun will be thrown upward. With the gun dislodged from the breeching point of the shoulder and the muzzle elevated it will require another movement to readjust it against the shoulder and lower the muzzle to get a proper alignment on the target, whether it is a game bird, rabbit or waterfowl. And by that time the target, whether on wing or running, has placed some distance between the shooter and itself. All these movements militate against the novice bringing his target to the ground with the second shot. And for the gunner to try for a third shot is hopeless.

Now with the exception of the recoil these other difficulties are not experienced with a double-barrel gun. If the shooter misses his first shot and the recoil has dislodged the butt of the stock from the shoulder, with his left hand extended out on the fore end and unhampered with any motion such as required in operating the fore end of a pump gun, the gunner can quickly readjust the stock and swing the gun on with the percentage of accuracy in his favor, for the gun is in proper position.

DEFENDS GUN

NOW the writer is defending the pump gun although he uses exclusively a double-barrel gun at the traps and in the field. But for duck shooting the writer believes the pump gun is ideal for that sport and the automatic shot gun is even a more efficient gun for waterfowl shooting.

Armed with a modern double barrel shotgun, equipped with ejectors, single trigger, a greater degree of accuracy and expediency can be maintained. I have observed a lot of second shots missed with a pump gun at the traps and in the fields. Perhaps the real place to observe these tests is at the national trapshooting tournament.

If the shooter is the master of a pump gun, can operate it smoothly, there is no doubt it is the ideal gun for everything, trapshooting, in the field and for waterfowl. To master a pump gun requires a lot of practice, which requires time and expense.

I have observed at the national trapshooting tournaments as many as 400 shooters take part in the doubles target championship, and of that large field there were never more than 20 of those contestants who could be regarded as real masters in the use of the pump gun. I could name them, but it is unnecessary. However, I shall name one amateur and one professional who are regarded as the best, Mark Arie, of Champaign, Ill., is the amateur and Clyde Mitchell, of Milwaukee, is the professional.

I have observed those two in exhibitions at double target shooting. Both can fire the first shot overhead, eject the shell, pull the gun on the first target, break the target, eject the second shell and point on the second target and break it on the third shot.

These two gunners could do in the same number of seconds the majority of shooters require in shooting two shells at the pair of targets.

UNABLE TO CHANGE

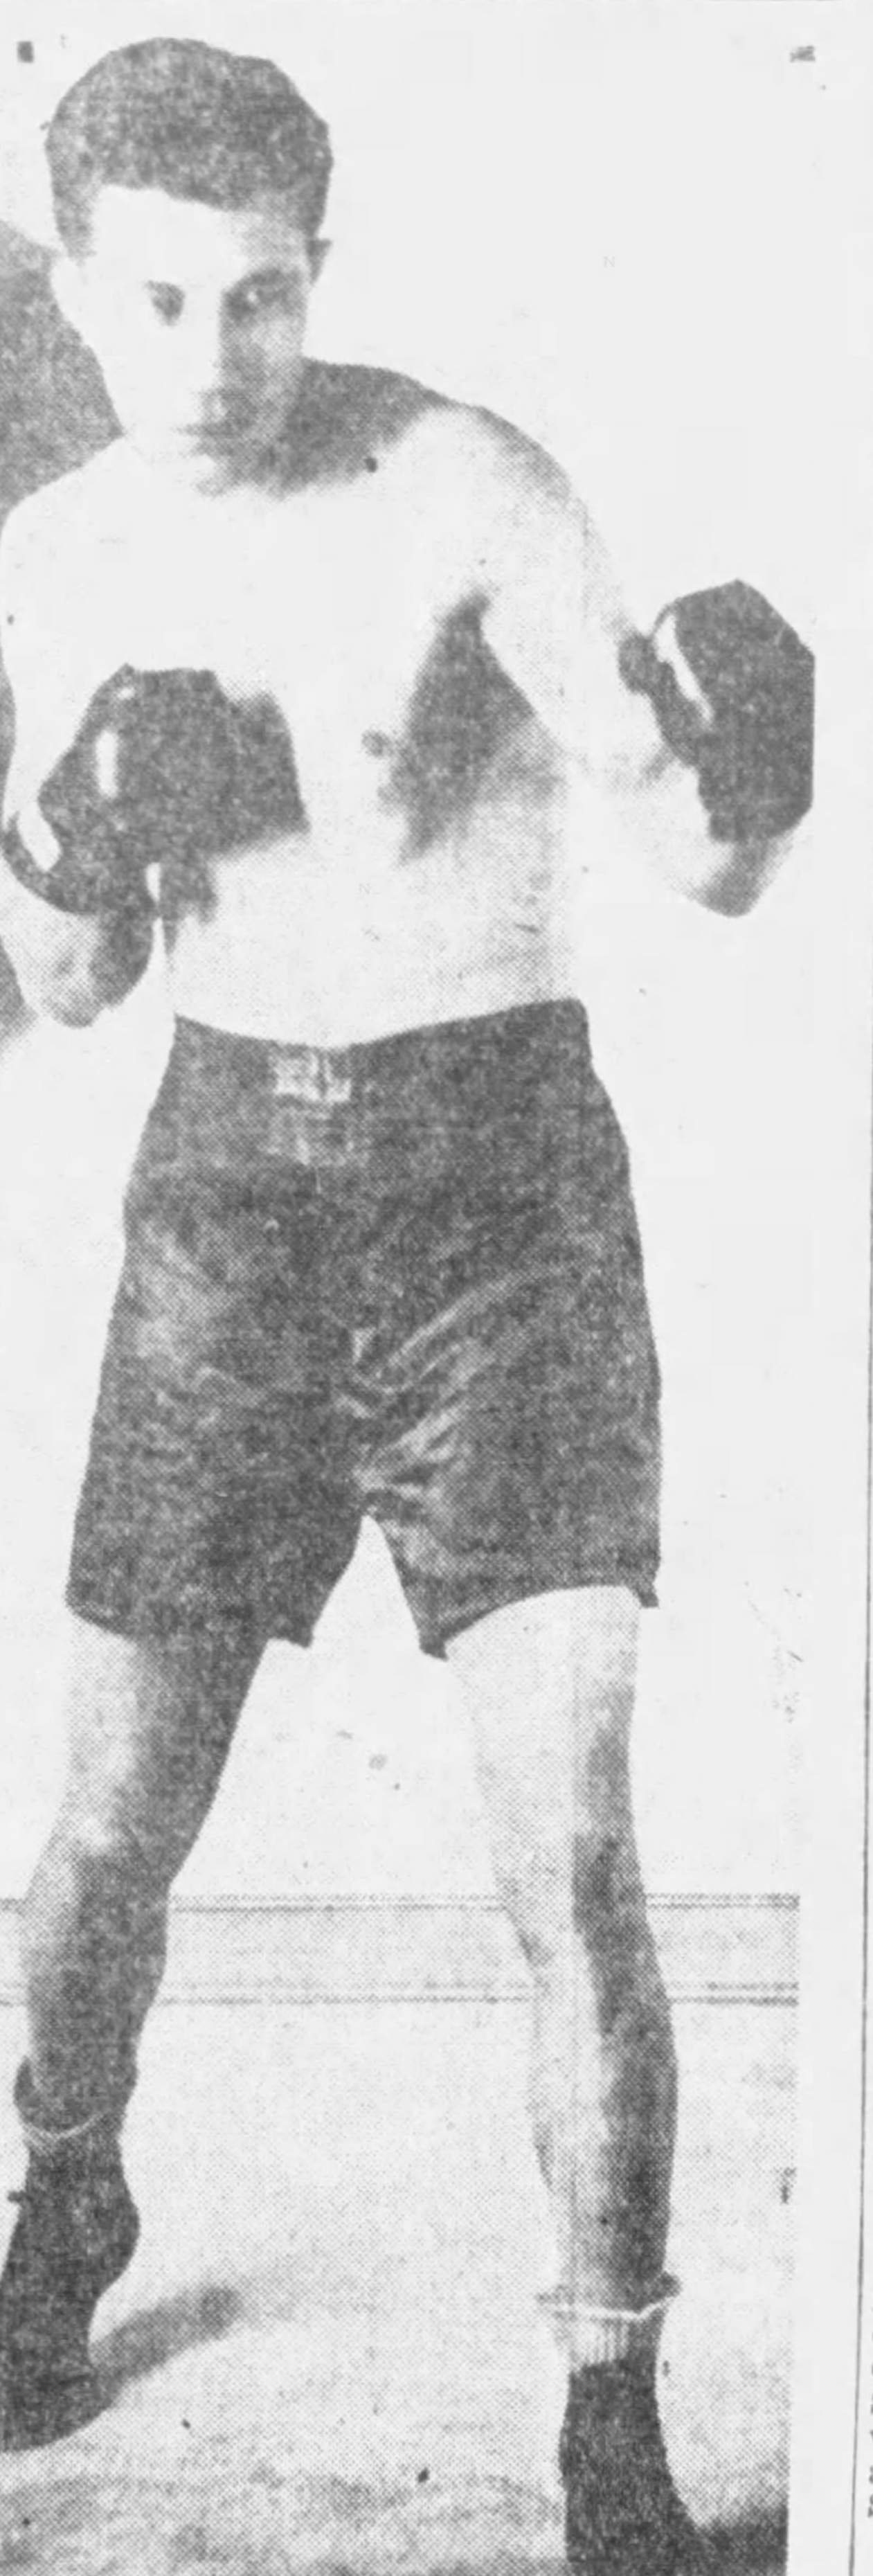
SOME crack wing shooters, who learned to shoot with a double gun seem unable to learn to use a pump gun with success. Lester German, of Maryland, the former national professional who held many trapshooting records, failed utterly to handle a pump with success.

Now German had made runs of over 500 straight with a double-barrel gun and scores of times broke 100 straight and 200 straight. The firm he represented directed that he use a pump gun and I remember at the national championships at Cleveland in 1920 I saw him miss 28 targets out of 100.

That the pump gun has so many patrons is because it is light, can be purchased at a moderate price, seldom get out of order, is easily repaired, and it does not deserve the criticism hurled at it, denouncing it as a weapon for slaughter.

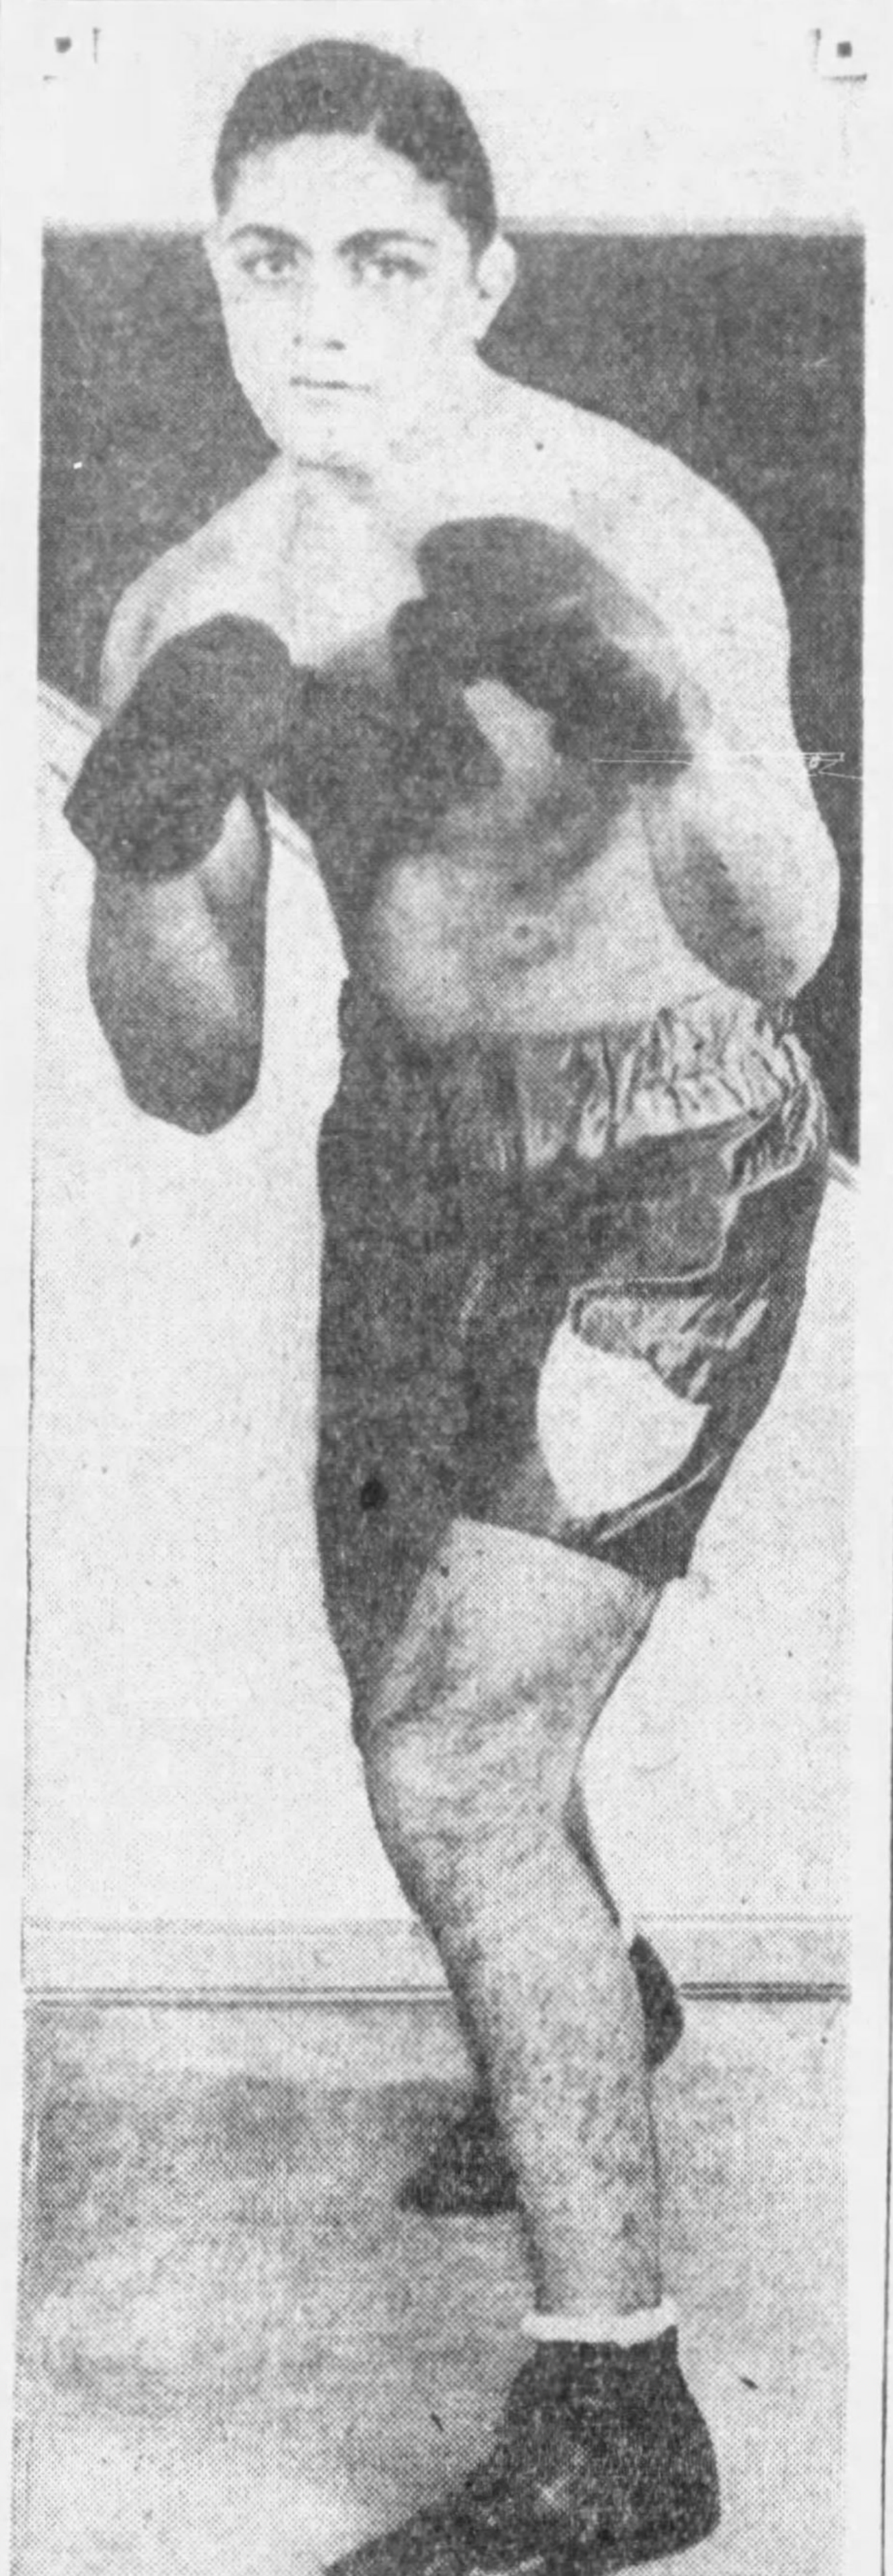
For the sportsman who desires to confine himself to one gun the pump gun will render him the service he requires.

SERGEANT—



BAKER—Sergt. Sammy Baker of New York, hard-hitting veteran, who has met 'em all in his class and boxes—

VS. TRIPPER!



TRIPPE—Joe Trippe, of Rochester, N. Y., in the main bout at Motor Square Garden tomorrow night. Trippe has proved a tripper for many welterweight aspirants.

Baker and Trippe Head Boxing Card

Strub Meets Van Hook at Junction Park. Amateurs at McKeesport.

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

TWO big leaguers in the boxing realm are billed for the windup at Motor Square Garden tomorrow night, Sergt. Sammy Baker, of New York, who has boxed all of the stars in the welterweight class, and Joe Trippe, of Rochester, N. Y., who has made himself a card around these parts by knocking out Tiger Joe Randall and Tug Phillips at McKeesport and beating Larry Madge there, too.

Baker, who was slipping for a time, has caught himself and recently has been going in his old form again. On New Year's Day he handed Gene Moretti, of Atlantic City, an up-and-coming youngster, a lacing at the Arena, in Philadelphia....Fans around here remember the Sarge for his winning fights against Jack Zivic at the Meyers Bowl, in North Braddock, and against Cuddy DeMarco at the Bridgeville Speedway last summer....He knocked down Cuddy a number of times and then polished off the job by knocking him entirely out of the ring, Cuddy being counted out while on the turf....Two sweet sockers, Trippe and Baker. Joe fights like most of the good ones hailing from the western part of New York State. That is, he boxes with his hands down at his side, after the fashion of Jimmy Slattery and Bushy Graham. Baker simply belts 'em into submission.

DUNN BOXES PACELLI

Well-balanced preliminary card is booked at the Garden. Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, flashy featherweight, meets Romeo Pacelli, of New Castle, in the eight-round semi-final. Dunn has paced with the best, while Pacelli has been coming strong recently. The Italian youth propels a fast and straight-hitting right. Successive victories over Joey Katkish and U. S. Carpentier, both of whom he knocked out, and Ken Hargraves, whom he floored on New-Year's Day, earned him the shot with Dunn. ...Joe Zink, of McKees Rocks, and Dominick Profio, of Cecil, wallopers, are in the second heat, and Georgie Bretsch, of the North Side, national junior amateur welterweight champion of 1929, and Howard Williams, Negro, of Swissvale, are in the opener.

Maxie Strub, of Erie, and Ray Van Hook, of Pontiac, Mich., top off a card for Ray Eberle at the Junction Park arena at New Brighton, of which he is matchmaker, tomorrow night. Ray has Johnny Haggerty, of Lawrenceville, and Young Nanci, of Swissvale, bantams, who always put up a pip of a fight when pitted against each other, in the semi-final, their fourth meeting, and Paul Balint, of the North Side, and Rosy Grier, of Canton, O., in the second number. Tiny O'Neill, of Steubenville, and Battling Sammy Johnson, Negro, of Beaver Falls, two of the biggest biffers in this section, are in the second bout of four rounds, and Sammy Chicdo, of Johnstown, and Billy Holt, of Youngstown, in the opener.

RIVALS IN PAL ACT

Sign of the times in the boxing scheme of things: Jackie Rodgers calling up Pete Zivic a couple of days after stopping him with body punches in their windup at Motor Square Garden, New Year's Day, and asking him solicitously how he felt. Then telling him he came out of the bout with a sprained ankle and asking Pete if he ever had such an injury and how long he thinks he ought to rest it up before resuming training. Pete says he never knew he had so many friends until after his Rodgers battle. They've come around to see him by the score to tell him they're sorry he emerged from the go with a couple of bunged-up ribs.

Buck McTiernan is resting up well at Hot Springs, but will be out of the ring for at least another month, his manager, Bunny Buntach, informs this department, via Uncle Sam's mail. Buck has had a lot of grief along rheumatic lines for a young feller....Johnny Deutsch is all het up over the return match of his Negro heavyweight, Harry Williams, with George Panka, of Homestead, in the bye-bye show at the Moose Temple next Friday night. They called the first bout a draw a few weeks ago, although Harry had a bit of an edge. After Friday's show, Promoter Francis Flynn moves to the Columbus Temple, which will be renamed the Coliseum....Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, is resting on his oars with his Bud Gorman-Ike McFowler heavyweight match all set for Thursday night of next week. The amateurs hold forth with their A. M. A. junior championship tournament in his ring next Wednesday and Thursday nights.

MICKEY SOLMEN BUSY

Mickey Solmen, New Castle, near-middleweight star, is not letting any grass grow under his tootsies while he is under suspension in this state for fouling Joey Feldman. He boxes for Ray Foutts at East Liverpool next Thursday night and goes to the post again at Alliance, O., January 14. On January 23, when his suspension in this state expires, he meets Al Trainor, of Philadelphia, at Johnstown, and then he'll be seen around here again. His manager, Eddie Weygant, also has under his wing Jimmy Kirkpatrick, a 135-pounder, whom he will introduce to the local fans . . . There is talk of Jack Sharkey, leading contender for the heavyweight title, boxing Phil Scott at Braves Field, in Boston, his home town, next July 4. Probably only talk, for Jack is the big mazuma man of the sport and he can get more in New York for an international match of this caliber . . . Al Friedman is working out in Philadelphia with Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion, for his 10-round bout with Ernie Schaaf in Boston next Friday night. Art Shires and Al Spohrer, big league baseball stars, box the semi-final.

The amateurs are busy. Besides the junior tournament at McKeesport this week, there is a Pittsburgh vs. Erie and Meadville show at the P. A. A., on Saturday night, and, on January 28, there will be a Pittsburgh vs. Cleveland program at the Keystone A. C., while, on January 15, the Homewood-Brushton Baseball Boosters' Association will stage a smoker show at the Penn armory with no less than 10 bouts listed.

Don't be surprised if Al Spohrer should "take" the Great Shires in their bout in Boston, Friday night. Al may be a bald-headed galoot, but he's been hanging around boxing gyms for a long time, training with Tommy Loughran and other notables for the fun of the thing, and knows his boxing onions. When it comes to ring experience he has Art badly faded.

Johnny Dunn, the New Kensington flash, who boxes Romeo Pacelli at the Garden Monday night, is no setup for anyone. He has boxed Jackie Rodgers, Milton Cohen, Steve Nugent, Dick O'Leary, Abe Goldstein, former bantamweight champion; Cecil Payne, Archie Bell, Phil Zwick and other tough ones and beaten most of them. He's gunning for another bout with Jackie Rodgers, one of his victims.

BOXING CHANGES COMING

"Shires for Hire" is the slogan of Nessie Bloomenthal, Art's manager.......And Art the Great's greeting to the fans would appear to be "Welcome, Suckers!".....If ever a young man got away with murder in the name of the good Marquis of Queensberry!...... There are times when horse sense should rule in place of the hidebound code of the mitt sport. For instance, on the same night, recently, Willie Davies and Bud Taylor were injured in falls from the ring. Neither could continue. In Toronto, they called Davies' bout "no contest," while in Chicago they stuck to the rules and charged up a technical knockout defeat against Taylor. The Toronto decision clicks with this writer under the accidental circumstances.

One of these days (mark the prediction), you'll see one of two things happen to effect saner decisions in boxing bouts. Either they'll cut out the judges and make the referee the sole judge of the winner or they'll confine the making of the verdict to the judges and ask the referee to merely take care of the handling of the boxers to insure fast, hard and clean fighting......And make all bouts be to win and lose decisions, with fence-straddling draws barred.

And they'll conduct schools for judges and referees at which they'll have exchanges of ideas and agreement on how to properly score winning points instead of trusting to the haphazard every-man-for-his-own-system plan now in vogue.

Primo Still An Italian, Papers Show

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)

WITH gestures and official-looking papers, the "board of managers" of Primo Carnera, newest heavyweight novelty, made it clear today the giant Italian is a full-fledged citizen of his native land, in good standing and without complications because of a residence of several years in France.

The New York Daily News, in a copyright story, had said Carnera's status was under investigation by consular authorities on the ground that he forswore Italian citizenship for French.

Carnera and his managers exhibited documentary evidence to show that, while the boxer actually had applied at one time for French citizenship papers, these were renounced last December 16. Two days later, the documents showed, he regained good standing as an Italian citizen and he sailed for the United States December 23 with an Italian passport visa.

BETHLEHEM WINS

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 4.—Bethlehem defeated Bridgeport, 1 to 0, in an Atlantic Coast League soccer game here today.

Bethany Tops State, 39-28

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Jan. 4.—A second-half scoring spurt gave Bethany College a 39-to-28 victory over Penn State's basketball team in the opening game of the season for the Lions.

The visitors led, 14 to 9, at half time and pulled away rapidly in the second half when their shots began to find the loop.

Dozens of their throws rimmed the basket in the opening half.

Rush led the attack for Bethany with seven field goals, six of them coming in the second half.

Mazess, with three field goals and two fouls, led the State scoring.

The visitors also displayed a tight defense, holding State to two field goals in the first half. The lineup:

Penn State—28.		Bethany—39.
Leyda	F	Baker
Fry	F	Rush
Hamilton	C	Telfair
Mose	G	Damshroder
Weber	G	Flading

QUIT TO SHIRES, DAN DALY SAYS

expected and that they would give me $150 and my expenses for my services instead of $100 as promised provided I 'took a dive.' It was decided that I should go into the ring and mix like we were mad at each other and then stick out my chin for Mr. Shires to hit it. They told me to fall on my face so that the referee could not see my eyes. I must have done right, for they patted me on the back after the fight and the next day paid me $150 and also bought me a lot of clothes.

EADY FOR RETURN BOUT

"You can tell the world, however, that Jim Gerry, or Dangerous Dan Daly, whichever they care to call me, can whip 'The Great' Arthur Shires any place except Chicago. I'll even fight him there if they promise not to take me for a ride if I whip him."

HEARING ON THURSDAY

DETROIT, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The Michigan Boxing Commission, after a hearing this afternoon, postponed until next Thursday definite action on a request by Art Shires, Chicago baseball player-pugilist for reinstatement following his recent suspension as the result of charges that an attempt had been made to "fix" a bout here with Battling Criss, of Rockwood, Mich.

Shires appeared personally before Chairman James Brown and Henry Komrofsky, Detroit member of the commission, to protest his innocence of any knowledge of the alleged attempt to persuade Criss to "lay down."

Chairman Brown said that at the meeting Thursday to be held in Lansing, he would have the president of the National Boxing Association, which also has suspended Shires, present to hear the evidence.

"If Shires is innocent we will clear him right," Brown said. He added that in that event he himself would go before Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, and explain that Shires was not involved in the alleged attempt to bribe another boxer.

ART EXPLAINS

Shires, speaking in his own defense before the commission, gave his version of the story. He denied that he had been involved in a plan to "fix" the bout or that he had ever been approached with such a proposal in all his professional athletic experience.

"My interest is in baseball," Shires said. "I came into this boxing racket to make some money. I have seven brothers and three sisters back home and my ambition is to be back home some time with a quarter of a million dollars.

"After I get everything straightened out I'll go through with the bouts I have scheduled and that will be all of boxing for me. I don't want to quit now because all the fans would think I was guilty. I am going to see this through to the finish."

STEEL FOUNDRY TO SHOW GAIN IN NET PROFIT

Earned $5.40 a Share in 1928 as Compared With $3.47 in Previous Year.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

The Pittsburgh Steel Foundry Corporation is expected to report earnings of $5.40 a share on its 60,000 shares of common stock for 1929. This compares with corrected earnings of $3.47 a share on 30,000 shares outstanding at the end of 1928 after crediting federal taxes refunded for previous years.

Each of the first 11 months of 1929 showed a gain in production and net profits over the corresponding month of the preceding year.

The company paid dividends of $1 each in January, July and October of last year and has declared another dividend of 50 cents, payable on January 15, 1930.

DEBT REDUCED

Equity of the common stock is being steadily increased by the retirement of funded debt and preferred stock. At present the outstanding amount of the first sinking fund 6s is $362,000 compared with $400,000 at the end of 1928 and with an original issue of $750,000 on April 1, 1925. The 5 per cent preferred stock has been reduced to $550,000 as compared with $680,000 at the end of 1928 and with an original issue of $750,000 in February, 1925. The company plans to make further reductions in these senior securities in the coming year.

Last July capacity was increased 30 per cent by the purchase of the plant of the Sharon Foundry Company at Sharon, Pa. This acquisition was financed by offering common stockholders rights to buy one additional share at $10 for each share held. The Sharon plant has been appraised at $600,000 after charging off depreciation. The replacement value is estimated at $900,000.

NEW PRODUCTS

The Sharon foundry has made it possible for the company to materially increase its sales volume. The original plant at Glassport, Pa., was designed for the production of heavier types of steel castings. The Sharon plant is particularly adaptable to the making of small castings.

The company is now able to bid on contracts for all types of castings, and it is no longer necessary for it to buy small sizes from other producers. The Sharon plant makes it possible to take advantage of lower freight rates and to give better service to customers in the Mahoning and Shenango valleys.

More castings are being sold to railroads since production facilities have been increased. The company is now actively pushing the sale of small railroad car castings. New machinery has been developed for the production of some of these parts. About $75,000 is being spent for new equipment of this type.

MAKES SPECIALTIES

The company owns a large number of valuable patents under which it produces a wide range of specialty products. Over 65 per cent of all of the charging boxes in use in the open hearth departments of steel mills are made by the Pittsburgh Steel Foundry Corporation. The company is also the leading maker of charging cars and ingot mold cars and other special equipment for steel mills.

The total capacity of the two steel foundry plants is 48,000 tons annually. Six open hearth furnaces and a machine shop are operated in connection with the two foundries. The machine shop at Glassport has been working at capacity for the greater part of the past five years. The company has about 800 employes.

The annual report will show a strong financial position. Net current assets at the end of the year amounted to about $1,000,000. Current assets were 10 times current liabilities.

I. C. C. Authorizes Rail Extensions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today authorized the Northern Pacific and Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation Company to construct a 60-mile branch line in Gray's Harbor and Jefferson counties, Wash.

At the same time the Port Angeles Western Railroad was authorized to construct an extension in Clallam and Jefferson counties, Wash.

Both of the lines will be located in the western part of the Olympic Peninsula in Northwestern Washington. The region they will traverse is heavily timbered, and the main object of both is to reach this timber.

Chrysler Dealers' Stocks 27% Lower

DETROIT, Jan. 4.—The Chrysler Corporation preliminary report on shipments for the year ending December 31 states they were almost equal to the total shipped in 1928.

December shipments in 1929 were 12,410 units, which was 10 per cent below the December, 1928, shipments.

The company is entering 1930 with field stocks of cars 27 per cent lower than when it started year of 1929.

Norfolk and Western Railway Completes Best Business Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Norfolk & Western Railroad Company has just completed the best year in its history. While figures for December are unavailable, earnings for 11 months to November 30 not only were highest for that period but were also in excess of any full year for company. Since December is expected to show a substantial balance of net income, earnings for year will be well above previous record of 1926, when $25.76 a share was reported on common. In 1928, $21.32 a share was earned.

Experience of Norfolk and Western in first 11 months of last year was almost unique among eastern railroads in that there was an uninterrupted monthly increase in gross revenues and net operating income. December, however, probably brought an end to the upward trend.

For first 11 months of 1929 the company reported net income of $38,166,739, equal, after preferred dividends, to $26.54 a share on common stock against $27,567,912, or $19 a share in the similar months of 1928.

Equipment Orders Gain in December

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The Railway Age reports that during December 9,785 freight cars were purchased against 5,126 in November and 4,608 in December, 1928. The Rock Island, Missouri Pacific and Reading were the leading buyers of the month, Rock Island alone taking 5,000 cars.

In the same period 167 locomotives were bought compared with 84 in November and 59 in December, 1928.

Passenger car orders in December totaled 77 against 57 in November and 11 in December, 1928.

December Rubber Consumption Off

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Members of the Rubber Exchange estimate consumption for December between 24,000 and 25,000 tons. This compares with 27,659 tons in November and 31,232 in December last year. Consumption for 1929 totaled 470,000 tons as against 441,337 tons in 1928.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Exports of crude rubber from Malaya during December were 48,513 tons against 46,279 tons in November and 66,763 tons in December, 1928.

East End Savings Adds to Surplus

The East End Savings and Trust Company has added $100,000 to its surplus account, bringing it up to $600,000, according to J. C. Miller, president of that organization.

The substantial growth of the East End bank is indicated by the fact that during the past four and one-half years $500,000 has been added to the surplus. It has $11,000,000 in deposits.

Federal Reserve Bank's Profits Up

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Gross earnings of the 12 federal reserve banks for 1929 amounted to $70,955,000 or about $6,900,000 more than for 1928, according to the Federal Reserve Board.

Current expenses amounted to $29,690,000 or about $2,875,000 more than for 1928. After reserve for depreciation, losses, etc., the federal reserve banks had net earnings of $36,423,000.

General Electric Forms New Unit

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The General Electric Company has organized the General Electric Realty Corporation as a holding and supervising company for its property, aside from factories. Management of the dozen or more warehouses in various parts of the country will be co-ordinated under the new corporation.

Business Failures Higher for Week

Commercial failures in the past week numbered 501, compared with 396 for five working days in the preceding week and 473 for five working days in the corresponding week in 1929, according to Dun's Review.

Weekly Clearings.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The weekly statement of the New York clearing house shows: Total surplus and undivided profits, $1,140,056,500, unchanged; total net demand deposits (average), $141,021,000, increase; time deposits (average), $46,218,000, increase; clearings week ended today, $8,106,279,044; clearing week ended December 28, $5,917,488,979; clearings this day, $1,537,228,661.

Money Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Bar silver reached another new low record level, the local market today being quoted at 45¾ cents, off 1 cent. The continued weakness of this metal recently is believed to reflect the liquidation of the holdings of a large speculative pool in China.

Rediscount Rate.

The rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Board of Cleveland on all classes of paper is 5 per cent.

LETTERS FROM INVESTORS

Conducted by LEO HILLMAN.

SELECTS STOCKS

A. M.—I am a working man, with one dependent. I own 10 shares Public Service of New Jersey 7 per cent preferred and have $3,000 in a savings bank. I want to buy more stock and have selected 40 shares Hackensack Water participating preferred and 15 Standard Gas and Electric preferred. Do you approve?

Ans.—Yes. Both stocks named will cost less than $2,100 and give you an annual income of $130. Hackensack Water, which supplies water to over 50 communities in Northeastern New Jersey, and Standard Gas and Electric, which controls the largest system of electric, gas and traction companies in the country, earn plenty for dividends. Keep Public Service of New Jersey 7 per cent preferred for income.

STOCK DECLINES

J. J.—I own 25 shares Montgomery Ward, bought at a higher level. Why has the stock declined? Shall I sell?

Ans.—Must you sell? Montgomery Ward is the second largest factor in the mail order business and earnings have increased steadily from 1922. Dividends were paid from 1915 to 1920, nothing until October, 1926, when $1 a share was distributed; $4 in 1927; $5 in 1928. The annual rate on the new stock since February last was $2.50 a share, but in November it was increased to $3 a share. The recent decline is attributed to circulation of rumors of impending financing. An official of the company, however, denied the reports and said the company was in strong financial condition, with about $30,000,000 cash.

THREE STOCKS

A. W.—I have $4,000 in a bank and want to invest $3,000 in stocks, which you may select.

Ans.—For a trifle under $3,000 you can get 10 shares each American Water Works and Electric first preferred, Postal Telegraph and Cable preferred and St. Louis-San Francisco preferred, with an annual income of $190. With $1,000 left in the savings bank you will have a good start for an additional surplus.

NEED FACTS

E. D.—Please give information on Shell Union Oil and your opinion of a purchase of the stock.

Ans.—Shell Union Oil, controlled by Royal Dutch and Shell Transport and Trading, is the third largest crude oil producer in the United States. There is a funded debt of $77,407,000; $40,000,000 convertible 5½ per cent preferred, par $100; 13,062,336 shares no par common. In 1928 net profits were $2.04 a share, $1.10 in 1927 and $3.05 in 1926. In the first nine months of this year, $1.39 a share contrasted with $1.54 for similar period last year. Regular dividends were paid on the preferred. Dividends ranging from 50 cents a share to $2 annually have been paid from 1922. The rate now is $1.40. To know what you should buy, however, we need facts about your circumstances.

SOMEWHAT SPECULATIVE

B. L.—What is your opinion of buying American Steel Foundries at current levels?

Ans.—Earnings for American Steel Foundries, a leading manufacturer of railway equipment, were on a downward trend since 1923. In 1928 earnings for the common were $3.02 a share, compared with $3.83 in 1927 and $4.49 in 1926. In the first nine months of this year, however, they were $3.54 a share, contrasted with $2.31 for similar period in 1928. Dividends in varying amounts have been paid from 1910, current $4 rate since 1920. The stock is somewhat speculative.

NO ADVICE

G. S.—Among securities I own 25 shares Collins & Aikman at 50. Shall I hold or sell?

Ans.—You must use your own judgment. The advice you seek entails guesswork. We do not future prices. Collins & Aikman common is a speculation. No dividend has been paid since March, 1928. In the nine months ended November 30, 1929, earnings were $1.94 a share, contrasted with $1.17 for same period in 1928. The company is a large manufacturer of textile fabrics and regular dividends are maintained on the preferred.

ABOUT 3 PER CENT

F. H.—Please give me your opinion of Shattuck.

Ans.—Earnings for Shattuck, from its chain of 35 restaurants in New York and Boston, fully warrant the $1 a share annual dividend. On January 20 stockholders of record December 30 will get 50 cents a share extra. The yield from the regular dividend is about 3 per cent. What amount of income do you need?

MUST DECIDE

P. T.—Shall I hold or sell 20 shares Radio-Keith-Orpheum "A" bought at 35?

Ans.—Were you to sell now you would take a loss. But we do not know, nor does anyone know, future prices. Radio-Keith-Orpheum class "A" is a speculation. It pays no dividends. The company operates a large chain of vaudeville and motion picture theaters throughout the country, but earnings have been irregular. In the first nine months of this year they were 53 cents a share. In 1928 a net loss of $45,700, contrasted with a net income of $1,728,500 in 1927. You must make your own decision.

EARNINGS GOOD

J. F.—Among securities I own are 25 shares Texas Gulf Sulphur at a higher level. Shall I hold or sell?

Ans. — Earnings for Texas Gulf Sulphur assure the income. In the nine months ended September 30 net profits were $4.52 a share, compared with $4.08 in like period of 1928. Full year's net for 1928 was $5.72 a share, contrasted with $4.76 in 1927 and $3.69 in 1926. The company is the world's largest producer of sulphur and has paid dividends from 1921. Of course, we do not know at what price the stock will sell.

ANOTHER DEFICIT

L. R.—I am a working man with a family to support. I own no securities. What is your opinion of a purchase of Consolidated Textile?

Ans.—Consolidated Textile is a sheer speculation. No dividend has been paid since January, 1921. The company, incorporated 1919, reported annual deficits from 1921 to 1926. Operations for 1927 showed a net profit of $152,994; in 1928, a deficit of $366,865. For the nine months ended September 30, 1929, the net loss was $544,850. A man in your position should avoid speculative commitments.

INCOME ASSURED

Miss Y. R.—I own 20 shares Consolidated Gas at 110. Do you think the stock will recover?

Ans.—We could not guess prices for you. However, Consolidated Gas assures the income. The company is the largest operating gas and electric light enterprise in the country and dividends have been paid for more than 40 years. In November the stock was put on a $4 a share annual basis, compared with the $3 rate paid from 1928.

INVEST $1,000

F. T.—I am a reader of your paper and want to invest $2,000 in a sound stock. Please advise.

Ans.—Is $2,000 all your available capital? If so, keep $1,000 in the bank for emergency. Buy 10 shares North American Edison preferred, costing $1,000; income $60. The company, an important subsidiary of the North American Company, has reported splendid earnings for many years.

DIVIDEND COVERED

G. F.—Among securities I own are 20 shares Allis-Chalmers bought at 75. Shall I keep the stock? What are the latest earning?

Ans.—In the first nine months of 1929 earnings for Allis-Chalmers new, recently split four-for-one, were $2.98 a share. The company is a large manufacturer of heavy machinery and electrical equipment. Dividends have been paid from 1920. An initial quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share paid on the new stock November 15 will be increased to 75 cents February 15, making the annual rate $3. Earnings in excess of dividend requirements assure the income. But what effect they will have on the paper loss you face no one can tell you.

Cottonseed Oil Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Cottonseed oil was moderately active and weak today, with further losses of 5 to 10 points forcing the entire list into new low levels for the season. Persistent liquidation through local and commission houses was the feature with refiners' interests doing little either way. The buying was light and scattered, coming mostly from shorts on a scale down. Sales, 4,500 barrels. Prime crude, 7.12½; prime summer yellow, spot, 8.40; January closed 8.40, March 8.70, May 8.92, July 9.12.

'AVERAGE YEAR' OUTLOOK SEEN FOR BUSINESS

Leaders in Industry Predict Steady Upturn as Year Advances, Says Cousins.

By W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Confident of steady upturn in business this year, American financial and industrial leaders will be perfectly satisfied if 1930 turns out to be a good "average" year, with strategic lines of American industry gradually recovering the ground lost in the last two and a half months of 1929.

The factors which are expected to cause an upturn in business and industry early in the new year are as follows: Low inventories, cheap and abundant credit, steady employment at good wages, improving foreign trade, fairly prosperous conditions in the agricultural district, and a more scientific adjustment of production to consumption.

Frankly admitting that in their enthusiasm to smash records they turned out more goods than their markets could absorb, the automobile, oil, copper and other industries have started the new year under a well-defined policy of retrenchment, and during the first quarter of this year will make no additions to unsold goods, either in the manufactured or raw state.

STOCK MARKET OUTLOOK

Though the outlook for the stock market on the threshold of 1930 is not as rosy as last year, the prospects are that more real, constructive progress will be made in the big security mart this year than last.

The most severe crash in stock market history has brought home some valuable and needful lessons to amateur dabblers in the world's greatest speculative game and if these are taken to heart it will not be necessary to repeat the sad experiences of 1929.

The stock market closed 1929 ex-bullish prospects but with prices of the best and most highly rated stocks on the big board deflated to a reasonable ratio with current and prospective earnings.

The new year opens ex-extravagant hopes and expectations, and with a substantial basis laid for prompt and effective recovery from the stock market crash and its attending business and industrial slump.

EMPLOYMENT MAINTAINED

Without the usual effects, and hardly without the knowledge of thousands of business and industrial heads, the country, since the middle of October, has been experiencing the severest business depression in 10 years.

The decline in steel mill operations, building and automobile production, the heavy falling off in railroad car loadings and railroad net income, all tell the story. But in spite of these conditions employment has been well maintained, and industrial heads have proceeded confidently with their plans for the new year, realizing that the slump is a temporary matter and that fundamental conditions are sound.

Declining revenues for the great railroad systems of the country are the natural effect of the falling off car loadings in the last two months of the year. Traffic in November and December shrunk at a surprising rate in what is generally regarded as the harvest period for the transportation systems.

The November net income of 50 representative roads declined 26 per cent in November, and the December reports will probably make a similar unfavorable showing. But, as in the case of the steel, automobile and other industries, this is all water over the dam, and the results of the year as a whole will stand comparison with any other post-war year.

STEEL OUTPUT INCREASED

Take the steel industry, for example. Despite the decline in mill operations since the first of November to 55 per cent of capacity, steel ingot output for the year as a whole, at 54,000,000 tons, exceeds the previous high total of 1928 by 8½ per cent.

Pig iron output, estimated by the Iron Age at 42,700,000 tons, exceeded the previous high total, reached in 1923, by 5.8 per cent.

The automobile industry overshot its mark this year by producing 5,700,000 cars, a few hundred thousands more than the markets could absorb.

This will cause a tardy revival of the over-winter activity in the motor car industry, but with the gradual absorption of surplus cars and the curtailing of production in strategic sections of the industry, there is little doubt that the giant plants of the automobile manufacturers will be profitably adjusted to the requirements of their markets.

The copper industry faces a problem of no small magnitude in its effort to hold prices of the red metal to the present standard of 18 cents a pound in the face of a huge decline in demand in the home and foreign markets. Here again the producers have curtailed their output to conform in part with the sudden falling off in demand, and the consummation of expansion program of business and utility heads will open the way for the use of millions of pounds of copper this year.

It is in expectation of this demand promptly developing that the heads of the copper trade are standing strongly by their guns and insisting on the maintenance of prices.

SEASON NEARS FOR BUSINESS DISCLOSURES

Companies Heretofore Withholding Data on Standing Mend Ways.

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

(Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—As the season for disclosure of annual reports of the success or failure of business corporations approaches, the investor is likely to have a new experience in sharing knowledge to which he has previously been denied access.

Never before after a major stock market break were stocks as widely scattered as at present. In the circumstances, there is discernible an effort on the part of management to use financial statements as an instrument for reassuring stockholders. Companies that heretofore were chronic sinners in withholding data to which stockholders were entitled have sought to mend their ways. Since the October 24 break, numerous companies have issued interim reports to show how solid their assets and how high their earnings were.

On the first business day of the new year, one of the large trading companies set a new high record in celerity by disclosing its position in respects to assets and earnings, as of December 31, 1929. Perhaps it was tempted to rush into print because the actual book value, or liquidation value of the stock, was substantially in excess of the market price.

In the case of the Fox Film Corporation, the committee for the Class A stockholders ascribes the recent willingness of the management to make unprecedentedly full disclosures concerning the affairs of the company to the pressure which it has given.

DISCLOSURES AT HAND

These are straws showing how the wind is blowing. Adversity will bring out the true facts concerning numerous large corporations, which hitherto have sedulously been hidden. We are entering a period of disclosure.

My own view is that the habit of hiding earnings and assets is almost as dangerous as the admittedly unsound practice of overstating assets and earnings. Continuance of the practice will only tend to exploit stockholders, and render them susceptible to gossip and tips, giving insiders a vast advantage over outsiders.

Unless the unregulated industrial corporations voluntarily improve their accounting standards and at least approach the levels used by the regulated railroad and public utility companies, they may expect a demand for laws which will compel them to use statistics more soundly. Here is an opportunity for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to seize the leadership, and render an important service to the corporations and to investors.

As matters now stand, the outsider can check up on the progress which railroad corporations are making much better than he can when following industrials. Industrial statements frequently hide earnings and assets in the case of the ultra conservative, and exaggerate them in the case of unsound companies. They are often late and are published far too infrequently.

BUSINESSMEN DIPLOMATS

President Hoover has set the fashion of elevating business men to the highest posts of diplomacy. That is another recognition of the supreme importance of business in the modern world. Charles G. Dawes, Chicago banker, is ambassador at London; Walter Edge, New Jersey banker and business man, is ambassador at Paris, and now Frederick M. Sackett has been sent to Berlin. Mr. Sackett, originally a lawyer, was active as a public utility operator and coal executive in Louisville, Ky.

In selecting Dwight W. Morrow, of J. P. Morgan & Co., as ambassador to Mexico, former President Coolidge set the tone for business appointments to the diplomatic corps. If the type of ambassadors is changing, it is significant that the type of men going into business is also changing. Business is now drawing the flower of the nation—men who in an earlier age would have been lured to the learned professions or the arts.

Harold J. Laski, American economist, now connected with the London School of Economics, urges that business adopt the standards of a profession.

"The second great avenue of social change," he points out in Harper's, "is the need to organize business as a profession. We must subordinate it to the public interest by giving to it an organized constitution with definite standards of performance in the same way that we insist upon a standard and a constitution in the law, in medicine, in engineering and in architecture. We must, that is to say, exclude from business the operation of certain habits we do not hesitate to exclude from the professions; and we must insist on the presence of others."

New President for Berwind Coal Co.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Charles E. Dunlap has been appointed president of Berwind-White Coal Mining Company to succeed E. J. Berwind, who will become chairman of the board.

H. A. Berwind and Thomas Fisher will retire as vice presidents and Charles G. Berwind will become vice president in charge of operations.

WHEAT CLOSES OFF DESPITE LATE RALLIES

Purchase by British of Russian Grain Tumbles Quotations at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Wheat prices went on the rocks today, and jolted downward nearly 3c a bushel. Purchasing of Russian wheat for Great Britain today, following a similar purchase yesterday for Italy, acted as a decidedly disturbing influence because of possibly foreshadowing unexpected competition to be encountered by the United States and Canada in supplying trans-Atlantic needs. Considerable disposition was shown in various quarters, however, to regard the Russian exports as merely a ruse by European importers toward obtaining cheap wheat from North America.

With rallies in progress at the last, the Chicago wheat market closed nervous, 1½c to 2c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼@⅜c to ½c down, oats ⅛c to ¼@⅜c off, and provisions showing 5c to 10c decline.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Stock prices made further recovery in today's Curb Market, but trading continued dull and changes generally were of little importance. A few soft spots were scattered throughout the list, but there was no evidence of any concerted "bear" selling. Recent dullness of the market has led several traders to advance or prolong their winter vacations.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

COTTON PRICES CLOSE LOWER

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Cotton was lower today under liquidation, together with some southern and local selling, which appeared to be promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and was accompanied by reports that it was somewhat easier to buy spot cotton in the South, although there had been no change in the basis. March contracts sold off to 17.10c, or 15 points net lower and within 7 points of the lowest price touched on the decline during the middle of December. March closed at 17.11c, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 11 to 14 points.

Liverpool cables said that there had been continental and Bombay selling in that market, absorbed by trade calling at the decline. They also noted an increased cloth inquiry from India and an improved demand for yarns.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 161,000 bales, against 164,000 last year.

Spot cotton, 17.15c. Range on futures reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

OKLAHOMA OIL MARKET WEAK

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 4.—The mid-continent crude oil market is described as sluggish, reflecting both heavy output of crude and greatly improved producing outlook of some of the flush areas, especially the Oklahoma City pool. Although output of the Oklahoma City pool is under proration, the bringing in of additional wells is gradually increasing its output. Two wells, each making 5,000 barrels daily, were completed in this pool Friday, bringing potential production to approximately 250,000 barrels daily.

Under the present proration agreement, output of the pool is restricted to 50 per cent of its daily potential capacity. No restrictions are placed on drilling which is being pushed as rapidly as possible. Indications are that a change in the present system of proration will have to be made if output of the pool is to be kept near market requirements.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—The bond market edged upward today in two hours of dull trading. All groups showed a slight advance in the very thin dealings, which totaled not much more than $4,000,000 principal amount, making the short session one of the lightest in a year. At the close the averages for 30 bonds, representing all the domestic groupings, stood at 98.7, compared with 99.9, the 1929 high, and 96.3, the low mark.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Shortcovering and New Demand Send Stocks Up

By BROADAN WALL

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Short covering and some new demand closed the stock market higher in a more active half session today. Week-end trade reviews displayed a more confident tone and the attention attracted to the automobile industry by the annual show here enhanced optimism somewhat. Motor shares featured as a group with Hudson gaining 2¾, Nash 2¼, and others finishing about a point higher on the average. Steel advanced fractionally, while Kennecott gained 1⅛, Columbia Graphophone 1⅞, Westinghouse 2½, Combustion 1⅛, Industrial Rayon 5, and Consolidated Gas 1 point. Rails and oils remained steady in rather quiet trading. Sterling moved fractionally higher in a generally firm foreign exchange market. Cotton slid off fractionally under further professional selling. Wheat and other grains remained aloft.

Professionals still pay most attention to the Fox situation and are governing commitments accordingly due to belief that while it hangs over, the market will find difficulty in moving ahead. Meeting of the trustees, bankers, etc., was adjourned late Friday until 2 o'clock Monday. It seems there are approximately $7,000,000 immediate obligation to be met. Banks are holding most of the Loew stock that was sold to Fox and, it is said, the margin at current price is none too wide. Any further decline would precipitate matters. There also is likelihood of suit on account of deals with English interests. All of the recently published statements, as to conditions, feelings of stockholders, etc., are regarded as "bunk." Those who are sitting in on the meetings are not talking for publication and will not do so until definite action is decided upon.

The usual "motor show optimism" is going the rounds, but so far has not met the stock market response hoped for. There are so many new models, etc., that the situation in regard to competition is not changed much. If the "buying mood" of the public had not been damaged by stock market developments the new offerings, price considerations, etc., might have influenced sufficient increase in sales to bring real activity in the stocks. Under current conditions, however, a real move in the motor stocks will have to wait on actual knowledge of how business will be in the spring and early summer.

While stock market folks in Wall street sit and idly regret the days that have passed—afraid to do anything—worrying as to when the sun will shine again; the most powerful bankers go right ahead working on plans for months ahead. American experts on the committee to draft the charter for the international bank sailed quietly from this port today. There was not excitement, although the mission—from the view of the international bankers—is the most important of the present generation. Without the international bank all the work of the last decade is wasted, and all the plans for international financing and control of the currencies of the leading nations of the world cannot succeed.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Raw sugar was a little easier today under increased offerings from store. The demand, however, was limited and the only sale reported was 14,000 bags of Cuban exstore at 3.80 to a local refiner, a decline of 1-32c from the last previous sale.

Trading in raw futures was of small proportions, but the undertone was steadier and prices held firm, closing with net gains of 1 to 3 points. The upturn was due to covering and trade buying, with offerings light.

Reports that the Cuban Export Corporation would announce no more details as to sales seemed to restrict operations, and there was a disposition on the part of operators to hold off and await developments. Approximate sales were only 9,500 tons. January closed 1.91; March, 1.97; May, 2.02; July, 2.07; September, 2.14; December, 2.21.

Refined was quiet and unchanged at 5.10 to 5.15 for fine granulated, with some second hands available at 5.07½.

REAL ESTATE and BUILDING

Building in Pennsylvania Shows Upward Trend

BIG GAIN HERE SEEN IN RECORD FOR NOVEMBER

Home Construction Reported Fair, but Chief Upturn Was in Larger Projects.

Building work in Pennsylvania cities and boroughs in November for the second consecutive month registered an increase over the corresponding month in 1928. Building for November, 1929, showed an increase of 26.5 per cent as compared with November, 1928, according to the records of building permits issued in 40 cities and boroughs, as reported to the Department of Labor and Industry. Permits were issued during November, 1929, in these 40 municipalities for work to cost $13,853,374, as compared with permits for work costing $10,951,777 issued during November, 1928, an increase for November, 1929, of $2,901,597, or 26.5 per cent.

Of the 40 cities and boroughs reporting for November, 24 showed increases in permits as compared with November, 1928, and 16 showed decreases. The largest gain reported was for Philadelphia, where the volume of building permits issued during November, 1929, amounted to $8,024,640, a gain of $1,823,420, or 29.4 per cent over the total for November, 1928. Pittsburgh reported the next largest total, amounting to $$2,755,452, a gain of $1,621,933, or 143.1 per cent as compared with November, 1928. Gains of more than $100,000 each were also reported by Bradford, Reading and Washington.

GAINS I: MAJORITY

While a majority of the cities and boroughs reporting for November showed gains in construction permits over November last year, large declines were noted for several cities and boroughs. The November, 1929, building total for Scranton dropped $607,320, or 77.5 per cent, below the total for November, 1928. Declines of more than $100,000 each were recorded in Bethlehem, Tyrone, Uniontown and York.

The gain in building work for November was entirely in buildings of the non-residential class. The building permit data for November, 1929, classified according to the class of buildings to be erected, shows that the total for new residential building work in November, 1929, was 63.6 per cent less than the residential building total for November, 1928. The amount to be expended for new non-residential building construction on the other hand showed an increase of 170.6 per cent. The classes of buildings showing the largest gains were amusement and recreation places, churches, factories and workshops, gasoline service stations, public and private institutions, office buildings, schools and stores and mercantile buildings. Permits issued for repair work on non-residential buildings showed a gain of 164.6 per cent, while permits for alterations or repairs on residential buildings showed an increase of only 5.6 per cent.

DECLINE FROM 1928

Records of building permits issued during the first 11 months of 1929 in comparison to records for the corresponding period in 1928 are available for 39 cities and boroughs. These show that the total volume of building construction work represented by the permits issued during the first 11 months of 1929 totaled $187,011,720 as compared with a total of $201,859,129 for the first 11 months of 1928, a decline of $14,847,409, or 7.4 per cent. Increased building for 11 months of 1929 is shown for 12 of the 39 cities and boroughs, and decreases for 27. With the volume of building in Pennsylvania for 11 months of 1929 only 7.4 per cent less than the total for the corresponding period in 1928, it appears that Pennsylvania has experienced a reasonably good building year in 1929. Residential building work, it is true, dropped sharply, but the volume of non-residential building construction increased considerably. It is expected that residential building work will show little new activity in 1930, but with huge sums available for industrial and public construction work, as indicated in the responses to President Hoover's inquiry, the volume of non-residential building construction in 1930 is likely to be the largest within recent years.

LICENSE RULING NOW IN EFFECT

Many real estate brokers and salesmen who have failed to apply for a license under the Real Estate Brokers' License Act which went into effect January 1, may find themselves in difficulties with the state government.

Robert W. Semenow, director of the license law, is authority for the statement that a close check-up will soon be made of all brokers in the state and prosecutions made of all those engaged in business without licenses. The act provides penalties of fines and imprisonments for failure to comply with its provisions.

Mr. Semenow also points out that an owner of real estate could refuse to pay a commission to a broker who is not licensed. The license is in addition to the one obtained from the Mercantile Appraiser. Mr. Semenow reports that between 600 and 800 licenses are being issued daily and that a staff of 30 persons is making every effort to have licenses issued within 48 hours after receipt of application.

The public generally is rapidly becoming acquainted with the benefits of the license law and a number of complaints have already been received by the department. J. R. Brady, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, reports that the board has distributed more than 1,000 application blanks.

Diagonal Sheathing Has Bracing Power

Diagonal sheathing has long been accredited with strong, bracing qualities, but not until recently has its full excellence been appreciated. Tests completed at the Forest Products Laboratory a short time ago showed conclusively that diagonal sheathing, with two nails at each stud, had four times as much resistance to longitudinal thrust as horizontal sheathing with two nails, and with three nails it had six times the resistance of the latter sheathing against distortion.

The entire second floor at 324-28 Diamond street has been leased for a long term to the Grand Pool Parlor and Barber Shop, which will occupy the premises after alterations. The deal was made through E. U. Snaman & Company.

Toronto Selected For Big Convention

The annual summer convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards will be held in Toronto, Canada, July 9 to 11, according to an announcement by the association's executive committee.

Watching Real Estate

By M. V. BURGESS

GROUND will soon be broken for the new Gulf Refining Company Building at the northwest corner of Seventh avenue and Grant street. This 37-story structure will be the tallest in Pittsburgh. Bids for the excavation and the massive foundations are now being received. The preliminary work will probably involve the sinking of concrete piles to a considerable depth. In the case of the Koppers Building across the street, the foundations are very deep, particularly on the William Penn way end of the lot.

NEW freight stations of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Eleventh and Etna streets will be placed in service within the next few weeks. This will mark the completion of the second step in the railroad's program of terminal expansion, the first being the modern produce yard at Sixteenth street. The placing of the new terminals in the Penn avenue district was not always a foregone conclusion. A number of years ago real estate along Forbes street in the neighborhood of Hooper street was purchased by agents of the railroad. The supposition was that a terminal was planned to connect with the tracks of the Panhandle division. Prices in the district went up rapidly. The project was abandoned.

ADVERTISING along the main motor highways is becoming increasingly valuable. Baum boulevard in the East End is a center for automobile distributors as well as one of the chief traffic gateways to Pittsburgh. Automotive firms have been active in building and remodeling along this thoroughfare recently. This may be noted in projects for the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, the Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania and the Alemite Lubricator Company. The Cyclone Fence Company recently leased in Baum boulevard largely because of the advertising value in the street.

PROSPECTS for home building in Pittsburgh during 1930 are considered promising. One large project in the Homewood district is being carried forward steadily. This is the development of Kapp brothers at the southeast corner of Penn and Dallas avenues. Two large homes on the property have been razed and grading started on a new street, to be known as Yorkshire road. The plan will be somewhat similar to the Rosewood street and Lingrove place developments.

PLANS for a canal to connect the Ohio River at Pittsburgh with the Potomac River at Cumberland, Md., are based on an idea which may be traced back to George Washington, first president. It was Washington who conceived the idea of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal to open up the great section west of the Alleghenies. He built a section of it in 1784 and it was later completed from the tidewater to Cumberland. Washington's dream, however, did not include driving a tunnel through the mighty ridges of the Alleghenies.

HISTORY also records that Washington was a most enthusiastic believer in the value of real estate. He had a passion for acquiring land. Although he steadfastly refused all grants from Congress for his military service, he bought large tracts with his own funds. At the time of his death he owned 62,000 acres, some of it in Western Pennsylvania. One large tract included the site of Fort Necessity near Uniontown, Pa., the scene of his first defeat by the French. Another was a 3,000-acre tract on Miller's Run, near Connellsville, Pa.

THE tax levy ordinance for the city was made a law last week. The 1930 levy is 26 mills on land and 13 on buildings, compared with 25 on land and 12½ on buildings for 1929. City taxes will be payable at a discount during January, at face during February and March and will become delinquent after April 1 when a 2 per cent penalty is added. Realtors contend that the city has been losing money through the lack of decisive policy for taking and marketing property where large tax delinquencies exist.

Appraisal Best Method Of Fixing Realty Values

An appraisal by reliable authorities is the best answer for the property owner who wants to know what his real estate is worth, says the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Well-selected real estate maintains a substantial value over a period of years, despite fluctuating business conditions, the association points out. An appraisal based on sound principles will bring this fact to light.

In order to make more widespread the best procedure for real estate appraising, the National Association of Real Estate Boards has instituted a series of conferences on appraising, bringing directly to individual members of boards of the association information available on the subject of real estate valuation. Such conferences, now available for any member board of the association, have already been held for boards throughout New York, Pennsylvania and Florida, and will be held for California boards immediately following the association's mid-winter meeting in Phoenix, Ariz., January 23 to 25.

The plan of the conference, held under the leadership of Dr. Arthur J. Mertzke, director of education and research for the national association, includes an explanation and discussion of the appraisal standards of practice, adopted by the national association at its latest annual convention and subsequently adopted by several of the association's member boards, a detailed discussion of the appraisal of the single family dwelling and the small city business property, followed by an open forum and exchange of opinion on any specific problems in appraising on which board members may wish to be advised.

Frederick M. Babcock, formerly instructor in appraising at the Chicago Central College of Commerce and at Northwestern University, accompanies Dr. Mertzke on the appraisal conferences. Mr. Babcock, who is the author of "The Appraising of Real Estate," has, for the past eight years, been actively associated with William H. Babcock and Sons, Chicago, real estate consultants, engaged in real estate appraising. He will discuss the appraisal of the small business property.

Week's Borrowings In Mortgage Report

There were 322 mortgages placed on record last week, amounting to $1,786,752.26, according to the report of C. C. C. Stotler, secretary of the Title Guaranty Company. Of these, 41 were purchase money mortgages amounting to $208,123.73, and 281 were straight mortgages amounting to $1,578,628.53. The straight mortgages included 119 for $908,424.53 to corporations, 99 for $382,170 to building and loan associations, and 63 for $288,034 to individuals.

Realtors to Induct Officers on Tuesday

An inaugural luncheon for the officers of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board will be held Tuesday noon at the William Penn Hotel. Reports of committees on the year's work will be submitted and J. W. Cree, Jr., president of the board, will outline the policy of the board for the year. Other officers who will be inducted are: Vice presidents, Roy R. Cappe, Charles W. Flynn and R. T. Mackintosh; secretary, Robert F. Morris, Jr.; treasurer, Fred J. Hettling; counsel, Robert W. Semenow, and executive secretary, J. R. Brady.

Residence Bought In Beverly Heights

An English type residence in Longuevue drive, Beverly Heights, Mt. Lebanon, has been sold through the Stevenson, Williams Company for George Renton, Jr., to Walter S. Wood. The house contains six rooms and a two-car garage and the lot has a frontage of 43 feet with a depth of 169 feet by 109 feet at the rear. The buyer has already taken possession of the home.

More New Members For Realty Board

EXPECT CENSUS TO SHOW LARGE REALTY GAINS

National Real Estate Group Explains Difficulties In Estimating Values.

Real estate interests are looking forward to the results of the census compilation of the nation's wealth in land and buildings, the first figure on property values available since 1922. The National Association of Real Estate Boards predicts that many billions of dollars will be added to the previous figure.

If the government survey shows the large realty appreciation expected, it will make a new case for the advisability of investment in land. It is not a small task to ascertain the money value of American real estate and the structures resting on it.

When the Department of Commerce made the 1922 report on the estimated national wealth, the public debt, and taxation, as authorized by the permanent census act, it wrote more than 6,000 letters in order to secure the value of tax exempt property alone.

MEASURING VALUES

Nor did the census officials of 1922 announce their figures on property values as final, approved, and hard and fast ones. In a foreword to the report in which these figures are contained, Dr. Willford I. King of the National Bureau of Economic Research who assisted in planning the methods of compilation admits that the reported values for real estate might be too low. The foreword itself is titled, "The Difficulties of Wealth Measurement" and was transmitted on June 20, 1924, by the Director of the Census, W. M. Steuart, to Herbert Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce.

The report set the national wealth at the close of 1922 at $320,803,862,000. Of this amount, $176,414,444,000 was reported as the value of real property and improvements, both taxed and tax exempt. Thus, real estate and the structures on it constituted mare than one-half of the total national wealth.

Chief among the difficulties confronting the census officials when they began this work was the impossibility of adopting new methods that might have given more accurate results, but which might have produced figures that would not have been comparable with previous censuses. It is apparent that there must be some continuity in the methods used in arriving at so many and such large figures, or the various censuses would not have the same meaning. Moreover, their chief value lies in comparing them with earlier figures in order to see if the country has lagged or gone ahead in the various activities reflected in such figures.

BASED ON ASSESSMENTS

The valuation placed on private real estate was based on the assessment rolls of cities and towns throughout the United States. Every effort was made to determine and utilize the correct multiplying factors in order to bring the assessors' figures up to the true values for December 31, 1922. The adjustment ratios, however, were based largely upon information furnished by local and state tax departments and tax officials are usually conservative and assessments are not made every year. In other words, the government had available, in many instances, only the vlaues reported to tax officials, that in many instances, are admittedly low. From such figures the government had to evolve a uniform method of ascertaining true values.

"It seems, therefore, that despite the corrective factors applied, the calculated figures often represent the market values current at dates preceding the census by a considerable interval," says Dr. King's report.

In most states, says the report itself, there were no records of the value of tax exempt properties which includes exempt churches, hospitals, educational institutions, etc., in addition to federal, state, county and municipal properties. The most exhaustive research was necessary to secure the figures contained on tax exempt property in the report.

Pyramids Rank As Man's First High Buildings

THE skyscraper, a unique American achievement, is not the first type of high building. The great Pyramid of Egypt, built 4,500 years ago was originally nearly 500 feet in height, with a base 760 by 760 feet, covering 13 acres. Its height equals that of a 45-story building. The interior of Beauvais Cathedral is nearly 160 feet high; it is 450 feet to the top of the dome of St. Peter's in Rome, a maximum for masonry construction being reached at about 500 feet in the towers of Cologne cathedral and in the Washington monument.

REALTOR TAKES PART IN SURVEY

Harry S. Kissell, Springfield, O., first vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, has been named a member of the business survey committee recently appointed by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the national business survey conference held in Washington recently by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at the request of President Hoover. The purpose of the conference was to consider co-operative action between various lines of business and government agencies.

The committee to which Mr. Kissell has been appointed is composed of 140 executives, who will provide information as to the status of American business. Members of the committee will be asked to report from time to time on the condition and outlook of the trades and industries they represent, with a view to disclosing the major trends in business, and whether there are weaknesses in the national economic structure.

These reports will be submitted to the executive committee of the national business survey conference and will form the basis for determining whether corrective measures are necessary and practicable. Through the committee the individual members of trade associations will be informed of whatever measures are adopted, the conference announced.

Double House Sold In Noblestown Road

A double house dwelling and two garages at 1934-36 Noblestown road, Twenty-eighth Ward, has been sold through the United States Realty Company for Wilma C. Kovack to John Keppel for $22,000. The lot is 40x120 feet.

CLARK BUILDING SPACE LEASED

Numerous leases have been signed for space in the Clark Building, Liberty avenue and Seventh street, according to an announcement by A. C. Vogeley, of Albert M. Greenfield & Co.

The Junior League of Pittsburgh, social and philanthropic organization, has taken a large space on the mezzanine floor. Other tenants taking new quarters or enlarging suites are the National Institute of Drafting, George L. Kinter and Associates, Inc., the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company and the Liberty explosives Company of New Jersey.

Mr. Vogeley also leased to Miss Peggy Eber space in the Enright Theater Building, Penn avenue, East Liberty, for a millinery store. He reports that work is going ahead rapidly in remodeling the four upper floors and a part of the first floor of the grand Arcade Building in Fifth avenue to afford additional space for Frank & Seder.

RESERVE BANK PURCHASES LOT

Plans for the new Federal Reserve Bank Building, to be located on the west side of Grant street adjoining the Gulf Refining Building, will be pushed ahead as rapidly as possible, according to Pittsburgh bank officials. Final plans will be submitted to the federal government for approval.

The site fronting 85 feet on Grant street, 85 feet on William Penn way and 194 feet deep, was deeded by the Manor Real Estate and Trust Company, holding company for the Pennsylvania Railroad, to the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland for a consideration of $828,300, or approximately $50 a square foot.

In order to give the Gulf Refining Company room for certain enlargements in their building the Reserve Bank deeded a strip 5x194 feet adjoining the Gulf property and extending from Grant street to William Penn way for $48,650. The Gulf Refining Company then leased to the Reserve Bank 5x40 feet on the Grant street frontage to provide a proper entrance to the new bank building.

"Now he's always hungry," . . . says PENNSYLVANIA mother!

"BOYD is absolutely the picture of health again," says Mrs. Wm. F. Clendening, 6543 Gesner St., Philadelphia. "A few weeks ago we had to force him to eat; now he's always hungry.

"I knew what to do when he became bilious, half-sick and listless, because we've always known about California Fig Syrup. Boyd's coated tongue and bad breath cleared up with the first few spoonfuls; and in just a few days his stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. He's gaining right along now."

California Fig Syrup has the full endorsement of the medical world. A pure vegetable product, loved by children. A gentle, but thorough cleanser of a youngster's system and a gentle energizer for sluggish bowels. A stimulator for lagging appetites and digestions; a help in building sturdy limbs and robust bodies.

The name California is important. No imitator can put that on his product.

Health Questions Answered

By The Late Dr. Lewis Baker's Associates

Telling How and When To Use Trustworthy Products and Reproducing Extracts of Patrons' Letters Relating to Cadomene, Balmwort, Sulpherb, Cardiol, Su-thol, Mentho-Laxene, Hypo-Nuclane, Vilane, Chex Soap, Etc.

The Late Dr. Lewis Baker

The "Cough" season is here. Hundreds of inquiries come at this season asking for relief from the distressing, weakening and dangerous coughs due to colds.

Inflammation and congestion of the membranes must first be relieved. For 20 years we have recommended Mentho-Laxene, a highly concentrated essence. It has six times the strength of ordinary cough medicine, a delicious flavor and may be used full strength, although usually diluted with home-made sugar syrup or strained honey. A two and one-half ounce bottle of Mentho-Laxene, thus diluted, makes a full pint of decidedly effective cough syrup, relished by children and adults. There is nothing in it to upset the stomach. The relief comes quickly while the cause is being eliminated. Most good druggists supply Essence Mentho-Laxene.

C. M. I. asks: "What can you recommend that is safe as a quick relief from pain—severe headache and neuralgia?"

Ans.: Relief may be had quickly by the use of 5-grain Su-thol tablets with no bad after-effects, such as some pain remedies promote.

B. A. E. asks: "I am not sick, but am too thin and want to know how I may improve appetite and gain weight—about twenty pounds."

Ans.: A good flesh-producing compound is Hypo-Nuclane tablets. Take with your meals. Drink milk daily and do deep breathing exercises morning and night.

O. M. writes: "I have been taking salts to purify my blood and cure my skin of itching and pimples, but don't get much benefit. Please prescribe for this."

Ans.: Advise 3-grain Sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets), composed of sulphur, cream of tartar and vegetable extracts, that remove constipation and purify the system. Take this treatment for several months for best results.

S. A. H. asks: "Advise a medicine to aid in correcting a most distressing kidney and bladder trouble which makes me get up at all hours of the night, and causes headache and backache a few hours after being on my feet."

Ans.: A tonic-diuretic medicine, Balmwort tablets, should give you aid and relief as it has to so many correspondents.

R. S. K. asks: "Have taken Balmwort tablets for bladder trouble with very fine results. Now please advise a medicine for painful rheumatism. It affects my legs and feet."

Ans.: Suggest Cardiol tablets be used to aid elimination and counteract the acids and poisons which are doubtless the cause of much lumbago, rheumatism and gouty trouble. For quick relief of your pain take 5-grain Su-thol tablets.

A. R. writes: "We are a family of six. All of us are greatly troubled with constipation. Most everything used loses its effectiveness, and requires increasing dose."

Ans.: You will find by trial that Casca-Royal Pills is exactly the kind of medicine your family can use.

Answer to Miss B. C.: Perspiration odors, armpit odors, foot odors, are readily banished and prevented by the regular use of medicated Chex soap for toilet and bath. It has elusive fragrance, but no medical odor, is beautifying to the skin because of its high quality and unusual medication.

T. L. S. writes: "Indigestion, followed by pressure of gas, belching and bilious attacks, is the bane of my life. Can you help me?"

Ans.: If bowels are sluggish, take Casca-Royal Pills. Also to correctly aid the functions of stomach, take Triopeptine tablets for several weeks.

A. I. G. writes: "I have a chronic catarrh of the nose and throat which often gives me severe headache just above and between the eyes. Ordinary catarrh treatments don't help me."

Ans.: Use Vilane powder as per directions with package, with warm water to cleanse the nostrils; on forehead and in nostrils apply triple strength Mentho-Laxene Salve. This good salve is useful in scores of complaints and pleases all who try it.

W. O. O. writes: "I am 35, occupation accountant. Have been unable to work because of an anemic condition, loss of weight and strength. Am pale, and hands and feet are always cold. Appetite poor and do not sleep well, as I am very nervous."

Ans.: Your condition is often described as a "weak, rundown state of the system." Advise Cadomene tablets be taken over a period of several months, as a tonic for blood and nerves.

NOTE: The late Dr. Lewis Baker, as Medical Director for The Blackburn Products Company for more than 20 years, has been succeeded by a competent physician with many years' experience to his credit.

As heretofore, letters and requests for Dr. Baker's great guide book, "Health and Beauty," should be addressed to Medical Dept., The Blackburn Products Company, 312 College Bldg., Dayton, Ohio. Prompt, courteous attention will be given. The booklet is sent to any address upon receipt of 10 cents.

This booklet of 128 pages is in the homes of hundreds of thousands, where it is most highly prized. Vast numbers have been benefited by the advice and suggestions contained therein, for the treatment of minor ailments and infirmities.

The confidence and esteem which Dr. Baker's valuable book has earned with thousands is evidenced by letters of gratitude received in every mail, unsolicited, and similar to the following:

THANKFUL LETTERS

CHICAGO, ILLS.—A noted Chicago physician writes: "I report the perfect success of treatment with your soap, Chex, in the case of a patient who has long suffered from offensive odors of perspiration. Am grateful professionally to become acquainted with so charming and effective remedy as 'Chex.'"

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA.—S. F. McHinch, 56 Campbell Ave., writes: "April, 1925, I suffered a complete breakdown, due to low blood pressure, and an impoverished condition of the blood (anemia). I read your health article in the Indianapolis Star, telling of the wonderful 'Cadomene Tablets,' so I decided to give it a trial. I noticed a gradual improvement in my condition and in a short time I was able to resume my work, but still continued the use of Cadomene Tablets as I realized it takes a long time to rebuild a completely rundown system."

AKRON, OHIO.—T. L. Gummo, 1249 Fifth Ave., writes: "I was troubled with weak acting kidneys for 5 years which seemed to cause spells of lumbago 3 or 4 times a year, and could hardly stand the pain. I tried everything I heard of. Then I read about Balmwort tablets. I took them and in the first four days I got relief, so I kept on using them and now I am free of all my ailments. Thanking you, etc."

DUNBAR, W. VA.—Theresa E. Royer writes: "I have used Mentho-Laxene Cough Syrup for a period of twelve years—always with satisfactory results. I know its virtue. Recently my father had a terrible cough. He had not been able to rest in bed for two nights, on account of choking. The drug store here did not have it. I took a street car to Charleston, W. Va., bought a bottle and made a syrup. He took two doses, went to bed and in a few minutes he was sound asleep, and from that time he has been steadily improving, etc."

TORRINGTON, CONN.—Mrs. John Lundon, 656 Main St., writes: "I am very glad to tell you what your wonderful treatment has done for me. I have taken four boxes of Hypo-Nuclane Tablets in four weeks and have gained 11 pounds. Words fail to express my delight and appreciation, etc."

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass.—Mrs. Mary M. Newell, 129 Fisher St., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of your Sulpherb Tablets. I was troubled with boils on different parts of my body about five years ago. As soon as one healed, I got another. After taking two boxes of Sulpherb Tablets I was completely free. About two weeks ago I got another big boil. I said to my husband: 'Get those Sulpherb Tablets.' I got them and am now well, and not another boil has appeared, etc."

TOLEDO, OHIO.—Mrs. J. Heiselbetz, Seal Street, R. R. No. 10, writes: "I wish to tell you I have used Mentho-Laxene Salve for catarrh of the nose and have found it most effective. The Casca-Royal Pills, as a laxative, are just grand. No griping, no nausea or pains, just a mild, pleasant action. I have recommended these medicines to lots of my friends, etc."

TRAVEL and RESORT INFORMATION

KELLY HEADS TRAVEL BODY AT DUQUESNE

President Hehir Named To Advisory Board; European Tours Planned.

George Kelly

George Kelly, a student of the college of arts of Duquesne University, has been named campus representative of the Catholic Students' Travel League, the second of two local appointments made by the league in recent weeks. Very Rev. M. A. Hehir, C. S. Sp., president of Duquesne University, accepted a post on the advisory board of the league during the last month.

The Catholic Students' Travel League was conceived by a group of educators at leading Catholic institutions whose desire it is to facilitate the task of Catholic travelers from all parts of the United States and Canada in their journeys to and from Europe. The primary purpose of the league is to provide spiritual guidance for Catholic students going to Europe.

SERVICE TO STUDENTS

As the local representative of the league, Mr. Kelly will offer its services to all students, their families and friends, the faculty, alumni and professional people planning trips to Europe. He will likewise lend the services of the league to students of other colleges in Pittsburgh and surrounding territory while stationed on the Duquesne University campus.

Featured offerings of the new organization are 40 tours of Europe for 1930, the gigantic spectacle of the Passion Play at Oberammergau being included in five of the leading tours. The Passion Play will be given every Sunday next May and June and twice weekly the following three months. Presented for a period of five months every tenth year, the great religious spectacle will hold absorbing interest for American tourists.

The new travel league has the indorsement and support of hundreds of church dignitaries and educators at the leading colleges and schools of the United States and Canada. His eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, is one of the indorsers and the executive council is headed by Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, president of Georgetown University. Headquarters of the League have been established at 551 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Sought in Gang Quiz, Artichoke King Gone

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Ciro Terranova, "artichoke king," whom reporters found the day after police charged that he had instigated the murder of Frankie Uale and Frank Marlow, now is missing, Police Commissioner Grover Whalen announced today.

When the charges were made by a police inspector at a departmental trial of Detective Arthur Johnson that Terranova had instigated the holdup of a dinner for Magistrate Albert Vitale in order to secure from a guest there, a Chicago gangster, an alleged murder contract, reporters secured a denial of the charges from Terranova, at his home at Pelham Manor. Police withheld action at that time.

ALONG MIAMI'S WATERFRONT

BEACH— A section of the famous Miami Beach where many Pittsburghers will spend part of the winter while escaping the rigors of a northern climate.

CHARITY AIDED IN VEECH WILL

By her will filed in the register of wills office yesterday, Miss Rebecca L. Veech, a resident of the Hotel Kenmawr, Shady avenue, left about half of a $75,000 estate to charity.

Outside of the charitable bequests in which various bodies, principally identified with the Presbyterian church, are beneficiaries, distant relatives and friends are remembered.

She gave her brother-in-law, the Rev. John S. Plumer, of Emsworth, $2,000 outright, and directed that $5,000 be placed in trust for him. At his death, $2,000 is to go to James A. Veech, of Connellsville, and Isabel Oxtoby, of Saginaw, Mich., who also receives a bequest of $10,000.

MISSIONS GET FUND

Other beneficiaries include Elizabeth Haines Sheppard, of Tuckoe, N. J., $1,000; Marie Tauner, Saginaw, $5,000; Ida Speer Coan, wife of the Rev. F. G. Coan, Minneapolis, $2,000, while numerous others receive smaller bequests.

Her charitable bequests follow: Board of Freedman's Missions Presbyterian Church and Board of National Missions Presbyterian Church, $5,000 each; Presbyterian Board of Missions and Christian Home for Women, North Side, $2,000 each. Presbytery of Pittsburgh, $3,000; Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., $500 each.

MEMORIAL AIDS HOME

All the remainder of her estate is given to the Presbytery of Pittsburgh to create a memorial fund in Miss Veech's name, to aid in the establishment of a home for Presbyterian women. She names the Peoples Savings and Trust Company executor and trustee.

Miss Veech tabulated on a piece of paper aside from the will a list of personal belongings which she desired to be given to friends of her lifetime.

Valencia Ambititous To Strengthen Port

VALENCIA, Spain, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Important commercial interests of this city sent a memorial to the Spanish government today requesting that the port of Valencia be included in a new plan of marine communications which is being worked off out of Madrid. They desire Valencia to play a part in the American routes, especially in those connecting Spain with the River Plate region and Montevideo.

WOMAN'S NOTE BARES KILLING

GUNTHERSVILLE, Ala., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A note secretly handed to a barber by Mrs. Dovie Hicks, 22, naming her companion as a slayer, brought an inquiry here today into the death of Gilbert Ayers, a boarder in the Hicks home.

Mrs. Hicks and her companion, H. G. Culbreath, also a boarder, were arrested yesterday in a barber shop in Fort Payne, Ala., on information supplied by the woman.

While Culbreath's face was covered with a hot towel, Mrs. Hicks handed a barber a note saying that Culbreath had "killed a man" and was detaining the woman against her wishes. He notified the police.

The woman told officers she was awakened Thursday night to find Culbreath beating Ayres over the head with a hammer.

"I started to scream for help," she said, "but Gulbreath pointed a pistol at me and threatened to kill me. He then made me help wrap the body in several sheets and blankets and put it in the back of the car. Then he made my small daughter and me set in the car and we started a ride that carried us over six Alabama counties before he took the body out of the car."

The body of the man was found late yesterday near Guntersville. Mrs. Hicks said the body was that of Ayers.

OIL MAN TELLS KIDNAPING PLOT

DENVER, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Jesse F. Jacobs, Denver oil man, today told his story of being kidnaped by New York gunmen, following the arrest of Anderson T. Herd, promoter, in Jacobs' New York hotel room, December 24. The oil man said he did not know why he was spirited out of New York. He said he went East to sign a contract with Herd, who had agreed to raise money to drill for oil in New Mexico. He said he knew nothing about Herd's alleged deal with Rob Roy Converse, architect, who sought Herd's arrest.

Jacobs said he marched from his room in the Commodore Hotel at 10 p. m. Christmas eve at the point of a gun. He said he was forced into a waiting automobile, where a chemical which blinded and choked him was dashed in his face.

"They stopped the cab, took me to the Pennsylvania Station and got two tickets to Pittsburgh. One man went with me and rode to Pittsburgh."

Jacobs said at Pittsburgh another man with two tickets boarded the train and rode with him to Indianapolis. There he was told to stay on the train until he reached Denver. He said other men boarded the train at St. Louis and Kansas City and reiterated the command.

Deputy Slain in Gun Duel; Man Wounded

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Deputy sheriff Earl A. Van Dusen, Madison was killed in a gun battle at a hotel at Mazomanie, near here, early today by James E. Jones, 48, where officers were called after Jones made threats against his divorced wife. Jones was wounded critically. A deputy told Jones he was under arrest and ordered him to hold up his hands. Jones answered with bullets. Several shots were exchanged. Van Dusen was wounded in the side.

$15,000 Chicago Fund Sent Eckener

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A fund of $15,000 raised by German-Americans of Chicago has been completed and will be forwarded to Dr. Hugo Eckener, builder and commander of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin on its round-the-world flight, it was announced today by sponsors of the movement.

C. L. WILLIAMS RETIRES FROM CANADIAN ROAD

W. A. Shackelford to Succeed Him as General Agent In Pittsburgh District.

W.A.Shackelford

The appointment of W. A. Shackelford to the position of general agent, rail and steamship lines, for the Pittsburgh district, has been announced by officials of the Canadian Pacific Railroad Company. Shackelford succeeds Clarence L. Williams who retires after 43 years' service, 19 of which have been spent in the Pittsburgh office.

Shackelford entered the service of the Canadian Pacific company at Boston, Mass., in 1913. Here he served as junior clerk, ticket seller, city ticket agent, traveling passenger agent and district passenger representative for railway and steamship lines.

TRAINED IN CRUISE WORK

Shackelford has had considerable experience in trans-continental railway service and has been trained in trans-Atlantic, trans-Pacific and cruise work. He has made two cruises around the world on the company's steamer Empress of Scotland and two cruises to South America and South Africa and has been to the Mediterranean on four cruises.

C. L. Williams

In 1927 the Canadian Pacific Company gave him an educational trip to Europe, where he visited the chief points of tourist interest. In 1927 he enlisted in Battery A of the One Hundred and First Field Artillery and served 20 months in France with the A. E. F.

Mr. Williams, who is retiring, has since 1911 been general agent of the passenger department of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Pittsburgh. He came here from Chicago, where he had served the Canadian Pacific Company since 1886. Mr. Williams was born in Suffolk, England, and in 1881 located in Quebec, where he studied agriculture for a few years. He returned to England in 1884 and in 1886, while en route from England to Australia, stopped over in Chicago to visit J. Francis Lee, who had just been appointed general agent in Chicago for the Canadian Pacific Railway. He offered the post of city passenger agent there to Mr. Williams. That was the start of his service with the C. P. R. Since locating in Pittsburgh he has become widely known and is recognized as the dean of railway passenger men in the Steel City. He resides in Crafton, where he gives much time to his hobby—that of gardening.

C., B. & Q. Ry. Adds Seven Deluxe Trains

A fleet of seven deluxe trains has been installed in service by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad, according to information received from A. Cotworth, Jr., Burlington Passenger Traffic Manager in Chicago. More than 50,000 visitors attended the exhibition of the trains, he also stated.

Capt. Charles Saunders, operating manager of the Watson Navigation Company, retired from active service December 31. He has been a director of the Matson line since 1923, and has seen 36 years of active service on the sea. He began his career in 1893 with the old Planterr's line. He became operating manager of the Matson line in 1918.

CANADA PLANS FETE DE NUIT

QUEBEC, P. Q., Jan. 4.—A. O. Seymour, general tourist agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has announced that Quebec's annual Fete de Nuit, a veritable battle of the snows, to be staged January 20, will be bigger and better than ever, and that 35 per cent more money has been obtained for carrying out the project. The fete consists of a snow battle between the local garrison stationed at the venerable Citadel on the heights of Quebec and the guests of the Chateau Frontenac and residents of other hotels and of the city itself, who endeavor to "take" the ancient fortress from its defenders.

The attacking forces assemble on the slope of Citadel Hill, a bugle sounds the charge and the battle is on. Colored flares add a picturesque touch against the snowy background. After the "battle" there is a torchlight parade through the city, when both the "victors" and the "vanquished" join forces and make merry. This torchlight parade through the narrow, crooked streets of Old Quebec is one of the most colorful winter spectacles in North America.

Calmar Line Adds Five New Steamers

The five steamers purchased by the Calmar Steamship Corporation from the Planet Line have been renamed and will be placed in service sometime this month, according to H. E. McMunn, distract freight agent. Effective with the sailing of the S. S. Calmar from Baltimore January 7 and from Philadelphia January 15, the Calmar Line will have a sailing every nine days.

Appointment Made by Southern Pacific Co.

The appointment of Carroll R. Harding, engineer of standards for the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, to the position of assistant to the president, has been announced by Paul Shoup, president of the company.

STEAMER PARIS RECONDITIONED

Entirely reconditioned, with her engines improved to allow greater speed, the steamer Paris, of the French line, is in readiness to make her first trip in several months, from Havre to New York, on January 15, sailing again from New York on January 24 at 5 p. m.

The Paris will then be operated in the express service between New York-Plymouth-Havre, with her sister ships the Ile de France, flagship of the fleet, and the palatial liner France.

The France will be operated in four cruises to the Mediterranean, sailing from New York January 11, February 12, March 15 and April 25. The shore excursions on the first two cruises will be under the direction of En Route Service, Inc., while Thos. Cook & Son will operate the shore trips on the final two cruises. According to David Galwey, manager of the Pittsburgh offices of the French line, all of the cruises will be well patronized.

The new cabin liner Lafayette, of the French line, will make her maiden voyage from New York to Havre via Plymouth on May 31 next.

The steamers De Grasse and Rochambeau will, with the Lafayette, form a trio of cabin vessels sailing regularly from New York. In the New York to Vigo service the Roussillon and the La Bourdonnais are the steamers (cabin class) now being operated.

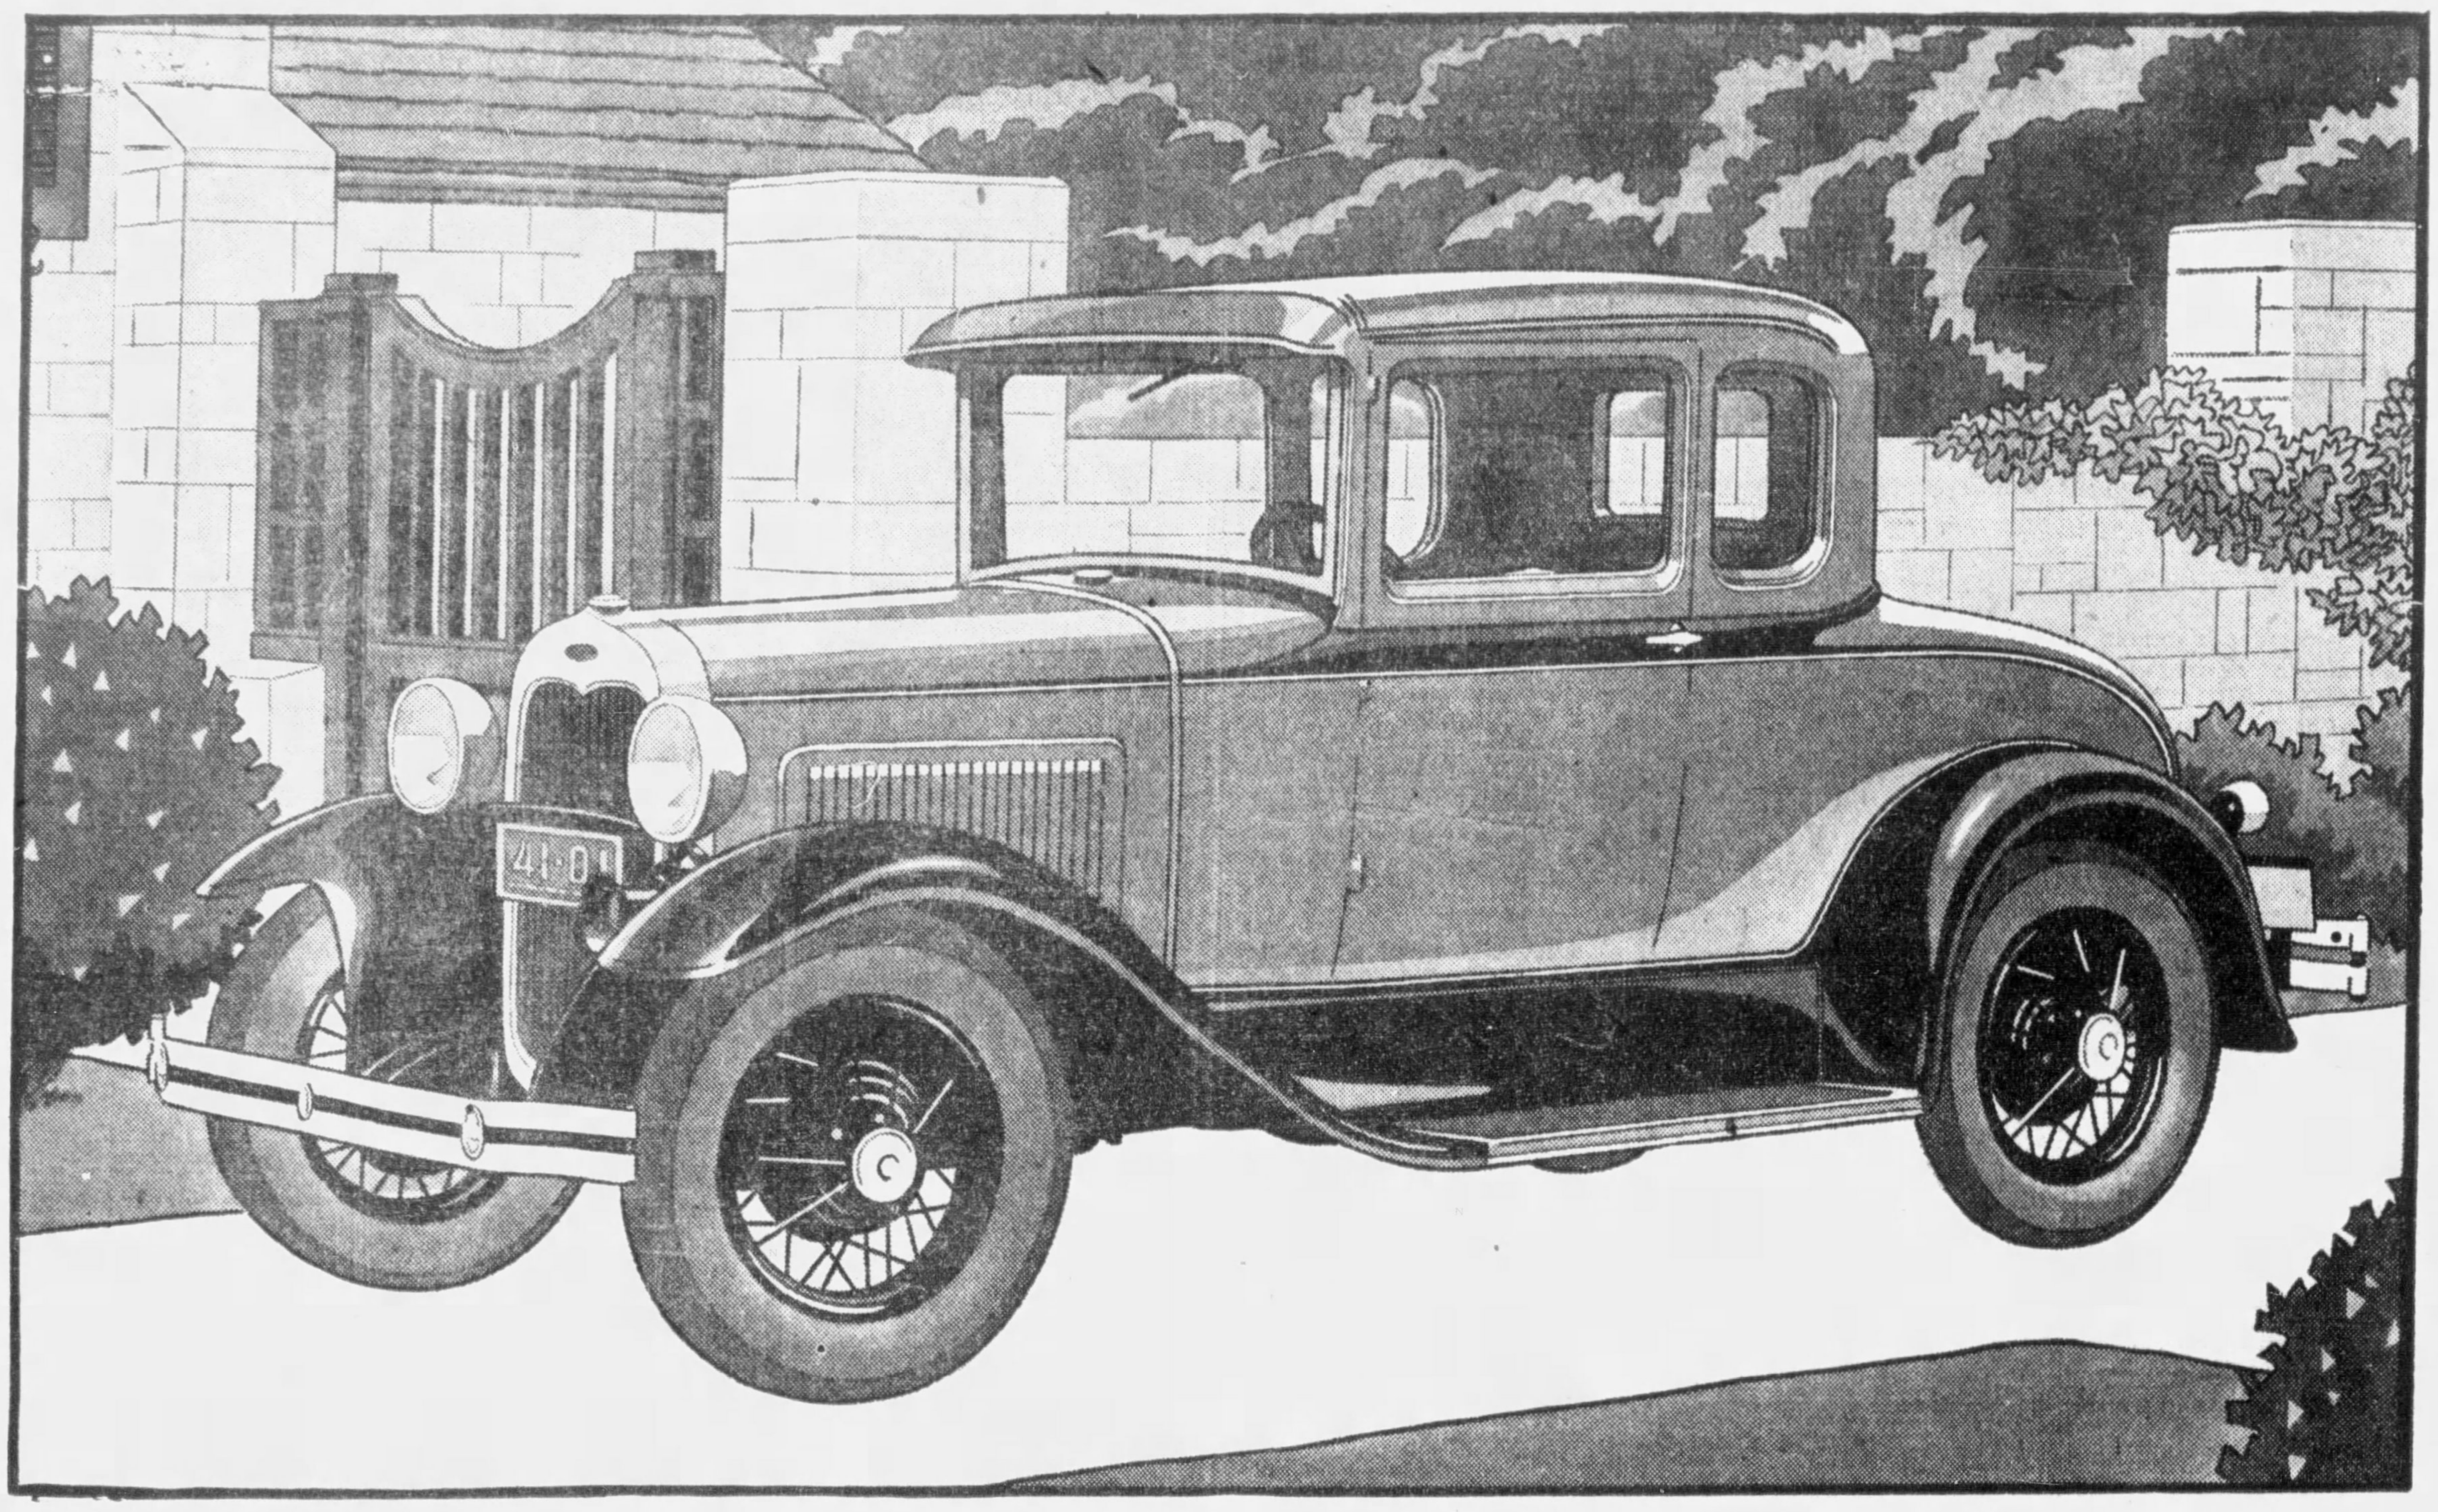
New Beauty

FOR THE NEW FORD



THE NEW FORD COUPE

Flowing grace of line gives style and distinction to new, roomy Ford bodies. Now on display at dealers' showrooms

THE NEW FORD CARS, shown last Tuesday for the first time, have been enthusiastically received throughout the country. Everywhere it is realized that now, more than ever, the new Ford is a "value far above the price."

One of the distinguishing features of the new Ford bodies is the carefully planned harmony of every detail of design. From the new deep radiator to the tip of the curving rear fender there is an unbroken sweep of line—a flowing grace of contour heretofore thought possible only in an expensive automobile.

LOOKING at the new Ford you are impressed instantly by its smart style and compact, substantial sturdiness. For there is about it a certain character or personality which sets it apart and gives it a fresh and lasting beauty. You will take a real pride in this beauty just as you find a real thrill in the alert, capable performance of the car.

All of the new Ford bodies are finished in a variety of colors, with new striping and new streamline moulding. Interiors have more leg room. Closed cars have adjustable front seats. The smaller wheels, with larger tires, bring the car closer to the road, with a consequent gain in riding comfort and safety.

An additional feature of importance is the Rustless Steel used for the radiator shell, head lamps, hub caps, cowl finish strip and tail lamp.

NOTE THESE LOW PRICES

Roadster	$435
Phaeton	$440	Tudor Sedan	$500
Coupe	$500	Sport Coupe	$530
Two-window Fordor Sedan	$600
Three-window Fordor Sedan	$625
Cabriolet	$645	Town Sedan	$670

(F. O. B. Detroit, plus freight and delivery. Bumpers and spare tire extra.)

Universal Credit Company Plan of time payments offers you another Ford economy.

This Rustless Steel will retain its bright, gleaming luster throughout the life of the car. It will not corrode, rust or tarnish in any kind of weather. Its brilliance is permanent. There is no plate to wear off, crack or scale, for it is the same bright metal all the way through.

The use of this Rustless Steel on the new Ford is a reflection of the enduring quality that has been built into every part of the car.

AT today's low prices the new Ford is unquestionably an outstanding value. Check it over feature by feature and you will see that it brings you everything you want or need in a modern automobile:—beauty of line and color . . . safety . . . comfort . . . speed . . . power . . . quick acceleration . . . ease of control . . . economy of operation . . . low up-keep cost . . . typical Ford reliability and long life.

One of the Many Unsolicited Letters
Received from Grateful Patrons

F. Duncan Macdonald, April 11, 1929
Inventor and Manufacturer, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Dear Sir:

This is to certify to the merits of your wonderful health belt which I [illegible] (Therm-El) and operate from the [illegible]. I am a passenger engineer with the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie [illegible], a system which has earned a world wide reputation for the great care and safety with which [illegible] passenger. With such a reputation it is only natural that [illegible] make frequent and exacting physical examination of their [illegible] men.

A few months past I suffered a suspension. A friend, a Mr. Lem[illegible] me of your wonderful Belt which I secured at once. It seemed but days till I was back on my old run feeling alert, confident and years younger, but continue to wear your belt every evening as it produces a relaxation after my day's run which adds to the pleasure of [illegible].

I am sending this letter trusting you will find some way to show it to every engine man on the system.

You are to be congratulated upon your ability to invent such a wonderful yet simple device for the relief of men who must daily defy the elements with a clear mind and body absolutely free from pain.

The annual meeting of the contributors of the St. John's General Hospital will be held at the Hospital Wednesday, January 15, 1930, at 4 p. m. for the election of officers for the coming year.

Meeting Notices

THE Eighteenth Zone Veterans Association will meet in the North Side Carnegie Library on Monday evening, January 6. All World War veterans who were inducted into the service when residing in the Twenty-second and Twenty-fifth Wards are eligible to membership. The meeting will start at 8 p. m.

Proposals 108

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the office of Aires, Stone & Pettay, Engineers and Surveyors, 335 Boulevard of the Allies, Pittsburgh, Pa., at 10 a. m., Eastern standard time, on Monday, January 13, 1930, at which time proposals will be opened and read, for the rough grading of Rosemoor st. and the two adjacent tiers of lots for about 207 feet of its length, the sewering of about 250 feet of its length and the fine grading, curbing and paving of all of Rosemoor st., about 760 lineal feet, Fourteenth Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa.; also for the building of one manhole in the southerly adjacent portion of Shady ave. Plans and specifications can be secured at the office of the engineers upon the payment of $1.00 by an approved contractor. A bid bond in the amount of $1,500.00 must accompany each proposal to guarantee signing of a uniform contract by contractor awarded the work. Surety company bonds to one-half the amount of the contract will be required. The right is resereved to reject any or all bids submitted, or to accept any proposal. All work to be in accordance with city specifications. All bids received January 3 rejected. Note slight change in plans.

We All Can't be Satisfied
It Isn't Human Nature

This reminds us of the fact that lots of folks are not satisfied with their present living quarters. Some want to move into new houses, some want to move into a different apartment and still others want to eat somebody else's cooking for awhile. While these folks are thinking about moving, others are thinking of buying or selling something, trading this or that and lots of other wants too numerous to mention.

How can you reach these people? There is only one answer. Through the classified columns of The Sun-Telegraph, which takes your message into more homes than any other daily paper published in Pittsburgh.

Call Grant 5400 and ask for an ad-taker. These young ladies, trained in the art of writing result-producing copy, will assist you in the preparation of your ad.

Automobiles For Sale 94

Studebaker Pledge

Pledge to the Public on Used Car Sales

1 Every used car is conspicuously marked with its lowest price in plain figures and that price, just as the price of our new cars, is rigidly maintained.

2 All Studebaker automobiles which are sold as CERTIFIED CARS have been properly reconditioned and carry a 30-day guarantee for replacement of defective parts and free service on adjustments.

3 Every purchaser of a used car may drive it for 5 days and then if not satisfied for any reason, turn it back and apply the money paid as a credit on the purchase of any other car in stock—new or used. (It is assumed that the car has not been damaged in the meantime.)

CURTIS STAGES INNOVATION IN ENTERTAINING

Diplomats, Congressmen and Cabinet Members Attend; Sister Receives Guests.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Vice President Curtis entertained cabinet members, congressmen and diplomats tonight with a restful social innovation.

In a specialty fitted and darkened corridor of the Mayflower Hotel, the Vice President invited men who have been wrangling with the tariff to sit back quietly and listen to "the talkies." But also present were Sir Esme Howard and Lady Howard, British ambassador and his wife, for whom the party was given, and men high in the ranks of Army and Navy.

Washington society, dragged hither and thither nightly to dinners, receptions and balls, has not much time to go to the movies. So the 65 invited guests sank back gratefully into the silent seclusion and let the picture actors do the talking.

TROPICAL DECORATIONS

Prior to that dinner was served in the Chinese room, the long table being decorated like a tropical garden with clusters of foliage alternating with placques of brilliant flowers.

The guests were received by the Vice President and his sister, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, the latter attired in black velvet and cream lace. The gown had a long train. She wore a jade and diamond pendant and carried an immense fan of gold-colored plumes.

Despite her numerous social duties, "Dolly" Gann looked as rested and refreshed as at the beginning of the season. Next Tuesday night she will step into her most important role of Vice presidential hostess when the vice President entertains the President and Mrs. Hoover at a small dinner in his suite at the Mayflower Hotel.

NOTABLES ATTEND

The guests at the dinner for the British Ambassador and Lady Isabella included:

The Ambassador of Chile and Madame Davila, the Minister of China and Madame Wu, the Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Adams, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde, the Secretary of Interior and Mrs. Wilbur, Senator and Mrs. James E. Watson, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, Senator and Mrs. Otis F. Glenn, Senator and Mrs. Roscoe C. Patterson, Senator and Mrs. Frederic C. Walcott, Representative Stephen G. Porter, Representative and Mrs. Fred A. Britten, Representative and Mrs. James S. Parker, Representative and Mrs. Harry C. Ransley, Representative and Mrs. Adam M. Wyant, Representative and Mrs. Joe Crail, Gen. and Mrs. Charles P. Summerall, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John A. Hull, and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson.

Woman Postal Aid Removed to Asylum

SHARON, Pa., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ada Lacock, former assistant postmistress at the Wheatland Postoffice, who was arrested last Sunday following her report that thieves had taken $2,500 in cash and stamps from the Wheatland Postoffice, today was removed to the State Asylum at North Warren, Pa.

Mrs. Lacock was charged with the theft of $300 of government funds and postoffice inspectors said they could find no evidence that thieves had broken into the office. The government, it was said, would not prosecute the case.

Butler Hunter Found Dead Near Home

BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Amos P. Bartley, 65, was found dead one mile from his home near West Sunbury today after he had failed to return from a hunting trip yesterday. Death was believed to have been due to a heart attack.

Lawrence, Noted Desert Figure, on Mysterious Errand

JERUSALEM, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency reports that Col. T. E. Lawrence, author of "Revolt in the Desert" and sometimes known as the "uncrowned King of the Arabs," is reconnoitering in Syria, Irak and Turkey under the name of Edward Thompson.

Local papers give an itinerary of his travels from Bagdad on November 11 to Damascus and Aleppo, where he disappeared 10 days. He turned up again on November 23 at the Turko-Syrian frontier.

His passport was visaed by the Turkish consul at Aleppo.

He spent 12 days at Mardin, near Diarbekr, until the Turks began to suspect his identity.

Lawrence vanished. His driver returned on December 23 and reported he had left his passenger near Mosul.

The minister of the interior of Irak has ordered frontier guards to be on the lookout for the mysterious traveler.

FUEL SHORTAGE HALTS WILKINS

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS,
Commander of the Wilkns-Hearst Antarctic Expedition.

ABOARD S. S. WILLIAM SCORESBY, (Antarctica), Jan. 2.—(Delayed)—Via S. S. Melville and KUP, San Francisco Examiner Wireless Station—With all but a few tons of fuel gone the Scoresby is beating its way back to Deception Island.

We expect to arrive tomorrow night.

Weather permitting a plane will fly northward from Anvers Island, mapping the coast.

Our three weeks here along the edge of the pack ice has failed to disclose a level ice floe large enough for a flight on skiis. The landfast ice is unapproachable because of the pack ice. Thus far the Ross Sea flight has been delayed, and possibly indefinitely postponed.

Efforts are now being made to arrange another cruise with the Scoresby, possibly making several more flights from the edge of the pack ice westward of recently discovered new land. This means considerable delay as Scoresby must first return and obtain more fuel.

Heiress to Million Wants Motor Car

DENVER, Jan. 4.—Add 11 years to $1,000,000 and you get: One big snappy roadster. This sum was rendered by Josephine Barth, who supplies the 11 years. The $1,000,000 is supplied from her grandmother's estate, to which she is heiress.

The grandmother, the late Mrs. Georgia Barth, left her fortune to the child. It was contested by two of her children, Mrs. Allie Houghton, of Golden Hill, Mass., and James B. Rhodus, of Denver.

The courts ruled in favor of the girl.

San Francisco Opens New Stock Exchange

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Western financiers today dedicated San Francisco's new Stock Exchange Building to "service of the public and the prosperity of the Pacific Coast." Ceremonies at noon were followed by an open house reception.

SEEK GUNMAN 'DEAD OR ALIVE'

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A desperate man hunt was organized by police here today when the entire police force of Cleveland was put on 12-hour duty with orders to get "dead or alive" the gunman who seriously wounded Janet Blood, pretty high school girl, his third shooting victim within a month. Even traffic police will serve overtime while the man hunt continues.

Like the other two girls who were wounded, Miss Blood, 16, was shot without excuse or reason. The bullet struck near her heart. The gunman fled.

Lying near death in a hospital today, the newest victim of the maniac described him as a "slim, dark complexioned, hook-nosed man about 26 years old and of medium height."

The same man, police believed, two hours later attacked Mrs. Mae Simpson, 19, and robbed her of her coat and money.

Although the women live on opposite sides of the city, descriptions of their assailant tallied with those of a man who is believed to have shot Beatrice Gallagher, 23 a maid, December 23, and Mrs. Mary Pshock, 20, three days later, and to have attacked another woman December 6.

Historic Road Houses Cited for Padlocks

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—(AP.) Six well-known road houses, several with histories dating back to Revolutionary times, were cited today in padlocking proceedings brought by Federal and state authorities in the Montgomery and Bucks County Courts. All are charged with violating the prohibition laws.

One of the best known of the places cited is the old Red Lion Inn, of Revolutionary fame. Others are Wheatsheaf Lane Hotel, the Clossin House, The General Wayne Hotel, Mineral Spring Hotel, and the Old Fulton House.

Politics Slows Up Philippine Trade

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Economic development of the Philippine Islands, in the opinion of Eugene Gilmore, vice governor, is more important to the welfare of the islands than political expansion.

Mr. Gilmore called on President Hoover today, but said he did not discuss any Philippine problems, but had merely paid his respects. The Philippine official is in this country in connection with the health and sanitation of the islands.

Business conditions, he said, were normal, but there was some indication of slowing up because of the renewal of agitation regarding the status of the islands.

Youth Faking Holdup Has Aid Shoot Him

FORT SCOTT, Kan., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A confession that he hired another youth to shoot him in order to make a faked filling station robbery more realistic has been made by King Wilder, 24, officers said here today.

Lonnie Land, 15, police said, confessed to shooting Wilder and receiving $10 for the act. Both youths are attendants at a filling station.

The youths are accused of conspiring to shoot Wilder in the back with a revolver after taking $71 in cash and a $25 check from the cash box.

2 Drown as Truck Knocks Automobile Into Water

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A mother and her 4-year-old child were drowned today when their automobile, in which they were awaiting the closing of the Ohio Street Bridge, was struck by a truck and plunged into the icy waters of Ohio basin slip. Tracy Wilcox, of Jamestown, the woman's husband, was saved when a great hook of a derrick scow caught the collar of his overcoat and dragged him to the surface.

James E. Van Aiken, of Erie, Pa., the driver of the truck, was held for questioning. According to witnesses, Van Aiken endeavored to stop the heavy truck when he noticed the parked automobile, but the vehicle skidded on the icy pavement and struck the Wilcox sedan, throwing it over a low concrete wall into the water.

Half of Auto Crashes Laid to Law Violations; Biggest Toll Sunday

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Approximately one-half of the state's total of 39,699 motor vehicle accidents last year involved some violation of the vehicle code, according to an analysis of the Pennsylvania accident report by William S. Canning, engineering director of the Keystone Automobile Club.

The violations included speeding, driving on the wrong side of the road, failure to observe the right of way, cutting in, passing standing street cars, passing other cars on curves or hills, failure to signal and allowing automobiles to remain unattended on inclines with brakes insecurely set.

Mr. Canning's analysis shows a total of 1,703 deaths and 32,594 injuries in the 11 months due to all causes. The heaviest mortality and casualty toll was taken on Sundays, with a total of 326 deaths and 7,942 injuries. Saturday is next heaviest with 295 deaths and 6,833 injuries. The time of greatest peril is between 4 and 6 p. m. More than 7,100 of the total accidents occurred in that period.

LINDY STATUE PLAN DROPPED

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today sent the following telegram from Clovis, N. M., to Mayor Victor J. Miller:

"In confirmation of our telephone conversation, I deeply appreciate the honor of your suggestion, but I sincerely request that no movement be started toward the erection of a memorial to me."

"I suppose this ends the matter," said the Mayor after reading the telegram.

Mayor Miller had proposed a popular movement for a statue of Col Lindbergh in a park here. Passing through St. Louis this week, Col. Lindbergh told the Mayor over the telephone that he preferred to be known here simply as "the boy who flew the air mail."

'RED' KIDNAPING QUIZ DEMANDED

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Jan 4.—(INS.)—The International Labor Defense, a Communistic organization which employs counsel for labor "martyrs," today issued a statement from its headquarters here demanding that the authorities investigate the reported kidnaping of Elbert Totherow, 18-year-old I. L. D. organizer.

Totherow arrived at the I. L. D office here yesterday with a lurid tale of being kidnaped by agents of mill owners at Lumberton, N. C., and carried to a point near Marion, S. C., across the state line. The kidnapers, Totherow said, threatened him with hanging, drowning and other maltreatment unless he stayed away from Lumberton.

They also threatened him with death if he related his experience, according to the youth.

The kidnaping was the first report of labor violence in North Carolina since the conviction here of several radical agitators for the assassination of Police Chief O. F. Aderholt, of Gastonia, several months ago.

Prior to the end of the trial, numerous labor organizers were kidnaped and flogged by Gastonia vigilantes, defense lawyers were threatened and intimidated, and Ella May Wiggins, a mother of five, who was active in strike relief, was shot and killed by an anti-communistic mob at Gastonia.

Client Sues Brokers For Securities Sale

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Charging that certain stocks left with Logan & Bryan's Seattle office had been "wrongfully and illegally converted to their own use," and that they "had been sold, thereby damaging the plaintiff," a suit was filed in Federal Court today by Joseph Silver, of Seattle, against the stock brokers.

Silver said he pledged 1,000 shares of Briggs Manufacturing Company and 500 shares of Fox Film "A" with the company, and that on October 3 the brokers sold the stock. He asked for a judgment for the difference between the sum the stock brought and the market value as "shown within a reasonable time" after the sale. The sum involved is $5,000.

Thompson, Ill, Fails To Meet Ortiz Rubio

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Mayor William Hale Thompson was ill and unable to receive Pascual Ortiz Rubio when the Mexican president-elect made the rounds of Chicago officialdom today as part of his good-will tour of the United States. Corporation Counsel Samuel Ettelson made an extemporaneous address of welcome in behalf of this city.

Ortiz Rubio visited the Mexican colony, where he made a brief address. Senora Josefina Rubio, his wife, took their three children to Lincoln Park for the afternoon.

Three Hire Taxi, Rob Driver of $12

Held up by three Negroes who hired his cab at Fifth avenue and Grant street last night, Stanley Geighner, of 2095 South Negley avenue, Green cab driver, told police the bandits took $12 from him. He said he was ordered to drive to Center and Protectory place where the holdup occurred.

U. S. PREPARING EARLY SERVICE ON INCOME TAX

Payers Will Get Benefit of Recent Cut, Although Old Forms Ignore Reduction.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The government expects to begin receiving payments of 1929 income taxes soon after next Saturday, when forms for filing returns are to be made available at offices of collectors of internal revenue and branch offices.

The forms were printed prior to the passage of the tax-reduction measure by Congress, and as a result "riders" will be necessary to show the reduction provided.

REFUNDING FIXED

Steps to make certain that the taxpayer receives the benefits of the reduction have been taken by the bureau. Collectors have been instructed that if payments are made on the basis of the old tax, without taking advantage of the decrease, the new scale is to be computed and notice of refund given to the taxpayer.

In no case, the order said, should taxpayers be required to file an amended return or a claim to secure the benefit of the reduction.

Rates on normal $4,000 incomes in excess of the personal exemption and credits have been cut from 1½ per cent to one-half of 1 per cent.

On the next $4,000, the new tax is 2 per cent instead of 3 and on the balance 4 per cent instead of 5.

Returns for 1929 must be made before midnight of March 15, 1930. The bureau said forms will be mailed as usual to taxpayers who filed returns of income for 1928, but called attention that failure to receive a form will not relieve the taxpayer of his obligation to file a return and pay the tax on time.

MUSCLE SHOALS SALE OPPOSED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Secretary or Agriculture A. M. Hyde is opposed to all pending measures for the disposition of the government's property at Muscle Shoals, Alabama. His announcement took the form of a letter to Senator McNary (Rep.), chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee, today, in which he recommended that the government retain control of all revenue from the plant.

"I am advised," Hyde's leter said, "that the operation of the government nitrate plants can be of little, if any, material value in lowering the cost of fertilizer to the farmer and, therefore, if the property is to be applied to the benefit of agriculture, some other means must be used. There is a need for the improvement of fertilizers, fertilizer practice and soil management, and it is therefore recommended that the Muscle Shoals property be utilized as a source of revenue which will be applied to this end.

"The best method for accomplishing the desired purpose will change from year to year as conditions vary, and I, therefore, believe that it will be advisable for Congress to retain authority over the expenditure of funds obtained from the property. During the past year the nitrogen industry has experienced developments which prove the fallacy of projection plants too far into the future."

Anna Seymour Wins Divorce From Santrey

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Anna Seymour, musical comedy and vaudeville star, won a divorce from Henry Santrey, "big time" orchestra leader, in Superior Court today. Miss Seymour charged she was deserted in 1927. The couple were married in 1922. The actress is appearing in a loop musical show.

Miss Seymour is a former Carnegie girl, having completed her high school education there.

Briggs Funeral Set for Monday

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Funeral services for Clare Briggs, noted American cartoonist, will be held Monday in the Campbell funeral church here, it was announced tonight. Dr. Nathan A. Seagle, of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church, will officiate and immediately after the services the body will be cremated.

Fatherless Girl, 6, Nears End of 7,000-Mile Journey

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The liner Transylvania sailed today, bound for Glasgow, Scotland, carrying among her passengers a 6-year-old girl, Isobel McPhail, who is on the last lap of a journey of approximately 7,000 miles which started in Seattle.

The child is traveling alone. She was placed on board a train in Seattle on Monday by her mother, Mrs. Jemima McPhail, and when she arrived here last night she was met by her aunt, Mrs. Jack Rutter, of Astoria. Dressed in a light blue one-piece suit, with her reddish brown bobbed hair showing beneath the cap, Isobel's blue eyes sparkled in anticipation of her sea voyage.

Isobel, who was born in Scotland, came here two years ago with her mother. They went at once to Seattle to join her father, Robert McPhail, who had preceded them by a few months. A month later Mr. McPhail was killed in an automobile accident. Forced to go to work, the mother obtained employment in Alaska in the fisheries. The work took her away from Isobel for eight months each year.

Mrs. McPhail's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. James Watt, offered to rear the child in their home at Fraserburgh, Scotland, and the mother finally agreed to send Isobel to them.

ROME AWAITS ROYAL BRIDE'S ARRIVAL TODAY

Princess Due at 10 A. M. Italian Capital Stirred by Prospect of Regal Wedding

ROME, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Regal Rome grew restless tonight awaiting the arrival of the Belgian princess, who will one day be queen of Italy.

Princess Marie Jose, who has been speeding by rail from Brussels toward the Eternal City since last night, is due to arrive in her future capital at 10 a. m. tomorrow. She will be greeted by her betrothed, Crown Prince Humbert, of Italy, at Rome's central station.

Borne in the beautiful new royal train of Italy's sovereigns, which is probably the finest and most up-to-date conveyance running on European railways, the princess and the Belgian royal family will end their long and carefully-guarded journey from the north with a royal reception at the station.

ROYALTY AT MASS

King Victor Emanuel III, Queen Helena, the crown prince and the princesses of Savoy will greet them.

Shortly after their arrival the two royal families will attend mass in the Pauline chapel of the quirinal palace, where the wedding of the crown prince and the princess will be celebrated on Wednesday morning.

The rest of Sunday will be given over to repose.

Marie Jose's picture was displayed in nearly every shop window in Rome this evening and on the front page of every newspaper.

Her name and that of Crown Prince Humbert were on everybody's lips. Workmen and store employes were feverishly busy putting the last touches to decorations in their honor.

PUBLIC CELEBRATION

All public and almost all the private buildings will be ablaze with electric lights, festooned about the cornices and along the roof lines tomorrow night. The royal coats of arms of Belgium and Italy will shine in multi-colored splendor.

Yards of bunting—the black, yellow and red of the Belgian tricolor alongside the green, white and red of Italy—hung everywhere today.

The railway station itself was a mass of bunting and banners, the royal reception room, rich in red plush and gold, through which the Belgian sovereigns, their daughter and sons, will make their exit, was banked with potted plants and flowers. Its approaches were guarded carefully tonight.

Detachments of the Fascist Railway Militia patrolled the yards of all the stations along the route to Rome.

ROYAL TRAIN AT MILAN

LONDON, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—The Italian royal train bearing Princess Marie Jose to Rome for her wedding with Prince Umberto arrived at Milan at 7 p. m., today, according to a Central News dispatch from that city.

A brief reception was held on the platform, during which a little Belgian girl presented the Princess with a bouquet. The train then proceeded to the capital.

Idaho Chief Justice Supported for I. C. C.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Senators McNary and Steiwer, of Oregon, said today after a call on President Hoover that Oregon would support William Lee, chief justice of the Idaho Supreme Court, to succeed Commissioner Campbell, who has resigned from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The senators said they had not discussed the appointment with the president, but that they had sent their recommendations to him earlier in the week. Senator Steiwer said he also had been informed that Senator Smoot, of Utah, would support Justice Lee.

29th Ward Women Arrange Club Tea

Mrs. George R. Braun, chairman of the Republican Women of the Twenty-ninth Ward, has appointed committees to conduct the club's entertainment next Friday in the Mt. Oliver Harris Theater. The guests will view a motion picture, and later be entertained at a tea. Mrs. Braun's aides will be Mrs. E. L. Crowe, Mrs. W. J. Evans, Mrs. Frank Beech, Mrs. W. Fred Naylor, Mrs. Della Brown and Mrs. Fred Dipper.

Special Rail Agent At Youngstown Dies

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 4.—F. H. Boyd, 48, special agent for the Erie Railroad, died suddenly today following an operation for gallstones. Mr. Boyd delivered many addresses before various organizations in the Middle West in recent years.

MOODY TO ACT IN LAREDO BAN

LAREDO, Tex., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Returning from a conference with Gov. Dan Moody, O. W. Killam and Hal Brennan reported to a mass meeting of Laredo businessmen that the Governor had assured them the Port of Laredo would be "back to normal within the next five or six days."

Business here has been seriously curtailed by closing of the Mexican Consulate, an action popularly believed to have been a measure of reprisal for threats of arrest made against Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, by John A. Valls, district attorney.

City officials and the Chamber of Commerce have been informed by the Mexican government that the consulate will not be reopened until Valls has resigned or been removed from office.

Valls would make no statement other than to say the criminal docket will be taken up Monday in District Court "as usual," and that "District Attorney Valls will be on the job."

Brennan and Killam said Gov. Moody refused to amplify his assurance. A petition asking the Governor to remove Valls from office was signed recently by 1,200 residents of Laredo.

Fliers May Organize Labor Brotherhood

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—The next big labor brotherhood may be the "International Brotherhood of Airmen of America."

The first steps in an intensive campaign to unionize America's airplane pilots already have been taken, it was learned today. A charter has been issued for an Aviators and Pilots' Union at Muskogee, Okla., an important aviation point, and the campaign is being extended to Chicago, St. Louis and other large Western cities. These are strategic places on the rapidly growing aviation map.

Disabled Steamer Towed to Seattle

SEATTLE, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—In tow of the tug Creole, the States Line freighter California was brought to Puget Sound today for repairs to her steering gear which was disabled in a heavy gale about 330 miles off Tatoosh Island Thursday. The vessel carried a full cargo of lumber, flour and other freight. She left the Columbia River December 30 for the Orient.

INQUIRY INTO THREE OHIO BUS WRECKS STARTS

Shouts of Victorious School Basketball Team Believed Cause of Shreve Crash.

WOOSTER, O., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Under special orders from Gov. Myers V. Cooper, state officials tonight were investigating three major Ohio bus accidents which Thursday and Friday cost nine lives and injured 31 persons. The investigators had instructions that if evidence of negligence is found on the part of those responsible, to "institute proceeding to bring the guilty to speedy account."

The worst of the three tragedies was the crash of a bus and a railroad train at Shreve, O., near Wooster, Friday night, in which seven high school boys were killed and nine other persons injured.

The other accidents under investigation were at Bellevue, where 10 persons were injured Friday night as an interurban bus hit a truck, and at West Alexandria, where two persons were killed and 12 injured Thursday when a bus ran off a highway and plunged down an embankment.

SHOUTS DROWNED WHISTLE

In addition to the state's investigation at Shreve, Coroner J. B. Patterson began a formal inquest this afternoon and Prosecutor Marion Craven announced that an investigation will be made next week by the Wayne County grand jury.

Apparently, however, the principal facts leading to the tragedy at Shreve are available. Witnesses told the coroner a warning bell at the crossing was ringing and that the engineer on the train, a speeding Pennsylvania Railroad mail and express carrier, blew the whistle as the crossing was approached.

Joseph Baker, 50, driver of the bus, said he slowed down near the crossing and looked for a train through the window on his side of the bus. He said his nephew, Willard Baker, looked out the other side to give warning if a train was in sight, but that Willard evidently did not see the danger. Willard was one of the victims.

CELEBRATING VICTORY

At the same time the shouts and songs of the occupants of the bus, all of them students who with their coach, Maurice Lenz, were returning from a victorious basketball game at Big Prairie, drowned out the sounds of the bell and whistle.

Baker shifted gears of the bus and drove ahead. A moment later the bus was a mass of wreckage, the bodies of the dead were scattered along the tracks and the injured were either screaming with pain or unconscious.

The boys who were killed were Wilbur and Forest Grubb, brothers, Claude Repp, Wayne Lehman, Emil Timic, Eugene Talley and Willard Baker. The most seriously injured of the others was a girl, Edith Repp. She had both legs fractured and other injuries that made her condition critical.

Funeral plans were being made by high school officials with the expectation that a single service which the whole town will attend will be held for the seven boys who are dead.

Edith Mason Silent About Marital Rift

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Edith Mason, Chicago Civic Opera star, refused to comment today when asked why she was living in an apartment here while her husband, Dr. Maurice A. Bernstein, was quietly living in their home in Highland Park, Ill.

Neither would discuss the rumor of a marital break.

"I feel that the public cannot be interested in my personal life," Miss Mason stated at the apartment.

Carmel Meyers Saved From Death in Fire

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Friends today were congratulating Carmel Myers, exotic beauty of the screen, on her escape from death when her automobile burst into flames. Miss Myers' chauffeur quickly stopped the limousine and hurried the screen star to safety. The car was a total loss.

The will of John G. Fischer, a Sharpsburg business man has been filed for probate. He leaves an estate valued at $20,000 to his children, Mrs. Mamie Hutchinson, Mrs. Stella McCann and Emaline, Harry C., Ray S., Herbert G. and Thomas A. Fischer. He names Ray and Harry Fischer as executors.

Greene County Hits 200,000 Feet Gasser

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 4.—A gas well with an initial daily production of 200,000 cubic feet has been struck on the J. A. Stillwell farm in the Ruff Creek district of Greene County by John C. Hackney, Luzerne Township tax collector. Gas was struck in the fifth sand.

Hoovers Send Marie Jose Ten Valuable Seal Skins

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A distinctly American gift has been forwarded by President and Mrs. Hoover to their friend, Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium, who is soon to marry Prince Humberto of Italy.

Ten American Alaskan sealskins were forwarded to the Belgian princess, with whom the President is personally acquainted, having been associated with her and members of her family during his relief work in Belgium.

The skins, which are of a new shade of brown, and very rare, were sent without having been made up, with a message saying that the princess could have whatever she wanted made out of them.

YOUNG COBBLER HELD IN KILLING

TREVERTON, Pa., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Tony Verano, 16, of Shamokin, was being held in the county jail at Sunbury today, charged with the murder of Harold Koons, 18, of this place, who was shot through the heart last night while the two young men were tussling for possession of a revolver in the former's shoe repair shop.

The report of the shooting, as received by the investigating authorities, was that Koons, with Woodrow and Gilbert Portzlein, Lewis Murphy and Leo Janeskie, all of the same age as the victim, gathered in the shoemaking establishment and were annoying the young cobbler. Verano, companions of Koons told the police, drew a revolver and threatened to shoot.

Koons urged the cobbler to put away the gun, witnesses said, and his appeal had scarcely been made when the weapon was discharged.

All ran from the shop and the fact that Koons had been mortally wounded was not apparent until the young man fell on the sidewalk, half a block away. A physician was summoned and pronounced him dead.

Constable Gorman was informed of the shooting and arrested Verano at his place of business. The latter claimed the shooting was accidental, alleging Koons had shot himself.

Chicagoans Shiver As City Fathers Cut Bathing Expenses

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—With bathing beaches buried under tons of snow and ice, Chicagoans shivered at news of the latest economy measure which today threatened to leave them without protection of life guards next summer.

Hour by hour the city learns of some new economy required under the $5,000,000 reduction in the corporate budget adopted yesterday. Today Walter Wright, superintendent of summer recreation activities, said the cut in his appropriations of $149,000 would necessitate closing all supervised beaches.

He ordered dismissal of 118 life guards, five playground directors, 21 physical instructors, 78 bathing beach attendants, 35 beach janitors, 25 laiborers and 32 tree trimmers.

ELLWOOD CITY BANKER HELD

Michael A. Ruscille, 45, former manager of the foreign department of the First National Bank of Ellwood City, yesterday surrendered himself to Deputy United States Marshal John F. Austin, who held a warrant for his arrest on a charge of embezzling funds of the bank.

The complaint filed before the United States commissioner cites three separate amounts aggregating $10,506.25, but according to government authorities, the amount of alleged defalcation will be over $30,000. Pending preliminary hearing next Saturday, Ruscille was released under $10,000 bond.

Stock speculation was said to have been partly responsible for the alleged embezzlement. Ruscille was also said to have been compelled under "Black Hand" threats to give up a large sum of money.

The bank was protected from loss through a surety bond.

Bankhead, Alabama, Seeks Heflin's Post

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—John H. Bankhead, of Birmingham, today filed formal notice with the Secretary of State of his candidacy for the United States Senate, subject to the action of the Democratic primary next August. Bankhead, the son of a former United States Senator, seeks the office now held by Senator J. Thomas Heflin.

Meningitis Closes School in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Because of a meningitis epidemic here Butler University authorities today announced a postponement of resumption of school activities until next Wednesday. All public schools here have been ordered closed during the coming week.

2 DEAD, 2 HURT AS RUINS FALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Two workmen were killed today when they were buried beneath an avalanche of debris in the collapse of a warehouse at 182 South street, which had been condemned as unsafe after a recent fire.

Three other workers were rescued by a policeman and another man. They were badly hurt.

The roof and three floors of the five-story structure tumbled with a terrific roar. A tenement house next door appeared on the verge of collapse and the tenants were told to leave.

Frank Colabella, owner of the collapsed warehouse, was arrested.

RETAILERS ASK 27-CENT STAMP

Efforts are being made by the Retail Credit Men's Association to have the government inaugurate a new stamp to sell at 27 cents and to require persons receiving registered mail or merchandise to write their addresses on the return cards. This, it is said by Secretary J. R. Truesdale, will afford additional protection in cases where mail or merchandise is forwarded to persons who have moved. When such a return card came back it would furnish the sender with the new address.

Through solicitation of the association and the merchant-owned Credit Bureau, Inc., Judge James H. Gray has been invited to give a three-minute talk on advice to young people, during the association radio period Tuesday night, January 7, at 7:30 o'clock over station WCAE.

President Harry E. Wilson, of the association, announces that the new Locate Club of the credit body will meet in Roosevelt Hotel Tuesday, January 7. The Associated Credit Bureaus of Western Pennsylvania will meet at the same place January 15.

Mayor of Reno Pays Respects to Hoover

NEW P. & W. VA. LINK SPEEDED

CHARLEROI, Pa., Jan. 4.—With the second stretch of the new Connellsville extension of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad under contract, work is going forward in this district despite winter handicaps.

Steel work on the Belle Vernon-Speers Bridge, across the Monongahela River, will be continued throughout the winter, it was learned today. Approximately 110 men are at work.

The Westmoreland County end of the contract is now under way and the Vang Construction Company has three shovels and ground crews of 50 men at work.

Rapid progress is being made on the huge tunnel which will be cut through the Jacobs Creek section, while two crews of graders are working in the Connellsville and the Fairhope sections.

In Fallowfield township two 700-ton concrete viaduct jobs are under way. These viaducts, which are the largest in this district, will be finished within five weeks.

Rail has been laid from Cochrane Mills westward as far as Finleyville and more rail is being placed from Mingo School to Baidland, in Carroll township. From this point the rail layers will progress into Fallowfield township. It is likely that rail will be laid along all graded divisions before next spring.

New Freight Station To Open January 20

A public inspection will be held before the opening of the Pennsylvania Railroad's main downtown freight station, Eleventh and Etna streets, it was announced yesterday. The $5,000,000 structure will be put into operation about January 20.

C. M. McCracken has been appointed agent. He was formerly assigned to Philadelphia and previous to that was stationed at Uniontown.

N. Y.-S. America Air Mail to Start Jan. 15

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—The first regular air mail-passenger-express service between New York and South American ports, with Rio Janeiro as the southern terminus, will be inaugurated by January 15, it was announced here today by William P. MacCracken, Jr., former air secretary of the Commerce Department, and now engaged in commercial aviation. Weekly service will be maintained, and the time between New York and Rio cut from 20 days to seven, he announced.

Slays Tailor, Leaves Rabbits' Feet Behind

BALTIMORE, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Wolf Glasner, a tailor, was murdered and robbed today in his small shop in the northwestern part of the city, evidently by a superstitious person whom the police suspect to have been a Negro. After beating Glasner's head with a heavy instrument, his assailant changed his clothes, which were blood-spattered. He put on a fresh suit from the tailor's stock and escaped. In the blood-soaked suit were found several rabbits' feet.

Hoover and King George Exchange Peace Wishes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—King George of England and President Hoover have marked the new year with an exchange of greetings in which the hope of limitation of naval armaments was held out as one of the brightest prospects for the coming year.

The State Department today made public the text of cablegrams exchanged between the two. King George wired President Hoover as follows:

"At the commencement of the new year so full of promise for the advancement of world peace by naval disarmament, it affords me particular pleasure to offer to you my most cordial greetings together with my best wishes for your happiness and welfare and for the prosperity of the United States of America."

In reply the President said:

"I am happy to receive Your Majesty's message of new year wishes. The resolve to advance world peace by mutual good will and by the limitation of naval armaments, is the earnest purpose of the British and the American peoples and of their governments, and it is my hope, as it will be the endeavor of the American government, to see this great object attained during the year which has just commenced. I also desire to reciprocate all Your Majesty's good wishes for the new year."

Montana Woman Lost 17 Pounds Weight In 4 Weeks

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer, of Lewistown, Mont., that ought to be read with interest by every overweight woman in America.

When stout women can lose fat and at the same time gain in energy and vigor.

Gain in charm and vivaciousness.

Gain a healthy complexion and have eyes that sparkle with buoyant health.

And at insignificant cost—isn't it time to use common sense?

Please read this letter carefully:

"Gentlemen:

I first saw your advertisement in a Billings, Mont., paper and decided to try Kruschen Salts.

I was the first to purchase a bottle in Billings.

I started taking them every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give "Kruschen Salts" a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 pounds and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 pounds. And I must say, I feel better in every way, besides looking much better.

I have recommended Kruschen Salts to many of my friends, in fact, have a number of them taking Kruschen Salts.

May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. Just try one bottle and by following directions, I am sure it will convince anyone. I bought my second bottle today."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at May's & Liggett's Drug Stores, or any drugstore in America.

DEATH DURING SCUFFLE LEADS TO BOY'S TRIAL

South Side Youth Accused Of Strangling Friend in Dispute Over Joint Auto.

The murder case where a boy in a rough and tumble fight was killed by a strangle-hold, will feature the reopening of Criminal Court on Monday following two weeks' recess during the holidays.

Charles Zeitlman, 17, of Carey way, South Side, will be arraigned for the killing of Felix Obremska, 17, 2513 Sarah street, on October 1. The boys were fighting over an automobile they jointly owned and Obremska had Zeitlman down in Carey way. Several other boys who watched the fight will be witnesses.

GRASPED THROAT

It is said Zeitlman got Obremska by the throat while the latter pummeled him. The former felt Obremska go limp and, releasing his hold, scrambled to his feet. Obremska was unconscious and gasping. Zeitlman and other boys threw water on him, but when he did not revive sent for the South Side Hospital ambulance. Obremska died in the ambulance from asphyxiation caused by strangulation, the coroner found. Assistant District Attorney M. Barney Cohen will prosecute the case and Zeitlman will be defended by Attorney Samuel H. Sarraf. It will be Sarraf's first murder trial.

HOMESTEAD KILLING

Frank Magliazzo, of Homestead, will be placed on trial Wednesday for the killing of Santo Ferrainolo, 31, of 45 Oak way, Homestead, September 13. It is alleged that the dead man and his brother, Anthony Ferrainolo, were standing together in front of 642 Montclair street when Magliazzo approached and shot both with a revolver. Santo died of his wounds. Anthony was in Mercy Hospital for several week. Assistant District Attorney Jacob Kalson will prosecute the case, and Magliazzo will be defended by Attorneys William H. Coleman and Frank Zappala.

Reopening of Criminal Court Monday will be marked by the sitting of a new grand jury. The two panels of petit jurors will also begin service.

Cuban Sugar Crop Conference Called

HAVANA, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The world's sugar problem as a whole and Cuba's future as leading sugar producer in particular will come up for discussion at a meeting to be held in New York on Tuesday, January 8, between leading sugar industrialists of Cuba and United States refiners. According to an announcement, an effort will be made to bring about unification between Cuban sugar industrialists and United States refiners.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

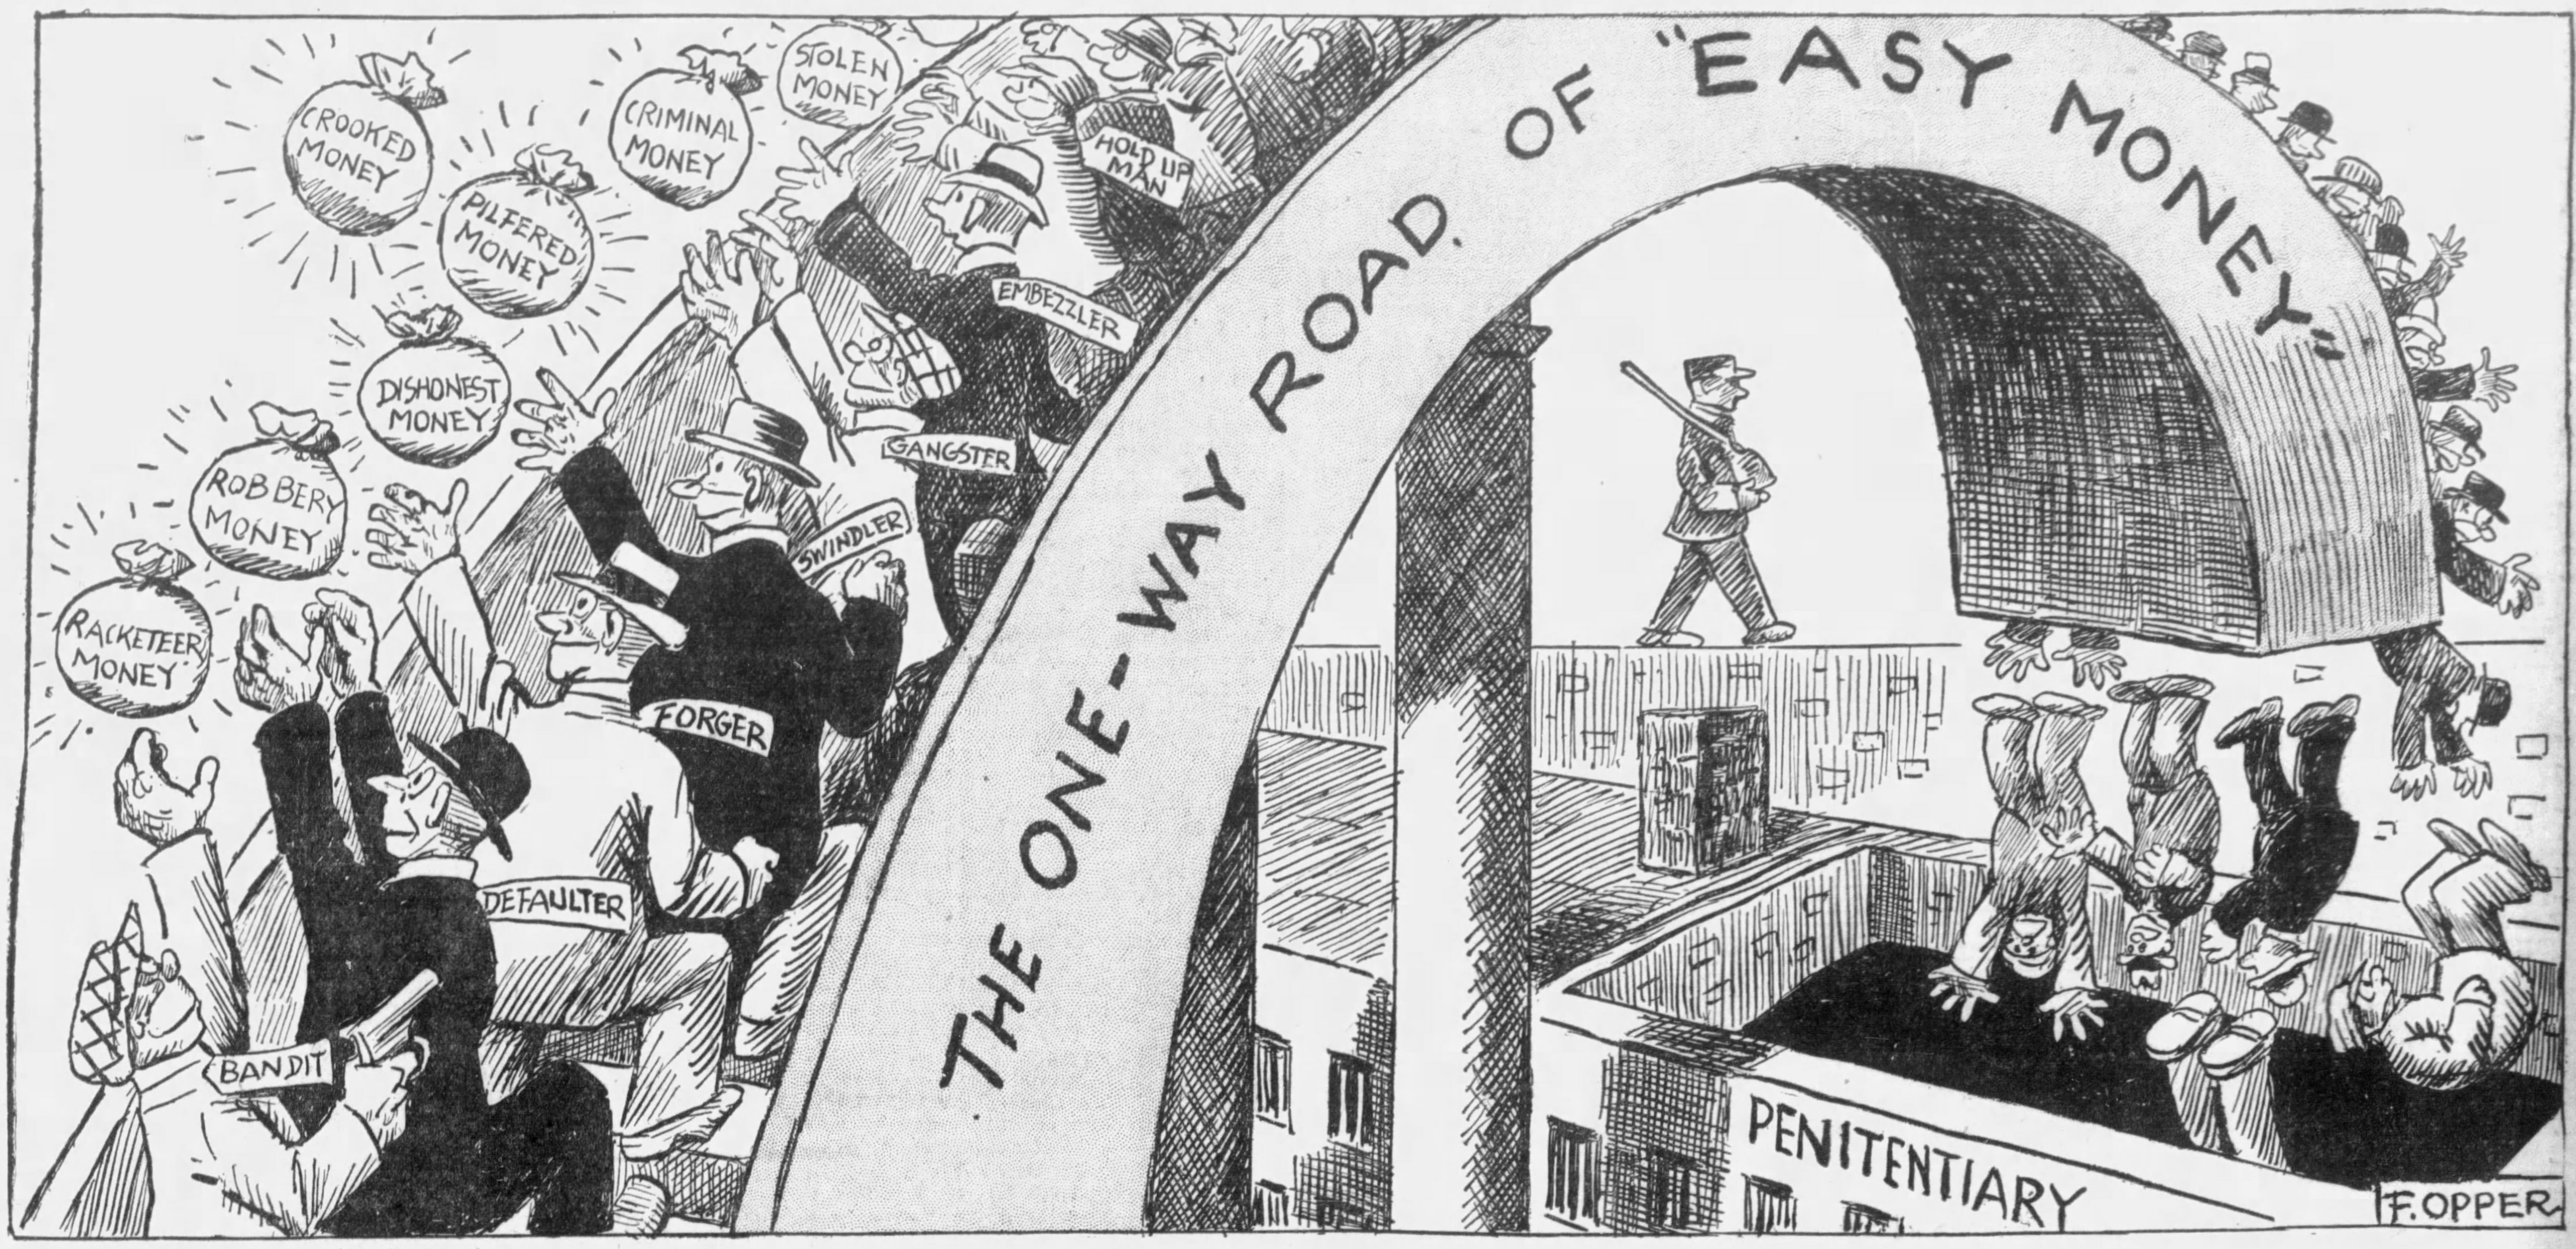
THE WAY OF "EASY MONEY."

(Copyright, 1929)



This picture isn't pleasant, but, unfortunately, the country needs to look at it and think about it.

The moving staircase shown here is crowded; thousands more are hurrying to get on it, and move along, in the "easy way."

It is the staircase of easy money, bootlegging, crime, reckless disregard of an inevitable ending.

It represents an extraordinary condition in a "civilized country," a steadily, swiftly operating machine that leads to the penitentiary, and crowds the prisons.

"THE love of money is the root of all evil; which while some coveted after they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows."

Wise Timothy says it, in the Bible, and Mr. Opper's picture here makes it clear in more modern language.

This picture ought to warn some, especially the extraordinary army of YOUNG criminals, already with their feet on this moving staircase.

The rage to get money, no matter how; get it in a hurry, at risk of freedom, good name, and life itself, even at the risk of committing murder, is the curse of this age.

Mr. Opper's picture tells the story so plainly that no editorial comment is needed.

Upward goes the moving stairway of crime, and "easy money" with the criminal army going upward, with it, stretching out with one hand, "gun" in the other.

Slowly the staircase moves. At the far end the penitentiary is wide open.

> "Money does all things—for it gives and it takes away; it makes honest men and knaves, fools and philosophers; and so forward, mutatis mutandis, to the end of the chapter."

The cartoonist chooses to show only one kind of criminal, one single get-rich-quick method.

Another picture might show the really big get-rich-quick rascal, the arch-criminal, printer of millions and even billions of worthless stocks, mere wind and water. That criminal robs millions while lesser criminals, on crime's moving stairway, rob individually.

It is true, as L'Estrange says, that "money does all things," and among other things that it does, it gives immunity, safety, a private yacht and a comfortable trip to Europe to the man who steals one or ten MILLIONS instead of stealing a few dollars.

Great, almost unlimited in the eyes of men, is money, its power and attraction, even after a man has more than he can sensibly use.

From the lowest criminal at the bottom of this staircase to the highest criminal in the big watered stock manufacturing establishment, men crave the power that money gives.

> "Whoever has sixpence is sovereign over all men—to the extent of the sixpence; commands cooks to feed him, philosophers to teach him, kings to mount guard over him—to the extent of sixpence."—Carlyle.

* * *

"We are all slaves to the shining metal," said Douglas Jerrold. "All" is not quite correct. Some can ask, sincerely, with Bulwer-Lytton: "What's money without happiness?"

The love of money may be the root of all evil, but to many it is the only visible, reliable foundation of all happiness, the only thing that makes life bearable.

That old-fashioned American, Emerson, who with perfect sincerity put money out of his thought, living and working to do good and to be useful, said: "Money often costs too much, and power and pleasure are not cheap."

But the modern "get-rich-quick" craze pays little attention to that.

Every day newspapers say and PROVE that "CRIME DOES NOT PAY."

In Chicago three gangster criminals, lowest form of the crime-scum, born in this period of bootlegging and prohibition, undertook to blackmail a labor union.

Surprised in their blackmailing attempt by four detectives, all three were shot dead, the body of one gangster falling on top of another, seven or eight bullet holes in each.

Prisons are filled with criminals as they have never been in our history. In all directions States are asking for additional funds to build new and BIGGER prisons.

Crime does not take warning, and, worst of all, YOUTH does not take warning.

If you could see the foot of this moving staircase of crime, you would see, in thousands, boys in their teens crowding to it, pistol in hand, slung-shot in pocket. It is true that "he that wants MONEY, MEANS and CONTENT, is without three good friends."

But the most important of the three words, "CONTENT," should not be overlooked.

In lower forms of crime, born of the get-rich-quick craze, as shown in this picture, and in wholesale, subtle forms of public robbery, there is no "contentment," no possible success in the LONG RUN.

Here and there a criminal may go through life uncaught, unpunished. But he is one in a thousand, and his own fears and imagination do to him what the law fails to do. He lives in terror. There is no happiness in gains ill gotten.

Money brings power, money makes good work of all kinds possible, money honestly made and wisely used leads to independence and happiness.

Money accumulated through crime and with disregard for the rights of others brings, as in this picture, disaster and shame.

Look up the word "money" in the index of any man's writings, and you will realize how much thought men through all ages have given to the money tokens of leather, paper, copper, silver, gold—powerless in themselves, useless to man, hungry or naked, in his natural state.

But in "civilization" money is the key that will pick any lock, and now, as in England, when Disraeli wrote, it is true that:

> "As men advance in life, all passions resolve themselves into money. Love, ambition, even poetry end in this."

Money is a puzzle, strange in its power, concerning which Theodore Parker said: "Covetous men need money least, yet most affect it; and prodigals, who need it most, do least regard it."

Edgar Allen Poe compared the Romans, worshiping their standard, to Americans worshiping THEIR standard, the dollar. "The Romans worshiped their standard, and the Roman standard happened to be an eagle. Our standard is only one-tenth of an eagle—a dollar—but we make all even by adoring it with tenfold devotion."

Civilization calls this its age of scientific triumph, industrial perfection, the age of machinery, mass production and widespread buying power that promises eventually to wipe out poverty.

We take pride in this nation's great accomplishments, its annual income of more than one hundred billions of dollars, it libraries, schools, universities, giant factories, huge payrolls.

And we should congratulate ourselves, for we have reason to be grateful.

But this picture shows the cancer spot in our civilization.

It comes of various causes. The war, perhaps, helped by exalting killing as a patriotic duty.

Prohibition, financing crime to the tune of hundreds of millions a year through bootlegging operations, has done more than all else to build up crime's army.

The indifference of the public, its "Every man for himself" spirit, is responsible also.

We catch and punish the little man, gunman, gangster, racketeer, bootlegger, once in a while. BUT NOT VERY OFTEN. Even he smoothes his path with bribery.

We let the big criminal go free, justifying the old saying that justice is a net in which little fish are caught, while big fish break through.

To appeal to those on the moving staircase of crime is useless.

Time and consequences will convince them; words will not.

The penitentiary for thousands, the electric chair for an ever increasing number, will gradually bring realization that crime does not pay. Public opinion and better laws actually enforced must do the work of correction.

This is not merely a picture to be looked at, and passed by.

It is a picture for which every American, able to vote, is partly responsible, however far his path may lie from crime or any thought of dishonesty.

The Stage and The Footlight Stars

Thurston to Make Things Vanish While 'Paid in Full' Is Only Drama And Nixon Theater Is in Eclipse

By GEORGE SEIBEL

YE LAST of ye mightie tregetours, as Dan Chaucer would have called him, comes to Pittsburgh again for several weeks of marvel and miracle. Howard Thurston, apostolic successor of Hermann and Kellar, is the most genial disciple of Mephistopheles that America has ever seen. Well that he is, for the magician nowadays has a hard job. A hundred years ago it was a startling illusion to have the hall dark, and when the magician appeared he fired a pistol that lit 100 candles all at once. Today electricity has made such a miracle look cheap. Fifty years ago, if a magician had produced a box with a voice inside, he would have been suspected of real witchcraft. Today there is a radio in every home.

In this crisis of the magical art, the magician has become an entertainer. The multitude no longer believes in his diabolical powers, but they are willing to be fooled and amused.

In this gray twilight zone of the black art, Howard Thurston is the archimage. And the hundred or more amateur magicians of Pittsburgh will approach him with genuflections and low salaams during his sojourn here.

Magic is the most ancient and universal of arts. Its popularity was restricted at one time by the danger its practitioners ran of being burnt or hanged for having sold their souls to the Evil One. But it is easy to see how widespread magic has been, when one surveys the list of synonyms for magician. Here are a few:

Prestidigitator
Escamoteur
Legerdemainist
Thaumaturgist
Miracle-Monger
Wonder-Worker
Sorcerer Wizard Necromancer
Conjuror Illusionist Fakeer Enchanter

There's a whole baker's dozen, and probably another dozen could be found, beginning with the Chaucerian "tregetour," while the list would become legion if we used the proper names that are at hand. Thurston could be called a Merlin, a Cagliostro, or a Katterfelto—but whatever name he might be called, he would remain the same smiling, soft-spoken, quizzical arch-deceiver "who wouldn't deceive us for the world."

And he is the most distinguished professor of a distinguished art. Do not smile at this—there is a chair of conjuring at the University of Leipzig, and connected with this department there is a museum of conjuring devices considered to be the finest in the world.

Thurston in Pittsburgh

Thurston is always glad to come to Pittsburgh, for Pittsburgh has twice been the turning-point in his career. In his delightful autobiography, "My Life of Magic," he tells how he escaped the sheriff at Williamsport by sending a telegram to Harry Davis, then conducting a "museum" here. He offered Davis the services of an animal trainer, a contortionist, a knife thrower, a fire eater, a sword swallower, a human pin cushion, a tattooed lady and a snake charmer, besides "the World's Greatest Magician." Davis accepted, and the aforesaid aggregation played here three weeks.

"The World's Greatest Magician" was none other than Thurston. But he had to borrow the dress suit of the late Senator John

Juveniles in Second Childhood and Pretty Males One Aversion

By GILBERT W. GABRIEL

Universal Service Dramatic Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.

WHEN cometh the theatrical milennium—I suppose the talkies are going to bring it in—we shall probably have young heroes who are still in their budding 40's. Until then the so-called juveniles, the undergraduates and wastrel striplings of our flaming youth dramas, all looking not a day over 55. But it isn't their withering, their wintriness, I object to in these leading men, for they cannot help it if sardonic fate keeps them out of the road and away from Broadway until they appear fit for nothing but mummy-cases. On the contrary, it is their perennial gentleness and girlishness I don't like.

And, without resorting to the pain of personal examples, we must realize that the heroes of several of this year's and last year's plays—and particularly of their musical comedies—have been girlish with a vengeance. It is evidently the mode. The other day a young actor (male) was overheard explaining what he could do best on the stage. "Oh, I specialize in ingenue parts," he boasted. The bloom of innocence was on his cheek as he said it.

Of course, history has always endowed heroes with the countenances of, let's say, ingenues. I was amazed the other day to read in an old Talmudic version of the Bible's story of Joseph and his brethren, that Joseph, reputed the handsomest youth of his time, used to paint his eyebrows and always walked with a mincing step. Nobody seemed to hold these habits against him—but, somehow, my sympathy was all with the ill-tempered brethren after that.

Or, take Balzac's repturous description of his splendid young poet, Lucien, in "Lost Illusions," A. D. 1837. The same ideal sings in it. Lucien's face has "the velvet whiteness of women's faces, and eyes full of love. . . That looked out from under long chestnut lashes, beneath eyebrows that might have been traced by a Chinese pencil." Lucien had "coral lips," and the "smile of a sorrowing angel." From a glance at "Lucien's feet he might have been taken for a girl in disguise, and this so much the more easily from the feminine contour of the hips, a characteristic of keen-witted, not to say astute, men."

You are quite right, M. Balzac had big hips. But he was an exceedingly robust and normal person about his love-affairs, and so he intended his young hero to be, too. M. Balzac was simply purveyveying to an ancient and universal romantic idea: That the perfect man looks 50 per cent woman.

When, in my most recent straw vote, I asked for replies to the specific problem, "What are drama critics

Cohan's Tour Really Noble Experiment

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

GEORGE M. COHAN, who is to be seen here shortly in his new play, "Gambling," and who, last Sunday, in this part of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, gave his own explanation of what he expects to accomplish on his trip to Hollywood, where he is to direct and write photoplays, needs no spokesman. He has proven in the past that he is capable of doing all the talking (and writing) about himself and his enterprises that may be necessary.

Nevertheless, I am not content to let the matter drop. When a man of the standing of George M. Cohan in the amusement world, joins the ranks of the noble experimenters, and goes most of the N. E.'s one better, by making two experiments instead of one, the situation is one, which, if merely in the category of amazement, calls for more words.

Mr. Cohan stated in his article that he could tell his "message in 50 words—maybe in a 10-word straight wire if I tried. I'm just not going to try." So I could, in one word, "astonishing," and in another, "commendable," condense the expression of my reaction to Mr. Cohan's aims, as stated in his article, if I wanted to. I just don't want to.

Not Money Merely

What are Mr. Cohan's aims, and what is their significance? Now don't all answer at once. You are all wrong, anyway. It is not to get more jack! Remember this matter was referred to above as another of the noble experiments which have the country in their grip. The words, though written lightly with a toss of the head, had no light meaning, for Mr. Cohan's really is a noble experiment. He really wants to help the theater, which he loves. Loves because it always has been his home, from the days when he toured as an infant prodigy, with his parents and sister, as the Four Cohans, and because it, as reward for his own endeavors and capacity, has given him all that comprises the complete answer to material desires.

Mr. Cohan confesses that he is going to Hollywood as a complete convert to the talkie. "Because," he states, "in the future I see Broadway shows, with Broadway casts, exactly as presented in New York, put into talkie form and shown to the smaller communities." That belief explains one part of Mr. Cohan's purpose in going to the film capital, touring there and back with his company and presenting his latest New York dramatic success, "Gambling."

Pessimism is not in my nature, but it is certain that plays "exactly as presented in New York" will have no easy

Foster Day On Apr. 15

By J. FRED LISSFELT

IT is timely and fitting, at the beginning of the New Year, and so near the date of Stephen Foster's death, January 13, to speak once again of the memorial now under way to commemorate America's first important composer of songs. Gov. Fisher, enthusiastically in accord with the monument, has issued a personal and official statement to set aside April 15 as Stephen Foster Memorial Day, to introduce a 10-day campaign for the support of the memorial, which it is proposed to erect to his genius.

A few years ago the members of the Tuesday Musical Club of Pittsburgh conceived a plan whereby our city, the city of Foster' birth, might best serve the memory of this favorite musician. The idea materialized in an edifice, which in dignity and means to serve, embodied the spirit of the enterprise. Public school children through small donations and earnings in their concerts, public spirited citizens and clubs added their contributions to the fund already dedicated by the Tuesday Musical Club, until almost one-third the required $500,000 was in hand or pledged.

Pitt Offers Plot

The University of Pittsburgh, realizing that such a building would enhance the new campus on which is to stand the mighty Cathedral of Learning, offered the plot of ground on which the Foster Memorial might be placed. Encouraged by such a magnanimous offer, and relieved of the financial responsibility of purchasing

Movie Go Round

BY LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4.

AN entirely new field is opening for the foreign-speaking stars. Jetta Goudal, who speaks French and German, is being sought by several studios for the foreign version of pictures that have already been produced. Vilma Banky, who seemed to have no chance at all in the talkies, will be valuable in these foreign versions and so will all the foreign members of the film colony. Ttalking about our foreign friends, I had a cable from Conrad Veidt, also from the Victor Varconis' at Christmas time. What charming people they are, and how much they are missed in Hollywood. I shouldn't be surprised if Emil Jannings came back to America now that there is such an opportunity in these foreign versions. He is such a good actor, and if only he could learn to speak English well. He seemed particularly slow in mastering the language.

RICHARD DIX is going to get married some day if he doesn't look out. Every Christmas he buys a piece of jewelry for some girl and we read that he is about to be married. In the last six years, to my certain knowledge, Mr. Dix has bought gifts ranging from diamond rings, lavallieres, wrist watches, and so on, for some young lady in whom he happened to be most interested at the moment. The newspapers would then print a story of his engagement and nothing ever happened. Of course, this case may be different. He may really be engaged to pretty Maxine Glass. She looks attractive enough from her picture and sweet enough to have any man fall in love with her, but Dick is a cagy boy and the gal that lands him will be smart.

HOW do you think Townsend Netcher celebrated his birthday? I mean in addition to the surprise party that Constance Talmadge planned for him. He went in swimming in the ocean. Imagine swimming December 29. The beach looked like a summer day with people sitting on the sand and not seeming to feel there was any chill in the air. Some 25 of T's and Connie's friends were invited for a buffet supper at their beach house. The Netchers are moving into town until May, although, according to present weather indications, the beach is entirely comfortable. Norma Talmadge, too, has given up her beach house until spring and has moved into town.

WHAT will Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks do next? They were due here yesterday and it is strongly suspected they brought with them a play purchased abroad, but you may be sure it will not co-star them. The dear public clamored for a Mary and Doug picture and since the public must be served we were given "Taming of the Shrew." It is doubtful if anyone who saw this picture will ever again demand that the Fairbankses play together again. Mary is best in her own backyard and Doug is best in his own domain. The woman in this world usually gives and Mary certainly gave in this picture. Doug had so much the best of it that it was hardly fair to Mary.

MANY people think fame breeds boredom and that motion picture stars are so pleased with themselves that they never unbend for a moment. I wish these folk could have taken a peep at a party which I attended last week and could have seen Jack Gilbert and Ina Claire, Corinne Grif-

The Screen and Its Players

DRAMATIC

Song Has Taken Exclusiveness From Screen Romancing Now That Sound Reigns Where Pictures Are Made

By MILDRED FILLMORE

MOVIE love, since the sound screen's arrival, doesn't confine itself exclusively to those romantic clinches such as first put the Garbos, the Gilberts and the Colmans over in a big way. Now, when you expect the hero and heroine to fly into each others arms, they burst into song instead. Which is all very nice if they have musical voices—but which is all quite disheartening if they haven't.

Betty Compson is one of the outstanding examples of film heroines who have gone for the song stuff in a big way. Since the screen found its voice, Miss Compson has found hers. Now no romance of hers is complete without a song or two. Whether she sings all of the songs she supposedly does on the screen is something else again. But we expect she is personally responsible for most of them! Right now Miss Compson is out in the Sheridan Square loving—and singing. She portrays the girl friend of Erich Von Stroheim in a talkie titled "The Great Gabbo." But Von Stroheim lets her get away from him early in the film and he never gets her back. Instead, she marries another fellow and spends much of her time singing love songs and being sung to during the progress of a musical revue, around which much of the plot's dramatic action is twisted.

As for the title character, Gabbo, he is a ventriloquist with a swelled head—said head getting punctured before the fade-out. Von Stroheim, plus his monocle and military clicking heels, is seen in this part.

Kibitzer Makes Screen Debut

"The Kibitzer," an all-talkie, is the new screen attraction in the Stanley. It serves to introduce Harry Green as a featured film comedian. A large supporting cast is on hand to help with the comedy—and, we presume, the romance. Mary Brian is there as "The Kibitzer's" daughter and Neil Hamilton is present as the boy friend. The two-F man, the fat and funny Albert Gran, also is much in evidence. Tenen Holtz and David Newell are among the other players. The picture is an adaptation of the stage play of the same name.

Norma Shearer, who certainly has been treated kindly by the talk screen, is coming to the Penn in a new dialogue film, "Their Own Desire." The story concerns a father who deserts a mother for the other woman and the father's daughter who falls deeply in love with the son of the other woman. Norma is seen in the daughter role. Other players are Belle Bennett, the lady who made "Stella Dallas" the talk of the country long before the talk came to Hollywood; Lewis Stone, ever distinguished looking and capable, and Robert Montgomery.

Some Wall Street Drama

"Wall Street" is the title of the new Harris picture. It is an all-talkie and it has Ralph Ince and Aileen Pringle in the lead roles. Mr. Ince plays a former steel mill worker who invades Wall Street, makes a fortune and later is wiped out by inside slickers. For that he turns the tables on them and breaks one of them. And all of this, in the movie way, leads to a romance between Mr. Mill Worker and the wife of the man he "breaks."

Marilyn Miller is in the Warner, formerly the Grand, in the movie version of her stage success, "Sally." And this, besides being a photoplay, is an answer to all those who have been wondering "what has become of Sally?"

Jack Mulhall, who we just saw making love to Dolores Costello, is a fickle fellow and we now find him out in the Enright going through the romantic gestures with Alice Day in a film titled "In the Next Room."

Across the river—in the Garden—"The Hollywood Revue" for three days—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

As regards the "In the Next Room" picture; it is a combination of mystery and romance. The heroine is trapped in a gloomy mansion and all kinds of things happen. There is a murder and that sort of thing. But the hero arrives and things turn out all right. By the way, comedy is mixed with the mystery and romance.

NORMA SHEARER and Belle Bennett in "Their Own Desire," dramatic film in which Miss Shearer is starred on the Penn screen, beginning Monday.

Jack Oakie Thinks Fun Beats Food

By KENNETH R. PORTER
Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.

THE kid's clever. If he hadn't been, the name Jack Oakie never would have flickered in the foyer lights of a theater.

Jack found, early in life, that a brokerage house was a poor place to peddle humor. He gave his employers very little work and the help lots of laughs. That's why this smart-cracking humorist is now on the screen selling laughs instead of in Wall street selling stocks. Jack's latest appearance is in R. K. O.'s musical play, "Hit the Deck."

His career has been colorful—but try to make him talk about it.

"So you want to interview me for the papers, huh? Well, just tell the folks I'm working," was his first retort. Then on second thought, "Say, I was walking around the studio lot and saw a fella shoveling dirt out of a hole in the ground. He looked up and we spoke. He and I are about the same, ain't we? We're both working.

To Stay "Human"

"Why make a lot of noise over an actor? Everybody thinks because we make our living working in pictures that we ride in Rolls Royces and wear swell clothes. There are plenty in this, like in other professions, who, if they were left without a job, would be 'caught short.' I want to stay human. I don't live in a castle and I'd sooner have fun than eat, although eating is sometimes a lot of fun."

This Oakie guy is real. During off hours he plays around Hollywood in a pair of flannel pants, sweat shirt and tennis shoes. He lives in a modest apartment. One may come upon him in the studio joking with the janitor. Two minutes later he's kidding the office help and then disrupts an executive conference with a wise crack. You can't help but like him.

Says a Few Words

"You know," he starts again, "Paramount studio has

Neil Plays In Thriller

NEIL HAMILTON has been assigned to the role of Phillip Leacock, juvenile lead, in "The Benson Murder Case," William Powell's next starring vehicle and the third of the S. S. Van Dine series to reach the talking screen. This is Hamilton's second assignment this year to a Paramount thriller. He appeared previously in "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu."

HARRY GREEN, comedian from the stage, has the stellar role in the comedy, "The Kibitzer," current photoplay feature in the Stanley.

Year's Best Efforts Not All by Big Stars

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.

LAST week we knitted the brow, put on the spectacles and worked hard to give the 12 best pictures of the year. This Sunday we are going into the matter of the 15 best performances of 1929. You will see we haven't always selected the star of the picture. Sometimes the star's work hasn't compared with that of one of the supporting cast. Sometimes the star's work has been better. Often the best performance hasn't been in one of the best pictures of the year. Each performance has been chosen merely from the standpoint of outstanding character delineation.

I have no doubt we shall have several dissenting votes and some letters taking us to task for ignoring certain pet players. Let me say, too, my memory is not infallible. I may have forgotten someone who is deserving of honorable mention. If so, pardon me.

Well, let's go.

George Arliss in "Disraeli" wins my gold medal. What a performance he gives. The way Mr. Arliss uses his hands is expressive enough to make words seem almost superfluous. Yet the dialogue probably made the picture. The silent version of "Disraeli," you remember, was a pretty sad affair.

Voice, Skill Win

John Barrymore, as the charming but ironic "General Crack," contributed another piece of acting that might well be taken as an example by other players. The Barrymore voice and the perfect enunciation, the subtlety and finesse of Mr. Barrymore's portrayal win our approval.

Will Rogers' humorous philosophy, perfectly natural and delightful in "They Had to See Paris," makes him one of our 1929 candidates. But we cannot give the men all the credit. Let's pause for a moment and discuss Evelyn Brent.

Evelyn Brent in "Broadway," which was by no means one of the good pictures of the year, should go down in history, largely because she made the most of a very small part. She walked away with honors so completely that the principals didn't have a chance.

Ruth Chatterton's "Madame X" must always be remembered. There has never been a more poignant characterization. Her great emotional scenes and her superb delineation of character will be remembered with those of Sarah Bernhardt.

Unique Performance

Marion Davies' French accent in "Marianne" and the manner in which she kept in character deserve highest honors. There has been no performance I can think of that is more unique and more entitled to greater praise. While other stars were trying merely to talk, Miss Davies attempted the most difficult thing in the world, a foreign accent. Not only attempted it, but achieved it superbly.

Bebe Daniels will never forget 1929. How could she, for this is the year that gave her the best recognition of her life. Her performance in "Rio Rita" is without doubt one of the finest things given not only on the screen, but on the stage. As for her voice, it has a lyric quality that will make it possible for her to bring opera as well as drama to the screen.

I could never call "Condemned" one of the best pictures of the year. Nor could I say it will be remembered, but I do say that Dudley Digges, egotistical, whining, unpleasant warden, offers a characterization that has few equals on the screen. What Mr. Digges has been to the Theater Guild plays that he can become to the screen.

Dick Is Decorated

Richard Barthelmess, in "Drag," will please step forward and have his decoration pinned on him. We give him special citation. We also want to commend Jack Holt for his performance in "Submarine" and

Barrymores, Costellos Return Reporter's Talk

By JERRY HOFFMAN
Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4.

"THE Lodges speak only to Cabots, and Cabots speak only to . . ." well, to Cabots, I suppose. If there are enough of them.

Recalling that expression, it appears that New England was rather exclusive regarding its first families.

Being a first family has its disadvantages. People will get rather odd ideas about them. Hence it shouldn't surprise one if the Lodge-Cabot tradition is thus paraphrased:

"The Costellos speak only to Barrymores—and Barrymores speak only to themselves."

Others might say it. I wouldn't.

The Costellos and Barrymores (at least one of the latter) have permitted your humble reporter to address them and have spoken (quite gently, too), in return to him.

Three of Seventy-seven

Take "The Show of Shows" for instance. Surely you can't believe a Lodge or a Cabot would consent to appear as part of a 77-star cast. Yet, the Costellos—Dolores and Helene—and John Barrymore are prominent among those 77. Whether you chose to count the 77 stars or not, the Costellos and the Barrymores appear in it, nevertheless, for art and the Warner Brothers' sake.

For Helene Costello, "The Show of Shows" is a return to pictures. In it she is permitted to do a bit of comedy. Helene should be a comedienne. Anyone who has come in contact with her ready wit, would perceive that immediately. When Helene is ready to make more pictures, she may be given more such roles. At present she is too excited over forthcoming events.

First, there is the wedding being planned for herself and Lowell Sherman early in March. There's another first family for you. What the Cabots and Lodges were to Massachusetts, Sherman, with Barrymore and Costello, rate in Thespia.

The other is what Walter Winchell refers to as a "blessed event," expected by John and Dolores Barrymore in April.

Between the wedding and the "blessed event," the Barrymores and Costellos should have quite a few people to talk to.

ALICE DAY and Jack Mulhall divide the center of interest in the Enright feature film, "In the Next Room."

Thurston and His Magic And 'Paid in Full' Here, With Nixon in Eclipse

P. Harris, treasurer of the museum, to do his act.

Another of the members of that aggregation was the clown Billy Burke, father of the delightful Billie Burke who is now Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld.

Thurston has become considerably more prosperous and proficient since those days, and that also dates from a Pittsburgh engagement in the Alvin Theater, when he first appeared with Harry Kellar, who had picked him for his successor.

He will present some new illusions, which Cyril Yettmah was building under his supervision the last time he was here. The principal one is called "Iasia," and has something to do with the disappearance of a beautiful girl. Thurston causes them to disappear with such recklessness that we wonder where he gets 'em all.

One Drama in Town

Perhaps he just corners the actresses that are temporarily without engagements. This week there is only one dramatic offering at our theaters, the Nixon being dark. George Sharp's Players in the Pitt are reviving that tense drama that George Broadhurst wrote just after the reign of Augustus Thomas and Clyde Fitch. "Paid in Full" was the first of the small-cast and high-pressure plays that thrilled us with new possibilities. Then Edward Locke wrote "The Climax" with four characters, and Roi Cooper Megrue wrote "Tea for Three" with one less, until it began to look as if plays would be written for one hermit with a telephone.

"Paid in Full" is a tense and powerful drama. It will give Gus Forbes a great chance, and will give the new leading woman, Edith King, her first real opportunity. She has shown such fine potentialities that it will be interesting to see what she does in this terrific emotional part. Harland Tucker and other popular members of the cast are relegated to somewhat minor roles this week.

But just think of it—only one dramatic offering in town the week after New Years! If you want to see actors and a play, the Pitt is your refuge. But there will be talking pictures and gorgeous stage presentations in the Penn, the Enright and the Stanley, as usual, and vaudeville with the screen feature in the Harris. Thurston may have to be called on to use his magic wand for the restoration of the vanishing drama.

No dinner is complete without its bridge tables and there are experts, too, among the stars.

DURING the holiday season the Hollywood homes are thrown wide open and one gets more of a peep into family life than at any other time. Ruth Chatterton has one of the most charming homes in Beverly Hills, an English house furnished with antiques in a style becoming an English country home. Ruth is one of the stars who is particularly interested in her home and seldom appears at any large social function. The Chatterton-Forbes house, for Ruth and her husband, Ralph Forbes, occupy this huge house, is located near the Conrad Nagel and Sydney Franklin homes, and during the holidays the trees bordering the walk are all gay with colored lights.

BESSIE LOVE'S radiant smile when she walked to the altar at St. James' Church is giving our brides a new idea. Heretofore, they looked downcast and duly subdued. Bessie wore a smile on her face that wouldn't come off and it was so refreshing because she seemed to be having such a good time. Her bridegroom, not be outdone, turned around as she came to the altar and gave her just as beaming a smile as she gave him. Of all the Hollywood weddings, Bessie's stands out for its beauty. St. James' Church, lighted with tapers, was romantic enough to be used in a movie. Never was there a more interesting bevy of bridesmaids with Bebe Daniels, Blanche Sweet, Norma Shearer and Carmel Myers. Other well-known movie stars gave the bridal party special distinction.

German Company To Offer Opera

THE German Grand Opera Company, soon to appear in Pittsburgh, numbers more than 100 artists, including principals, chorus and orchestra from the leading opera houses in Europe. All productions will be staged with new scenery and costumes, designed and furnished by Theaterkunst Herman J. Kaufmann, of Berlin. The operas chosen for Pittsburgh are: "Siegfried," for Wednesday evening, January 22, and "Gotterdammerung," Thursday evening, January 23. The roster of principals includes Mme. Johanna Gadski, Juliette Lippe, Isolde von Bernhard, Merran Reader, Sonia Sharnova, Mabel Ritch, Karl Jorn, Johannes Sembach, Rudolf Ritter, Gotthold Ditter, Richard Gross, Carl Braun and Werner Kius.

Broadway Gives Joan Tea Party

By BLAND JOHANESON

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.

THEY have given a tea party for Joan Bennett. It isn't like the old days. No beautiful woman who hadn't an accent and a European reputation and a tricorn hat ever rated a tea party in the old days. But talking movies have changed everything, including the qualifications of a guest of honor. So New York has had the unique experience of attending a tea party for a New York girl, English speaking, American clothed, who was going out to do big things in the movies.

The youngest Bennett is here, resting on the laurels of a "Bulldog Drummond" and "Disraeli" reputation, and the finances of a Goldwyn contract, for a brief vacation between pictures.

Estelle in Gotham

Estelle Taylor is here, in the new role of a vaudeville headliner at the Palace. Lillian Roth is here, telling her old vaudeville friends how she loves the movies. John Considine, Jr., is here, looking for plays. Roy D'Arcy, with the truth, is present in the new capacity of a Manhattan night club proprietor. June Clyde is flashing her dainty legs on Broadway. Harry Richman is back, going to work as a Brooklyn master of ceremonies. Malt St. Clair is on his way east to direct Paramount's next Astoria picture. Kathryn Carver is preparing to sail for France and a reunion with Adolphe. Gilda Gray is attempting a comeback in Paramount shorts. Marilyn Miller, now a movie star, is honoring first-nights. The Hollywood visitors give a very dressy air to Broadway, which still wears last year's knee-length evening wraps.

Save the Drama!

Now the drama defenders have started something. All the loyal theater figures who put a "w" in the word "drama" are coming out with voluntary diagnosis of the poor art's decline. Some are bright enough to suggest better plays to combat the growing importance of the movies. Some merely say "the cultured people always will go to the theater." Some suggest selling theater tickets for the same price for which a customer can see a better movie. But as yet, the movies still monopolize Broadway and the ticket speculators still recommend them when an out-of-town visitor gags on the dreary list of legitimate attractions.

The New Year is bringing a change to the scale of box office prices. It looks as though the robbery of $2 movies were on the decline. Radio is showing "Rio Rita" at ordinary box office tariff at the Globe. Warners are putting "No, No, Nanette" into the Strand for continuous showing at popular prices without the preliminary whoop-la of a $2 run. Predictions are that you'll soon be able to see a good movie for a dollar before it has grown whiskers during a forced "special" run.

Allison Skipworth is the latest Broadway start to heed the jingle of the Hollywood voice. She will go West to play in M-G-M's version of "The Circle." Lionel Atwell is going movie. Chic Sale also. Jimmy Durante has had a flattering offer after the previews of "The River Inn." Marguerite Padula has signed with Radio. Paul Specht, the band favorite, is heroing in an Eastern-made film. Bori, herself, has taken off 10 pounds and they do say there's a sound camera awaiting the close of the operatic season.

Frederick Stock To Conduct Here

FREDERICK STOCK, who will celebrate his twenty-fifth anniversary as conductor of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra on January 12, wil be in Pittsburgh with the orchestra on Monday evening, January 20, for a concert in Syria Mosque, under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Orchestra Association. The program wil be: Overture "Fingal's Cave," Opus 26, Mendelssohn; Arioso from the Passion according to St. Matthew, Bach (arranged for string orchestra by Mr. Stock); Symphony No. 4, D Minor, Opus 36, Tschaikowsky; Suite for Orchestra, Opus 19, Dohnanyi, and Rhapsody, "Espana," Chabrier.

Community Music For Sunday Night

A COMMUNITY concert will be presented in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement at 8:15 o'clock this Sunday night. The performers will be Leah Colker, pianist; Don D'Alberti, tenor, and Eugene Reichenfeld, violinist.

good for?" I heard things like these:

To bark at the heels of fame. To spare other drama critics' plays. To wisecrack over wisdom. To stick their feet in the middle of the aisle at every first-night. To leave their cigaret stubs burning on the varnish of every theatrical reputation. To compose slogans for ash cans and twaddle for "Vanity Fair."

Gas Log Backfires

Toddling over to the nearest fireplace I strewed all these expressions of Broadway's appreciation on the flaming logs. They were old-fashioned gas logs, though, and they blew up with a black bang. I could not blame them.

Then, about three days after all these others, in came one kindly little note. Somewhat cool and timid, but still kindly. It neither praised nor buried drama critics. In its sad little way it wanted only to explain them—and the need for them.

"Well," said this single good-natured greeting, "for nothing much except to say the things the public is too lazy to say about second rate plays. Too polite to say to the faces of fourth rate players. To be the public's butler and show failures to the door. To be—and to get—the goat of all concerned."

Now, at last I knew why I had had that momentous election to the Association of World's Most Useful Citizens, and why I had been chosen to share its letter-head with such lesser personalities as Mussolini and Einstein. And now, at last, the inevitable New Year's resolution: To be everybody's better and better goat!

Publix Unit For Stage in Stanley

ON the Stanley stage Dick Powell is presenting the first Publix Unit to play that house. It is titled "Mardi Gras." The show features the Four Ortons, a quartet of musical clowns, supported by Dorothy Neville, a personality songstress; the Two Gobs, comedians, the Four Harmonists and Helen and Charles Royal and the Fred Evans Girls. Powell croons popular songs, accompanied by the new Stanley band. On the screen "The Kibitzer" is the talking attraction. Bernie Armstrong remains at the organ and David Broudy directs the Stanley orchestra.

Stage in Harris To Have Chorus

RADIO WEEK, now being observed in the Harris, is the first of the Anniversary programs Victor Graff is presenting. Also it marks the innovation of a Harris chorus called The Co-Eds, a group of girls who will present a different routine each week, trained under the watchful eye of Brian McDonald, the master of ceremonies at the Harris Theater in McKeesport, and the versatile Graff. Keith vaudeville includes Owen and Mahon, funsters; Frank X. Silk, comedian, and Moore and Horton, dancing boys. The screen feature is "Wall Street."

Birthday Revue Enright Feature

THE Enright is celebrating its first birthday with Jay Mills presenting "First Gala Anniversary Revue" on the stage. Mills does a special dance number and also appears in a number with Betty Veronica, personality girl. Entertainers include Hart, Whitestone and Polly, a comedy team, and Harriman, Swan and Lucille, a trio that offers a novelty routine. "In the Next Room," a mystery romance, is on the screen. Frank Roberts is at the organ.

time making their way to popularity on the talk screen. The screen is essentially a medium of action and shifting scenes. The modern stage play has three scenes at most, often only one, in which all of the dialogue takes place. The stage is not mechanically competent to elaborate the settings that come with interesting rapidity on the screen. And the screen just will not, and cannot successfully be tied down to one, two or three scenes. The screen vehicle still is a moving picture—a MOVING picture.

Few Scenes, Action Dull

The first all-talkie, interesting principally because it was that, "Lights of New York," hailed as significant because of the possibilities it revealed, also disclosed that its limited number of scenes made action dull. Not long ago we saw Ruth Chatterton in one of the best talkies yet, "The Doctor's Secret." Yet it was not presented exactly as it was on the stage. Its variety of scene made it a moving picture, and its dialogue and action took up about an hour. On the stage it was a one-act playlet of about half an hour's duration, set in one scene. Also recently, we had "The Gold Diggers of Broadway," based on the Avery Hopwood farce, "The Gold Diggers."

The stage farce had few scenes. Although it was funny on the stage, it undoubtedly would have been sad on the screen had it not been jazzed up with the off-stage scenes that were used as musical comedy background for the original Hopwood story. And that is another that was not done exactly as it was on the stage. Still another is the recent Fairbanks-Pickford shrew-taming experiment with Shakespeare.

Not to Be Snubbed

This, however, is not to speak in disparagement of Mr. Cohan's purpose. Mr. Cohan is Mr. Cohan, and had he been discouraged by snubs, he never would have been the boy wonder of the stage. Had he been discouraged by kidding, the American flag might be as little known today as it was before the boy who was born on the Fourth of July wrapped its folds about him and said to the world, "Here WE are." But Mr. Cohan is not easily discouraged. And if he sees possibilities in the talkies, we are willing to await the outcome and pass judgment later. The purpose alone, betterment of the theater, still makes it a noble experiment.

As stated, Mr. Cohan is not merely in pursuit of jack. Or of the greater intimacy that exists between the screen favorite and the movie audience, an intimacy not less real because it is in shadow instead of in substance. There is no doubt that he could have obtained both long ago. Men like George M. are not overlooked by the astute movie-makers. And he was not overlooked. He has appeared in silent pictures and has been importuned to appear in talkies. No, it is more than gold that lures Mr. Cohan to Hollywood.

Georgie, as stated, is going to act all the way to Hollywood and probably all the way back. He will not reach Hollywood until spring and likely will not arrive back in New York before fall.

"I am doing two things with one stroke," he says, "learning the new conditions on the road and learning something from the inside about the production of talkies. In six months I'll know if what has long been in my mind has a feasible working plan."

Perhaps Mr. Cohan will tell us more about his experiment when he comes to the Nixon with "Gambling" the week of January 20. That week he also will present his new play, "Sporting Blood," at three special matinees, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. This will be the premiere—first time on any stage—for this play, and Mr. Cohan will not act in it. He will direct it and speak about it before the curtain. Perhaps he may have something to say, too, about his inspection of that great territory known as "the road" and of Hollywood. It promises to be an interesting week.

SINGER

ROLAND HAYES, Negro singer, will appear in the Carnegie Music Hall Tuesday night.

Thurston Magic Comes to Alvin

THE ancient art of "Now you see it and now you don't" will be demonstrated once more on the stage of the Alvin when Thurston, magician, opens his twenty-fourth annual engagement here Monday. Among illusions this season are "The Mystery of the Whippet," "Iasia," "The Million Dollar Mystery," "The Magic Box Revue," "The Army and Navy Forever," "Pandora's Box," "The Mystery of the Bathing Beauties," "The Tubes of Tubal" and "The Mystery of the Blue Boxes." A feature of the program is the appearance of the magician's daughter, Jane, who will be seen in a magic act with her father and a dancing act of her own. Matinees will be Wednesday and Saturday.

Foster Day On Apr. 15

land, the committee called for the architect, and the plans are now under consideration.

A group of young women singers from the club, dressed in the costumes of Foster's day, have arranged a program of Foster melodies, and are already in great demand throughout the country. They earn their contribution to the building fund, and spread the gospel of Foster. It is hoped now that clubs and lovers of these unforgettable melodies may be enlisted to help in the cause and send their pledges.

Gothic Structure

The original sketch for the building reveals a dignified Gothic structure, exceedingly refined in its simplicity, and worthy to stand next to the Carnegie Institute, the building of the Board of Public Education, and other edifices of the growing civic center. Within are to be recital hall, club rooms, and small and cozier meeting rooms. It is to be a rendezvous for musical activities, not ever a monument in stone.

We in Pititsburgh are awakening more and more to the slogan so necessary in our modern rush: "Lest We Forget!" How fairly we can begin at home to contribute to the memory of one of our great sons!

'Paid in Full' Drama in Pitt

EUGENE WALTERS' "Paid in Full," will be the George Sharp vehicle in the Pitt, opening Monday. The story relates how a weakling husband steals from his employer and then blames his act on the extravagance of his wife. The wife goes to the apartment of the employer, to plead for her husband. She finds the employer to be a retired sea captain, of the type that laughs at such things as woman's virtue. In it there are parts for Edith King, Harland Tucker, Gus Forbes, Alice Ann Baker, Hugh Banks, Robert Fiske and the rest of the company.

New Loew Shows On Debut in Penn

MONDAY marks the opening of the new Loew's stage shows in the Penn, coming here direct from the Capitol Theater, New York. The first of these presentations is "Fan Fancies." Features include a chorus of Chester Hale Girls, Sunshine Sammy of "Our Gang" comedy fame, who appears with his two kid brothers in a song and dance skit; Olive Sibley, songbird, and Emile Boreo. Nat Nazarro, Jr., will act as master of ceremonies for the first two of these stage presentations to be seen here.

Announcing Loew's New Pioneer Movement

A NEW note in stage productions for de luxe motion picture theatres is to be struck when the first of the new Loew's Stage Shows coming direct from the Capitol Theatre, New York, arrives at Loew's and United Artists' Penn Theatre tomorrow.

These productions, staged under the personal supervision of Louis K. Sidney, will feature such renowned masters of ceremonies as Dave Schooler, Lou Holtz, Wesley Eddy, Teddy Joyce, Nat Nazarro, Jr., Bobby Gillette, Ken Whitmer, Bert Frohman, Ted Claire, Allen Rogers, Leon Navaro and Al Evans.

Traveling intact with their own technical staff, and with the same master of ceremonies remaining with each production throughout its entire tour of the circuit will make for more finished performance at all times, and will bring you the same gorgeous costuming and lighting effects that have made the Capitol Theatre famous the world over.

Another feature of the new Loew's stage shows will be the inimitable Chester Hale Girls, who have played such a great part in the success of the stage presentations of the Capitol Theatre, New York.

The first Capitol Theatre presentation to be seen here will be "Fan Fancies" which comes to Loew's Penn beginning tomorrow, Monday, January 6th.

"Flight." Mr. Holt is especially worthy because he stepped out of character and played something new and did it well. He can now divorce himself from horse operas. Maurice Chevalier in "The Love Parade" puts a new value on light comedians. There is something about M. Chevalier that defies explanation, but he is an artist to his finger tips and one that will do much for motion pictures.

Gloria Swanson added new laurels to her crown in "The Trespasser." Miss Swanson sang and spoke and was so feminine and natural and so exquisitely real that she made an ordinary story valuable.

Chester Morris, in "Alibi," one of the first of the talkies, gave a screen villain "It" and started something new. Warner Baxter in "Old Arizona" took himself out of the class of ordinary leading men with his dashing performance and accent, and achieved one of the undeniably outstanding performances of the year.

Bessie Love, in "Broadway Melody," has justly won plaudits all over the country. Hers was a performance that was history-making in that she played in one of the first of the successful talkies after having almost vanished from pictures.

There are other splendid performances, too, but these above mentioned seem to me to be the most outstanding.

Enright Offers Mystery, Talk

MYSTERY and romance are combined in the current all-talking film in the Enright. It is titled "In the Next Room." Jack Mulhall and Alice Day are cast in the featured roles. They appear as an engaged but estranged couple reunited by a common danger. Through a mysterious chain of circumstances, the heroine is trapped in a lonely mansion and the hero trails her to the house. A murder is committed, but the culprit is undetected. The police are called in, but the man who is detailed to the case proves more of a hindrance than a help. On the stage Jay Mills presents "First Gala Anniversary Revue."

FEATURE

MARION DAVIES is featured in a specialty number in "The Hollywood Revue," Garden film.

New Title For Del Rio

DOLORES DEL RIO started her first United Artists all-dialogue picture as "The Bad One," with Edmund Lowe, and then became "A Sailor's Sweetheart," with Edmund Lowe. The famous star is still a sailor's sweetheart (in the story), but she's again "The Bad One," and it's still with Edmund Lowe.

Which means that John W. Considine, Jr., general production executive at the United Artists studios, announces that the permanent title of the George Fitzmaurice production is "The Bad One." And he promises there won't be any further switching of titles.

Based on a story written by John Farrow, adapted by Carey Wilson and dialogued by Howard Emmett Rogers, "The Bad One" gives Miss Del Rio the most daring and originally different vehicle of her career, it is said. The star's all-dialogue role also affords her an opportunity to sing a new Irving Berlin melody, "To a Tango Melody," written especially for her, and to dance. Considine and Fitzmaurice are acclaiming a "new Del Rio," who, they predict, will win millions of new admirers in a colorful story laid in the cosmopolitan part of Marseilles.

Supporting Miss Del Rio and Lowe are notable screen and stage figures, including Don Alvarado, Ullrich Haupt, Mitchell Lewis, Yola D'Avril, Adrienne d'Ambricourt, Raoul Paoli, Harry Stubbs and Victor Potel.

Air Film Nears End

"HELL'S ANGELS" will make its world debut on Broadway, in the George M. Cohan Theater, within the next 10 weeks. The Western premiere will follow shortly thereafter, and subsequently the film will be road-showed throughout the country.

The multi-million-dollar air thriller, produced and personally directed by Howard Hughes, president of the Caddo Company is finally and actually nearing completion, after approximately three years in the making.

The last shot, a battle scene in which exactly 1,700 ex-soldiers participated, has been filmed, and the picture is now being cut and edited for public showing.

Norma Shearer Talkie in Penn

NORMA SHEARER'S new all talking picture, "Their Own Desire," comes to the Penn Monday. The supporting cast is headed by Lewis Stone, Robert Montgomery, Belle Bennett and Helen Millard. The plot of "Their Own Desire" concerns itself with Lally, played by Miss Shearer, whose parents are on the verge of matrimonial rupture. When Lally unexpectedly encounters her father in the arms of an acquaintance, she rushes her mother off to a summer resort while the father makes preparations for a divorce. While at the resort, Lally meets and falls in love with Jack and promises to marry him, only to discover that he is the son of her father's new love. In the film Miss Shearer displays athletic talents in polo and in swimming. She also appears as a pianist in a number called "Blue Is the Night."

Warner Screen Presents 'Sally'

"SALLY," starring Marilyn Miller, is the current all-talking, all natural-color film in the Warner Theater, formerly the Grand. The picture has been adapted to the screen from the stage success of the same name and has Miss Miller in the same role she essayed on the stage. The plot concerns a Russian grand duke who became a waiter and a waitress who became an actress. Joe E. Brown, stage and screen comedian, is in the cast.

Play Group Plans Drive

THE board of managers of The Little Theater of Pittsburgh, which last week succeeded in securing quarters, announces that Little Theater Lane will be officially dedicated during National Drama Week in February. Lewis H. Abel, executive vice president of The Little Theater, was appointed by the board of managers to act as general chairman of the membership drive, which The Little Theater in Pittsburgh will launch the third week in January. Officers of The Little Theater are: Dr. Earl John Cox, president; Lewis H. Abel, vice president; Miss Rose Bell, secretary, and Fred T. Loeffler, treasurer. The organization, which is a consolidation of all the play-producing groups in metropolitan Pittsburgh, has as its objective "producing plays non-professionally, and giving Pittsburghers the opportunity of appearing in them."

Start Work On 'Lincoln'

DETERMINED to start active preparation for his all-talking feature, "Abraham Lincoln," D. W. Griffith, United Artists producer-director, has returned to Hollywood from New York, accompanied by Stephen Vincent Benet, the noted poet, who will write the dialogue and continuity.

En route from the East the producer and writer were never idle a minute. Except for meals and short sleeping hours, the two were constantly at work grinding out and dictating the interminable words that are to make the romantic screen story of the real Abe Lincoln.

The story, when finished, will be similar to the one originally conceived by Griffith, with the exception that a brief portrait of the assassin, John Wilkes Booth, will be screened in the action to emphasize through symbolism the high idealism of Lincoln's character.

Benet, who was signed to a contract during Griffith's short stay in the East, is one of America's literary figures. He has written numerous volumes of poetry that are already considered classics. His "John Brown's Body" is said to be the greatest achievement in contemporary letters. It sold to the extent of 150,000 copies and won its author the Pulitzer prize, the Yale prize, the Teneyck prize and other awards.

Signs Girl In Europe

DARRYL FRANCIS ZANUCK, associate executive of the Warner studio, while vacationing abroad, signed to a long-term contract a European actress. Her name is Lotti Lodi and she speaks seven languages fluently. She recently arrived in this country with Mr. and Mrs. Zanuck.

Although Miss Lodi is a native of Vienna, Mr. Zanuck found her singing in a cafe in Budapest. She is 19 years old and is described as possessing beautiful features, a perfect figure and a dynamic personality.

In spite of the fact that Miss Lodi had never before been in a motion picture studio, the screen and voice test which Mr. Zanuck arranged for her was a success.

Five Songs By Berlin

THE five new Irving Berlin songs which Al Jolson will sing in his next Vitaphone production for Warner Brothers' "Mammy," are "To My Mammy," "Looking at You," "Let Me Sing," "Knights of the Road" and "Here We Are." In addition, during the story's action, Jolson will sing "Southland," an older Berlin number, bits of the first great "Mammy" song, "The St. Louis Blues," "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby," and a new parody chorus of "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

"The Great Gabbo" Is Sheridan Picture

"THE GREAT GABBO" continues as the film feature in the R-K-O Sheridan Square. James Cruze directed this independently-made picture. Erich Von Stroheim is starred in the title role and Betty Compson is the featured support of the star. "The Great Gabbo" is a ventriloquist, whose supreme egotism and encompassing selfishness, make him abominable. His mannikin, through which he speaks, expresses his better side and around this unique quality is woven a story laid against the moving background of a big musical revue. Among the song numbers are "Haha I'm Laughing," "I'm in Love With You," the "Web of Love" and "Ickey."

Garden Booking In Screen Revue

"THE HOLLYWOOD REVUE," featuring 25 principals and a chorus of 200 persons, will be presented on the Garden talk screen Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The film Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be "Taming of the Shrew," with Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks.

OPERA

ERNEST KNOCH, Wagnerian opera conductor, will direct the presentations of the German Grand Opera Company in Syria Mosque January 22 and 23.

Aldine Retains Colman Picture

"CONDEMNED," Ronald Colman's latest starring vehicle, has been held over for a third week in the Aldine. The film setting is Devil's Island, the French penal colony; the stars are Ronald Colman, Ann Harding, Louis Wolheim, and Dudley Digges, and the authors are Mrs. Blair Niles, who wrote the book, and Sidney Howard, who adapted it to the screen. Colman is seen as a dashing French convict who falls in love with the mistreated wife of the warden of the prison on Devil's Island.

Anniversary For Harris

THE Harris, Saturday began a series of stage presentations which are to be offered in celebration of the thirty-second anniversary of the Harris Amusement Company's founding. The current production is called "Radio Station WCAE Week." The second presentation will begin on Saturday, January 11, with a production called "Circus Week." The third week, beginning January 18, will bring "Spanish Nights," and will be followed by "A Trip Around the World" on January 25, and "Sidewalks of New York" on February 1. There will be feature films on the screen.

'The Kibitzer' Stanley Film

THE all-talking film on the Stanley screen is "The Kibitzer." Harry Green, Neil Hamilton and Mary Brian are cast in the featured roles. "The Kibitzer" is based upon the Broadway stage comedy of the same name by Joseph Swerling and Edward Robinson. The title character can tell why a horse lost a race, why stocks went up, how to play pinochle, why the Yankees lost, but he's never in there risking his own money. Green, comedian of both the stage and screen, portrays this role. Miss Brian and Hamilton handle the romantic love theme. On the stage, Dick Powell presents "Mardi Gras," the first Publix Unit to play the Stanley.

Harris Picture Is 'Wall Street'

COLUMBIA'S "Wall Street," all-talking drama of love and finance, is the screen feature in the Harris. The plot centers about a captain of finance who started life as a humble steel worker. By overpowering energy and a policy of utter ruthlessness, he forces his way to the top of the financial world. The plan he lives by is to take everything he can get in the world, and if it comes from an enemy it is so much the sweeter. Not until he is humbled to the dust by the woman he loves does he see light. Ralph Ince and Aileen Pringle have the leading roles.

Jack Oakie Thinks Fun Beats Food and Brokers

been broadcasting a national radio program the last few months and every week they jump me to say a few words. There's nothing like the personal feeling of one's voice over the air, so when I run low on conversation I say a few words about my sister in Brooklyn. Sis likes it. Next day I got a telegram, collect. Oh, I've got fans all right—in the family."

So it is with this playboy, whose chief aim is to get a laugh out of life.

He has his serious moments. Aside from having numerous other attributes, he's a real pal to his mother, who lives in Hollywood with him. She's as deft at clever banter as her son and when told as much, in defense came back:

"Well, Jack is Oakie, too."

Guest Soloist In Koch Program

THE free organ recital by Dr. Caspar Koch in Carnegie Hall, North Side, this Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock will offer Joseph Williams, bass, as guest soloist. Lyman Almy Perkins will play the accompaniment. Among the organ numbers will be a new transcription by Dr. Koch, now in course of publication, from Mozart's "Magic Flute."

Chamber Music For January 12

THE Pittsburgh Chamber Music Society will present the Yost String Quartet in the second concert of the season on January 12 in the Hotel Schenley ballroom. Martha Eaton Brickman, soprano, will be the guest artist. The program follows: Quartet, Op. 12, Mendelssohn; Triptych for voice and string quartet, Arthur Shepherd and Quartet, Frederick Jacobi.

ROPING the NEWS - by Will Rogers

'Even Santa Claus Has Changed'

WELL all I know is just what I read in the Papers. Well lets see what we got to "Blather about" this week end. I know you all had a fine Xmas and New Years. Those that dident have it will have it on "Roshashona and Yomkipper."

Take it all around everything passed off pretty good. Xmas is getting kinder like one of our old time western dances. They wait till the dancing is all over and then they sorter sweep out to see how many was left laying around. We are killing off some mighty good citizens with our Xmas cheer and it has been discussed quite openly as to whether the whole thing was worth the tallow or not.

Since Santa Clause has been pretty thoroughly disscredited by even our Babe's in Arms, and on account of Xmas cost to everybody, there has come up in this country quite a wide movement to just let the yuletide go by default. Of course in the old days when the Democrats were at their Zenith, and the old Reindeers and the Jingling Bells were considered official, why then there was cause for all this. But now when they dress up some poor old fellow as Santa, why the Kids gets one peep and him and say, "Oh, look at the old Geeser trying to fool the old folks."

THATS the trouble with the whole thing. Kids are getting too wise. Why I was a big old chuckle-headed Nestor maybe 10 years old before I really even suspicioned that our old friend of the long whiskers wasent delivering into my stocking every Xmas morning the sack of candy, horn and cap pistol. But nowadays you start asking a Baby "What he wants Santa to bring him." and he will bounce his empty nursing bottle off your bean.

In other words we just aint fooling nobody, and are buying a lot of stuff and giving it to folks that dont understand why you was so half-witted as to get that particular object. It was the last thing on earth they would want.

In fact we ourselves have gotten so wise that even when we are buying it for them we know it wont suit, but the etiquette of Xmas tells us that we must get them something. Of course the whole thing started in a fine spirit.

IT was to give happiness to the young, and another holiday to the old, so it was relished by practically everybody. It was a great day, the presents were inexpensive and received with much joy and gratification, and it was a pleasure to see the innocent little souls as they rush down to the big room with the fireplace on Xmas morning in their bare feet, and generally the back of their little sleepers unbuttoned and a-dragging.

They remembered right where they had hung their stocking, and they dived into it with great glee and anticipation. No matter what they dug out, it was great, it was just what they wanted him to bring, for they had confidence in him. The merest little toy was a boon to their young lives, and what a kick it was to the parents to have them rush back up to the bed room and show you "what Santa Brought."

Then the Mother would finally venture down and look into her big-top stocking to see what the sly old Father had deposited during the night. Maby it was just more cotton stockings. Maby it was a new "Sofa." Maby it was a new Axe for wood splitting. Maby a hot water bottle. But whatever it was it was the most acceptable thing in the world. It was just what she wanted her man "to get her."

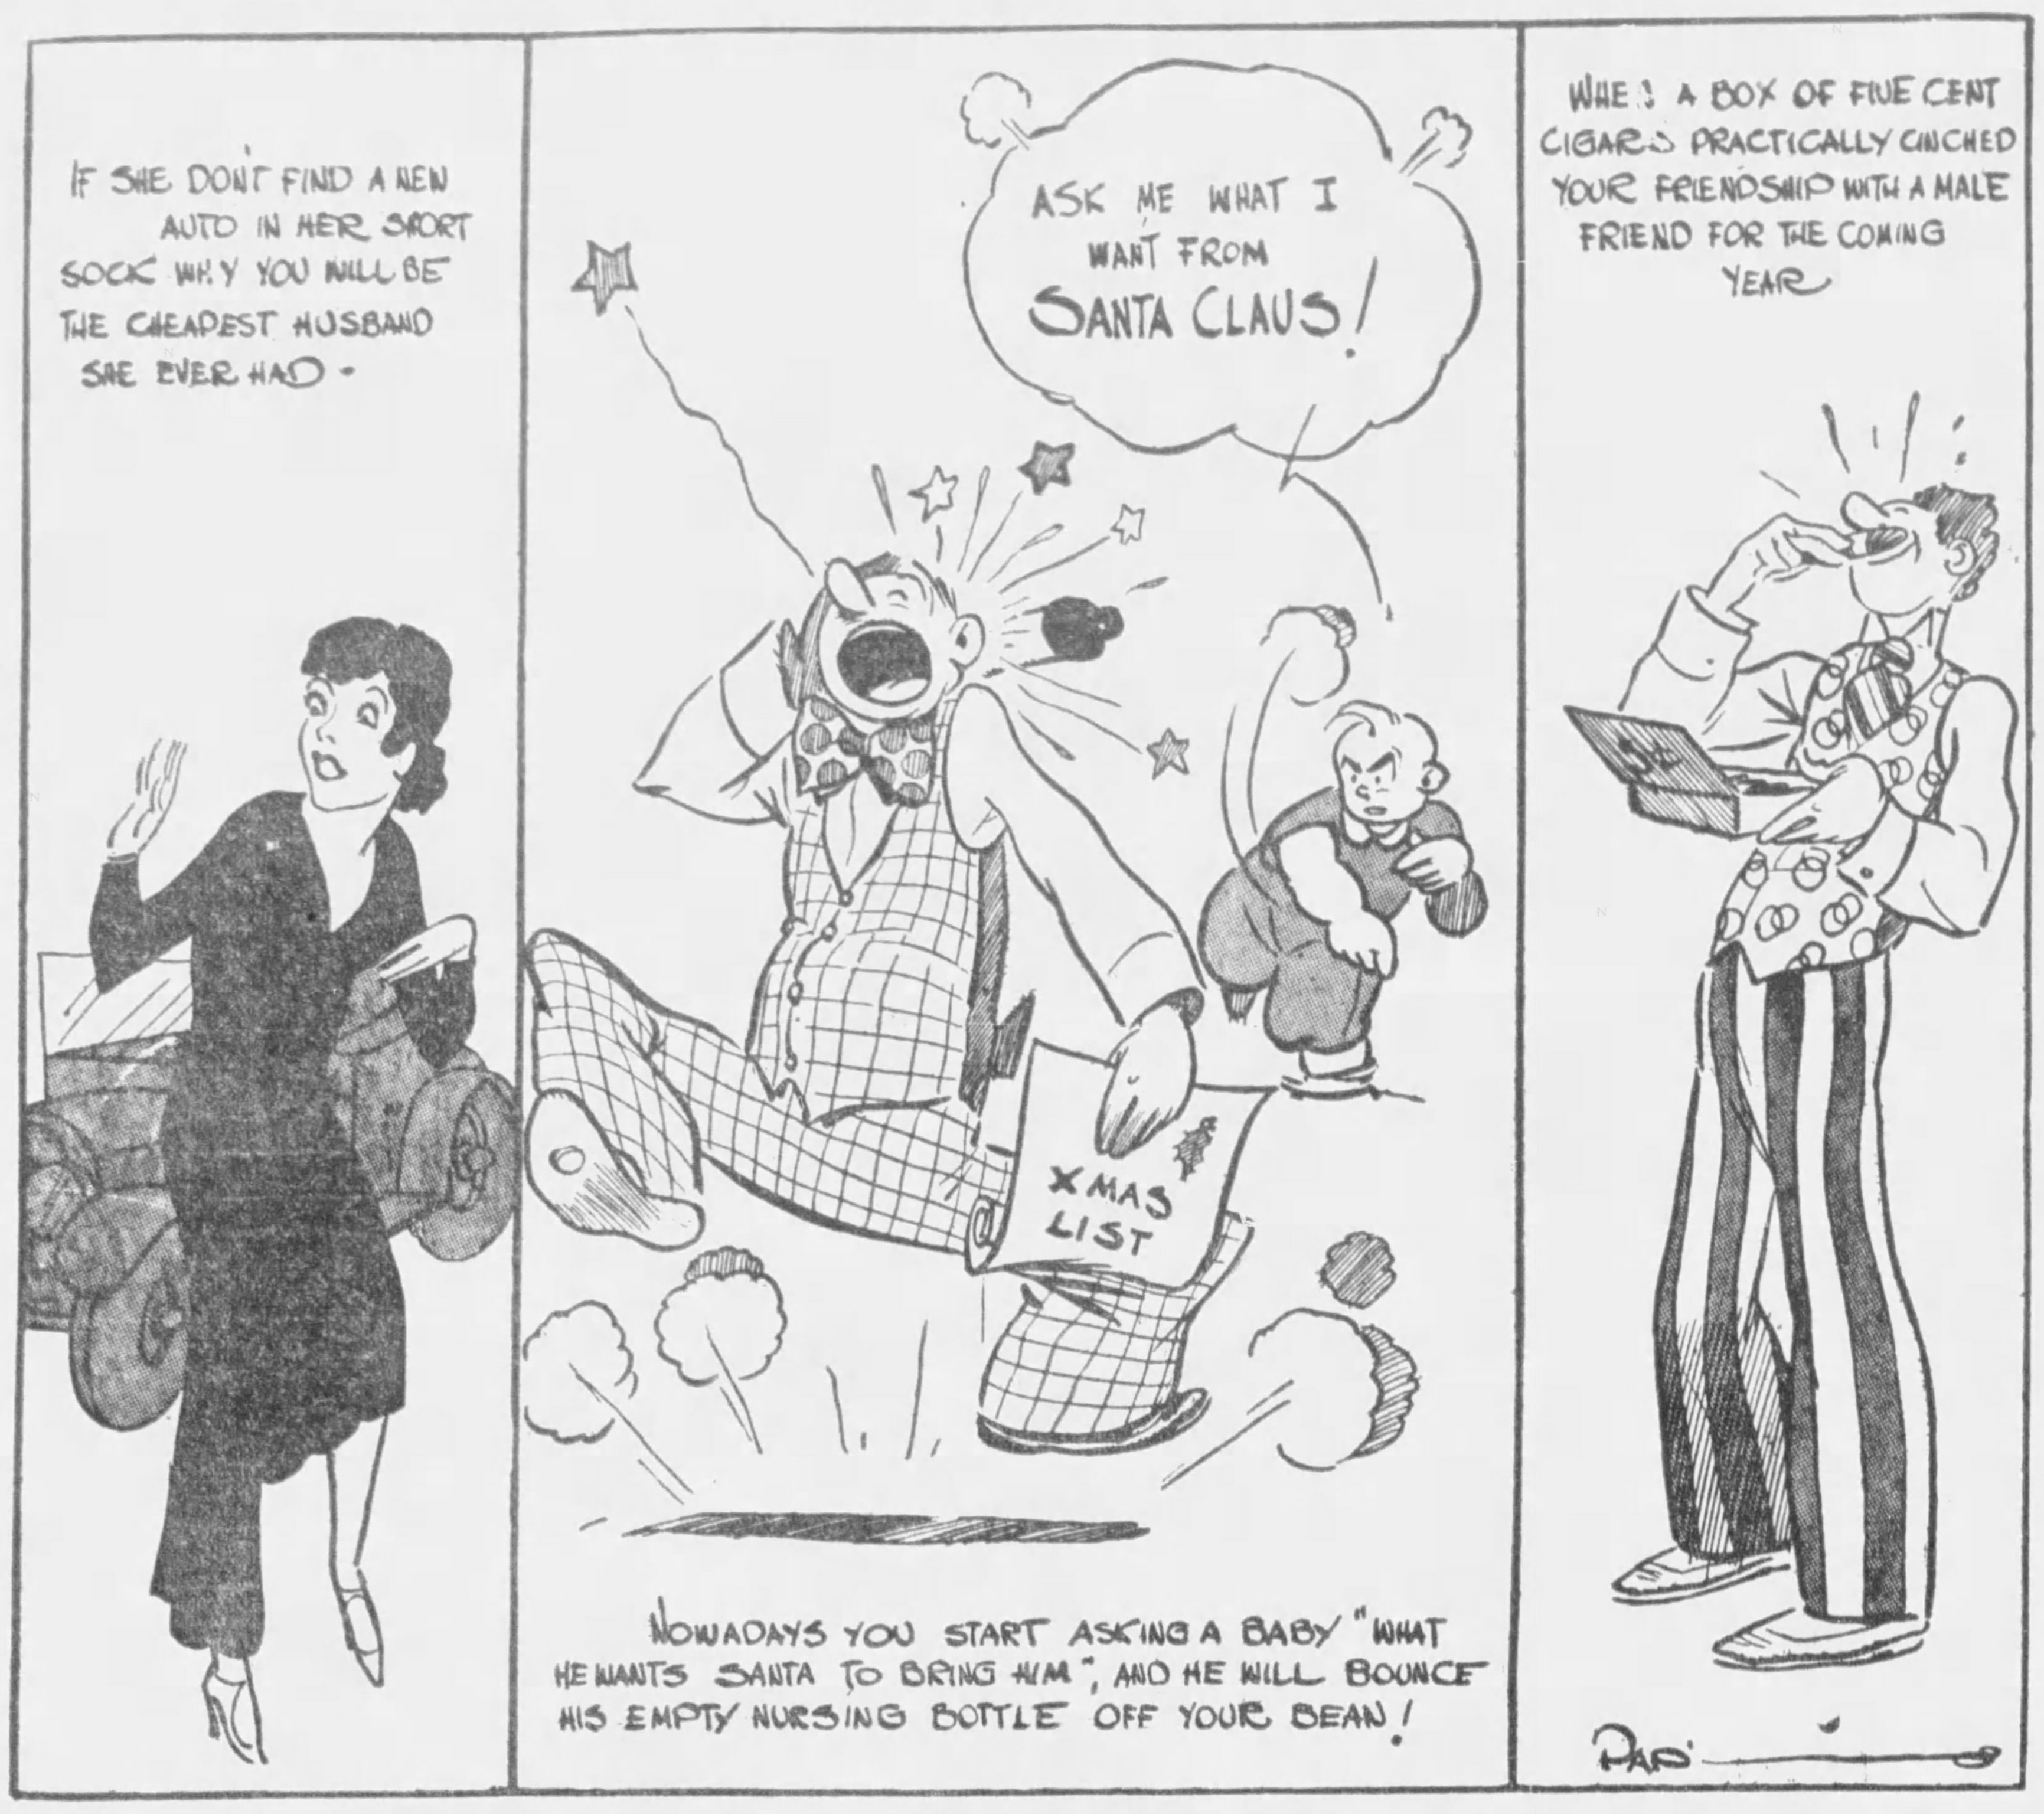
AH! them was the days lads! When you could satisfy em with a squirrell Muff, and a box of five cent Cigars practically cinched your friendship with a Male friend for the coming year. Then they talk about Civilization. Say there aint no civilization where there aint no satisfaction, and thats whats the trouble now, nobody is satisfied.

In the old days where a nice crayon Picture would be just the thing as a present, why now an unborn Lamb would be unaccaptable. They would wonder why you dident send Mink.

And a Wife, why she will sneeze at a good car. If she dont find a new great Auto in her short sock why you will be the cheapest husband she ever had. The whole prospectus of the thing has changed. We not only dont believe in Santa Clause, we don't believe in anything, and the Kids say they don't care anything about a "Train that will run if you wind it up." They want an Aeroplane that will Fly, and NOT wound up either.



IF SHE DON'T FIND A NEW AUTO IN HER SHORT SOCK WHY YOU WILL BE THE CHEAPEST HUSBAND SHE EVER HAD - ASK ME WHAT I WANT FROM SANTA CLAUS!
XMAS LIST
NOWADAYS YOU START ASKING A BABY "WHAT HE WANTS SANTA TO BRING HIM", AND HE WILL BOUNCE HIS EMPTY NURSING BOTTLE OFF YOUR BEAN!
WHEN A BOX OF FIVE CENT CIGARS PRACTICALLY CINCHED YOUR FRIENDSHIP WITH A MALE FRIEND FOR THE COMING YEAR
PAP

YOU start talking about sending them a ten-cent horn that will blow and they want a Saxaphone that will annoy, and as for a Cap Pistol and a dozen boxes of caps, why say, he wants a machine-gun. He has read about Chicago. A Football? "Is it regulation?" If its not, you are wasting your time giving it. They know better than you do. If its a Girl Baby and you are sending some pink Sachet Powder you are all wet again. The "She" infant will rise up and demand an overnight bag, some Nose paint, and a lip stick, and when they get it they will examine the brand.

So you just wonder sometimes if the ones who want to abolish Xmas are not about half right. Everybody faces it with "Oh, my goodness, Xmas is coming, and how I dread it!" Then you decide "The whole thing is the bunk and I will just send cards." Then about three days before Xmas you commence to get a few little boxes and remembrances from alleged friends, and you say, "I can't do this. I have to return something."

THEN out you go at the last minute to round up some tokens for friends who in your heart you curse for sending you anything, so the whole thing is an uproar from about Thanksgiving on.

In fact thats what they have Thanksgiving for, its your last day of peace for that year. I sometimes think some bright merchants are not really taking advantage of their opportunities.

Suppose along about a day or so after Xmas the merchant went to each house and said, "Now this is confidential, but what did you get for Xmas that you dont want and what do you want in cash for it"? They buy it in for ten cents on the dollar, they hold it over and sell it to some simp the next Xmas, and you are ten percent ahead. But anyhow its worth thinking about, this doing away with it. It would be all right if we could again believe in Santa Claus. But our smartness had defeated our own happiness.

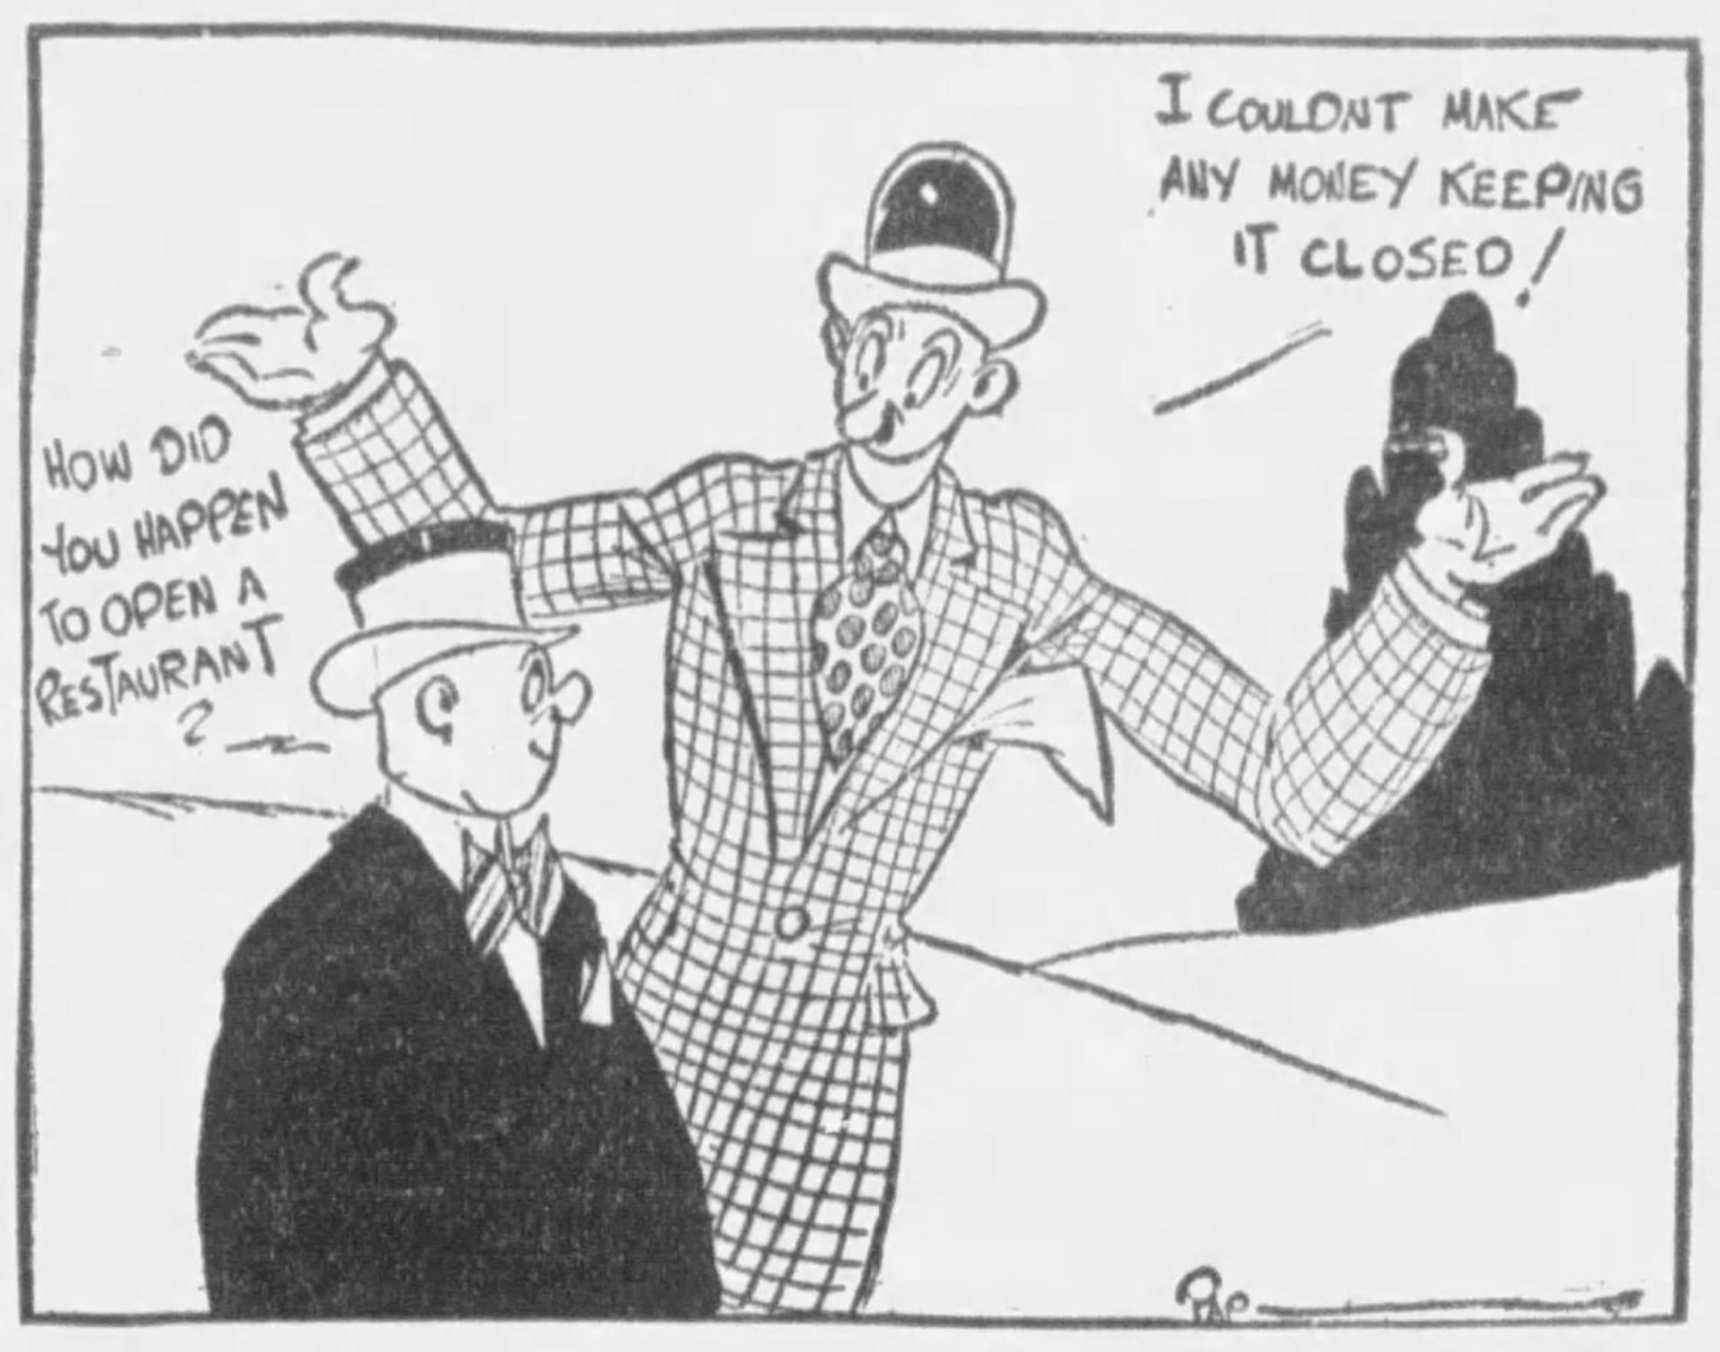
Mutter and Mumble

By J. P. Medbury



HOW DID YOU HAPPEN TO OPEN A RESTAURANT?
I COULDNT MAKE ANY MONEY KEEPING IT CLOSED!

MUTTER — Well, Mr. Mumble, I understand you've gone into the cafe business.

MUMBLE—Yes.

MUTTER—How did you happen to open a restaurant?

MUMBLE — I couldn't make any money keeping it closed.

MUTTER—I mean, why did you open your own place?

MUMBLE—It was the only one I had a key to.

MUTTER—Do you know anything about meals?

MUMBLE—I ought to. I've been eating for 37 years.

MUTTER—Do you go in for special dinners?

MUMBLE—Certainly. It wouldn't look right if I went out for them.

MUTTER—Have you had any difficulty obtaining help?

MUMBLE—No. but I've had lots of trouble getting customers.

MUTTER—I hear you've got a college professor working in the kitchen.

MUMBLE—Yes, he reads proof on the alphabetical soup.

MUTTER—Somebody was telling me that you specialize in hash.

MUMBLE—You're crazy. I don't even know what hash is.

MUTTER—Well, what do you call it when you put meat and potatoes and onions together?

MUMBLE—A merger.

MUTTER—How many waitresses do you keep?

MUMBLE—About one.

MUTTER—What do you mean, about one?

MUMBLE—About one out of ten.

MUTTER—Do you find that your girls get married very often?

MUMBLE—No. The same as anybody else—three or four times.

MUTTER—Do you serve a nice clientele?

MUMBLE—Sure, if it's in season.

Famous Detective Mysteries

By DAMON RUNYON

Modern John Alden Is Helped

ONE of the most unusual, and at the same time one of the most remunerative cases, amount of labor considered, that I ever handled for the Eagle Orb Agency, was the John Alden affair, as I always call it, for reasons that I will presently make clear.

There came to the office of the Eagle Orb Agency one afternoon an extremely well-groomed young man. He wore a carefully tailored walking suit —dark coat and striped trousers, with spats, and patent leather shoes. He had a gardenia in his lapel, and gray gloves on his hands, and he wore a derby hat, and carried a cane.

HE handed me a card, and as soon as I read the name, Mr. Ferd Anthony Atwater, I was all attention at once and invited him to my private office, because I knew that he must be one of the great department store Atwaters, who are among the business and social kings of this great nation.

"Well," said Mr. Ferd Anthony Atwater, hesitating a little, "I am here on a very private and very confidential matter, indeed. It is an affair of the heart."

"Ah," I said, "a divorce?"

"OH, no," he answered, quickly. "A marriage. I am in love with Miss Annette Paisley. I am deeply in love with Miss Annette Paisley. I am quite mad over Miss Annette Paisley. I have been in love with Miss Annette Paisley for y'ahs."

"You mean Miss Annette Paisley?" I remarked.

"Yes," he said. "You have heard of Miss Annette Paisley?"

"Of THE Paisleys?" I inquired. "The Meadowbrook Paisleys?"

"Quite," he replied.

Of course I had heard of the Paisleys. Old man Paisley is one of the richest bankers in America, and I had often seen Miss Annette Paisley's picture in the Sunday rotogravure sections of the newspapers, mounted on a horse leaping a high fence, and not a bad looker at that. I mean Miss Paisley.

"I wish to marry Miss Annette Paisley," the young man continued.

THAT is all I wanted to know, so I requested him to wait in an ante-room until I drew up some preliminary papers. Then I turned to the Long Island telephone book and found the Paisleys' number, and inside of five minutes I had Miss Annette Piasley herself on the phone. I rather liked the full round tone in which she said "Hello."

"Hello, Miss Paisley," I said jocularly. "Who do you think this is?"

"Santa Claus," she answered, quickly, showing that she was very brisk at repartee.

"Tis is nobody but your old friend, John Alden," I said, "speaking for Captain Miles Standish."

"I have no old friend named John Alden," she replied, coldly, "and I never heard of Captain Miles Standish. You must have the wrong number."

"Don't you remember the old poem?" I asked, "about John and Priscilla and Capt. Miles?"

"I do not read poetry," she said. "Is that all?"

"WELL, listen, Miss Paisley," I said in my best professional tone, seeing that she was unresponsive to my jocularity. "This is the Eagle Orb Detective Agency, and I am Operative T-99. A client has come to us requesting some very important information. That is, it is important to him. You can furnish us with this information. Miss Paisley, will you marry Mr. Ferd Anthony Atwater?"

There was a silence at the other end of the phone for as long as you could count three, very fast, and then her full, round voice came floating into my ear, as follows:

"Would you?"

"Pardon me," I said.

"Would you?" she repeated.

"Hold the line a moment," I said and putting down the receiver, I tiptoed to a door opening into an ante-room, where Mr. Ferd Anthony Atwater waited, and, opening this door very slightly, I peered in at our new client.

He was sitting there with the handle of his cane in his mouth and his eyes registered practically nothing whatever. I closed the door very softly, tiptoed back to the telephone and spoke briefly into the receiver.

"The answer is 'No,' I said and hung up at once.

MR. FERD ANTHONY ATWATER seemed somewhat dejected when I reported back to him that I feared his quest was hopeless, but he wrote out his check for $5,000 quite promptly and said he would recommend the Eagle Orb Agency to any of his friends who might need detective service, and two days later, when I saw in the papers that Miss Annette Paisley had eloped with her father's head groom, I sent her a bill for $5,000 for professional advice, which she paid without comment.

GERALDINE FARRAR LIKES TO LISTEN TO HURDY-GURDIES

Canyon Idea Utilized for Houses

THE Spanish type of California bungalow sparkles in the sunlight like a tomato surprise.

It is a delicate form of tropical architecture and the only plans you need are a red tile roof on a cracker box.

There is nothing more beautiful than red roofs when you are looking for parking space.

Homes in the movie colony are subject to change without notice. Doug Fairbanks started one epidemic when he built a six-guest garage in La Poolooka Canyon.

A poet once wrote that he would like to live in a house by the side of a road. In two weeks the joint was a hot dog stand.

Doug had the same idea of being exclusive. He thought: "I will build my igloo factory in the heart of a canyon. My only neighbors will be the jack-rabbit and the owl. When spring comes round with denatured breath I will look at the stars through Rudy Vallee's megaphone. Nature is serene and only man has broken arches. I like the Spanish type of architecture.

"The roof is flat and makes a fine card table."

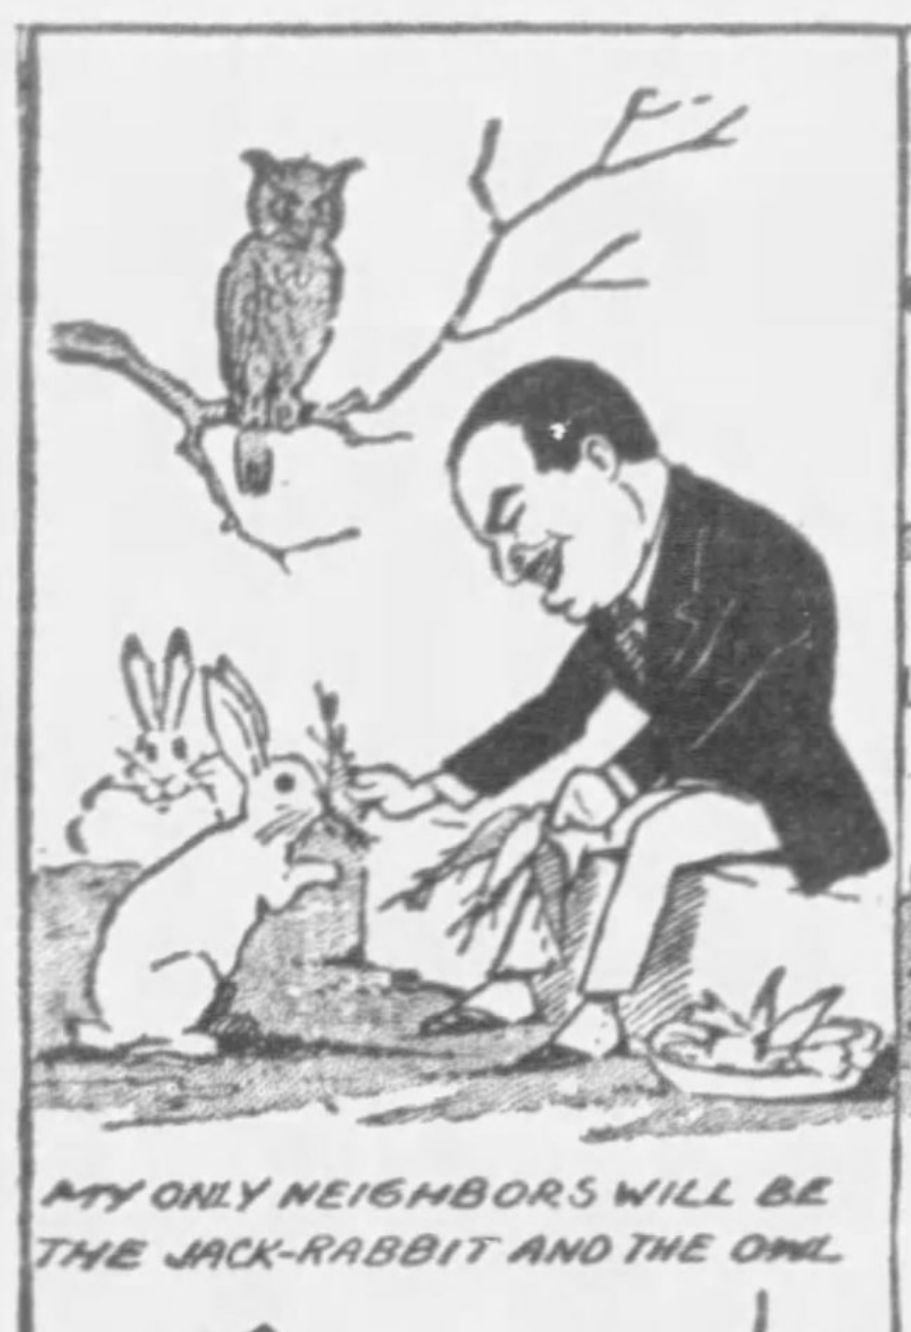
JUST about this time the backfields of seven hundred college football teams graduated with bruised honors and went into the real estate business.

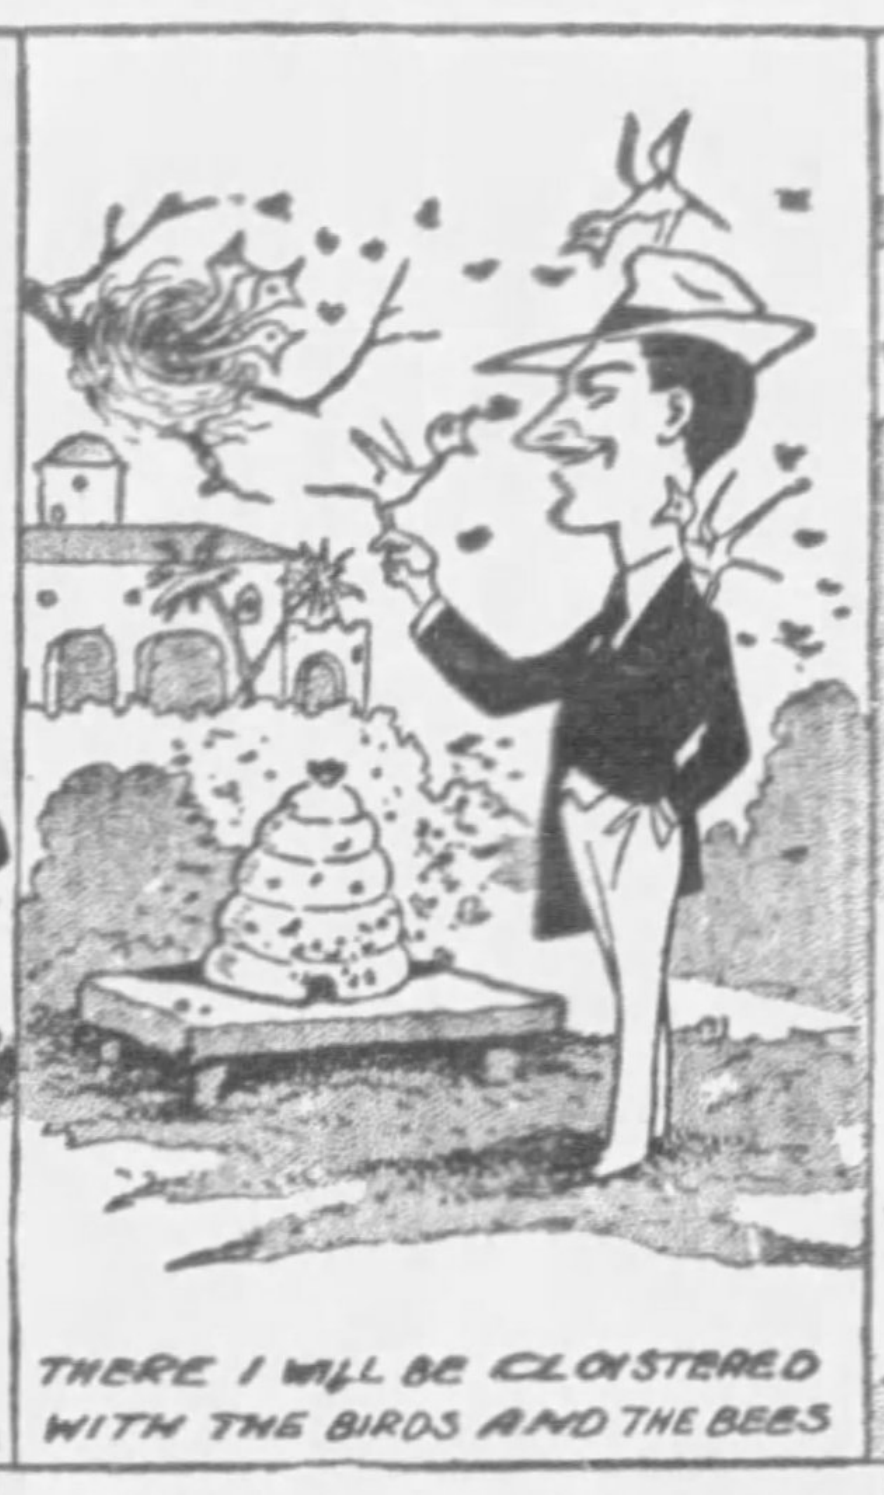
The firm of Jones and Climate got busy and inside of a week Doug's exclusiveness was busting its seams. There were thousands of quiet Spanish bungalows in La Poolooka Canyon.

There were so many homes in the canyon that some of them were pushed out.

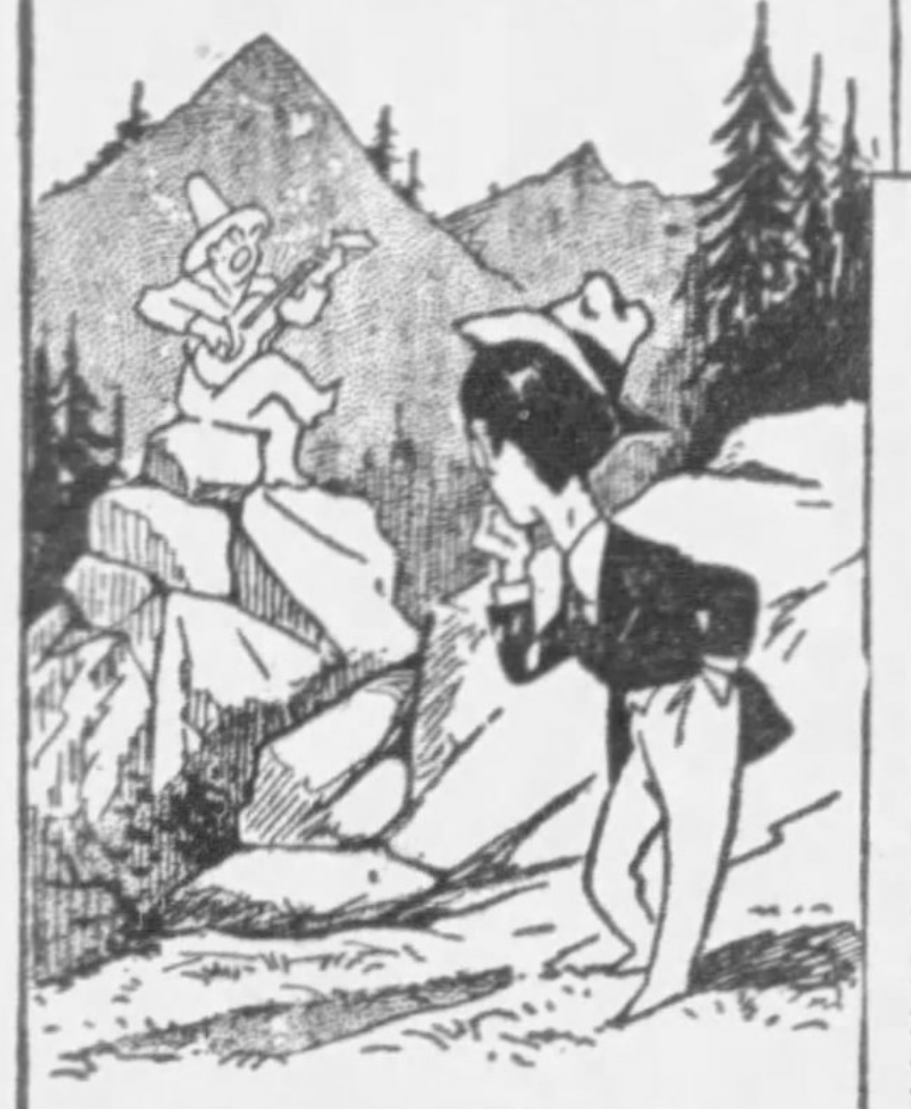
John Gilbert got aboard the gravy train and decided: "Well, Doug can't be a hermit in a duplex cave. I think I will trump the canyon idea and build my power house on a hill. There I will be cloistered with the birds and the bees and the sunshine will bathe me in its refracted rays."



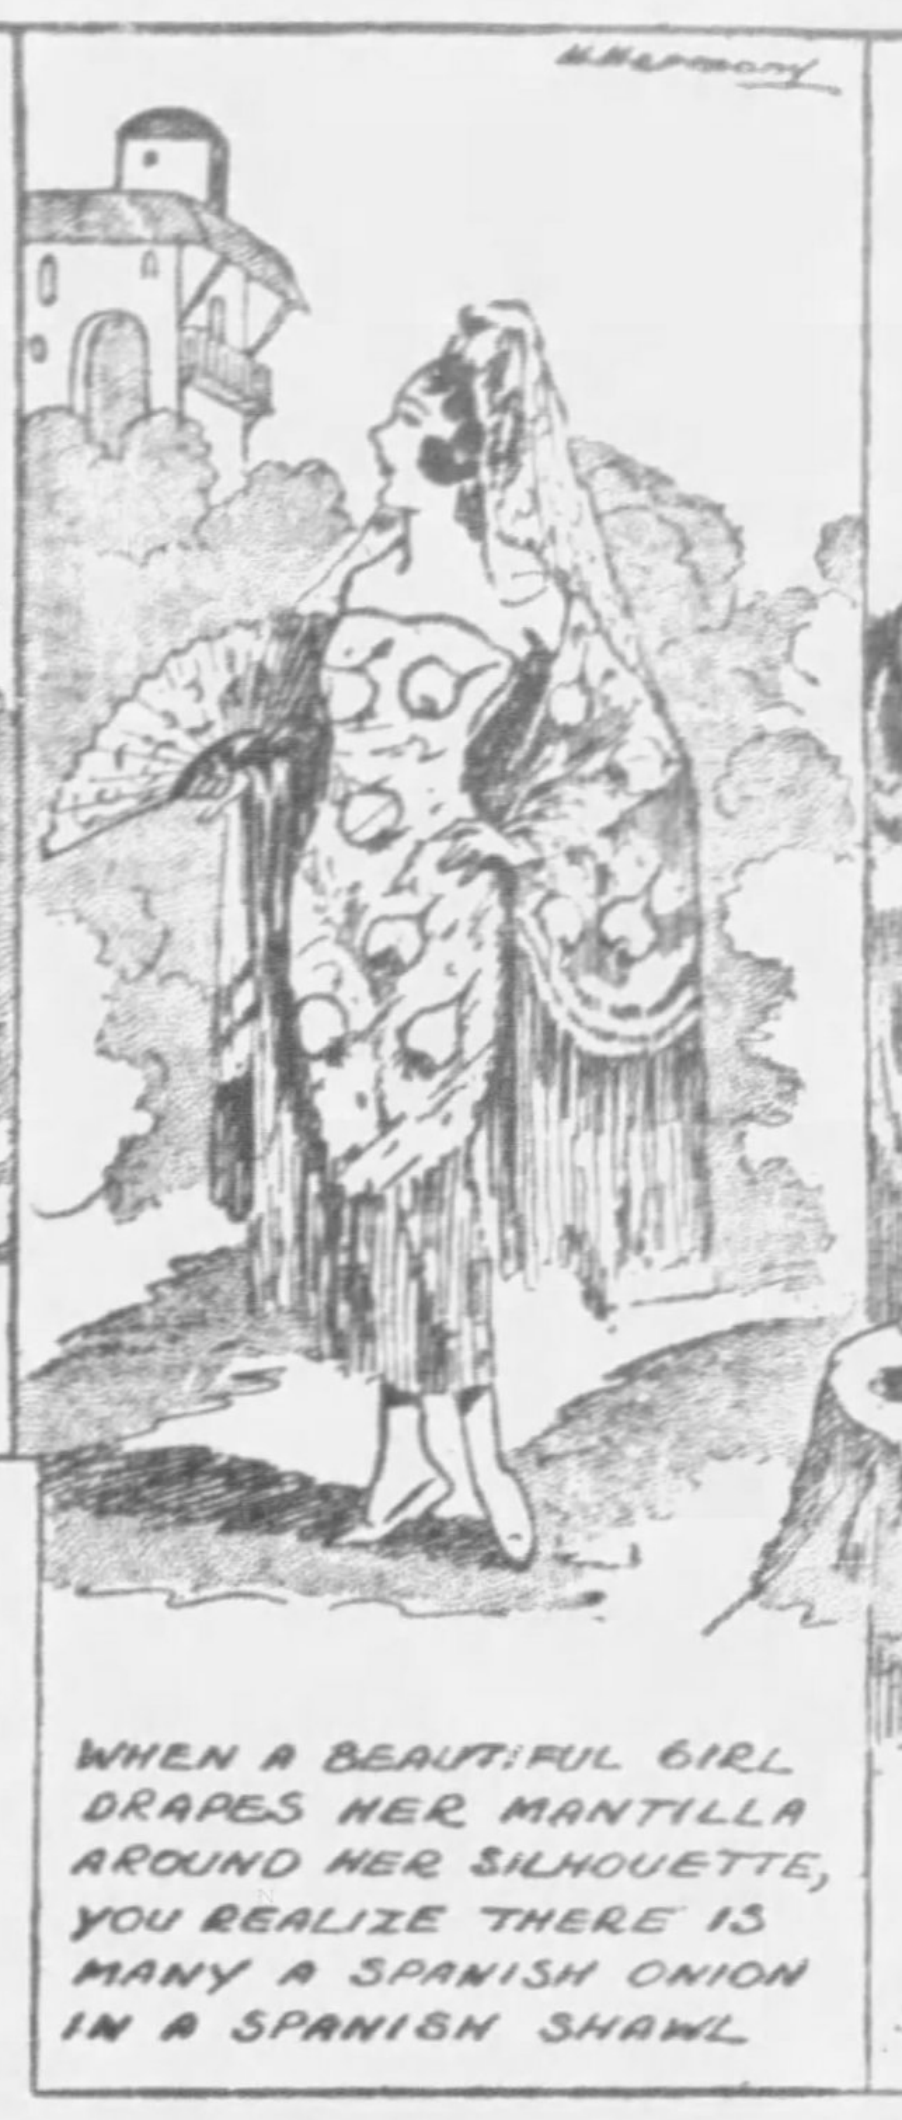
MY ONLY NEIGHBORS WILL BE THE JACK-RABBIT AND THE OWL



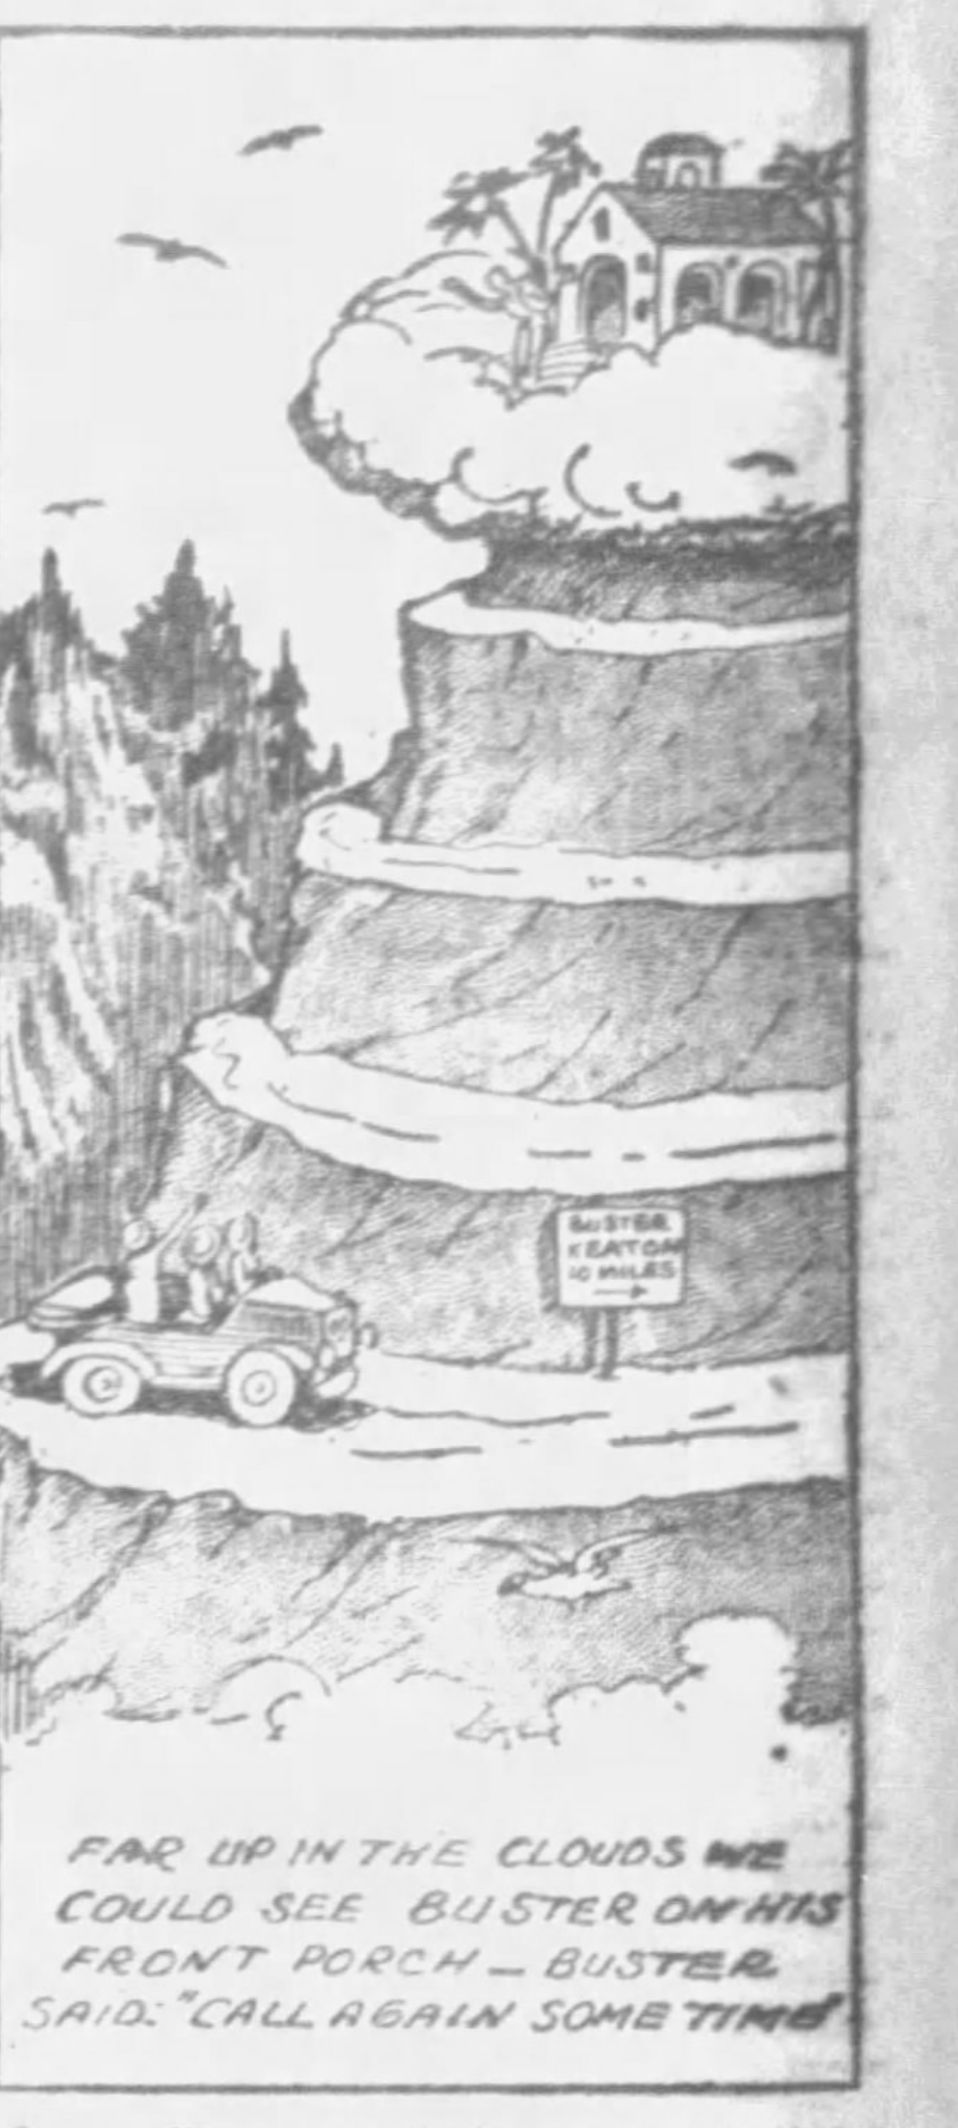
THERE I WILL BE CLOISTERED WITH THE BIRDS AND THE BEES



JUST THEN HE HEARD A SPANISH SONG



WHEN A BEAUTIFUL GIRL DRAPES HER MANTILLA AROUND HER SILHOUETTE, YOU REALIZE THERE IS MANY A SPANISH ONION IN A SPANISH SHAWL



FAR UP IN THE CLOUDS WE COULD SEE BUSTER ON HIS FRONT PORCH—BUSTER SAID: "CALL AGAIN SOME TIME"

John nibbled the thought awile and said, "Yep, that's a good idea even if I did think of it."

To fumble a long story a little longer, John picked out a mountain in the Hollywood Hills and built a home of the Spanish type on the top. When he woke up in the morning and balanced his profile against the window, all he saw were the wooded hills and the mountain tops.

JOHN said to himself, which is very close work, "This is great. Doug's silent valley has been wired for sound. But my view is glorious. Incidentally, the scenery would be marvelous if the mountains weren't so rough. It looks like very poor housekeeping to me."

Just then he heard a Spanish song and thirty-three homes popped up on adjacent hills. Today there is a Spanish bungalow on every hill in California, and when a beautiful girl drapes her mantilla around her silhouette, you realize there is many a Spanish onion in a Spanish shawl.

Well, one word led to another, as it always does when you least expect it. In order to reach your blueprint heaven on top of the hill you have to drive a total distance of eleven miles around a mountain.

You are home for thirty-five minutes before you get there.

We drove up to call on Buster Keaton in Iberian chateau on Mezzanine Terrace. His home is fifteen hundred feet above the rent level.

FAR up in the clouds we could see Buster on his front porch. He waved to us, and the front wheels waved back. We wound around and around so much that our sox unraveled.

Each round trip brought us three feet higher, and the completion of each individual carousel we could see Buster waving us a welcome.

Finally, we twisted high enough to talk to Buster. He said:

"Call again some time."

We yelled, "Why we ain't there yet. Have you turned Spanish hospitality into an omelet of the same name?"

We still had 200 more right turns left in the gasoline tank.

THAT took us down to the garage which was at the foot of the mountain. When you call on a Spanish bungalow in the clouds, you say, "Good morning."

Then you take your car back to the garage and your host returns the visit.

We had our choice of steering the car back to Buster's Espanol bungalow again or leaving it in the garage or writing a souvenir postcard. The last is the best because you don't have to depend on your parachute opening up.

We don't know whether we called on Buster or not. The Rockefeller Institute of Research had discovered that you use the same waving motions of either a hello or goodbye.

We may call again. We may not. The last we heard of him was that he had picked out a higher hill.

ONCE OVERS

By O. O. McIntyre

Odd Scolded By Wife of Chinese

THIS interesting letter just received seems worth passing on:

"I am the American wife of a foreign born Chinese and I challenge any woman on the globe to match my life for happiness. Naturally I resent that depressing and sepulchral suggestion in that reference of white wives of Chinese living in 'mausoleums of lost hope' voiced in a recent column.

"Too bad I should find cause to chide my favorite columnist. You provide my daily mental stimulant. You and a cup of coffee are quite enough to start the day with a smile, but this time I am highly indignant.

"There are already to many narrow, ignorant minds eager to grasp at the straws of prejudice to save the wretched life of some ugly tradition about inter-racial marriages.

"I have been married seven delightful years. Do you consider that too short a time to venture an estimate of one's husband?

"Physically, my husband is typically Chinese. He has a heart of gold and a purse that is never closed. He speaks very little English. Knowing the blood-sucking tendencies of certain types of my fellow countrywomen, I deemed it wiser and infinitely safer to learn his language than teach him mine.

"Instead of feeling either degraded or disgraced, I am honored to have won the love of so princely a man—and I come of no lowly family. I am a college woman and I believe that my powers of discrimination are sufficiently cultivated to recognize worth where and when I find it.

"My Chinese husband has friends up and down across the world. He is a royal entertainer and a great philanthropist. His unusual personal charm makes him loved by all, Chinese and Americans alike. He is tender, kind and considerate. His continuous flow of gifts to me is a standing proof that he never takes me for granted. I sincerely believe that God never fashioned a more loveable human being than he.

"Perhaps there are white wives of Chinese who are unhappy. Not all Chinese are good Chinese. Neither are all Americans good Americans. Because there are so few white women who have dared to cross the line, those whose ventures have proved unfortunate stand out like death's heads—horrible examples of 'Thou shalt not!' to all who may be tempted. But what about statistics of unhappy American marriages? They are too appalling to dwell upon.

"So the next time you have occasion to refer to the white wives of Chinese, don't suggest such all-inclusiveness, for here at least, is one white wife who wouldn't trade the little finger of her Chinese husband for ten dozen of the biggest, finest and best white men in all the world.

"THE WHITE WIFE OF A CHINESE."

NEW YORK has never before seen such bargains in expensive furs as this season. The market slump hit this industry hardest of all. Jewelry, strangely enough, was not so badly hit. A $500,000 diamond necklace was a Christmas gift to a stage star from an admirer, incidentally.

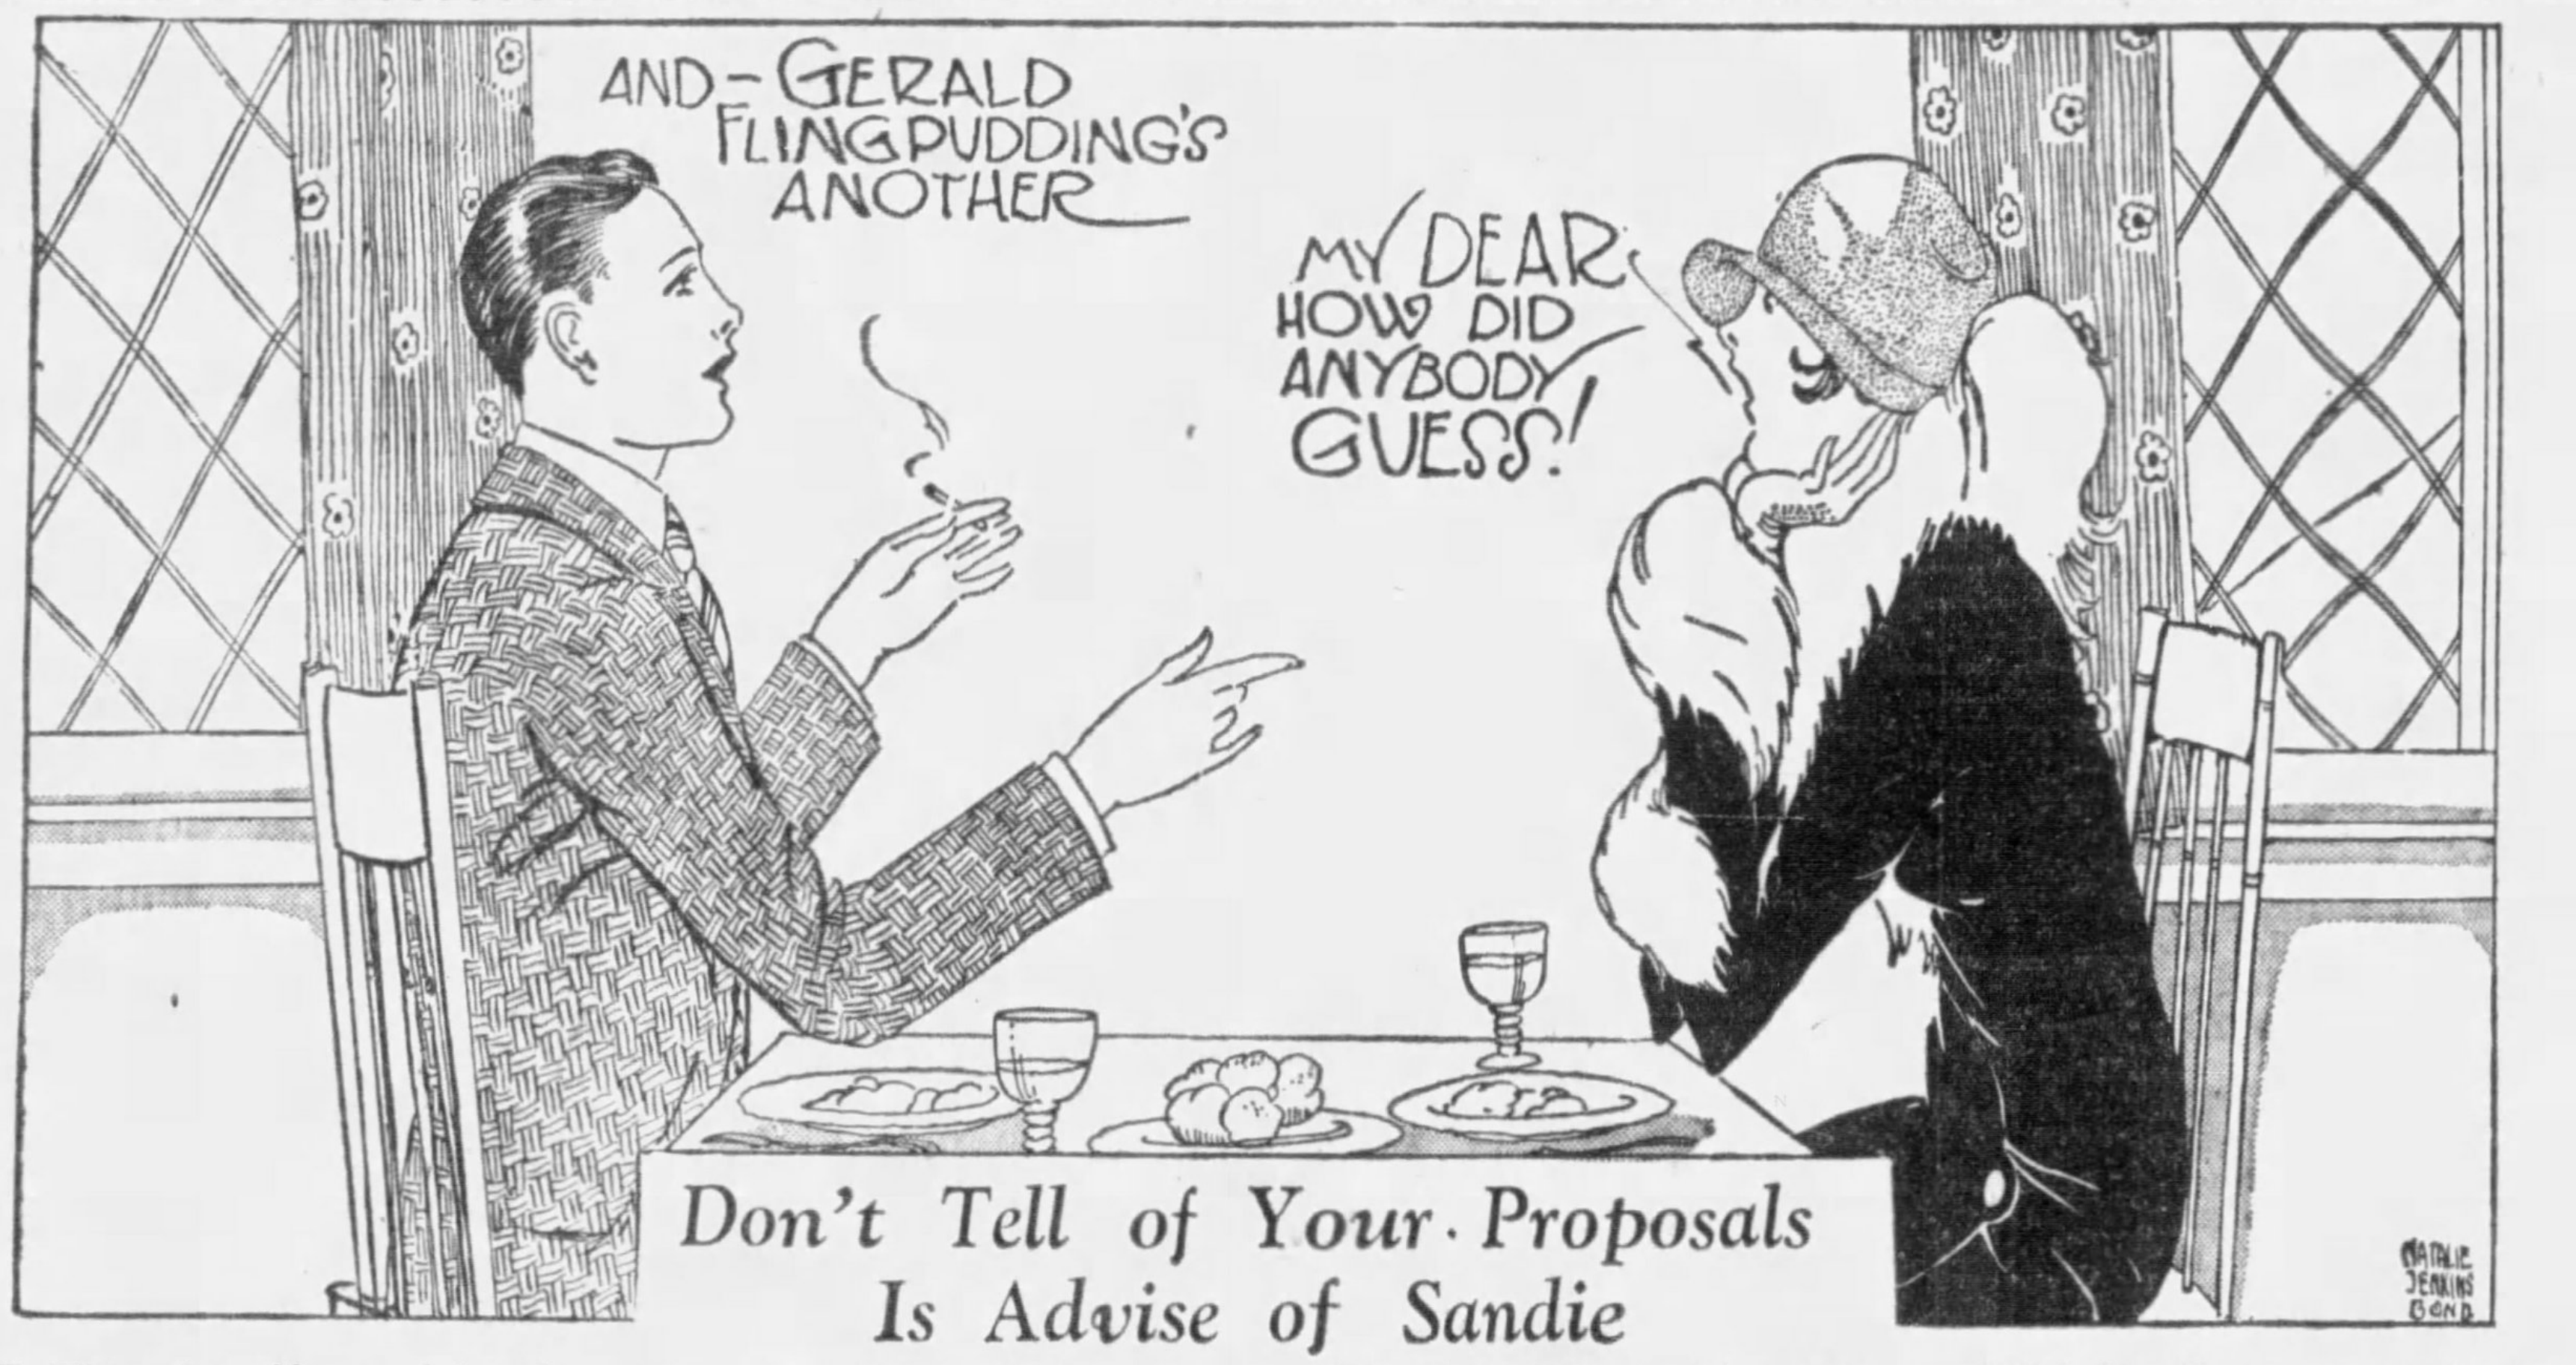
Between Us Girls -:- —By LLOYD MAYER



AND—GERALD FLINGPUDDING'S ANOTHER
MY DEAR HOW DID ANYBODY GUESS!
NATALIE JENKINS BOND

Don't Tell of Your Proposals Is Advise of Sandie

"MY dear," exclaimed Sandie to Pete Podsnap, with whom she was having tea at the Ginihaha Hunt Club one afternoon, "I hear Cuthbert SCATterbrain Finally popped the QUEStion to SYLvia th' other day and she TURNED him down COLD—can you COPE with it?"

"Really?" said Pete. "Gee, that's tough on Cuthbert."

"Do you HONestly THINK so?" inquired Sandie.

"Well, she's a swell girl, isn't she?"

"Oh, my dear, of COURSE! I think she's TERribly SWEET and simply LOVEly looking, only I never thought she was the right TYPE for CUTHbert, do you know what I mean?"

"No—why not?"

"OH, WELL—I mean CUTHbert's so awfully SIMPle, sort of, and though you'd NEVer in the world THINK it, my dear, SYLvia's FRIGHTfully WORLDly!"

"That's just IT, my dear," went on Sandie. "You'd NEVer imagine it for a MINute because she's always so SWEET and NATural, sort of, but I mean EV'rybody SAYS the ONly reason she didn't TAKE Cuthbert is because he hasn't got a SOU, but of COURSE, my dear, maybe that's a lot of poisonous GOSsip and she had some OTHer reason but ANYways I think it's JUST as WELL because I mean CUTHbert could NEVer in the world have supported her on HIS income, my dear, because I mean she's the most exTRAVagant mortal I've ever KNOWN and spends simply FABulous amounts on her CLOTHES and all."

"Say, how is it that everybody knows about it the minute a guy proposes to a girl?" asked Pete.

"WELL, my dear, of course EV'rybody's known for YEARS that Cuthbert was MAD about Sylvia and she was expecting him to proPOSE any MINute."

"Yeah—that's all right—but how is it that everybody seems to know now that he actually has proposed?"

"WELL, my dear, you know how those things get aROUND, sort of."

"No, I don't," persisted Pete. "That's why I'm asking."

"Oh, WELL," giggled Sandie, "I s'pose she TOLD somebody in CONfidence—I mean she MUST have, my dear, because simply EV'rybody knows it NOW!"

"Evidently! Gosh, she must have a swell lot of girl friends if she can't trust them not to go blabbing a thing like that all over town!"

"But, my DEAR!" protested Sandie, "nobody ever tells a girl friend ANYthing confidential unless she exPECTS it to be rePEATed!"

"AND I'll bet a lot of people have proposed to you, too," ventured Pete.

"But you never heard of anybody who ACtually HAS proposed to me, HAVE you?" challenged Sandie.

"No," admitted Pete, "but I've heard of several who are popularly supposed to have proposed to you and been given the sack."

"Have you REALLY, my dear? How TERribly exCIting! I'm all aGOG to know who they ARE at this point, my dear—I mean I ACtually AM!"

"Well, Tom Dribble's one!"

"My dear, how simply exCRUciating!" gasped Sandie. "I give you my WORD I never told a SOUL that Tom proposed to me because I HONestly never tell ANYbody things like that, do you know what I mean?"

"And Gerald Flingpudding's another," went on Pete triumphantly.

"BUT, my DEAR, how on EARTH did anybody GUESS?" shrieked Sandie. "I mean I'd comPLETEly baffled and nonPLUSSED about the situation at this point because when GERald kept proposing REGularly once a WEEK, my dear, I thought it was TERribly FUNny and everything, my dear, but I never TOLD even my most INtimate FRIENDS about it, because I was afraid it would get ROUND, sort of, and make Gerald kind of unCOMfortable and all, do you know what I mean?"

"I see," replied Pete, "and I think that was darn generous of you."

"My dear, I think it's just COMmon Decency not to tell people when somebody proPOSes to you and you turn them DOWN!" said Sandie indignantly. "I mean I ACtually DO!"

THE BOOK SHELF by GEORGE SEIBEL

New Aspect of Jesus in Pittsburghers' Books

TWO Pittsburghers have a hand in the latest life of Jesus, the little volume by Friedrich Rittelmeyer which appears under the title "Behold the Man" (published by Macmillan). It is translated by Erich Hofacker and George Bennett Hatfield, of the University of Pittsburgh—translated with an understanding of the original and a fine sense of verbal values that cannot be too highly appraised.

One would think that there were lives of Christ enough and to spare. There is Renan's religious romance, there is Strauss' rationalistic analysis; Kautsky has treated it from a socialistic viewpoint and Kalthoff has traced it back to communistic clubs; there are Jewish lives of Christ—and even the Gospels.

Rittelmeyer has a new approach. "He studied first the strongest opponents of Jesus, such as Nietzsche; then the great rivals of Jesus, such as Buddha; then the great followers of Jesus, such as St. Francis, Meister Eckhart and Tolstoi."

The gist of his conclusions after such studies is contained in an ethical postulate, rather than a historical synthesis.

"The things which the Jesus of the Gospels teaches and lives prove themselves to be true in our experience. Who this Jesus was—whether a living man or an inspired fiction—is an important, but not the most important question."

The book is a book for thoughtful people—somewhat discouraging if they compare our present civilization with the ideals of the old Hebrew seers crystallized in the image of Jesus.

The same message is delivered by another Pittsburgher through another book—by James H. Snowden in "Outfitting the Teacher of Religion" (published by Macmillan), in which the editor of the "Presbyterian Banner" insists that personality is always the root and source and measure of human power. "The teacher is ever greater than his teaching, the writer than his book, the painter than his picture, and the singer than his song." Dr. Snowden's volume is one that contains much practical counsel for Sunday school teachers and even for the clergy.

So also we find S. Parkes Cadman, in a little booklet on "Peace" (published by Dutton), insisting that "personal goodness alone imparts dignity and value to human existence." But rhetoric will not solve mysteries, alas, and faith has been cast out by gasoline and jazz.

The late Dr. Kaufmann Kohler, in a work on "The Origins of Synagogue and Church" (published by Macmillan), pictures the Hasidim, saintly men of old Israel, as the true fathers of all our churches, and incidentally presents a picture of Jesus that corresponds with the enlightened Christian view of "the boldest and most unique ethical teacher. He was an idealist of the highest type and cared not for the requirements of civilization, such as industry, science and art."

But if this is the true picture of Jesus, the question presents itself: Is our world Christian?

Propaganda

"Propaganda," by Edward L. Bernays (published by Liveright), analyzes the part propaganda plays in the habits and opinions of the masses. In theory each individual thinks for himself; in reality each is governed and influenced by people unknown, in ways he doesn't suspect. A democracy, made up of millions of people, makes cooperation necessary. Some individuals possess natural leadership, ability to supply ideas, a key position in the social structure. So propaganda is employed to capture the minds of the masses in the interest of some policy, commodity or idea.

When the Constitution was adopted, the village community was the unit; today ideas can be transmitted instantaneously to any number of people and any distance, which makes propaganda easier than ever if you control its agencies. Bernays calls it "the executive arm of the invisible government."

When millions receive the same stimuli, all respond the same way. Bernays tells how the American public gets most of its ideas in wholesale fashion. Business is influenced by propaganda; and business today takes the public into partnership, whereas 25 years ago it sought to run its own affairs. Amusements have adopted propaganda as an advertising medium. Politics uses propaganda by means of radio, press, mass meeting, lecture platform, banquet hall. Good government can be sold to a community just as any other product is marketed.

Propaganda popularizes new inventions and interprets them to the public; it accustoms them to change and progress. Formerly the public meeting was a means of spreading an idea; today it is almost impossible to get more than a handful to attend a public meeting.

The newspaper is a personality, commenting on events and things from its point of view, attempting to reproduce the outstanding events and opinions of the day. The radio is a powerful means of propaganda. The motion picture is a great carrier of propaganda. Even a personality may create circumstances, just as Lindbergh created good-will. Propaganda will never die out, because it is a necessity of modern civilization.

AMONG THE NEW NOVELS

Murder Yet to Come

A mystery-detective novel prize of $7,500 was awarded to Isabel Briggs Myers for "Murder Yet to Come" (published by Stokes). Suspense is sustained by a series of murderous attacks and miraculously lucky escapes. Aside from the coincidence of a famous playwright of mystery plays and a police detective in the homicide squad, on a hunting trip together, walking up to the house of mystery just in time to hear the heroine scream at the discovery of her dead uncle, the story is plausibly and ingeniously constructed. There is also the question of whether it is playing quite fair with the reader to use the occult in the solution of a detective story. It's an exciting tale nevertheless, with plenty of novelty and vicarious shudders.

River House

After the fine promise of "The Torches Flare," Stark Young's latest novel is a disappointment. He has managed to make "River House" (published by Scribner) incredibly dull. The picture of an old Mississippi family in the ancestral mansion, living a life composed of traditional manners and a total lack of vitality, is almost entirely atmosphere, with very little plot. The best thing that can be said of the book is that when the son of the family runs away, because he can't stand it any longer, his action is entirely comprehensible. It would seem that Young rushed into a new novel after his first success before he really had anything more to say. But, though the story is a bit thin and more than a bit dull, he shows himself a good craftsman, and there is still the promise of a brilliant future.

Mississippi

Ben Lucien Burman has written a tale of simple and unsophisticated people in "Mississippi" (published by Cosmopolitan). Out of the antagonism between the steamboaters and the poor white trash of the shanty-boat settlements, is evolved a story of colorful and pathetic beauty. States Lilly, adopted son of Captain Lilly of the steamboat Morning Glory, discovers that he is really shanty-boat folks. In a moment of conscience-stricken loyalty, he goes back to live with what he thinks are his own kind. Burman's picture of the human driftwood making up this derelict community is a fine bit of descriptive writing. Old river days live again.

Class Reunion

Translated from the German of Franz Werfel, "Class Reunion" (published by Simon & Schuster), although a short novel, is of classic literary proportions. A judge confronted by a man accused of a sordid murder, thinks he recognizes in this prisoner a former classmate. Thinking over the past, his conscience begins to make him feel responsible for the wretched man's present state. The story is a fine arraignment of a boy's vicious and thoughtless life, with its bearing on the future of his companions. Werfel is a consummate artist and his "Class Reunion" a work of mature importance.

Ladies and Gents

An amusing story of backstage is told in Vera Caspary's "Ladies and Gents" (published by Century). From the moment little Rosina Monticelli, after proving her inabilities as an acrobat under the big top, goes to Chicago to become a tattooed lady in the sacred name of art, you just know you're going to enjoy the story. And you certainly do, unless you're one of those rare people who refuse to be intrigued by the glamour and mystery that shroud life behind the scenes. "Ladies and Gents" is a delightful bit of whimsical fiction.

Birthdays of Authors

BOOKS FOR YOUNG READERS

A Child's Geography

V. M. Hillyer has done a noble work in humanizing the dry facts of geography, so that instead of a daily grind of memorizing answers to questions the subject becomes a series of adventurings appealing to the very young. "A Child's Geography of the World" (published by Century) is designed primarily for the child of about nine, and if it should prove as delightful reading for children as it did for this one grown up we shall have children crying for it. The lucidity of the text is enhanced by the youthful zest of the illustrations furnished by Mary Sherwood Wright Jones.

Janet's Tea House

An inspirational story for the girl in her teens is Josephine Osborn's "Janet's Tea House" (published by Appleton). Janet is an old-fashioned girl, industrious and devoted to her mother. She recoups the family fortunes and also manages to have a life of adventures, mysteries and excitements.

Chico's Three Ring School

For the tiny tot who has been to the circus, who has stood spellbound before the animals' cages, and was thrilled through and through by the antics of the clowns, Stella Burke May's "Chico's Three Ring School" (published by Appleton) will recall one of youth's most exciting moments. Chico is a little boy traveling with a circus—which, if you remember back, is usually childhood's first real ambition, but one which, fortunately for parents, rarely outlives the Santa Claus period.

Living Wild

A thrilling tale of historical significance is Agnes Chowen's "Living Wild" (published by Dutton), which tells of adventures and privations that came to some children in the pioneer days of Montana. Bloodthirsty savages led by Sitting Bull keep life dangerous and uncertain, and the trip up the Missouri is a juvenile "Covered Wagon."

ART COMMENT by PENELOPE REDD

Exhibit of Rare Modern Books Indicates Return To Pictorial Art Story

THE College of Fine Arts at Carnegie Institute of Technology presents an exhibition of rare modern books from the collection of Alexander Kostellow. Mr. Kostellow, a member of the school faculty, is a portrait and mural painter of distinction. His wife, Rowena Kostellow, is a sculptor in the modern mode.

Penelope Redd

At the moment, however, space determines only a consideration of Mr. Kostellow's books. His entire collection numbers about 4,000 volumes, of which 600 are the finest books on art produced within the last 25 years. Only a few may be mentioned in this brief space.

The Ambroise Vollard limited edition of Cezanne, rare in itself, is surpassed by the precious French edition issued by another press, of which there are only 75 copies. In addition to reproducing facsimilies of paintings in this volume, there are also original etchings by Cezanne inserted. A volume designed and executed by William Strang, the eminent English painter who has exhibited innumerable times at the Carnegie internationals, is entirely illustrated by superb etchings.

Other beautiful English illustrated books were those designed by Lucien and Esther Pissarro, kin of the impressionist painter of that name. Their press, greatly influenced by Morris and the Pre-Raphaelite movement, was called the "Eragny." T. Sturge Moore also illustrated volumes in the same group that saw the rise of the Doves and Ashendene presses. The Ballantyne, Golden Cockerell, Essex House and Nonesuch presses are also represented by their finest examples.

American Imprints

THE Mosher books as a matter of American historical record, have adequate representation, including the Edward Calvert portfolio of engravings. Calvert was the friend and contemporary of William Blake, by whom he was influenced.

Mr. Kostellow has every important Bruce Rodger's book, not excepting the fabulous "Centaur." He has books illustrated in original wood engravings by Eric Gill, the English master of that medium. He has books illustrated by Rockwell Kent; and the complete series of Cabell illustrated by Leon Underwood and others.

The Kostellow collection indicates the modern return to the old idea of pictorial artists placing original prints in books. The most recent innovation in the book world is a book in which the story is mediaevally told by pictures. One such book has been published and others are planned. It is well to know that in an age given over to artistic gadgets, the best of modern artists are interpreting the current tendency, in dignified form through the illustration of books. The Kostellow collection will be on view for the next fortnight.

Graphic New York

THE exhibition of American prints at Carnegie Institute might well be labeled "Graphic Aspects of New York and Miscellaneous Prints," inasmuch as almost one-half of the prints pay tribute to the New York scene.

Joseph Pennell, who rambled about the world setting down with pontifical manner and in Whistlerian style those places that he deemed important enough for his etching needle, did "Woolworth Through the Arch." Pennell, however, was only a transient commentator as compared with George Bellows, who paragraphed New York as none other.

George Bellows' exuberant vitality set down all of the hard activities of New York life. "River Front," done in lithography, a graphic medium which Bellows revived with great success, is a cross-section of all male beings who swim. none of those who have followed Bellows can equal him in the spontaneous manipulation of crowds.

Biographs of New Yorkers

CHARLES LOCKE in "Third Avenue L" does a caricature-lithograph of folks. Mabel Dwight reduces mob-mind to absurdity in "Fish-Aquarium." The fish are more human than dull fish-like fans haunting the aquarium.

Glenn Coleman does two over-stressed tough, urban lithographs in "Coenties Slip" and "The Bowery." The gesture lacks the convincing gusto of George Bellows.

Mahonri Young, less exuberant than Bellows, produces well-considered comment on New York's construction. "The Excavators" and "The Main Diggers," held well within the limits of the realistic and descriptive, achieve the exceptional grace of pictorial honesty.

Gifford Beal does likewise in "The East River" with the city's magnificance in the background, the narrow margin of earth for the people, and the city-arresting space of river beyond. Arnold Ronnebeck attempts the well-nigh impossible in another try at Brooklyn Bridge. The "Hell Gate Bridge" by Louis Losowick gives a snapshot of a monumental study in black and white more substantial in form than Ronnebeck's lighter comment.

To our eyes, William Meyerowitz does the best of the graphic essays on "New York" in his downward glancing notation of New York's upward-aspiring movement. He states New York, not romantically as did Pennell, not gregariously as did Bellows, but in the tone of modern unawed acceptance of the Frankenstein masses man has builded.

Once Again

THE aftermath of Christmas leaves all of us with a collection of minutiae in the matter of Christmas cards. Looking over perhaps a thousand cards received by friends, we reach the conclusion that by and large the Christmas card has passed its zenith as a minor expression of graphic art. About half of the cards examined were either reproductions of famous Italian paintings, Christmas greetings commissioned from artists or greetings designed as artists' personal cards. We have only space to mention a few of local interest.

Jean McGirr designed a black and white study of the Monongahela River by the Twenty-second Street Bridge, with giant stacks of impressive, smoke-plumed terminals. J. C. Kilroy adapted the "Nativity" theme in a charming drawing.

For us, it would not seem Christmas without the merry gamin who spills Christmastide about the world as the serial comment from E. M. Ashe in etching form. Norwood MacGilvary, in an iridescent color print, combines symbols like the old carol, "The Twelve Days of Christmas," with cumulative effect, adding his own signature in the MacGilvary rainbow.

Milan Petrovits uses his own house to make an hospitable greeting. Three cards from the "Thump and Daub House" include a pert pup from Florence Newcomer; one of Helen Whitmer's whimsical drawings of Dramamount, and Anna Belle Craig's corner of her studio with a quaint conceit of the ice on the window pane picturing Kris Kingle.

Architects' Greetings

RUSSELL TWIGG has an effective linoleum print of white and red on black which has the conventional serpent motifs from many civilizations intricately bordering it. Another one designed by Russell Twigg is an abstract synthesis of many Christmas desires with the Star of Bethlehem as a focal point.

Among the architects' was the card of Charles Stotz, in a trick satire on the modernist fashion. We regret we have not space to reproduce its erratic dynamics. Frederick Bigger continued his pierrot motif series. Edward B. Lee showed the shadow of his erstwhile home with the giant steel structure of the Cathedral of Learning looming behind

George M. P. Baird, who designs his own cards, adapts a madonna derived from an ikon in black against gold.

Mrs. Roy Hunt's card expressed her interest and love of gardens in the reproduction of a mediaeval minature-portrait of Saint Fiacre, patron of gardeners.

The finest Christmas souvenir that we have observed in a decade was that sponsored by Edward Duff Balken. The design by Charles F. Ramsey was sufficiently descriptive to indicate the madonna theme as a nucleus from which the mutations of design were consistently developed.

Dr. B. D. Saklatwalla sends for this year's greeting, an etching of the "Nativity" by Pierre Bourdelle. Completely modern, it has the compact composition that invites the eye's return. Pierre Bourdelle, the son of the late Emile Bourdelle, distinguished as a French sculptor, will be represented by an exhibition in the Carnegie Institute within the month.

Pittsburgh Colony at Palm Beach

By PATRICIA PITT.

AFTER weeks and weeks with the social calendar for every day boasting three and four important events, it makes one feel a bit blank for a moment to see the days of mid-January almost innocent of a single social diversion.

After the first shock is over, though, everyone realizes that social life will not be without interest even if the debutante parties are nearly all over.

Perhaps most important of all these January days will be plans for southern resort life. With the shops all flaunting the gay new spring styles to be worn first of all at Palm Beach and with the irrestible sun luring everyone to Florida, who could feel bored?

Already brilliant Palm Beach is beckoning to its devotees. And already there's a Pittsburgh colony at this famous winter resort. Of course some folks will be attracted to Switzerland and to Quebec and to Lake Placid for winter sports, but most of Pittsburgh's society folks will be found after the first of February in Palm Beach or Miami.

But before I tell you any news of Palm Beach, there are some events right here in Pittsburgh we are all more interested in right now.

Rose Wedding

ONE of the most stately, yet simplest of weddings I've ever attended was that of Lillian Rose, daughter of the George Phelps Roses, and of Sewickley, and John M. Kimball, of Portland, Me., which took place in the beautiful St. Stephen's Episcopal Church of Sewickley on Friday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. And the rector, the Rev. Dr. Alleyne

Pittsburgher Marries New York Girl

ON New Year's Day a wedding of interest to Pittsburgh society folks took place in New York, that of Virginia Clement Whitney, of New York, and Clark Miller, of Pittsburgh, who were married in the Italian Gardens of the Ambassador Hotel, New York. After the wedding the Clarks left for a West Indies trip, and upon their return [illegible] home in the Park Mansions.

Mrs. Miller is a graduate of the Brooklyn Heights Seminary and is an active member of the Riding Club. For a number of seasons she has been a prominent exhibitor at horse shows. She is a direct descendant of Michall Hillegas, first treasurer of the United States.

Mr. Miller is the son of the late Judge and Mrs. Jacob Jay Miller, and a grandson of Justice Silas Moorhead Clark, of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. He is a graduate of Princeton, class of 1918, and of the University of Pittsburgh Law School, class of 1921, and is a member of the Pittsburgh Golf, Fox Chapel, Duquesne and Princeton clubs.

The return of the young Millers to Pittsburgh will add two new members to the particularly interesting younger married set.

Last Bud Makes Bow

THE last deb has made her bow, Elizabeth Curry, daughter of the junior Henry Milo Currys, of Beechwood boulevard. She was presented at a dinner dance given in the Pittsburgh Golf Club on New Year's night. Elizabeth happens to be the forty-fifth bud to be presented this season.

There were 300 guests present, seated at 35 small tables in the dining room, each table being centered with a basket of white lilacs and pink roses. The ballroom was decorated with cibotium ferns and the mantle was banked with rose pink begonias and greens.

Bridgeville Club to Observe 19th Anniversary Tuesday

Women Working on New Clubhouse to Report at Their Birthday Party

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

THE Woman's Club of Bridgeville is to have a birthday party on Tuesday afternoon in celebration of its nineteenth anniversary. The Bridgeville club is typical of those many modest, unassuming little groups that have grown into civic and community influences. Begun as a study group (it was known for several years as the Valley Study Club), the club has grown from its original 14 members organized for self-betterment into a continuously active band of more than 100, each of whom realizes her responsibilities far beyond any restricted circle of self-interests.

The club had its beginning on New Year's Day 1911 when Mrs. Lewis Shrodes invited the interested few to a luncheon in her home. Mrs. S. John Sutton Fife was made the first president and has been succeeded by other women, most of whose names have been equally prominent in Bridgeville history. Mrs. Ulysses L. Donaldson, one of the founders, was the second president. Next came Mrs. George P. Murray, then Mrs. Harry J. Wilcox, Mrs. Donaldson following for a second term. Mrs. Everett W. Jones, Mrs. Thomas D. Lesnett, Mrs. George H. Baird, Mrs. Charles A. Morgan, Mrs. Montford L. Maxwell, Mrs. Walter C. Thompson, Mrs. Minnie W. Stenzel, Mrs. Leonard W. Roach and Mrs. James L. Wible, the incumbent, are the others who have sat in the executive chair.

Changed Club's Name

As the membership increased and their horizons widened, the women decided to change the name of the club, giving it a name that would better indicate its purpose. So the Valley Literary ceased to be and the Woman's Club of Bridgeville came into being. A program of study has been arranged each year, this constituting the entertainment feature of the meetings, which, however, has been secondary to the constructive program of civic and philanthropic work carried on.

In the early years, Mexico, United States history, American lands, letters and art, the British Isles, Alaska, the Philippines and Russia were studied, with several seasons of miscellaneous topics following. South America is this year's study subject. The organization has always taken an active interest in the educational activities of the town, contributing books to the school and showing its interest in other ways. Assistance in some civic and welfare drives and taking charge of others, individual case work, helping fill Christmas baskets for other and larger organizations and an effective child health clinic have been among other work done. Within the last year and a half the club obtained its charter and established a junior membership. This last is now one of the finest working bodies of junior club women in this district.

Just now both juniors and seniors are concentrating on the hoped-for clubhouse and at the birthday party Tuesday reports will be heard from the five working groups into which the entire membership has been divided, each one of which is doing something toward raising the necessary funds. Bake sales and card parties, dramatic productions, concerts, rummage sales and luncheons have all been utilized for increasing the fund. Since they outgrew their homes as meeting places, the women have furnished and used a small portable school building as headquarters.

Special Music

For the program on Tuesday there will be some special music and a talk, the latter by Mrs. W. Riley Alter, of New Kensington, former district chairman of the home department, State Federation of Pennsylvania Women. Mrs. D. Alfred Shaw will be leader, the American home committee of the club will take charge of the program and the hostesses for the tea hour will include Mrs. Madison McKee, Mrs. William P. Hopper and Mrs. Charles M. Timblin.

In addition to Mrs. Wible, the club's present officers include the vice presidents, Mrs. J. Lloyd MacKown, Mrs. Leonard Roach and Mrs. Chester A. Wyke; recording secretary, Miss M. Cora Murray; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Henry F. Parks; treasurer, Mrs. Earl Bennett, and clubhouse fund treasurer, Mrs. Charles Erhard. Mrs. John H. Froelich, Mrs. Edwin Weber and Mrs. Herbert A. Mardorf are the auditors and Mrs. George P. Murray, Mrs. Minnie Stenzel and Mrs. Everett W. Jones, the directors. The committees are the program, social, music, American home and home economics, civic and charity, hospital, educational, child welfare, legislative, dramatic, club activities and clubhouse.

Play to Be Read Before Junior Unit

THE Junior Section of the Woman's Club of Crafton will hold its January meeting Tuesday in the home of Miss Florence Holliday. Miss Evangeline Fisher, leader, will present Chester M. Wallace, of the drama department, Carnegie Institute of Technology, who will read Galsworthy's "Escape.

Mrs. Darwin Carrell, as chairman of hostesses, will be assisted by Mrs. W. C. Lehew, Mrs. Wallace McCurdy, Miss Bertha Glazier and Miss Maebelle Ferrall.

The music department of the club will meet in the home of Mrs. H. C. Breidert tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Ruth Stephens Porter, composer of children's songs and school music, will give an informal talk and blackboard demonstration of melody writing, and anyone wishing to do so will be given an opportunity to write an air to a poem as selected. Mrs. Ira M. Smith will sing a group of Mrs. Porter's songs. Mrs. C. C. Moyar is leader for the day and anyone interested in this program is invited to attend the meeting.

Executives Of Council To Report

FROM Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women comes news of events at Council House, including the directors' meeting Wednesday at 1:30 at which reports of executive officers will be received. The P. C. C. W. Bridge Club will have a benefit card party at Council House Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. J. A. Bookmeyer, Mrs. L. J. Feinaugle and Mrs. E. J. Nuttall as hostesses. The regular monthly meeting of the club will be held January 15, a short business meeting preceding the game. Hostesses will be Mrs. George R. Ramspacher, Mrs. W. B. Ryan and Mrs. E. J. Nuttall. Plans for their social meeting on January 27 will be discussed by the Queen's Daughters at a business session on Monday evening, January 13.

University Club Women to Meet

AT the annual luncheon of the Women's Association of the University Club, Wednesday in the Faculty Club, Mrs. Ruth Crawford Mitchell will talk on "Interior of the Cathedral." Reservations with Mrs. E. V. Hjort or Mrs. C. L. Van Sickle are to be made before noon tomorrow.

Club Host To 10 Other Presidents

THE Southern Club, which holds a life membership in the Health Colony Club, will present the program at the reciprocity meeting in the Congress of Clubs, Tuesday afternoon. The program will consist of musical numbers by the Southern Club trio, Mrs. Walter Close, Mrs. C. Fitzhugh Lee and Mrs. William O'Lee, accompanied by Mrs. Adelaine Merrill Biddle, and readings by Mrs. John R. Perry. The guests that afternoon will include Southern Club members and the presidents of the 10 other clubs holding life memberships in the Health Colony.

Congress of Clubs Card Party Jan. 17

THE Congress of Clubs will have its first big event of the new year in the executive board's benefit card party which has been set for Friday afternoon, January 17. This is the annual affair at which the executive board members do their share towards paying off the mortgage. All sorts of interesting plans are afoot for the benefit, only one of which has been disclosed to date—homemade plum puddings for the table favors. Mrs. George J. Campbell is chairman and is being assisted by various committees, with a long list of patronesses as sponsors.

27th Ward Women To Meet Tomorrow

THE regular monthly meeting of the Women's Community Association of the Twenty-seventh Ward will be held tomorrow in the John Morrow School. The social hour will be in charge of Mrs. E. A. Krah, chairman of the students' aid committee, and Mrs. Charles Walters, chairman of the auditing committee.

The program will be by Miss Alice King Spangler, vocalist; Miss Jane Hite and Miss Dorothy Mason, dancers; Miss Estelle Smith, reader; Miss Ruth Borland, monologist, and Miss H. Cecile Walters, accompanist.

Aspinwall Club Faces Busy Week

THIS week's events for the Aspinwall Woman's Club include the school committee's important meeting in the clubhouse tomorrow afternoon, a meeting of the choral for practice tomorrow night and Thursday's meeting, a guest night, to be addressed by Cyrus Hungerford, cartoonist. At this last named event the local American Legion boys will be guests.

Dr. Johnson To Address College Club

DR. ROSWELL H. JOHNSON will speak before the College Club at the regular Friday meeting this week at 3 o'clock. His subject is "Eugenic Aspects of Southern Russia." Dr. Johnson spent the last three summers in Russia and made an intensive study of conditions in that country. Mrs. Philip Hodill will act as hostess; Mrs. Merle Russell Hood and Mrs. W. A. Jordan will be at the tea table, and the aids will be Mrs. William B. Hetzel, Mrs. Dewitt Haber and Mrs. Bertram Herrod.

The first bridge luncheon of the new year for club members and their friends is to be held on Tuesday at 1 o'clock. Mrs. J. Clyde Whetzel, chairman of the social committee, is directing the arrangements and on the committee assisting her are Mrs. Jo Bailey Brown, Mrs. C. G. Jensen, Mrs. Howard B. Smith and Mrs. George M. Swan.

Mrs. J. Hartley Anderson, chairman of the parental education group, announced that members interested in the class which is scheduled to start Tuesday, January 14, should register at once. James S. Tippett, assistant professor of elementary education at the University of Pittsburgh and director of the community school, will direct the class. The general topic, "Parents and Child Adjustment," will be discussed.

Miss Marguerite Spilman, who so successfully managed the club's recent rotogravure campaign, has been appointed executive secretary of the club. Miss Spilman has had a wide experience in executive and organization work. She is a graduate of Margaret Morrison Carnegie College and for a number of years was executive secretary of the Western Pennsylvania League of Girls' Clubs and later was organizer for the Allegheny County League of Women Voters.

WILL SING

MISS GRACE L. WISE will sing before the New Era Club at its meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Congress of Clubs.

Tea Planned For Saturday At Carnegie

INVITATIONS have been sent out to all alumnae and faculty of the Margaret Morrison Carnegie College for the New Year's tea to be held on Saturday from 3 to 6 o'clock in the recreation hall of the Margaret Morrison building. The tea is an annual event given by the association in honor of the senior class. Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. James W. Napier, president of the association, assisted by the executive committee, which includes Miss Josephine Gibson, Mrs. A. Roscoe, Mrs. E. S. Thorpe, Miss Josephine Whitney, Miss Mary Bechtel, Mrs. H. L. Spencer, Miss Eleanor Riesmeyer, Miss Mary Hulsman and Miss Annabel Turner. Mrs. C. F. Young and Mrs. Chester P. Galleher, former graduates of Margaret Morrison, will be in charge of music.

Sylvia Lent Plays Here On Thursday

A CHANGE in plans brings Sylvia Lent, violinist, to the Twentieth Century Club (in the University Club), for a recital Thursday afternoon, an announcement not carried on the monthly bulletins which have just gone out to the members. Miss Lent, a young musician, who received all her education in this country, made her debut in Berlin six years ago and appeared in New York a year later, will appear under auspices of the music and arts committee of the club in joint recital with Julius Huehn, local baritone. Earl Mitchell will be accompanist. Dr. John Cowper Powys, author and lecturer, is the speaker for tomorrow morning's lecture period. He will speak on "Dostoievsky."

Mt. Lebanon Club Activity Is Resumed

THE holidays over, the Women's Club of Mt. Lebanon resumed its activities with the literary department meeting in the home of Mrs. George Buchanan, LeMoyne avenue, Friday. Under Mrs. H. F. Ochsenhirt's chairmanship, "Recent Gains in American Civilization" was taken up for study.

Guest day will be observed by the dramatic department tomorrow with Mrs. Robert Chew as hostess. Mrs. Charles Granger has arranged an especially interesting program and will present Helen Stout, dramatic coach for the Pittsburgh Y. M. H. A., who will give an address and also read a play. Mrs. F. H. Daugherty, chairman of the department, has extended an invitation to all club members for this meeting. Tea will be served by the hostess following the program.

The travel league group of the literary department will meet tomorrow at the home of the chairman, Mrs. George Lacey, Cedar boulevard, and will study Canada.

The ways and means department has slated a benefit bridge luncheon for Tuesday in the home of Mrs. John Whitney, Clemensha avenue, Brookline. The committee is in charge of Mrs. J. S. Munger with Mrs. W. C. Allen, Mrs. R. B. Bryden, Mrs. S. C. Carter, Mrs. Charles Cralfont, Mrs. E. V. Hjort, Mrs. Alfred Osbourne as her aids.

The music department will meet at the home of Mrs. C. C. Kochenderfer, Lebanon avenue, Friday, when the works of the Pittsburgh composer, Ethelbert Nevin, will be discussed, and several of his selections will be sung by Mrs. G. Donald.

On January 13, the annual reception to club members will be given in the Beach home, Washington road, under supervision of the membership committee with Mrs. Miles Bulger as general chairman. A musical program has been arranged for the afternoon.

The club is sponsoring a musicale to be given in Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church the afternoon of January 14, under Mrs. Marshall Gardner's general chairmanship. Directed by Mrs. Lucille Miller Werner, the Dormont New Century Club Choral will sing, Miss Mabel King, contralto, will give solos, accompanied by Miss Gladys Schade, and Mary Jones Sherrill will read Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows."

Author Here To Address Pen Women

MARIE TELLO PHILLIPS, president of the National Bookfellows' Library Guild and of the Poetry Society of Pittsburgh, has been asked to speak before the National League of American Pen Women in Birmingham and before the spring meeting of the Society of Arts and Letters of Philadelphia. Mrs. Phillips is a member of both associations.

Poems by Ada Borden Stevens, Mrs. Galen C. Hartman, Mrs. Lillie Reed McMaster and Mrs. Phillips, all of Pittsburgh, are included in Braithwaite's Anthology for 1929, the Continental Anthologies published in Paris and the Mitre Anthology, published in London. Mrs. Phillips is associate editor of the last and is also included in the Mitre Contemporary Short Stories, 1929. Her story, "Psychic Experiences," is also to be included in "After Death," another forthcoming London Mitre Anthology.

Press Club to Vote On By-Law Change

AN important business meeting of the Women's Press Club will be held tomorrow in the Woman's City Club. Amendments to the by-laws, including the establishment of a nonresident class, will be voted upon. During the tea hour which follows the business session, Princess Yulieka, appearing at a downtown theater, will entertain the members. The club will combine with the League of American Pen Women in giving a dinner Thursday night, January 16, at the Woman's City Club for Frances Lester Warner, the author, who is Mrs. Mayo D. Hersey in private life. Mrs. Hersey is also to be guest of honor at a tea at Pennsylvania College for Women on Wednesday afternoon.

Husbands Guests Of Brookline Club

A PROGRAM including music, an address, and a one-act play will be given Tuesday night by the Women's Civic Club of Brookline to entertain the husbands of club members. Dr. Coit Roscoe Hoechst, of the extension department, Board of Education, will speak. Music will be furnished by a trio composed of Robert Eicher, Ero Davidson and Joseph Esposito, and by Miss Marion Powell, soprano, and Miss Velma Meyer, contralto. The drama section of the club will present the playlet. Miss Bessie McDonald will serve as hostess during the social hour.

Sewickley Women To Hear Critic

BARRETT H. CLARK, dramatic critic, will address the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club tomorrow afternoon in the Sewickley Theater. His subject will be "Current Significant Plays on Broadway."

New Thrill of Wearing Evening Clothes for Nuptials Awaits Elite

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

Universal Service Society Editor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.

BACK in the days when New York's sartorially upholstered elegantes residing in the great brownstone mansions that lined West Twenty-third street were laying polite bets as to the Vanderbilts' chance of ever winning social recognition, it would have been social suicide for any consequential bride to walk to the altar during the then unfashionable late afternoon.

Evening weddings, with the panic striken and very uncomfortable bridegroom in full evening regalia, were "the thing" in that dear romantic era.

Fashions in everything—even nuptial events—have a way of changing, and today, in this great metropolis, it is considered the worst possible social taste to be married after 6 p. m.

Evening Wedding

The 4 o'clock wedding is in high favor with the social olympians who form new aristocracy and I am at a loss to understand why Marjorie Heather and Henry Davies Roulston have decided on an evening nuptial event.

Perhaps Marjorie and Henry are so much in love it matters not to them at what hour they are made as one.

Suffice, according to information that reached me this afternoon, Marjorie will become Mrs. Roulston on Tuesday, and the ceremony will be solemnized at 8:30 p. m. in St. Bartholomew's Church, with the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman officiating, assisted by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Robert Norwood.

It will be a new experience—and little ripples of Gotham's social pond to don evening frocks and their brightest jewels for a nuptial event. And, I for one, have marked the date down in red letters.

Rift Rumored

After five short years of what was to have been wedded bliss, the Theodore Smith Leosers have, according to the chit-chat current in society, decided their union was a mistake.

For years the Ralli, members of an ancient family of the equally ancient Greece, have been more or less dominant factors in New York's swelldom and when Elaine P. Ralli, daughter of Mrs. Pandlia C. Ralli, became the bride of Young Leoser in the Church of the Transfiguration on the afternoon of July 10, 1924, society hailed the nuptial as an event of the utmost importance.

Now it would appear the Leosers have given up their dove-cote in East Ninety-third street and Elaine has returned to her mater's fireside at 320 East Fifty-third street, while Theodore is receiving his mail at West Somerville, Mass. All concerned decline to discuss the rumors.

Ascalon Auxiliary To Meet Thursday

MEMBERS of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Ascalon Commandery, No. 59, Knights Templar, will meet in regular session Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. W. H. Ritts, Pine street, Etna. The auxiliary will also have a card party, January 22 being the date set and the Oppenheim-Collins auditorium the place selected. The annual Christmas party was held in Mrs. Harry Schmid's home, Hillsdale avenue, Dormont.

Wilkinsburg Club Plans Reception

A RECEPTION to new members will be given by the Women's Civic Club, of Wilkinsburg, at its meeting Thursday afternoon, in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel.

Mrs. Norman Lipp will be the leader. A paper on "Pennsylvania Folk Lore" will be given by Mrs. Horace Daugherty and the musical portion of the program will be given by the choral club. The aides for the afternoon include Mrs. Edwin H. Pitzer, chairman; Mrs. J. D. Crawford, vice-chairman and others of the membership committee.

Edgewood Girl to Wed Alan Garland

MRS. WILLIAM HUSTON THOMPSON, of Maple avenue, Edgewood, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Sally Thompson, to Alan Atwell Garland, son of Mrs. Charles Garland, of Edgewood. Miss Thompson attended the Thurston School, and Pine Manor at Wellesley. She is now attending Mrs. Illman's School in Philadelphia. Her fiance is from Yale.

Ladies of Charity Arrange Party

THE Ladies of Charity of the Rosella Foundling and Maternity Hospital will hold its annual New Year's card party in the reception rooms of the institution on Wednesday afternoon and evening. There will be "500," bridge, euchre, old maid and bingo. There will also be a booth to exhibit fancy work.

Eastern Star Order Sets Card Party

MOSAIC CHAPTER No. 50, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a card party after its meeting on Wednesday in Malta Temple, North avenue, North Side. Bridge, euchre and "500" will be played.

Miss Helen Marsh Weds H. D. Drylie

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH MARSH announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helen Dorothy Marsh, to Herbert D. Drylie, which took place on December 31, in Wilkinsburg.

St. Bede's Guild Plans Card Party

ST. BEDE'S GUILD wil hold a card party in the school hall, Dallas and Edgerton avenues, on Monday evening. Mrs. Samuel Pollard will be hostess.

MISS BESSIE ELAINE FRIEDMAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Friedman, of Uniontown, became the bride of Samuel Albert Wasser, of North Negley avenue, last Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the home of the bride, the Rabbi Baron, of the Tempel Israel, officiating.

Miss Jean Roy

The bride, given in marriage of her father, wore a tan chiffon dress with a shoulder corsage of orchids. Her sister, Mrs. Herman Bigg, of Latrobe, was matron of honor and Herman Bigg was best man. After the wedding was a reception and then Mr. and Mrs. Wasser left for New York, from where they sailed for Bermuda.

The bride is a graduate of Pennsylvania College for Women, and the bridegroom of the University of Pittsburgh pharmacy school.

MISS MAXINE EVELYN CONLEY, who became the bride of Walter G. Mann, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Mann, of Howe street, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. Conley, of Beeler street. The wedding took place on Tuesday, September 24.

Miss Beatrice Lauschke

MISS ALICE ELIZABETH SAUER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Sauer, of Orchard avenue, Bellevue, became the bride of Glenn Joseph Moorhead, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn O. Moorhead, of Florence avenue, Bellevue, on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The Rev. J. P. Maher officiated and the wedding took place in St. Francis Xavier Church, North Side.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of Capucine taffeta, with hat of brown and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses. Her cousin, Miss Margaret Pittner, who was maid of honor, wore rose beige crepe Elizabeth, and carried an arm bouquet of spring flowers. Wilbur Moorhead, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. The ushers included Richard Charles Sauer, brother of the bride; Stephen Newburn, Roy McKissock, John E. Jones, Jr., and John Helmbold, all of Bellevue.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was given in the home of the bride's parents, for 50 guests, with 18 seated at the bridal table. The decorations were in pink and white with spring flowers on the tables and ivory candelabra held pink tapers.

After a wedding trip in the East and South, Mr. and Mrs. Moorhead will return on February 1 to make their home in Hawthorne avenue, Akron, O.

Mrs. Krieger To Be Guest Of Hadassah

PITTSBURGH Chapter of Hadassah will hold a luncheon Tuesday afternoon at the Y. M. & W. H. A. in honor of Mrs. Moses Krieger, who has just returned from an extended trip through Europe and the Orient, during which time she spent several months in Palestine. Mrs. Krieger will describe her experiences and impressions of Palestine, and the part played by Hadassah in the post-riot period of reconstruction, as her visit occurred directly after the Arab attacks late in August. Mrs. Krieger is a former president and one of the founders of the Pittsburgh Chapter of Hadassah. Mrs. S. I. Lebeau, of 1438 Severn street, social chairman, is accepting reservations. Music will be furnished by Mrs. H. M. Sadler, contralto, accompanied by Mrs. A. L. Balter.

Farewell Arranged For Club Member

MRS. D. EDWIN MILLER, chairman of education for the Congress of Clubs, is leader and speaker for Tuesday afternoon's meeting of the Women's club of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Miller's subject will be "Educational Service Abilities." Mrs. A. C. Housten and Mrs. Charles A. Collins will be hostesses for the meeting. Mrs. Edmond Englert, a former president of the club, was honor guest Tuesday at a luncheon given by Mrs. G. Stanley Petrick, of the Morrowfield Apartments. The affair was in the nature of a farewell for Mrs. Englert, who is leaving soon for a trip to South Africa.

Carnegie Club Will Hear Miss Harding

MISS JULIA MORGAN HARDING will address the Woman's Club of Carnegie Institute of Technology Wednesday afternoon in the Faculty Club room. Her talk will be on "The Expositions in Spain." Tea will be served by a committee of hostesses, including Mrs. Samuel E. Dibble, Mrs. Charles Watkins, Mrs. Rollin V. Davis, Mrs. George H. Followes, Mrs. James W. Trimmer and Mrs. John C. Burry.

Duquesne Women Hold Reception

DUQUESNE CIVIC CLUB held an informal reception on New Year's day in the home of the president, Mrs. T. J. Tindall. Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, founder of the organization, and her daughter, Miss Joan Diehl, were guests of honor. The advisory board members served as assistant hostesses and Mrs. Robert Laign and Mrs. Guy Walker presided at the beautifully decorated tea table.

Health Term To Open This Week at 'Y'

THE winter term of general and health education courses will open at Central Branch Young Women's Christian Association this week. Because some of the principal courses are limited in number of students admitted, all former students are asked to register early.

Cyrus Hungerford, Pittsburgh cartoonist, will be the speaker at the forum supper on Tuesday at 5:50 o'clock, and registrations will be received up to noon tomorrow. Following the forum supper, in the new course being offered, instructors will hold the first class as an open meeting which anyone may visit. During the 7:20 period, these courses will include interior decoration, under Mrs. M. M. Redenbaugh; English as a social and business asset, Miss Essie Mae Davidson and Mrs. E. R. Cochran; mythology, Mrs. Edna Ruse; better English, Miss Elizabeth Frost; French, Madame Eugenie Delaval; "The Writing." A series of lecture classes on "Know Thyself," which will be given by Dr. Florence M. Teagarden on Tuesdays at 8:25 p. m., will have its first meeting on January 14. help girls develop harmonious relationships and also to better understand themselves and others.

All music classes also meet on Tuesday. A string orchestra, violin, tenor banjo, mandolin and guitar group work, and ukulele instruction are offered under the instruction of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. McNemry. Three classes in voice, posture and speech, under Miss Mary Jane Paul, are scheduled for the new term, and a course in dramatics, under Miss Anna K. Dice. Beginning and advanced classes in French, German, Spanish and Italian are again offered, with native instructors. For training along special lines there are the commercial and beauty culture courses. The ever-popular supper clubs are again planned, as well as morning cookery and evening sewing classes.

On this week's program, too, is the Noonday Bible Class, Friday in the Downtown Y. M. C. A., with Theodore Miller as speaker.

In the department of health education, the winter term schedule includes beginning, intermediate and advanced gymnastics and swimming, natural tap and social dancing. A new feature is the health class for women, on Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock, in connection with which will be a kindergarten class for children whose mothers are in the health class. Additional children's classes in natural dancing and swimming are offered on Saturday mornings. As part of its educational program the department offers to all interested girls and women free instruction in life saving.

Carleton Howell, was the officiant.

The ceremony was performed by candlelight with tall, slender ecclesiastical tapers burning on the altar and on either side of the middle aisle. Calla lilies and cibotium ferns were the only decorations.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of old ivory satin, made in the style of the 90's, with a small waist and long, full skirt, reminiscent of the silhouette of 1930.

Old point lace, a four-generation heirloom, trimmed the gown and the long train. Her cap was of rose point lace, too, also an heirloom in the family, and her veil was of tulle. And the bride carried a prayerbook with gardenias and lilies of the valley as markers. Mrs. Richard T. Frick, who was her sister's matron of honor and only attendant, wore a gown of dahlia velvet in the princess mode with a deep yoke of eggshell lace. Her hat was of velvet in the same shade and her flowers were orchids. Mrs. Rose wore a gown of black velvet with a hat to match, and a corsage of orchids.

After the wedding there was a supper in the Rose home for members of the two families and for the out-of-town guests.

Among those attending from out-of-town were Dr. Richard Small, of Portland, Me.; John C. Small, Jr., of Boston; Mrs. Frederick H. Kimball, of Bath, Me.; Charles Morrill and Brooks Whitehouse, of Portland, Me., and the Joseph G. Butlers, of Youngstown, O.

Among those who entertained for the bride were the Ledlie Watt Youngs and the Alexander Laughlin Robinsons and Mary Rhodes.

And the bride and bridegroom will spend their honeymoon in Havana. After February 1 they will be at home in Portland, Me.

Dance for Debutante

AND did you know that the Norman McLeods, of Solway street, gave a dinner-dance for their debutante niece, Mary Blair Holmes, on Friday evening? The affair was held in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, which was decorated with greens, palms and ferns, with pots of scarlet poinsettias everywhere. The dining table, too, was centered with poinsettias. Candelabra held scarlet candles.

Mrs. McLeod, receiving with her niece, wore a gown of black net, in princess mode, with a brief train.

Three Buds Honored

THREE buds were honored at a dinner-dance the Grant McCargos, of Woodland road, gave in their home Friday night. Lydia Irish, Nancy Allderdice, and Frances Forsyth were the debutantes of honor. The home was decorated with gay-hued spring flowers and ferns.

And the hostess wore an interesting gown of green brocade; Lydia, a long green chiffon frock; Nancy, a distinctive dress of beige crepe with the long, irregular hemline faced with cerise, and Frances, green lace and a corsage of green orchids.

And among the guests were the Edward B. Meyers. Of course you know that Mrs. Meyer is the former Margaret McCargo and that the Meyers have been house guests at the McCargo home for some time. And they will return to Paris the latter part of the month.

Byers at Palm Beach

EBEN F. BYERS, the golf expert, has already arrived at Palm Beach; and has opened his apartment in Phipps Plaza. Usually Mr. Byers enters the golf tournaments at Palm Beach, and entertains frequently. He gave a dinner recently at the Patio Lamaze in honor of Pauline Munn, Philadelphia debutante.

And from Palm Beach comes news that many Pittsburgh folks have taken memberships in the Embassy Club. Among them are the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburgh; the Alfred G. Kays, formerly of Pittsburgh, now of New York; the David M. Kirks and Mrs. Robina Kirk Quinby, and Mrs. Henry R. Rea.

School Set Dance

AND have you heard about the charming tea-dance that the Frank B. Gordons gave on Thursday evening? The affair was given in honor of their daughter, Mary Gordon, for the school set in the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

The club was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and a great profusion of spring flowers in pastel shades. The tea table held miniature fruit trees, and tall candelabra with green tapers.

Mary, wearing a vivid gown of orange crepe, with a corsage of orchids, received with her mother who was charmingly gowned in black velvet, made very long. And she also wore a corsage of orchids.

IS BETROTHED

MISS HELEN HOCH, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin G. Hoch, of Chicora, Pa., have announced her engagement to William M. Schroeder, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Schroeder, of "Oak Hill Manor," Wildwood, Pa. The announcement was made Tuesday at a luncheon in the Hoch home.

Interesting Engagements

AND there've been a number of particularly interesting engagements. The Royal L. Scovilles, of New York, formerly of Pittsburgh, have made known the betrothal of their daughter, Eleanore Shannon Scoville, to Jonathan Godfrey Wells, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Jonathan Godfrey Wells, of New York and Southport, Conn.

From New York comes another engagement of interest here, that of Mary Elizabeth Carter, daughter of the Charles Carters, of Park avenue, New York, formerly of Pittsburgh, to Charles Graydon Poore, of New York, son of the Charles E. Poores, of Monterey, Mexico.

Their wedding will take place on January 11 in St. Bartholomew's Church, New York.

Before her marriage Mary Elizabeth's mother was Elizabeth McBride.

The Martin G. Hochs, of Chicora, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Helen, to William Schroeder, son of the George Schroeders, of Oak Hill Manor, Wildwood. Helen attended National Park Seminary, the Miss Nelle School, of Boston, and the Columbia Training School in Washington.

Give Dance for Bud

ON Thursday night there was another entertainment for that popular debutante, Mary Franklin Robinson, daughter of the William Christopher Robinsons. The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander gave a dinner dance in the Pittsburgh Club for her. Yellow wisteria, smilax, yellow roses, snapdragons and cibotium ferns decorated the clubhouse. Mrs. Alexander wore French blue and silver brocade, and the guest of honor, pink tulle.

Dennys Lunch Guests

THE Thomas Alexander Mellons gave a luncheon on Tuesday in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, and most Pittsburgh society folks were there, I noticed. The guests of honor were the Ar- and their debutante daughter, Katherine Denny. Of course you knew that her grandmother, Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, gave a dinner dance in her honor on Christmas eve in the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

Freemans Give Dance

AMONG the Christmas season affairs given for the school set, one of the most notable was that given by the John M. Freemans, of Ellsworth avenue, in the University Club last Saturday evening, December 28, in honor of their daughter, Evelyn Freeman. I happen to know that there were over 200 guests, including the younger set and their mothers and fathers.

The ballroom was festive with pine trees and holly with a hedge of the fragrant pine screening the scarlet-clad orchestra. Evelyn wore a gown of peach taffeta in princess mode, with a corsage of roses. Her mother I saw with her and she was wearing old blue satin in princess mode, too.

New Year's Dance

ON New Year's night, 150 members of the school set were guests of the David Paterson Bennetts at a dance they gave in honor of their son, George Bollinger Bennett, in their home, which was decorated with smilax and ferns and spring flowers in pastel tints.

Mrs. Bennett was charming in a gown of chanel red moire, very long, with a flaring skirt.

Edwardses Entertain

ON New Year's afternoon from 4 until 7 o'clock, the Ogden M. Edwardses, of Fifth avenue, gave a small reception in their home. Their debutante daughter, Katherine Harkness Edwards, received with her parents and her sister buds were among the guests. Katherine wore a distinctive gown of orange chiffon, with velvet flowers. Her mother wore French blue chiffon appliqued with matching velvet.

The house was decorated beautifully with each room a different shade, red in the library, yellow in the billard room and American beauties in the hall. Calla lilies were used in the living room and the buffet table in the dining room was centered with Talisman roses and lavender orchids. Hothouse grapes were strewn here and there on the cloth. Tall ivory candelabra held ivory tinted tapers.

The Edwardses and Katherine received in the drawing room before an embankment of cibotium ferns, bamboos and greens. Vases of pink roses added the necessary color.

Emily Frew Makes Bow

SOCIAL events began with a rush at the first of the week when Emily Frew was presented to society on Monday evening in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, by her father and mother, the William Frews, at a dinner-dance.

The clubhouse was decorated conventionally with ferns, bamboos and crotons forming a background for the bud's gift bouquets. Talisman roses, yellow snapdragons and calendulas lent their vivid colors to the affair, too, and asparagus ferns concealed the chandeliers and cibotium ferns screened the balcony rail leading into the ballroom.

Emily wore white velvet and lace, and her mother wore a gown of gold lace.

Among the out-of-town guests there were the Archibald Marshall Dennys, of Boston, and their debutante daughter, Katherine, who have been guests of Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, of Ridge avenue; Elizabeth Ferguson, of Hartford, Conn., house guest of her debutante cousin, Helen Pendleton, and Martha Machold, of Philadelphia. William Van Cleef, of New Haven, also was present.

MADELON'S MIRROR OF FEMININE FANCY

IT HAS been some time since we mentioned the trend of the styles, what with Christmas preparations, celebrations, and New Year's predictions, I've gleaned a few high notes here and there which may be of interest to you, now that you've settled down for a well-earned breathing spell before plunging into winter activities. For spring the lightweight tweed one-piece frock with narrow self fabric belt is a feature of importance, I understand. Suits also emphasize the importance of tweeds, quite simply styled, with the skirt featuring more interesting details than the jacket. The hemline of sports and street clothes is modified, coming only a few inches below the knees. Spring daytime frocks feature subtle colors in light shades very much grayed—pale blue, grayish green, ashy pink are typical of this color note. Prints are coming back strong, both in small and large figures, and I am impressed with the recurrence of the sheer printed frock for evening occasions, especially among collections for Southern wear. The short wrap of velvet is preferred for evening wear at resorts, too. This isn't the half of what I intended to tell you, but lack of space forbids. Continued in our next.

. . . Going South?

AND now, before joining the Southern colonies, you'll want to repair the ravages wrought on your appearance by holiday entertaining, so make your appointments with Graham Hair Shop, Atlantic 8392, for some OGILVIE SISTERS' facials and scalp treatments. The Graham Shop, which is at 222 Jenkins Arcade, is known as an OGILVIE SISTERS' shop, and the attendants are trained in the beauty methods of these specialists. I suggest you ask them to give you some instructions so you can continue the treatments yourself when you go South, and have them select the various OGILVIE SISTERS' preparations you'll need to take with you. You can do marvelous things for your appearance, when you have had proper instructions for giving yourself the treatments, and the leisure in which to enjoy them.

. . . Big News

I TOLD you last week I'd have interesting news to report from the Parisian Bootery Shops this week, and this is it. Owing to the expiration of the lease on the Wood Street store January 1st, all the exclusive hand-made footwear from that shop has been moved to the Hotel Roosevelt shop, and a general clearance sale of stock of both shops started last Thursday. All shoes are selling at $5.85 and $6.85—models from the Wood Street store that formerly sold for $10.00 and $16.50; the Hotel Roosevelt shoes that were $7.00 and $9.00. I think it is conceded that shoes at the Parisian Bootery Shops are quite the smartest in the city, and this is indeed a sale that will attract no end of attention.

. . . For a Song

DELIGHTFUL bridge prizes, individual favors, bridge ensembles, unique score pads and tallies can be picked up at the Edwards Gift Shop, Room 250 Seventh Avenue Hotel, for almost a song—and you can get them even if you are not a very good singer, because Miss Edwards is disposing of the entire stock in her shop. She is changing her location, and doesn't want to move any of her old stock; therefore, she is willing to sell her gifts and novelties at next to nothing. Lovely Mark Cross leather hand bags, modernistic table lamps, French perfume, silver and enamel desk sets, costume jewelry, hand-painted china, and dozens of minor articles are priced at less than half, and many far below cost.

. . . Immaculate

WHAT is sanitation? I had a thorough lesson in it the other day at Maison Frederic, the beauty salon at 207 Fifth Avenue. I was shown the cabinets, similar to those used in physicians' offices, wherein all combs, brushes and implements are sterilized by a process of live steam or dry heat; every towel that touches a customer has first been sterilized. Even the hands of the operators are bathed in a solution before giving facials or scalp treatments. The water used to wipe up the floors and woodwork is treated to a deodorizing and fumigating solution. The entire shop has been re-decorated, using color motifs of apple green, black and silver, and is one of the most charming as well as modern beauty salons in the city.

. . . Your Career

LIFE will settle down to a routine again, after the excitement of holiday parties and dances, and there couldn't be a better time for you to decide what sort of a career you want. It is a recognized fact in the business world today that secretarial work is just as much a profession as law, medicine, or interior decorating, and Grace Martin's Secretarial School offers unusual advantages to the young woman who really wants to reach a definite goal. January classes begin tomorrow, and there is still time for you to enroll, if you get in touch with Mrs. Grace Martin Cornelius, the principal. The school occupies the 18th floor of the Keenan Building, on Liberty Avenue.

. . . Co-operation

NO woman can be charming and attractive unless she be willing to devote some thought and energy to it. Those who come into Mrs. Lasner's studio with an air of indifference as to their personal appearance are advised that not even her wonderful skill can give them a lovely figure, if they will not co-operate with her to the extent of properly adjusting and wearing her foundation garment. "I cannot help you if you will not permit me," she tells them. "With your co-operation I can do things for your figure you've never dreamed possible. But you must place yourself in my hands, and have confidence in me." Mrs. Lasner's studio is at 615 Clark Building. She is always glad to talk with you and advise you.

. . . New Classes

UTILITY HALL'S new programs for home-makers are out, and you can enroll with the classes by calling Grant 4300, Line 403, or personally calling at the Hall, which is in the Philadelphia Building. Every one interested in living more fully and graciously is invited, and the lectures are free. Diplomas will be presented to those attending ten out of twelve lectures in the regular courses. Monday at 7:30 P. M., Miss Karen Fladoes, director, will talk about "A Dollar Dinner for Four"; Tuesday at 2:00 P. M. she will tell you about "Meal Planning and Budgeting"; Friday at 2:00 P. M. she'll discover new "Winter Vegetables" to vary the monotony of your menus. Classes in lamp shade making Mondays and Wednesdays at 2:00 P. M.; Tuesday at 6:00 P. M.

Linen hats have been lifted out of the realm of the ordinary and have been made distinctly individual for the new season. The stitching of linen, of course, is not new, but the way in which the stitching is done is smart and gives a different effect to the linen. Pastel tones are used for these hats, which are featured extensively at resorts. Chanvre soie is one of the most important straws of the coming season. It is a soft flexible straw that can be manipulated almost like fabrics. The sports colors are white, soft pinks, yellow reds, orange reds, some purple and aquamarine blue.

. . . Sale Continues

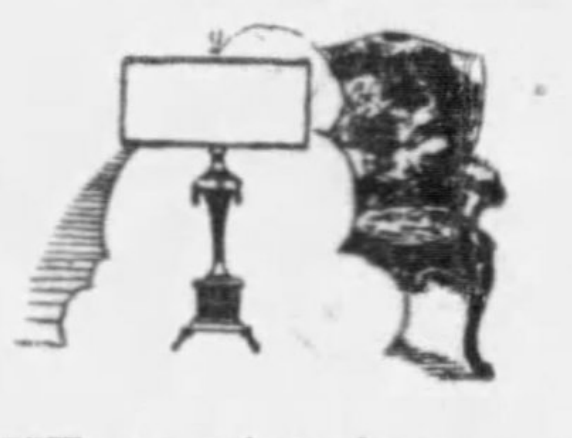
JAY KIDDIE SHOPPE, at 3007 Jenkins Arcade, offers some really exceptional bargains during their clearance sale, which is now on. Prices are cut as much as half on many articles. You'll be glad to know you can get that good-looking coat and hat set for Brother or Sister you saw a few weeks ago, but felt you couldn't afford. They have exquisite apparel for children from infancy to six years at Jay Kiddie Shoppe, and you really shouldn't miss the opportunity to buy several things for the youngsters. Lovely hand-made things, little rompers and filmy dresses, sweater suits in white and pastels, those very practical Zipper suits of washable suede cloth, in soft blues, greens and reds; knitted English shorts with slip-on sweaters, sweater and sock sets. You'll want some washable dresses and suits for the kiddies to wear to kindergarten, too, and prices are cut on those.

. . . Remembering

ONE Christmas gift of a friend of mine was a basket of flowers and hothouse fruits from McClements, 535 Wood Street. She received a number of presents, but she told me she liked that basket from McClements best of all, because it was from one of whom she was especially fond, and she was pleased with his excellent taste. The time for Christmas gifts is past, of course, but think of the other occasions for establishing yourself as one of taste and thoughtfulness — a birthday, an anniversary, invalid friends, convalescents in the hospitals—or just when you feel a rush of affection for someone important in your scheme of things. Delightful baskets are made up by McClements for as low as $5.

Short jackets in lightweight furs as a fashion for spring assume greater interest this year than they have in many seasons past. The logical complement to the long-skirted daytime dress is a shortened coat. Furs which are so light in weight and so soft that they may be styled with the ease of fabrics, and blend harmoniously with the colorings of the spring materials, will come into their own, and the very popular lapin, from which both dress and sports coats can be made, will be seen. Linings of the same material as the accompanying dresses is an effective detail.

. . . New Homes



NEXT to planning a new wardrobe, the most exciting thing is to plan new furnishings and decorations for the house—especially if one is expecting to move into a new home. Heretofore, to have furniture made to one's special order cost a small fortune, but Gilbert's, the shop of the truly unusual, at 632 Smithfield Street, have changed all that. You can select your own frames and fabrics for upholstering, and have your sofas and chairs made up to your own special order. Strangely enough, the cost is no more than one pays for ordinary commercial furniture. All pieces are custom-made, which means the tailoring of the upholstering, building of cushions, finishing, etc., are done by hand. The most lovely of fabrics and the newest of designs one can always find at Gilbert's.

. . . Reduced

YOUR interest in Reizenstein's will be increased when you learn that during the next few weeks they are going to sell many of the articles which they've culled from foreign markets at reduced prices. Florentine leather articles—phone book covers, picture frames, cigarette boxes, notebooks, desk pads, etc.—will be sold at one-third off former prices; lovely majolica jardinieres with plates, gorgeously decorated, to be sold at 20% less, many ornaments and novelties 20% less, and what will be of great interest to the clever hostess, those colorful and unusual individual breakfast sets, complete 17-piece sets, at 20% off former prices. Reizenstein's is at 625 Liberty Avenue.

. . . Unusual

THE Little Shop Around the Corner is associated in our minds with unusual and lovely jewelry, but they also have an extensive collection of brasses, bronzes and leather goods. On account of lack of space, they have decided to discontinue this line of gift things (which includes candlesticks, lamps, bowls, Chinese embroideries, leather billfolds, purses, etc.) and will sell them at an enormous reduction in price. Collectors would go wild over some of the quaint and charming things in brass and bronze. There is a pair of lovely old candlesticks I'd like to own. I wonder if you know that The Little Shop has quite a reputation for remodeling jewelry to one's own design? A woman in the city who has some old-fashioned jewelry is having a most unusual ensemble created, using her stones in combination with others at the Little Shop. This out-of-the-ordinary little shop is at 217 Stanwix Street, adjoining Jenkins Arcade.

. . . Fastidious

ONE of the most stringent rules of good grooming is to make sure one hasn't the slightest bit of superfluous hair; but most depilatories are so unpleasant to use that we sometimes neglect this important beauty rite. Marion Gray, of New York, imports from Germany a new product known as "Canaubra." It hasn't been on the market long, but it is so simple and pleasant to use that it is gaining a wide popularity. It is as easily applied as cold cream, is delicately perfumed; there is no burning discomfort, and its continued use will actually discourage the hair from reappearing so heavily. Miss Gray has moved her headquarters to 246 Fifth Avenue, New York, and if you write her there sending $3.00, she'll send you a large jar of this depilatory, sufficient to last for months.

. . . January Sale

ALL during January, Mr. J. C. Connolly is going to sell the beautiful fur coats and scarves in his shop at cost and less than cost. To give you an example of the values offered, he has three Russian caracul coats (one an extra large size), which were bought to sell at $685.00, and he will sell them for $435.00. Hudson Seals (dyed muskrat), can be purchased for $210.00 and up. Raccoons, which are so beloved by the younger girls, are $285.00, and silver and pointed fox scarves are at their very lowest prices. The lovely caramel-beige dyed squirrel, with the big dyed white fox collar, is still there, at $385.00. Mr. Connolly's shop is on the third floor of 207 Fifth Avenue.

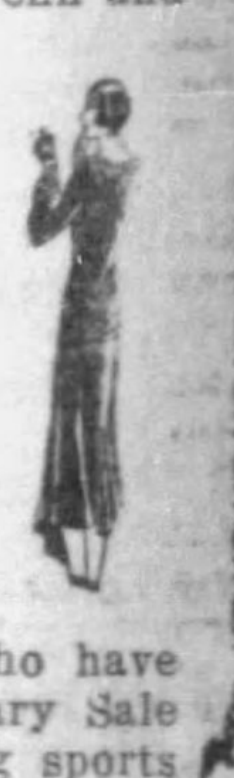
. . . "Unhurried Service"

THIS, as the books say, is a true story, and the best testimonial I've ever had for Ritter & Morrison's Menihan Arch-aid shoes. A woman prominent in business and social activities was having trouble with her feet, and having heard of Menihan Arch-aid shoes, she went into Ritter & Morrison's, 501 Liberty Avenue, and was fitted in the painstaking and unhurried way for which they are noted. That was two weeks ago. "I'll never have anything else on my feet, although I have a wardrobe full of almost new shoes," she said. There are so many smart styles in Menihan Arch-aid shoes, and sizes are from 2½ to 11, AAAAA to EEE. Write Ritter & Morrison, or call Atlantic 2944 for their booklet, "Your Feet," which outlines exercises for helping foot troubles.

. . . Character Building

I'VE heard it said that a savings account was a character builder as well as an insurance against want, and it must be so, for I've had the most virtuous feeling all day—yesterday I opened my Christmas Fund at the Union Savings Bank, in the Frick Building. You'll have no trouble finding a club to suit you, at the Union Savings Bank. You can pay a set sum, as low as 50c a week, or you can join one of those up-and-down clubs whose payments increase gradually, then decrease. A clever way of finding the money for a Christmas Savings is to get one of the Budget Books issued by the bank—it proportions your expenditures beautifully, and you find you have just as much money for your needs as before, and are saving a certain sum weekly, too. Try it.

. . . Dresses and Coats

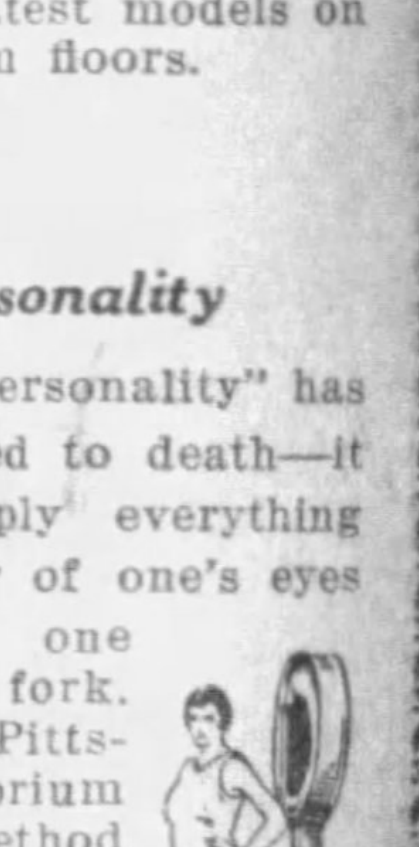


THE annual January Clearance Sale in the ready-to-wear department of Max Azen's shop, corner Penn and Seventh, begins Tuesday, January 7th. Dresses that have been selling at $19.50 will be priced $7.95; frocks formerly $59.50 will sell at $15.00; cloth coats, values up to $145.00, will sell at $59.50, $75.00, and some at $39.50. I know several girls who have waited for this January Sale to buy a good-looking sports coat; some gorgeous dress coats are displayed, too. All the dresses, of course, are late models of crepe, chiffon, crepe satin, featuring the new silhouette. Merchandise now in this department must be cleared out to make room for spring things that will begin arriving soon.

. . . Ounce of Prevention

NO MATTER how fine a motor car may be, its efficiency depends largely upon the care it receives, and especially during such weather as we have had and will have. Take good care of your Lincoln. Look after lubrication, have the car inspected at regular intervals, make certain that mechanical details are checked and adjusted. It takes only a little time, and will repay you a thousand-fold by insuring trouble-free motoring. Expert mechanics trained in all details of Lincoln construction are at Lowe Motor Company, 5124 Liberty Avenue, and will do the work for you quickly and satisfactorily. And if you're interested in the new Lincolns, they have some of the latest models on their showroom floors.

. . . Personality



THE word "personality" has been worked to death—it is used to imply everything from the color of one's eyes to the way one handles one's fork. However, the Pittsburgh Natatorium has a new method of determining personality. As used by them, it means one's physical individuality. People are loved for the charm and grace that only a beautiful Personality can give, and the Natatorium has prepared what they term a "Personality Index" which enables people to check on themselves and see wherein they vary. It is outlined in the booklet "Body Culture," which you can obtain by calling in person or writing to the Pittsburgh Natatorium, Duquesne Way.

Bridge Players Should Beware of Singletons In Bidding 'No-Trump'

ERNEST H. HEINRICHS,

Sun-Telegraph Bridge Expert.

BIDDING for a no-trump contract seems to have a certain fascination for many bridge players which they do not appear to be able to resist, whether their hand warrants such a bid or not, and that is probably the reason why more no-trump bids go down to defeat than suit bids.

There is no denying that the no-trump offers certain inducements which make a contract at that call desirable, such as the high value of each odd trick and the fact that declarer needs only three odd tricks to give him game and the bonus that goes with it. Then again, a no-trump bid shuts out all other bids of one and thus eliminates an adverse declaration by opponents in case their strength happens to be divided, which very often occurs.

In bidding no trump, the player must observe the same rules and sound principles which govern any bid at Bridge. He must not only hold a hand better than average with at least two sure tricks, but he must also consider the distribution of the cards; that is to say, he must have the different suits protected.

Holding a hand with two long suits and the other two suits represented only by a worthless doubleton in one and a singleton in the other suit, is not a hand recommended for a no-trump declaration. In fact, most experts agree that a two-suiter should never be bid for a no-trump declaration. Holding a hand with an irregular distribution of the cards, a long and strong major suit is more desirable for bidding purposes and gives a much better assurance for a game than a no-trump, even though it takes four tricks to go game in a major.

Singleton Dangerous

Although some experts assert that holding a singleton is not necessarily a bar to bidding no trump with a hand which is exceptionally strong otherwise, experienced practice does not recommend such a proceeding. The theory often advanced, that if you hold a singleton partner probably holds enough of the suit to prevent any serious loss often turns out to be a sad delusion.

We saw the following deal terminate quite disastrously, because a player essayed a very dubious no-trump bid with a fatal singleton in the hand, when a bid at spades was practically a set-up for the declarer.

These were the hands:

NORTH.	EAST.
Spades—J, 10, 9, 8. Hearts—K, 8, 7, 6. Diamonds—5, 4, 3, 2. Clubs—K.	Spades—3, 2. Hearts—5, 4, 3, 2. Diamonds—8, 7, 6. Clubs—5, 4, 3, 2.
WEST.	SOUTH.
Spades—6, 5. Hearts—10, 9. Diamonds—10, 9. Clubs—A, J, 10, 9, 8, 7, 6.	Spades—A, K, Q, 7, 4. Hearts—A, Q, J. Diamonds—A, K, Q, J. Clubs—Q.

How Hand Was Played

South had dealt the cards and gave himself an exceptionally powerful hand. At a spade declaration it would have been a set-up for a small slam, but being tempted to a no-trump by all the top cards he held and not heeding the warning of his singleton queen of clubs, he opened the auction with a bid of two no trump, which, being followed by three passes, gave him the contract.

West, with seven clubs to the ace, led the ace of that suit and took seven tricks in succession, setting South's no trump bid by two tricks.

It seemed a shame to see all the high cards fall before the small clubs, but it is to be hoped it taught South a valuable lesson.

Bridge Brevities

In Auction Bridge and American Bridge, the game score for tricks is 30 points, while in Contract Bridge 100 points is the trick score for game.

While in Auction Bridge the bonus for going game is 125 points and in American Bridge 100 points, in Contract Bridge the bonus for game is 500 points in a three-game rubber and 700 points in a two-game rubber.

In Contract Bridge, if the player is "not vulnerable" and makes a small slam he scores a bonus of 500 points; if he is "vulnerable," he scores 750 points. For making a grand slam at Contract Bridge when declarer is "not vulnerable," he scores a bonus of 1,000 points, but when he is "vulnerable" and makes a grand slam he scores a bonus of 1,500 points.

It sure is! When you are forced into a risky bid, holding a slim hand and the prospects for making your contract are very doubtful, and then your partner lays down a dummy with an array of cards which assures you the contract, the game and the rubber—"isn't it a grand and glorious feeling?"

Of the many highly touted systems for bidding in contract bridge, the system based on common sense is the most successful.

We learn that in several public schools in Cleveland the game of bridge has been introduced to teach pupils the habit of concentration.

Bidding on expectations generally results in disappointments.

Miss E. F. R., of Monaca, Pa., asks us what to do when your partner takes your perfectly good king with her ace. We do not know what you might do, but our advice is "forget it."

* * *

Mrs. C. G. H., Corliss Station—Answering your questions categorically: No. 1. It is in the rubber form of auction bridge that the dealer loses his deal after four passes. In progressive auction bridge, after four passes the first dealer deals again. No. 2. The player who has been dealt a hand in which none of the 13 cards is higher than a nine is never entitled to a new deal. He often demands it, but the law is against him.

More Mothers each year treat COLDS without "DOSING"

When Vicks VapoRub was originated, mothers especially were quick to appreciate it because there is nothing to swallow, and, of course, nothing to upset children's delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do.

Just rubbed on throat and chest, Vicks acts through the skin like a plaster; and, at the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the body heat, are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages.

Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing," and Vicks is the standby for colds—adults' as well as children's—in over 60 countries.

To keep step with this ever-increasing demand, the famous Vick slogan has again been changed. There are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly" in the United States alone.

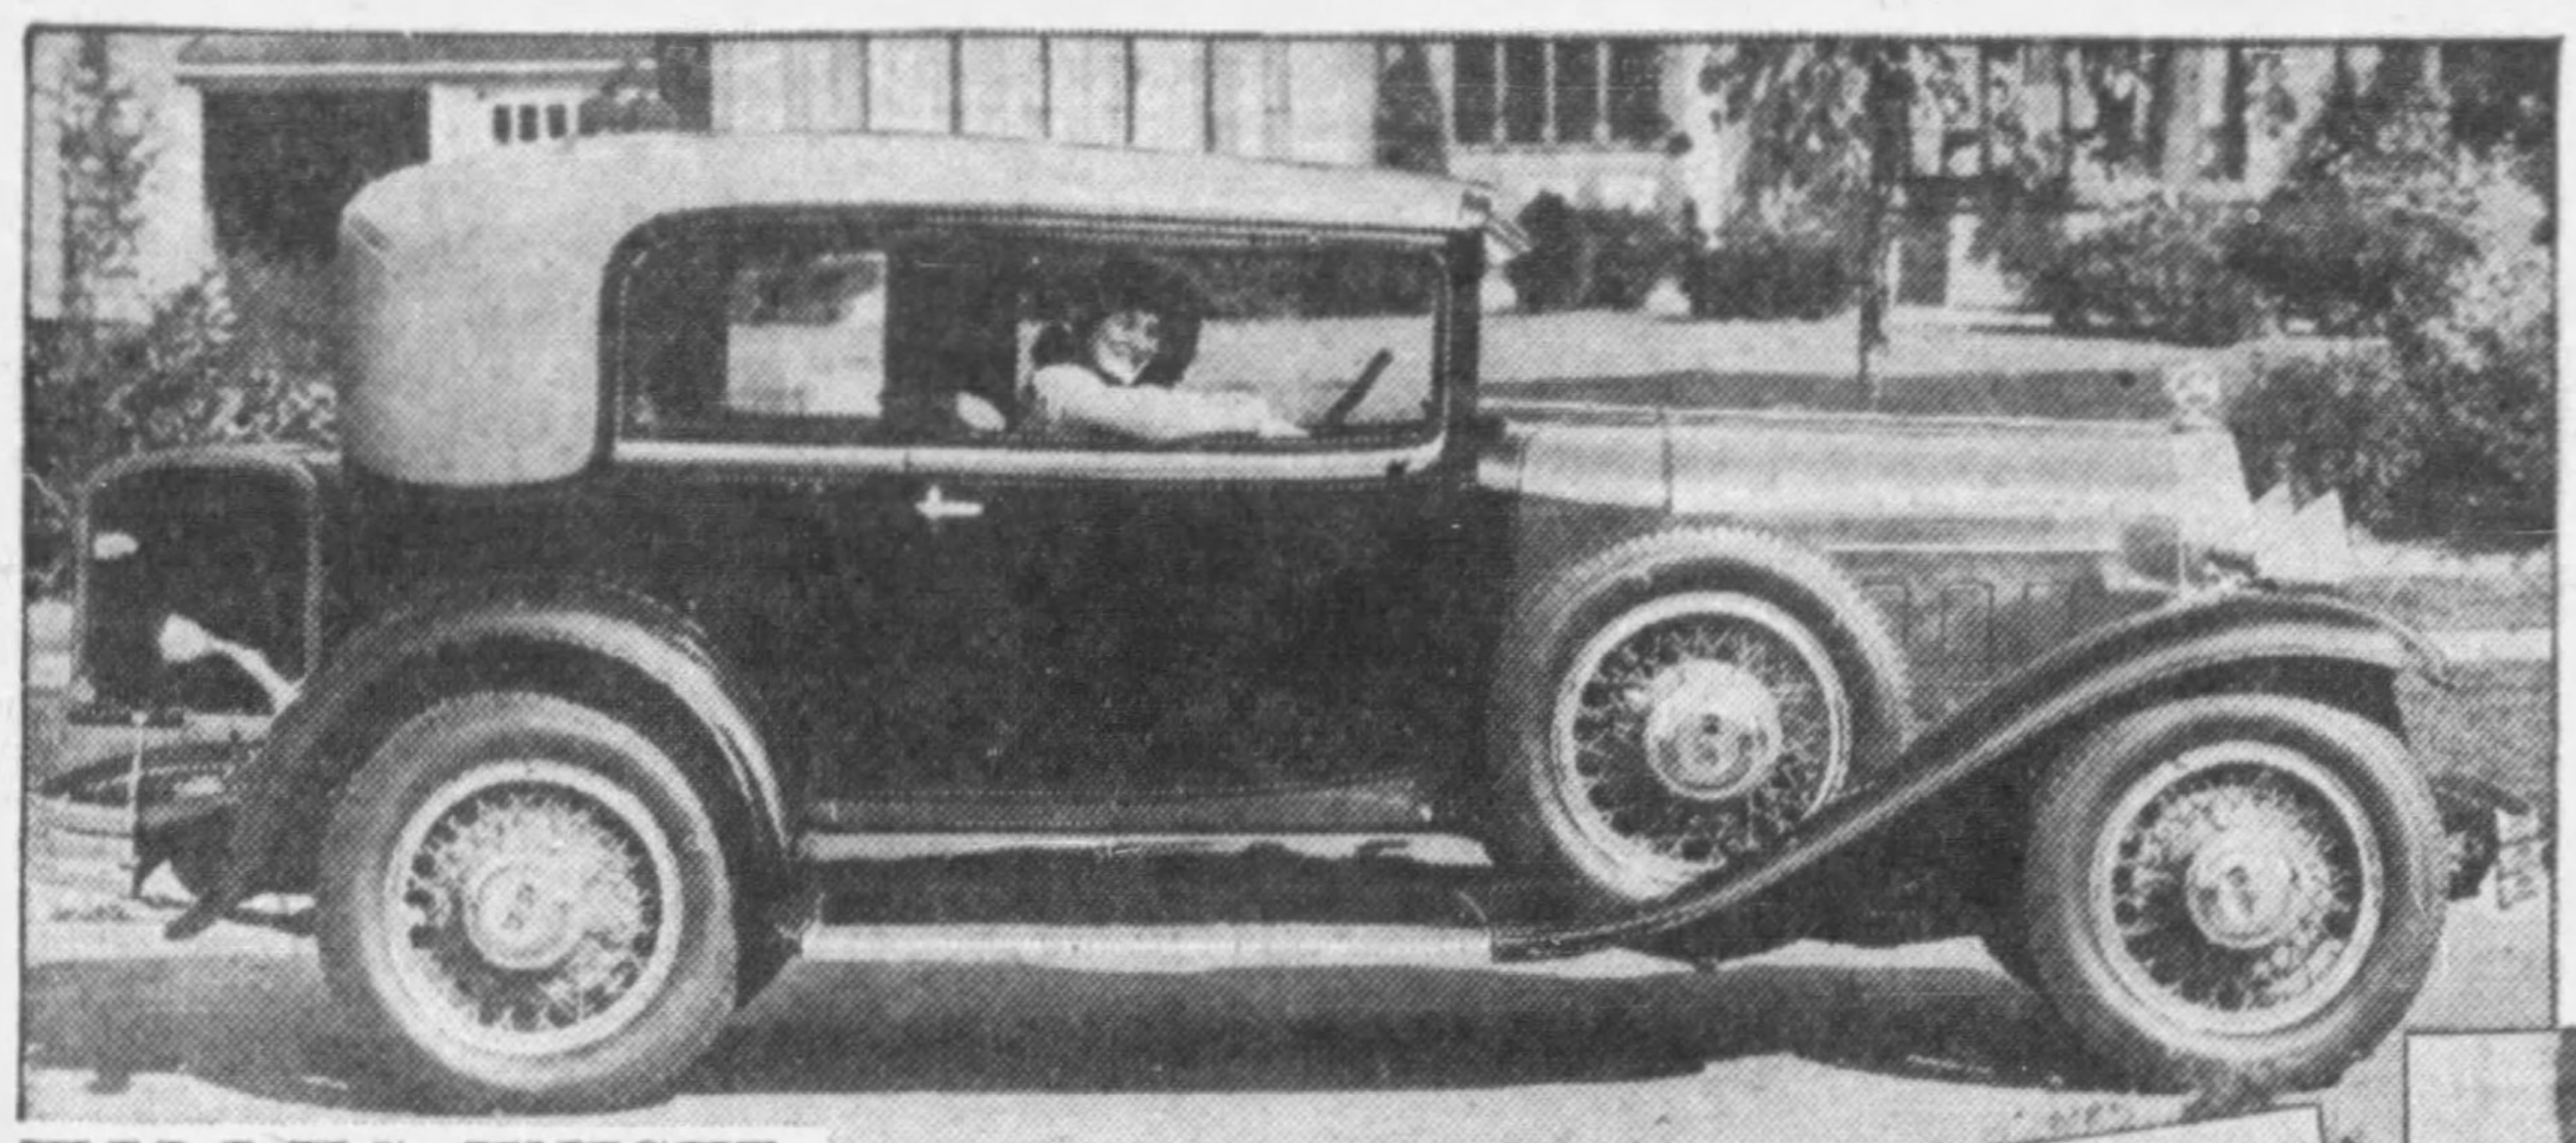
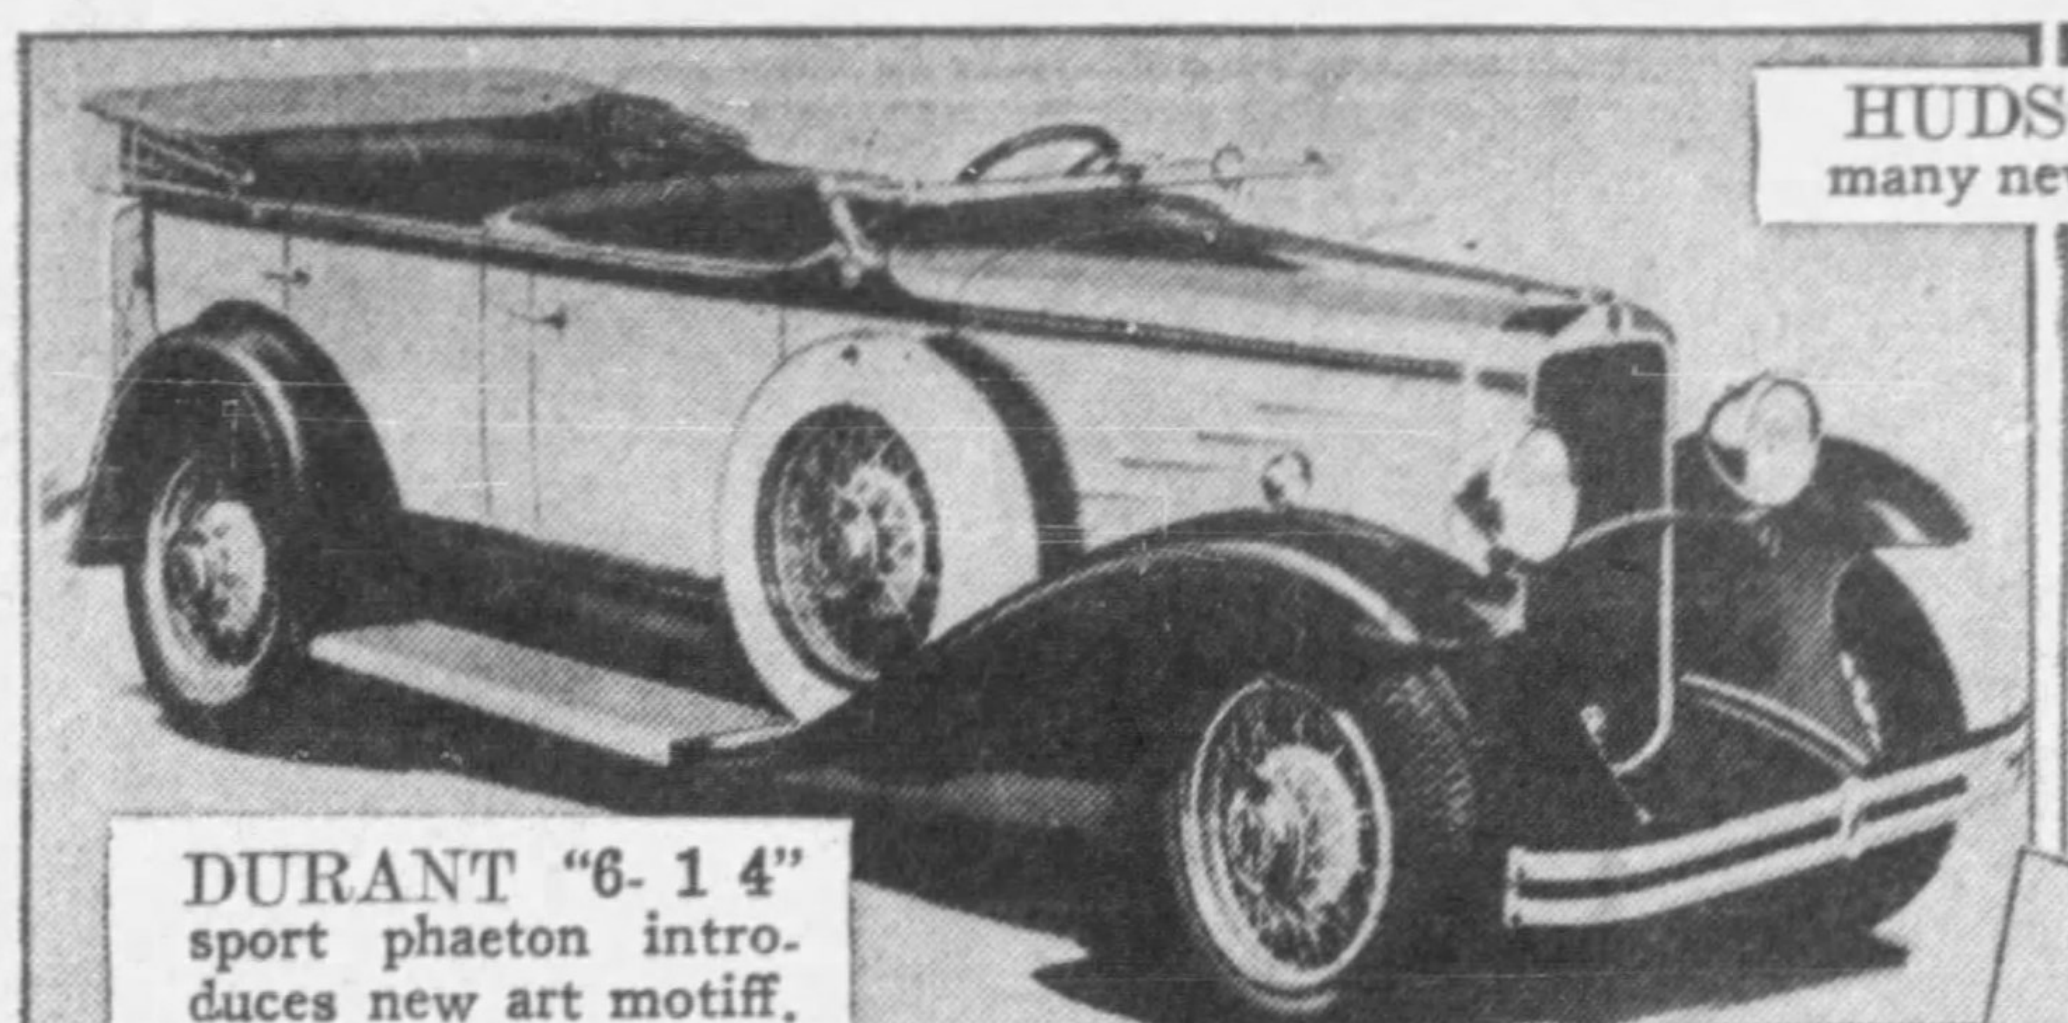
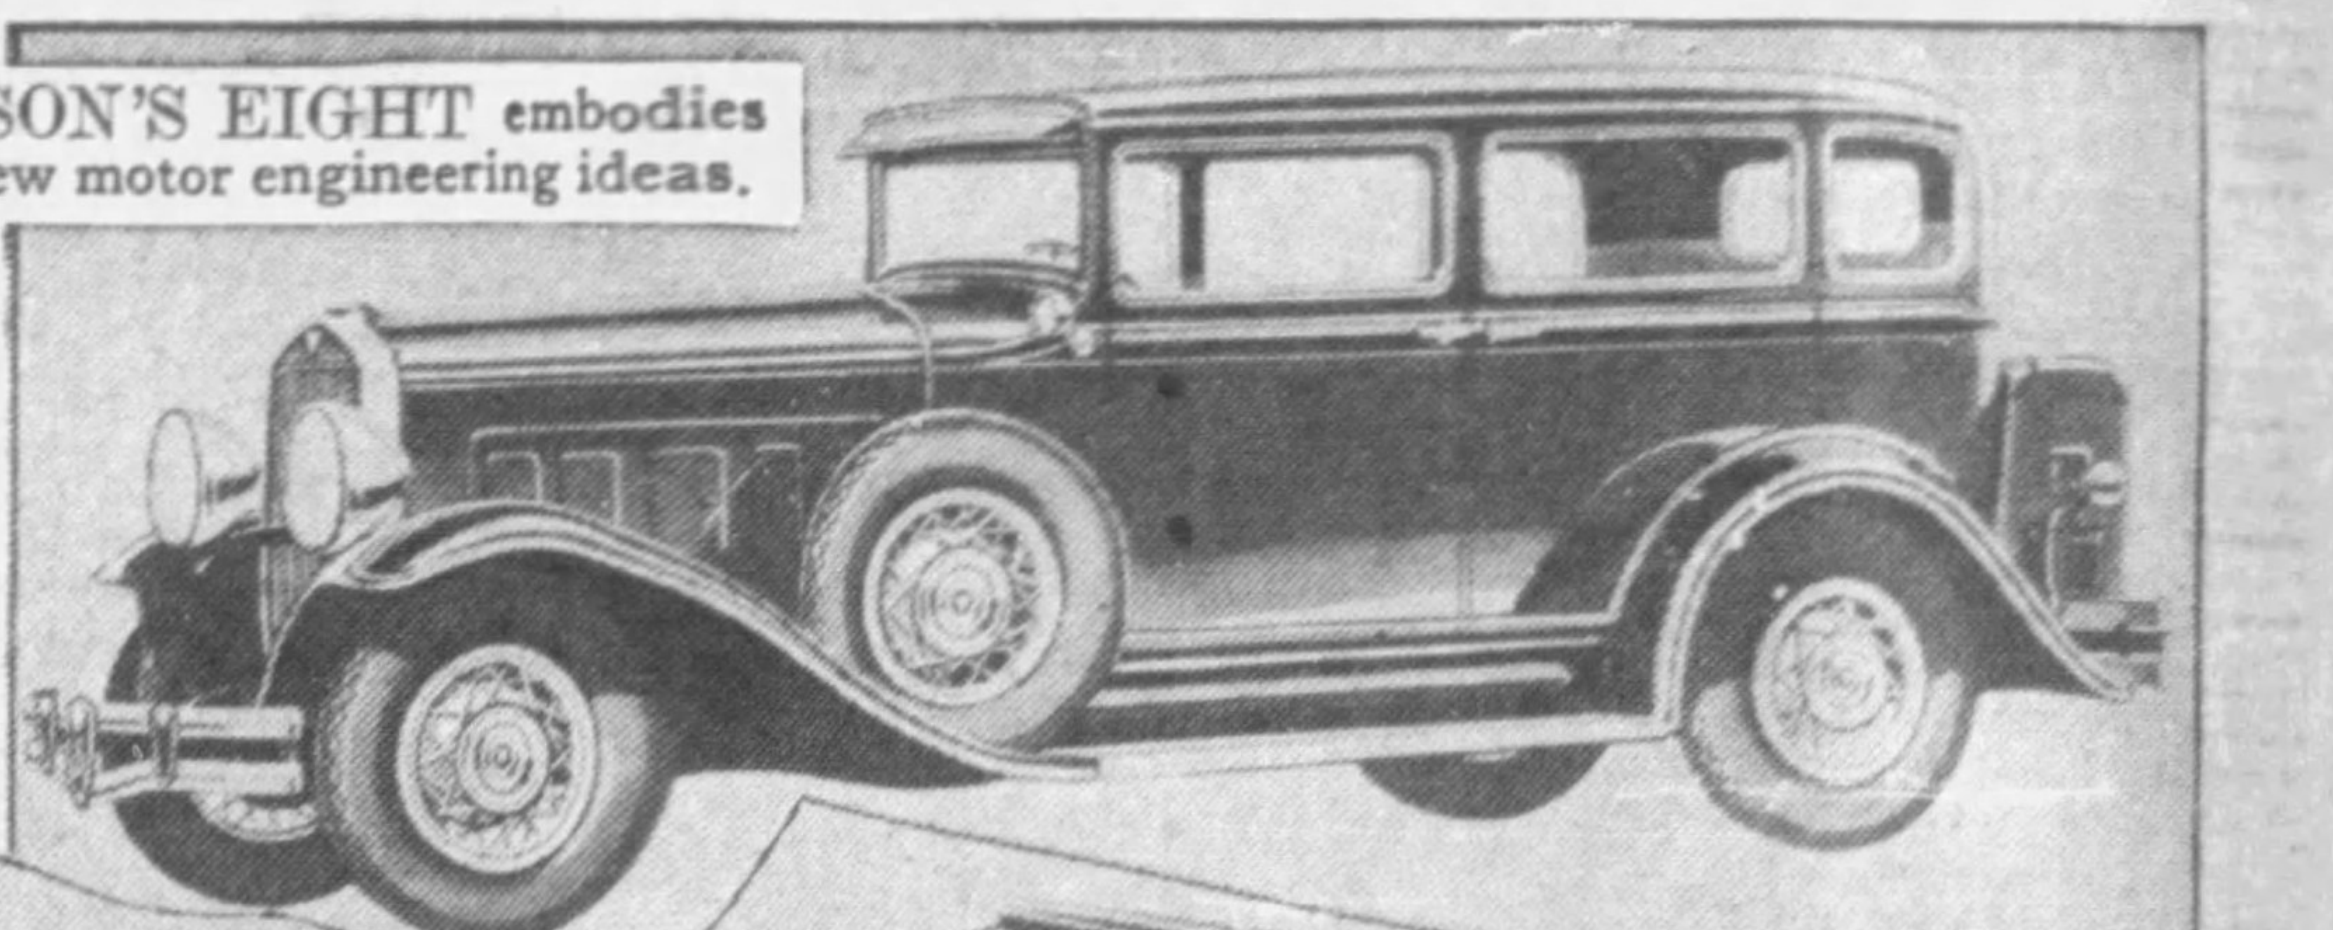
MOTORDOM INTRODUCES NEW CREATIONS



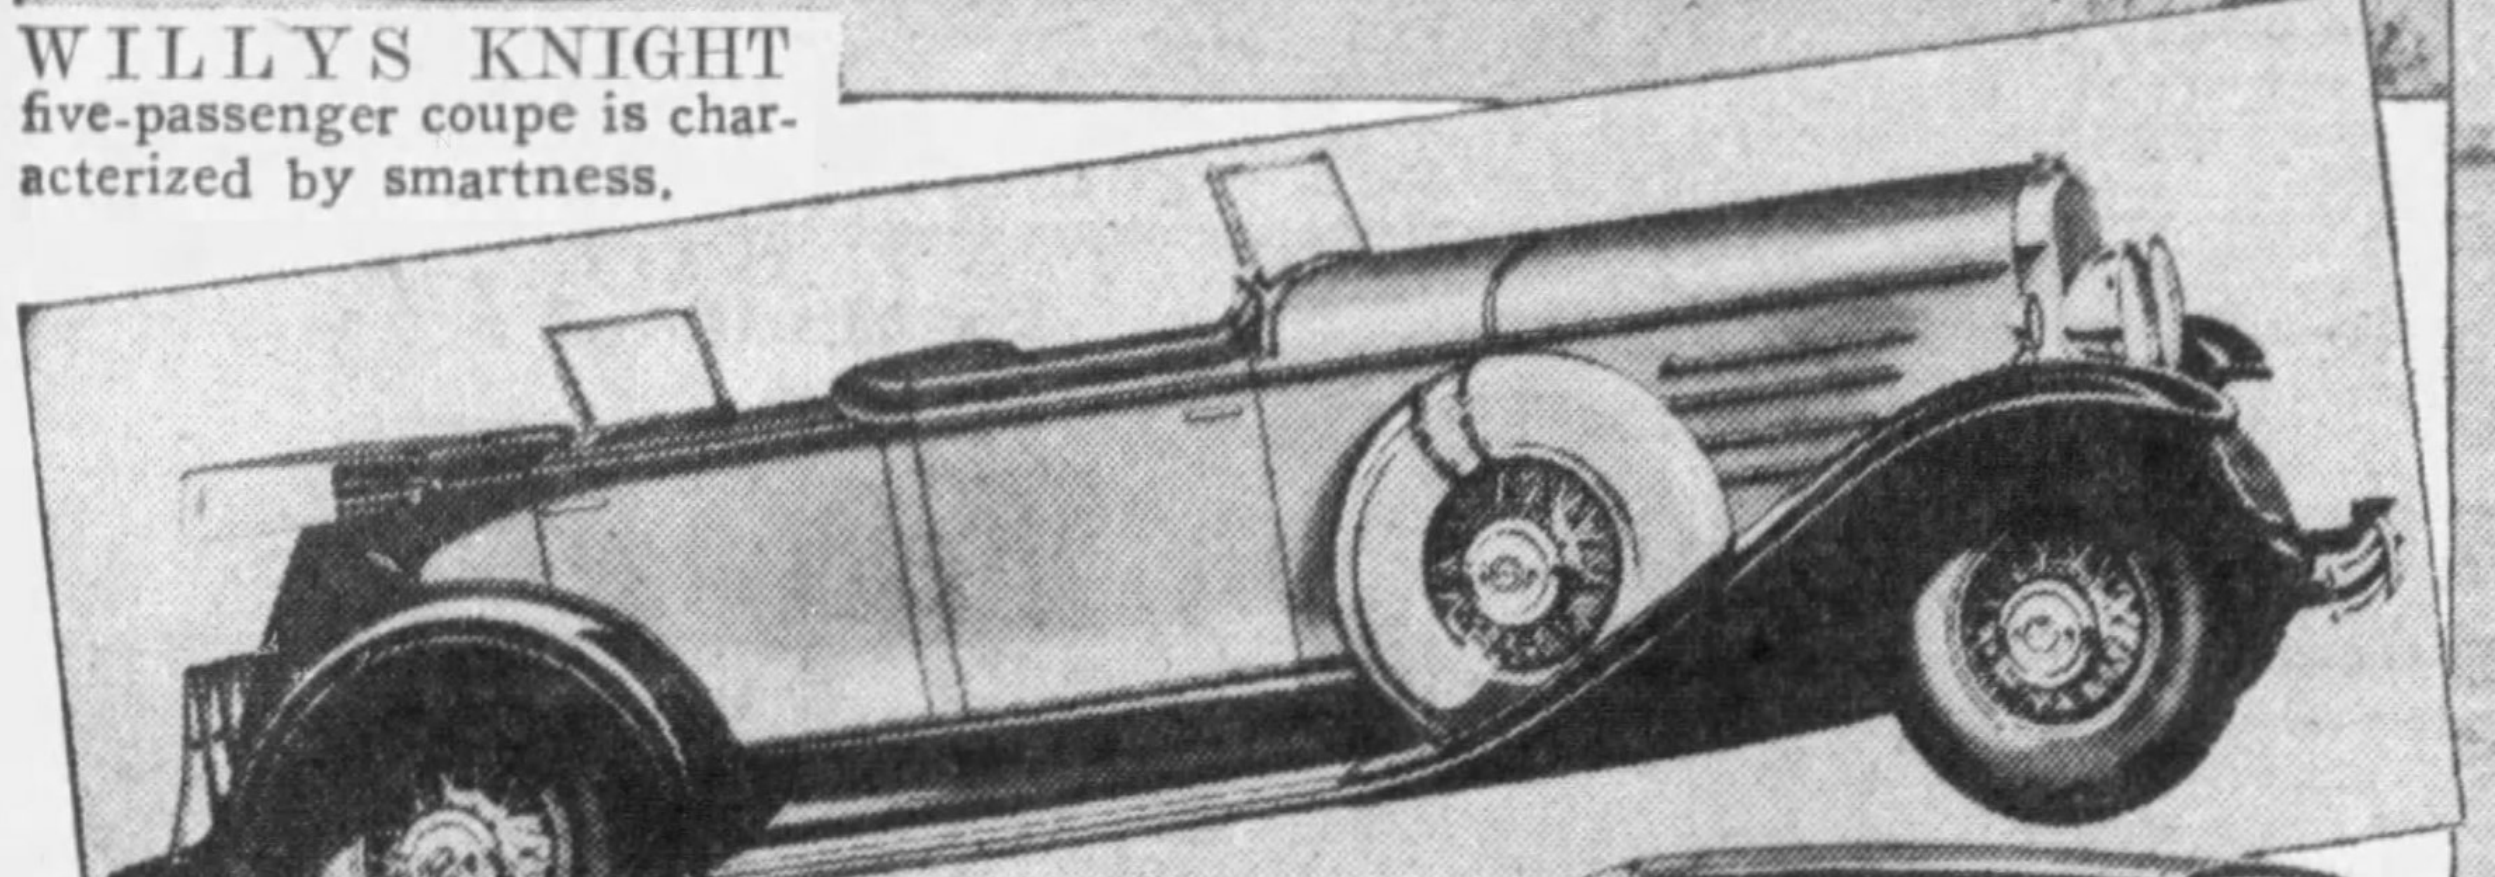
WILLYS KNIGHT five-passenger coupe is characterized by smartness.



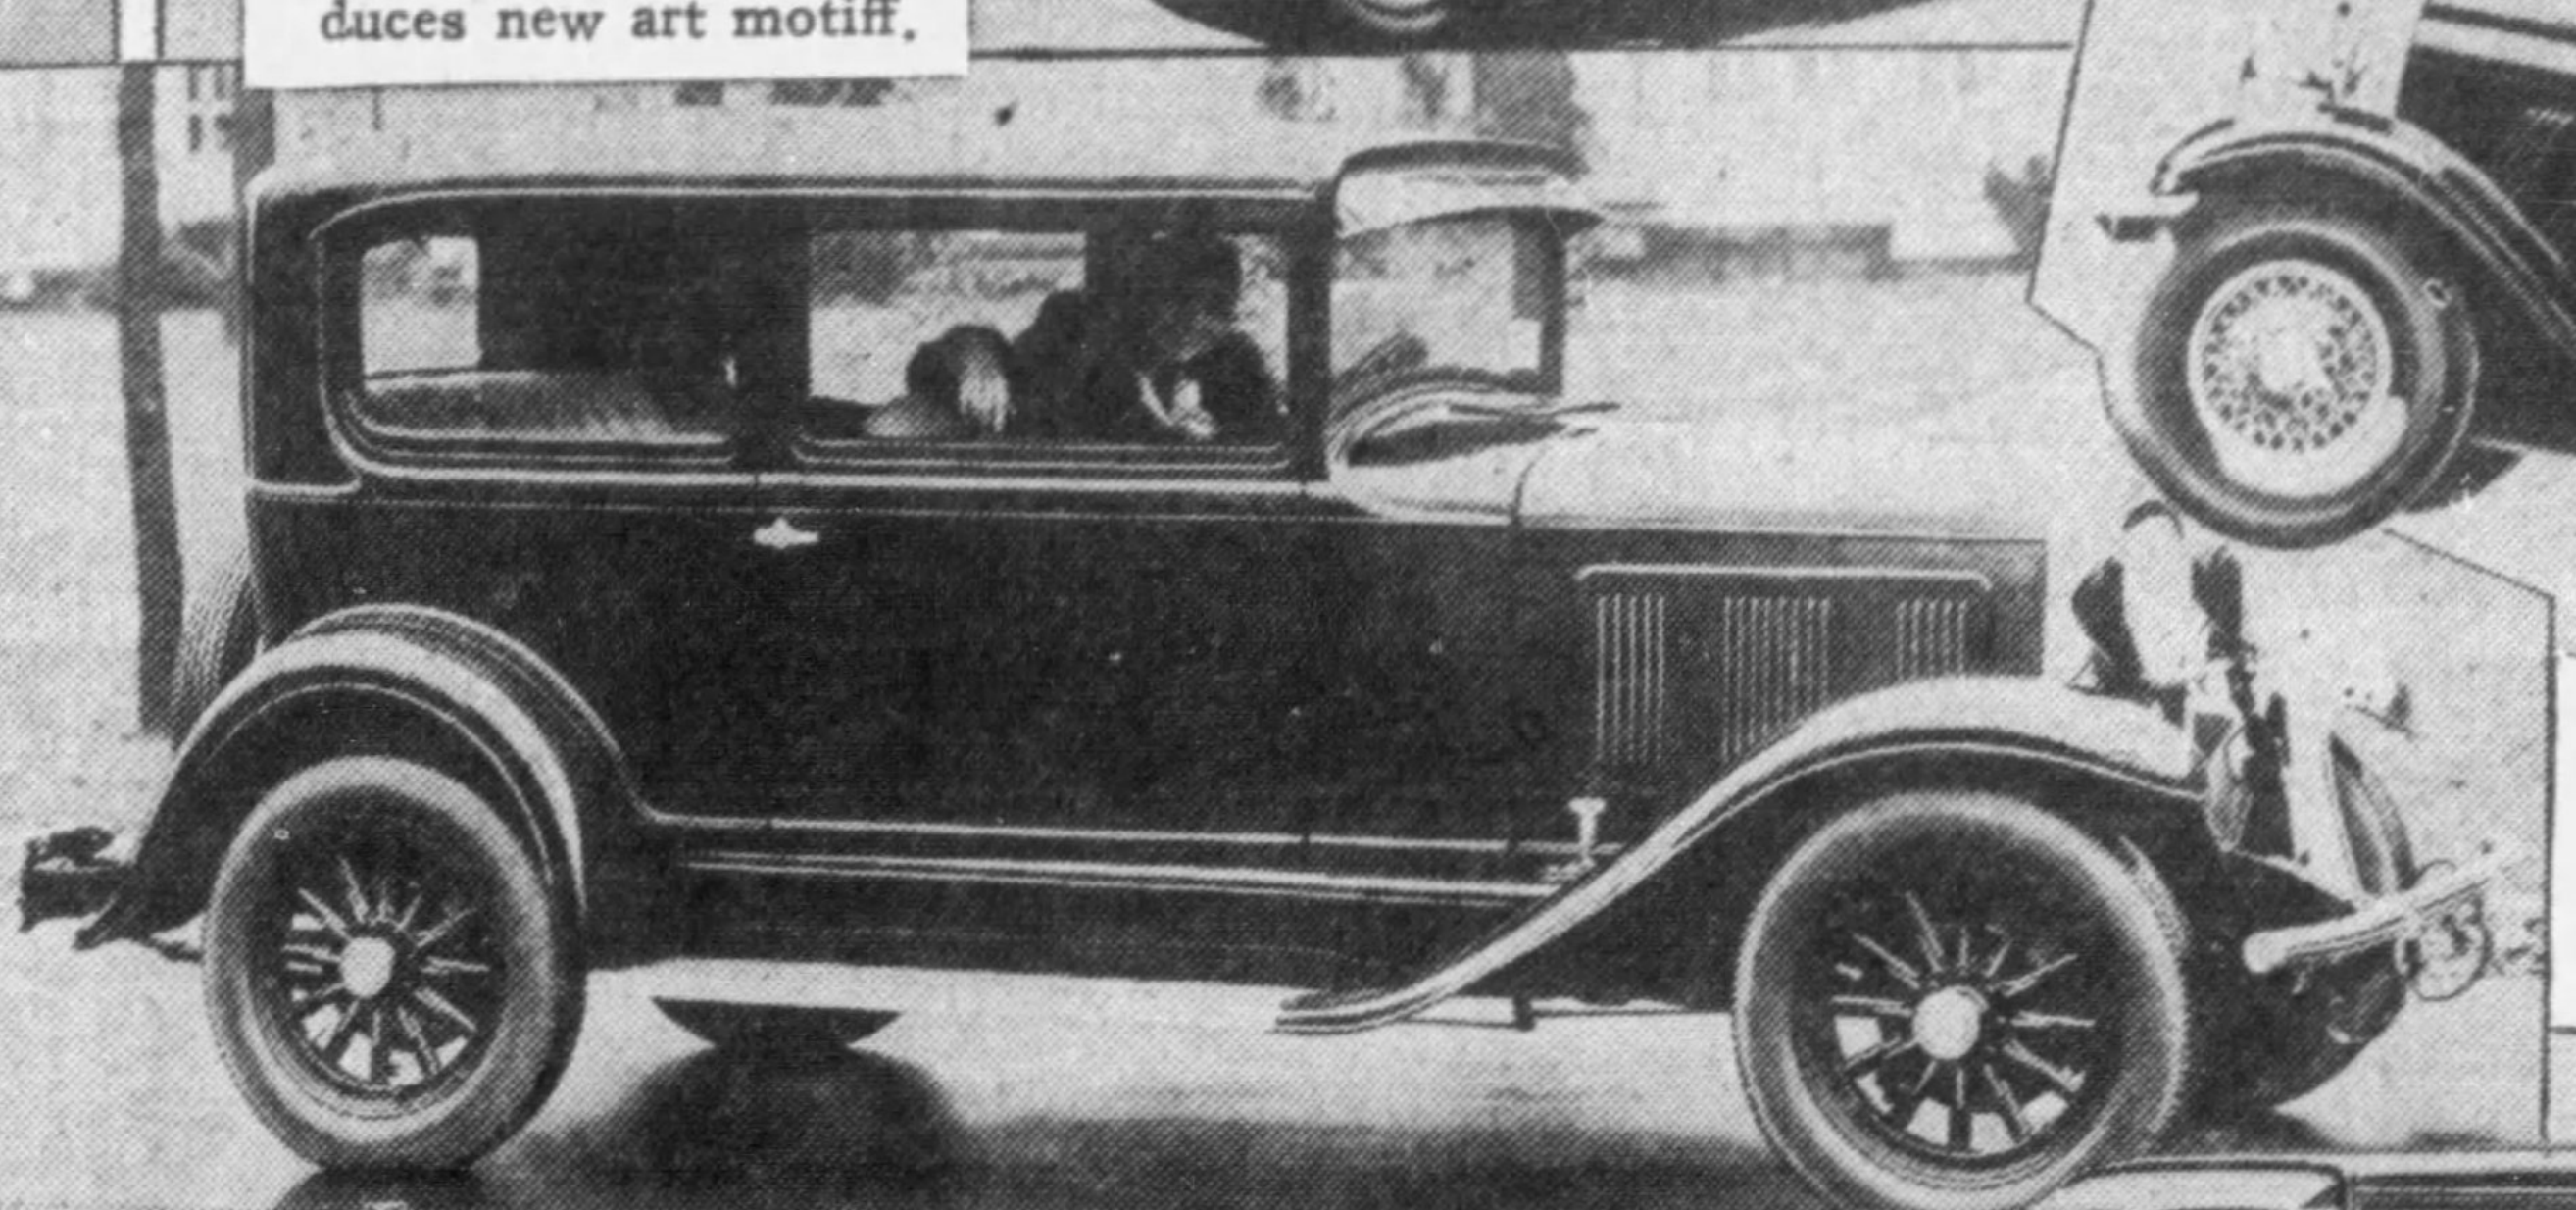
DURANT "6-14" sport phaeton introduces new art motiff.



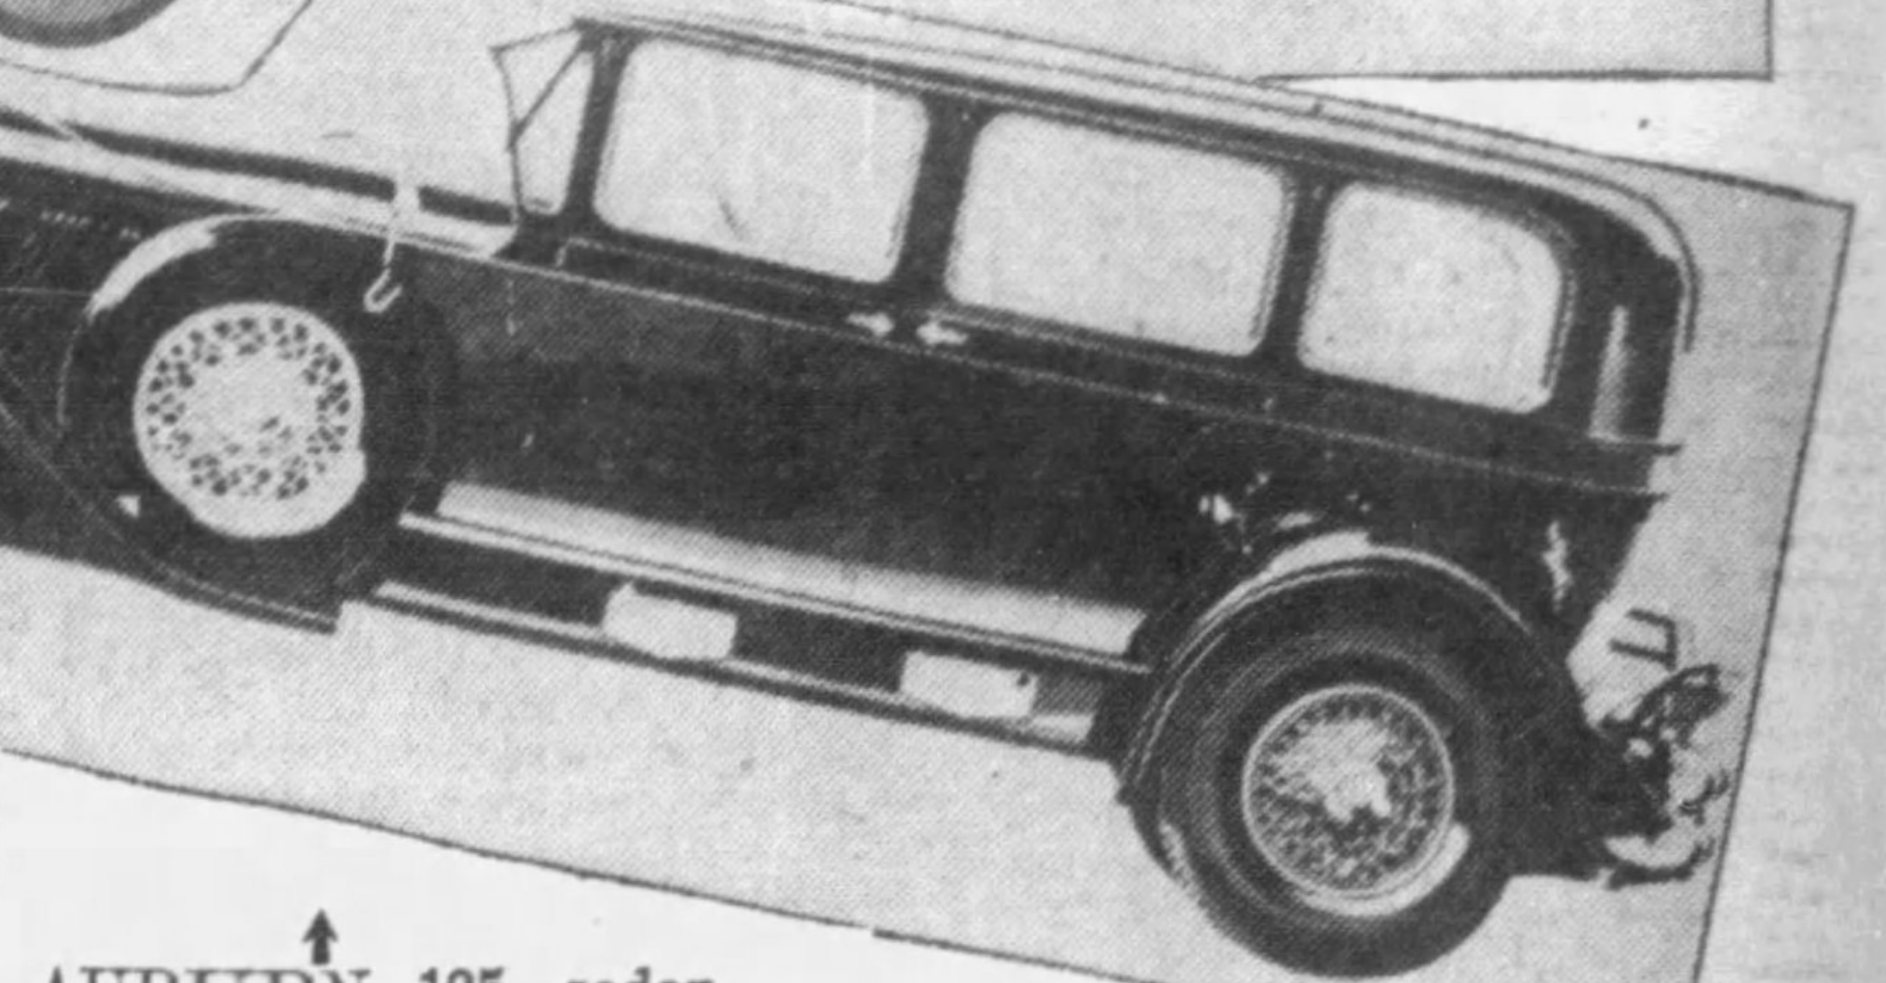
HUDSON'S EIGHT embodies many new motor engineering ideas.



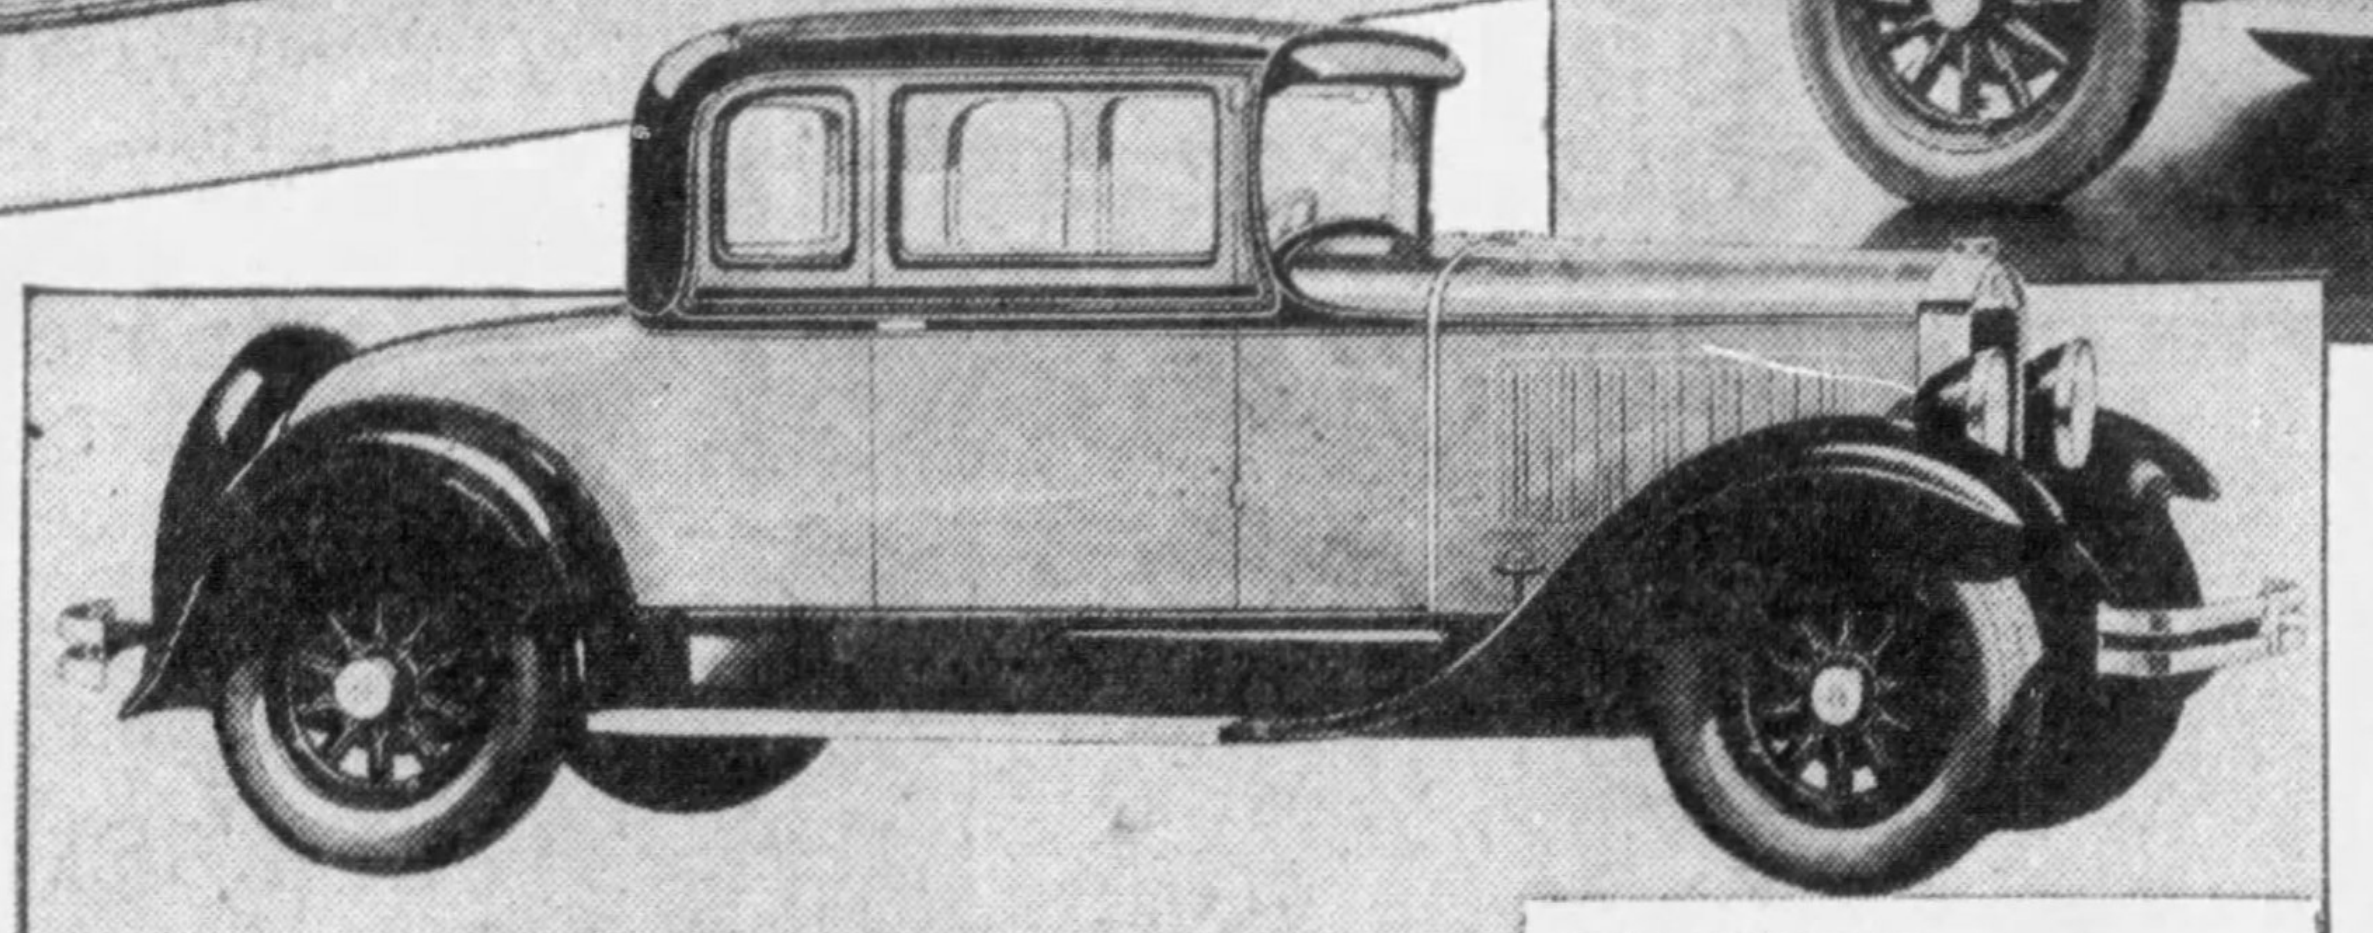
FRANKLIN Pursuit, a low, rakish car with embossed body paneling. It has a distinct airplane trend with seats following the airplane cockpit design. It is powered by an air-cooled engine of airplane design.



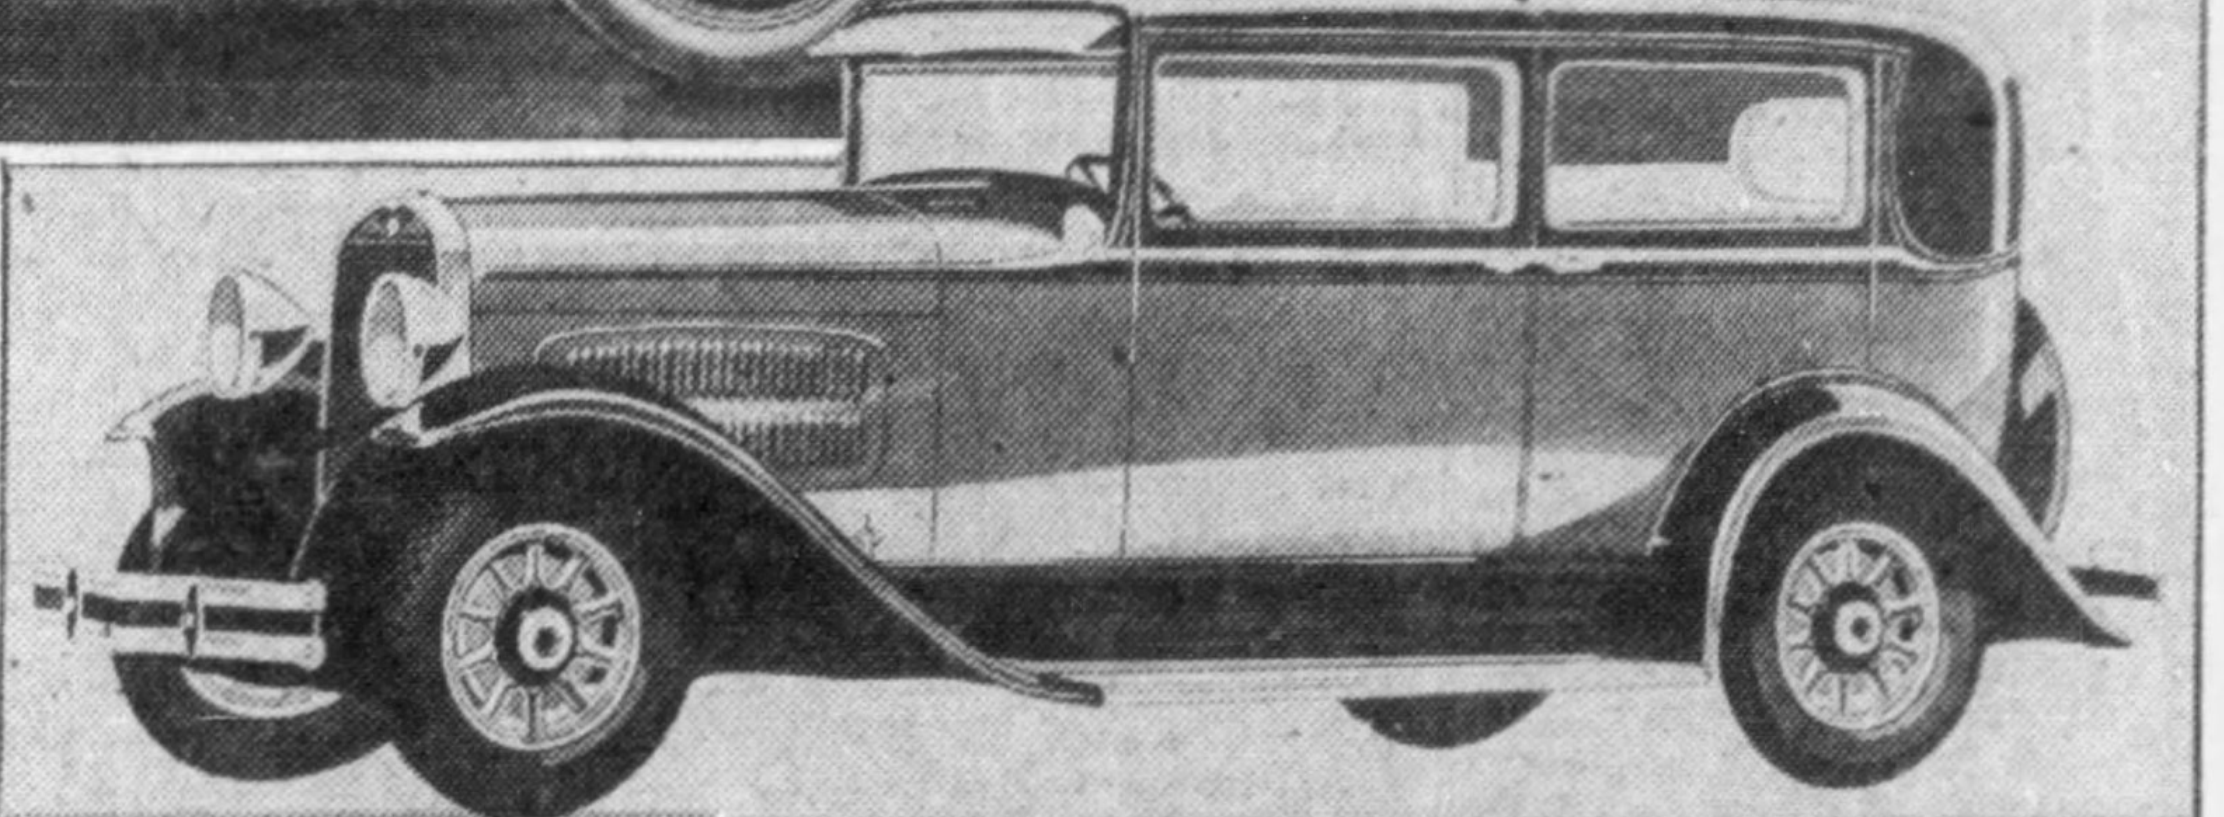
WILLYS SIX, newest addition to the six-cylinder field, is a product of Willys-Overland Co.



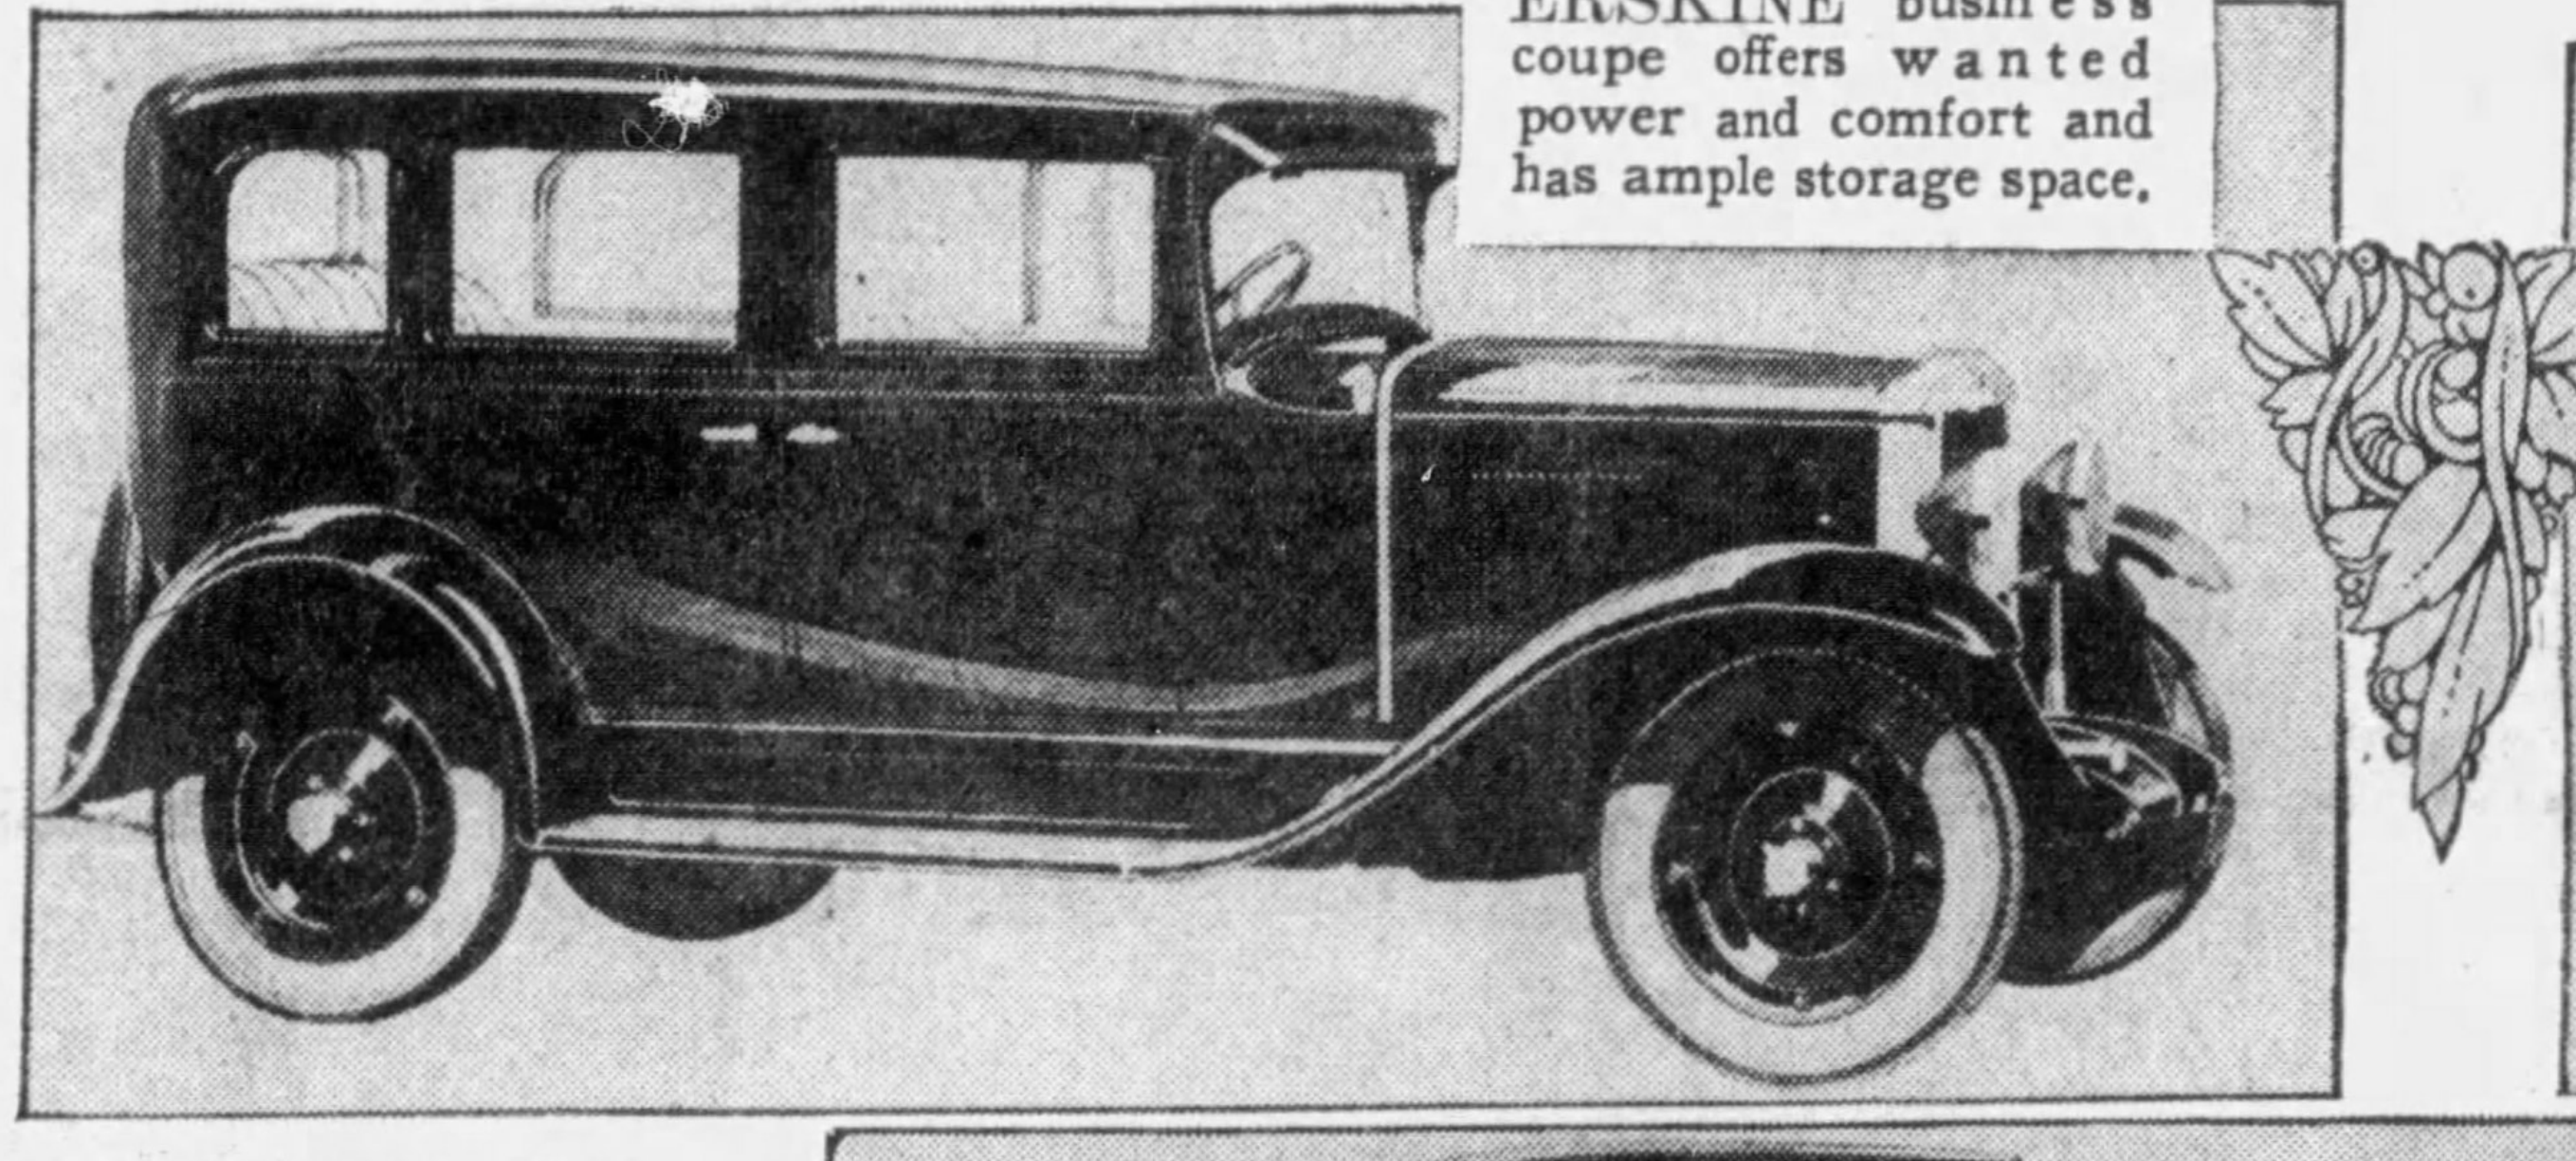
AUBURN 125 sedan, largest of three new lines.



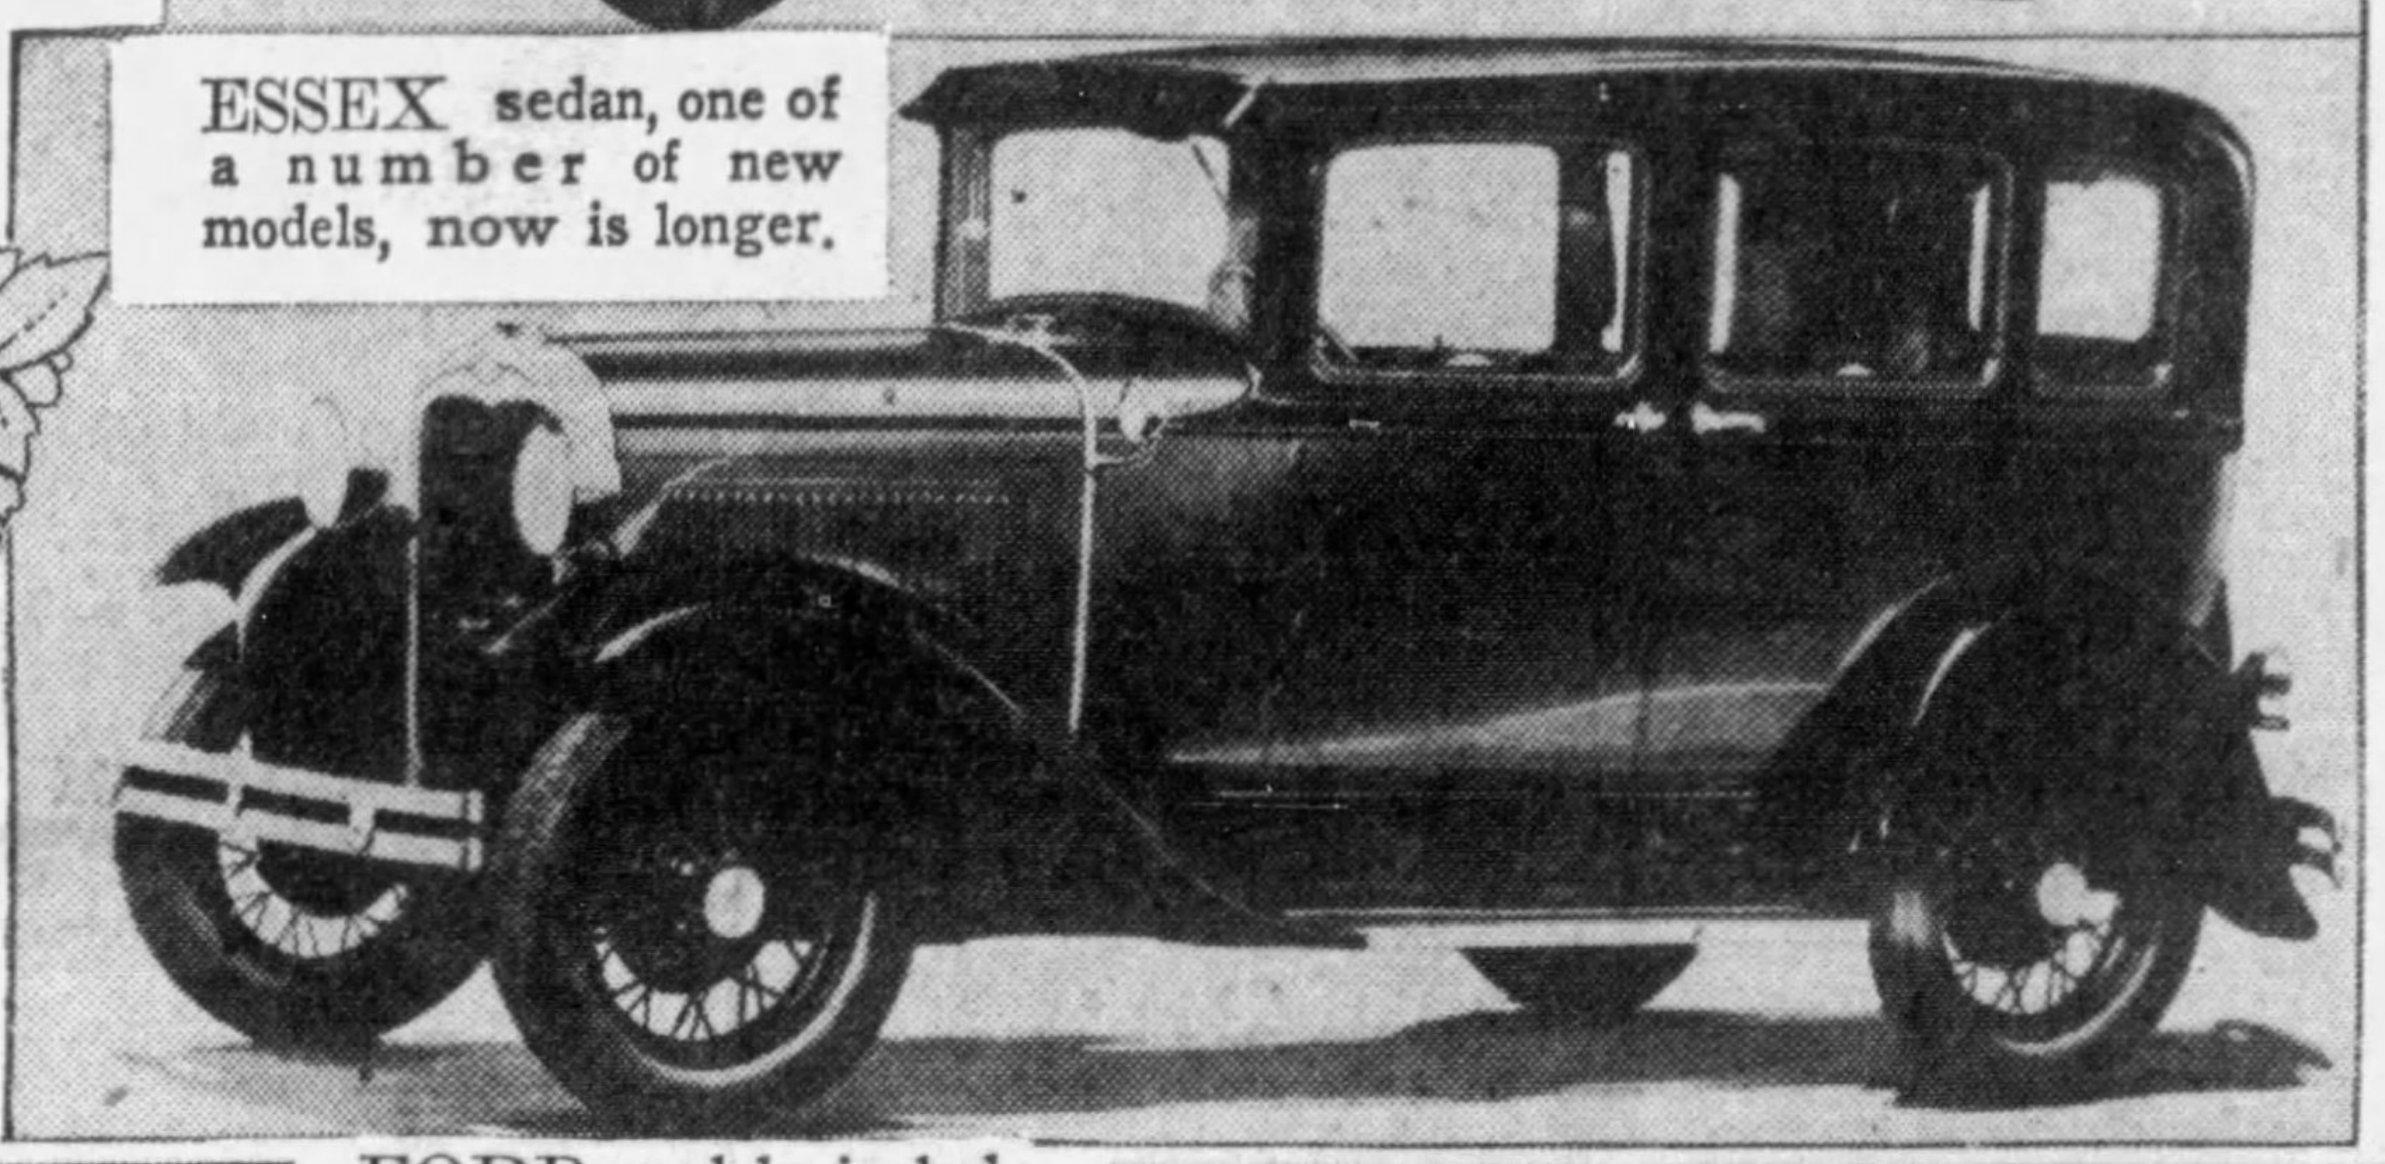
ERSKINE business coupe offers wanted power and comfort and has ample storage space.



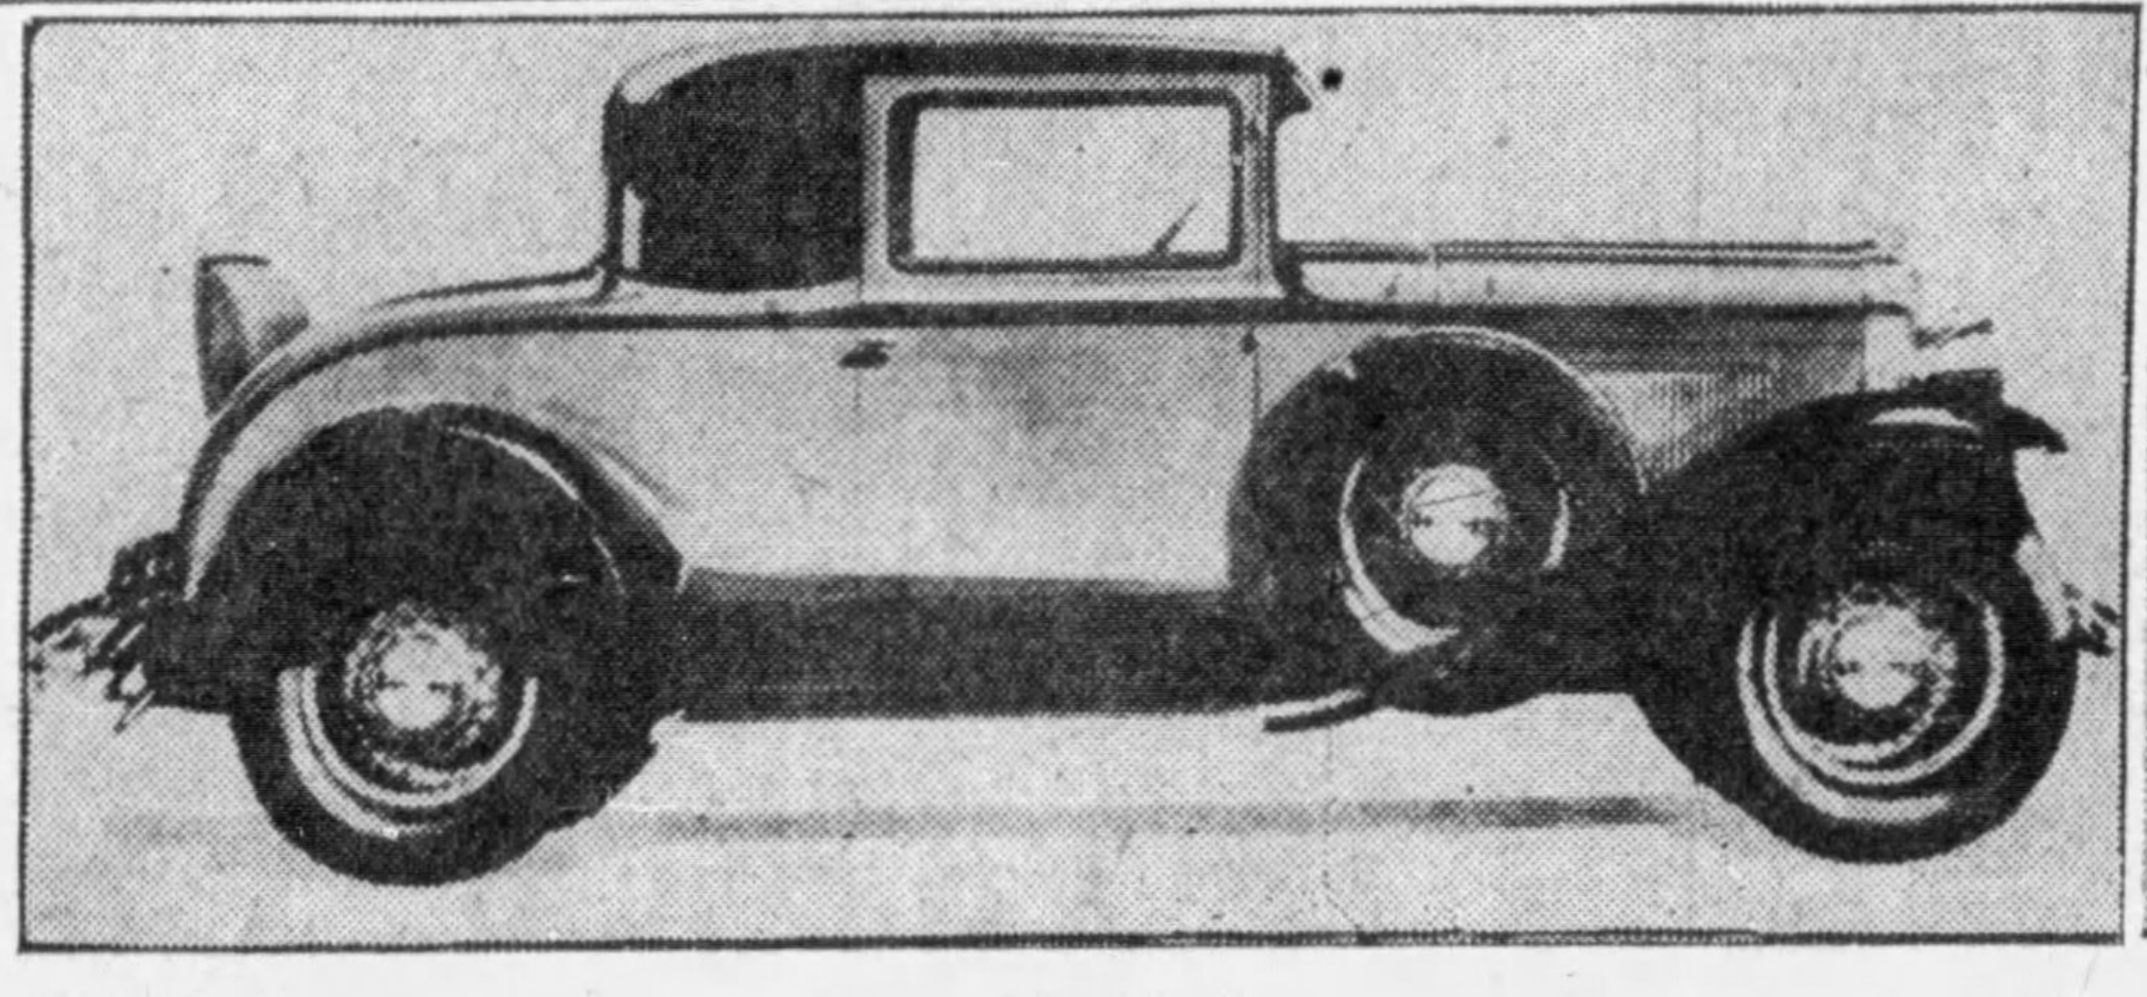
ESSEX sedan, one of a number of new models, now is longer.



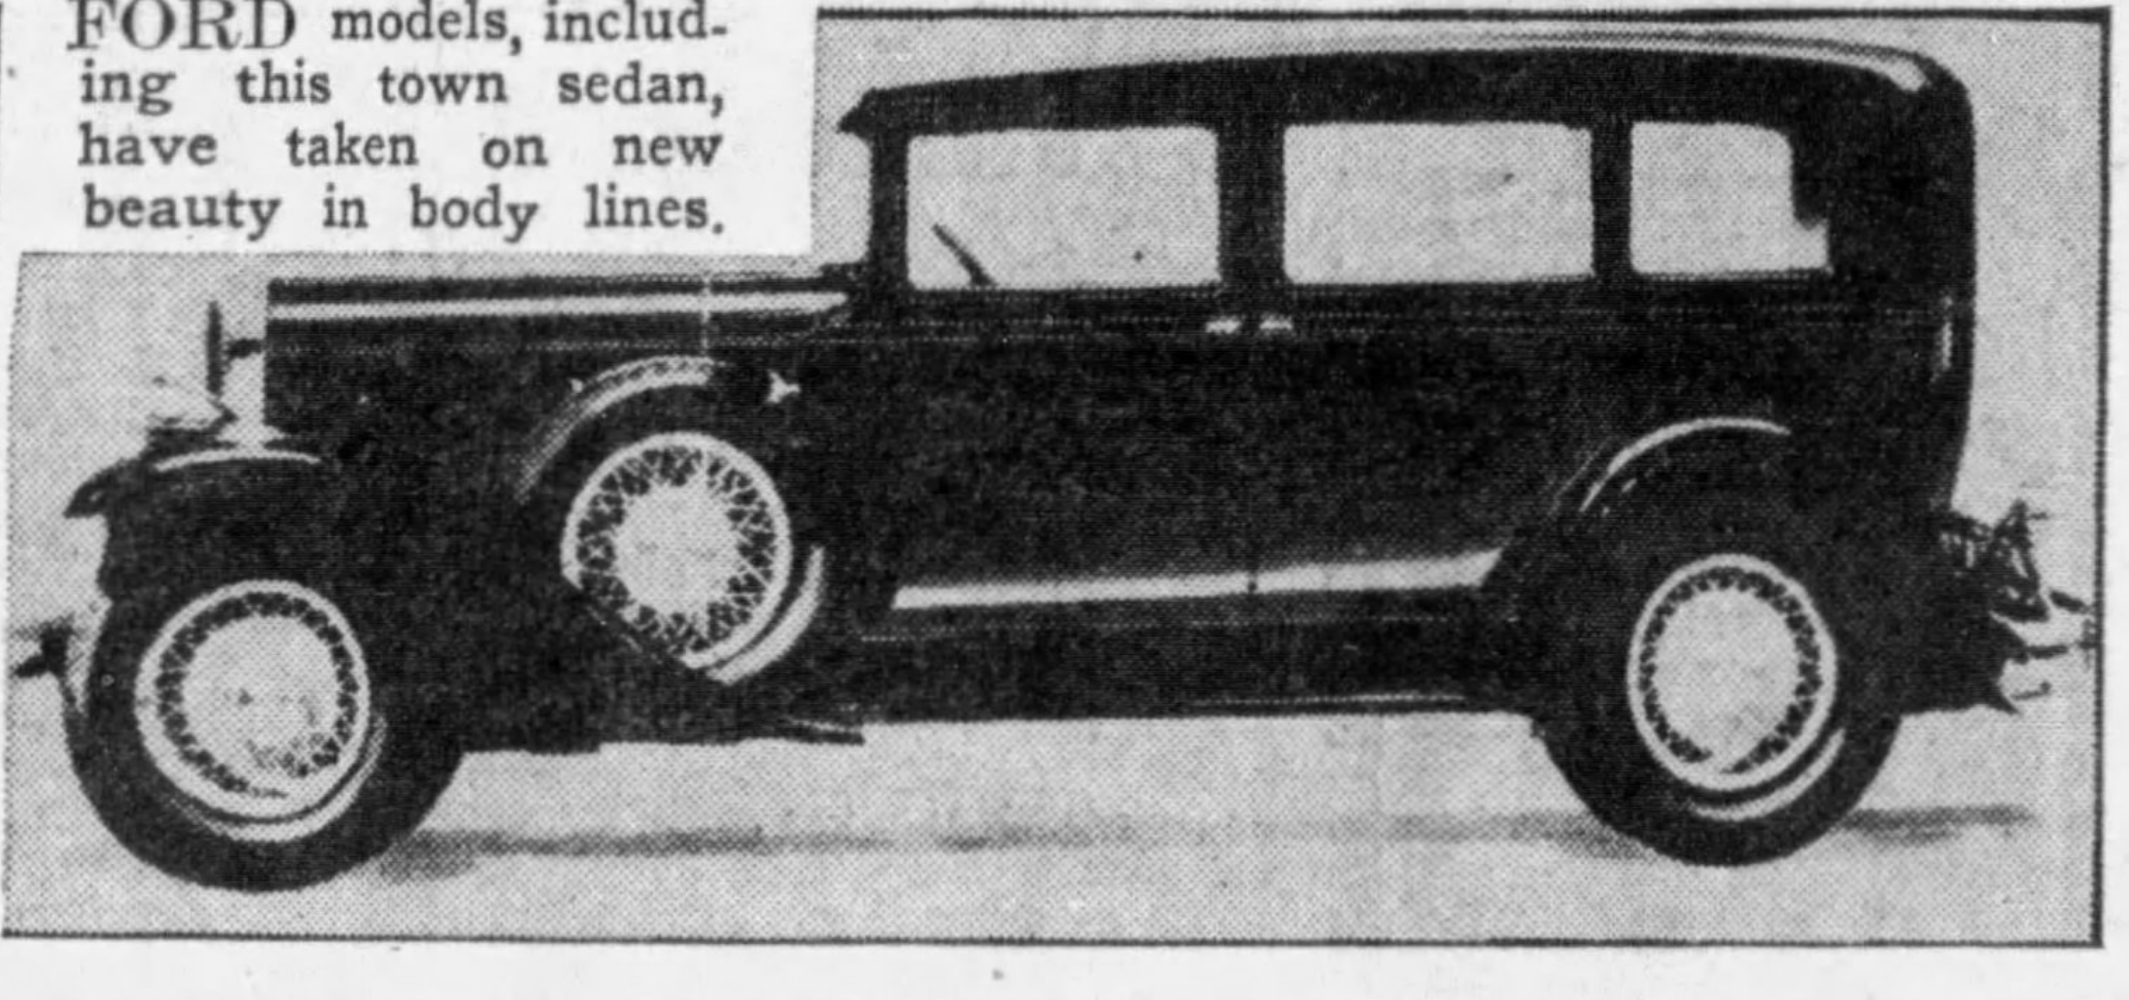
CHEVROLET SIX—The Chevrolet line offers many new de luxe features. One of the refinements is an inclined windshield which reduces reflections of light.



FORD models, including this town sedan, have taken on new beauty in body lines.



PONTIAC—New styles and a larger motor are features of the new Pontiac line, of which this sport coupe has been a favorite at pre-showings.



OAKLAND—Finer bodies and more speed combined with greater ease in driving are described as notable offerings in the new Oakland, now an Eight.

15 NEW AUTOS AWAIT VERDICT OF PITTSBURGH

Two Eights, Former Sixes, And Willys Head List Of Introductions Here

By H. W. DIETRICH,
Automobile Editor.

Fifteen new lines of motor cars, including two eight-cylinder cars which formerly were sixes and a new six bearing a new name plate, await inspection by Pittsburgh this week-end. The names of these new lines are:

Auburn	Hudson
Chevrolet	Nash
Durant	Oakland
Erskine	Pontiac
Essex	Stearns-Knight
Ford	Whippet Four
Franklin	Willys-Knight

Willys Six

The two new eight-cylinder cars, which until the present had been leaders in the popular priced six-cylinder field, are the Hudson eight-in-line and the Oakland V-8. Both of these cars present many new ideas in automotive engineering and both are said to offer power increases over the sixes without proportionate increases in gasoline consumption.

NAMED FOR WILLYS

The addition to the six-cylinder field is the Willys Six. It is a product of the Willys-Overland Company and was named for John N. Willys, chairman of the board and former president. It

Auto Builders Will Cater to Public in 1930

WITH the evident tightening of the battle for business during the new year all of the companies are lining up with the very best strength that they can muster.

One automobile company president said:

> "The public knows all about motor cars and we are going to supply them on that basis."

More Gasoline Used in Winter

Gasoline consumption increases in cold weather. The gauge will have to be watched more closely.

Hudson New Great Eight Stands Most Rigid Tests

The new Hudson Eight has come to Pittsburgh. And its makers, with a confidence born of 22 years manufacturing experience are emphatic in their claim that the Hudson Great Eight is an entirely new type in motordom.

Power with economy and without the penalty of overweighted mechanism is provided by the new Great Eight motor, designed to give the maximum in smooth, quiet operation, states J. R. Pierpoint, of Pierpoint Motor Company, 5001 Baum boulevard, who is exhibiting the new cars.

Years of experimentation have preceded the introduction of what Hudson engineers believe to be the maximum performance standards possible in an eight-cylinder car, and eight-cylinder Hudsons have been tested under every possible condition—using the highways as their testing ground—for the last two years.

There are 10 body types. The coach, sedan, coupe, phaeton, roadster and sun sedan are on the 119-inch chassis; the larger, 126-inch chassis, carries the touring sedan, seven-passenger sedan, brougham and seven-passenger phaeton body types.

The power plant is a compact eight-cylinder L-head motor mounted with four-point suspension, in rubber cushions. With a bore of 2¾ inches and a stroke of 4½ inches, giving a piston displacement of 213.8 cubic inches, and with the high compression ratio of 5.78, the engine delivers 80 horsepower.

The power yield of 80 horsepower comes from an unusually low gasoline consumption, a factor to which the carefully worked out easy flow manifolding system materially contributes.

LUBRICATING SYSTEM

The cylinders and the upper part of the crankcase form a single rigid casting. There are two separate cylinder heads, each for four cylinders. The crankshaft is a development of the famous Hudson principle applied to an eight. Heavy for a motor of the size of the Great Eight, it is counterweighted to give perfect inherent balance through all speed ranges, without whip or vibration; it revolves in five main bearings of more than ample dimensions. On the front end of the crankshaft an improved Lanchester impulse neutralizer is incorporated in the design.

Cooling is by pump-actuated circulation, with the water pump mounted on the left front motor support.

An improved dual-flow splash lubricating system is used. The oil is delivered to both ends of the motor by a double acting oscillating plunger pump. The oil streams flow toward the center,

MANY CHANGES IN CHEVROLETS

Auto show crowds yesterday greeted the Chevrolet Motor Company's new car for 1930, known as "The Greatest Chevrolet in Chevrolet History."

Scores of improvements have been made in the 1930 Chevrolet line. These include greater beauty, added safety factors, improved riding comfort and better all-round performance, with added power and faster acceleration.

Larger tires, small wheels, Delco-Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers at all four wheels, Fisher slanting non-glare VV windshield and vastly improved four-wheel braking system are some of the highlights.

Brakes are of the internal expanding "articulated shoe type" both front and rear, those on the front wheels having two shoes, while those on the rear have four. The brakes may be adjusted without the removal of any plates from the brake drum and operate with equal efficiency on all four wheels. The emergency brake is an independent unit operating on the rear drums. Tests at the General Motors proving ground show that the new brake will stop a car traveling 30 miles per hour in 2.2 seconds within 48 feet.

The new closed bodies, in a variety of colors, carry the Fisher stamp of craftsmanship. Eight models, three of which are new to Chevrolet, comprise the line. Of the eight, five are closed cars and three are open. The closed cars are the sedan, coach, coupe, sport coupe and club sedan. The open models are the roadster, sport roadster and phaeton. The models new to the line this year are the sport coupe, sport roadster and club sedan.

The six-cylinder valve-in-head engine has been further improved and refined. The result of the efforts is a smoother, quieter, more powerful motor. The new engine,

Don't Race Car's Motor When Cold

Because it is cold, the motorist should bear in mind:

That it is infinitely more important to avoid racing the engine until it is thoroughly warmed.

That changing to a more volatile gas requires a change also in carburetor adjustment.

That the engine needs as nearly perfect compression as possible, which should suggest attention to the valves.

Poisoning Avoided By Wise Motorists

For purposes of drainage, the floor of the built-in garage inclines outward. Many motorists take advantage of this fact to avoid the danger of carbon monoxide poisoning due to starting the car in the garage. They coast out and then start the engine. Usually, having been indoors, it starts without difficulty.

Greater Power and Speed Feature New Willys Six

Powered by an engine that develops 65 horsepower, producing a speed of 72 miles an hour in high and 48 miles an hour in second, the new Willys Six is announced by the Willys-Overland Company.

The Willys Six brings to the low-priced field a surplus of speed for all the demands of modern motoring, states G. H. Seagert, of Rea-Seagert Company, who are exhibiting the new cars. In appearance the new car offers a style development seen as a significant bid by Willys-Overland for leadership in the less than $1,000 class.

Numerous features of ultra-modern engineering are embraced in the construction of this new car, such as its rubber insulated engine to provide vibrationless action, higher compression, internal four-wheel brakes all around, Monroe double acting hydraulic shock eliminators manual heat control, full force feed lubrication, three-spoke rubber covered steering wheel, "finger-tip control," crankcase ventilation, heavy counterbalanced crankshaft, hand brake lever at extreme left, adjustable front seats in sedan models, sturdy frame construction, large oversize tires and unusual oil and gas economy at cruising speeds of 35 to 45 miles an hour.

With this new car representing the greatest mechanical achievement in Willys-Overland's history, it is a fitting tribute that it should be named after John N. Willys, who, for more than 22 years as president, directed the company's destinies until he resigned in favor of I. A. Miller a few months ago and became chairman of the board.

NEW PARKING LIGHTS

More than a year in the course of development, the Willys Six has been perfected after the most exhaustive tests ever made with a product of Willys-Overland. These tests included thousands of miles over all types of highways in every section of the country and power tests on the steep mountains of Pennsylvania, Tennessee and West Virginia.

Accurate tests show the dynamic flow of power and the resultant outstanding records of acceleration. It will accelerate in high gear from 5 to 25 miles in eight seconds and from 5 to 50 miles in 21 seconds.

The bodies are characterized by long sweeping lines, trim, narrow radiator and carefully tailored rear quarters. Modish designs, coupled with rich color combinations, contribute to the car's appearance of quality, which also is noticeable in the richness of interior appointments and upholstery.

The arrangement of the parking lights is entirely new. Instead

BEAUTY ADDED TO FORD LINES

Crowds that almost equaled in proportion those that greeted the Ford Model A on its introduction crowded the show rooms of the Ford Motor Company and Ford dealers here last week to see the newest of Ford cars.

Added beauty of line constitutes the outstanding feature of the new Ford. Mechanically, the car retains the same chassis and engine.

The new lines of the Ford are most readily apparent in a deeper and narrower radiator, a higher and longer hood and streamline moldings that sweep gracefully rearward without a break.

The instant impression of a car that sits and rides lower results from a lowered top, smaller wheels, larger tires and new fenders, while increased riding space has been provided through greater interior dimensions. Fenders of new design add a great deal to the flowing sweep of the car, while the runningboard and side dust shield or valance, fit snugly to the body. Also, the fenders flare up from the chassis frame in a pleasing line to a higher elevation than formerly. Rear fenders also sweep down gracefully over the wheels to a point two inches lower than previously.

One of the distinctive changes is found in the new sturdier 19-inch wheels, a reduction in dimensions of the earlier wheels. This change, when coupled with larger tires, brings the car closer to the ground, thereby attaining a still snugger adherence to the road bed and permitting of increased riding comfort and safety.

Another of the innovations of the new Ford bodies is the use of rustless steel for exposed metal parts. This is found in the radiator shell, headlamps, hub caps, cowl finish strip and tail-lamp.

Bodies will be available in a variety of new colors. Among these are Kewanee green, chicle and copra drab, thorne brown, Bronson yellow, moleskin, Andalusite blue, maroon and black.

Power Plants In 1930 Cars Better Built

THE new automobile engine for this year will require the minimum of service attention. Those items making for expense in the older models, such as inaccessibility of parts requiring periodic attention have been eliminated.

31 CAR MAKERS INTRODUCE NEW LINES AT SHOW

Largest Auto Exhibited Is Sixteen Cylinder and Smallest Is Tiny Four.

By RAY PRIEST,
Staff Correspondent Universal Service and Sun-Telegraph.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Thirty-one makers are displaying entirely new lines of passenger cars in the thirtieth national automobile show, opened today in Grand Central Palace. This is exactly the same number of makers that displayed at the first exhibit in November, 1900.

The largest car now being shown is the V-type 16-cylinder Cadillac. The smallest is the four-cylinder Whippet. In 1900 there were single cylinder cars and some four-cylinder cars.

In addition this year the national show has 13 makers who are displaying recently introduced lines of cars or offering improvements which they do not feel justifies their calling them entirely new lines of automobiles. Four makers are announcing additions to their lines.

The national show this year also has two foreign cars, the Mercedes-Benz and the Voisin and two makers of taxicabs, the Checker and the Yellow. Ford is exhibiting new car bodies in a private display.

SOME SLASH PRICES

Taken in their alphabetical order we find the companies exhibitions at Grand Central Palace have the following:

Auburn — A new six-cylinder line and two new lines of eights. Both lines of eights have been cut in price from $200 to $300. The front-wheel drive Cord also is here.

Blackhawk — Major improvements and wide variety of body styles featuring Weymann flexible body.

Buick—Crowds gave this display much favor despite the fact 1930 models were introduced several months ago.

Cadillac—The V-type 16-cylinder car, most discussed make of

New Oaklands, Pontiacs Boast Modern Features

The new Oakland eight and its companion car, the Pontiac big six, in its new 1930 dress, were placed on display here yesterday by C. A. Rehtmeyer, Inc., Baum boulevard and Craig street, distributor, and dealers. The new Oakland eight is the only motor car in its price field powered with a "V" motor.

Developed during three years of intensive experiment and research, the sturdy compact new Oakland engine employs many new but thoroughly-proved principles of design which enable it to establish remarkable standards of performance.

Entirely without torsional vibration at any engine speed, the new power plant develops 85 horsepower at 3000 r. p. m. from a displacement of 251 cubic inches. This remarkable output of power is due to several new factors, including complete down draft type of carburetion, high-compression two-plane cylinder heads and horizontal valve design. These features and many others permit the development of 85 horsepower with a gasoline economy approximately the same as that of the previous Oakland six which was rated at 68 brake horsepower.

The comparatively short design of the "V" engine, which in the new Oakland is only 29 9-16 inches long, has enabled the Oakland engineers to retain the 117-inch wheelbase of the Oakland Six while allowing even more passenger room. The new Oakland's tremendous power in a chassis of moderate weight gives a ratio of one horsepower to each 37 pounds of car weight—the secret of the high speed, fast acceleration and flexibility of which the new car is capable.

STROKE AND BORE

The simple compactness of the V-type engine has been highly capitalized by the adoption of a "square" bore-to-stroke ratio. The bore of 3 7-16 inches is slightly greater than the stroke of 3 3-8 inches. The short stroke greatly reduces the development of inertia forces by reciprocating parts inside the engine. The V design also permits the use of ample cooling passages around the widely spaced cylinders and valves.

Another new development is the fact that both blocks of cylinders and the crankcase are formed in a single, solid, compact, heavily-ribbed casting, affording a rigid foundation for the big crankshaft bearings. Full adjustable pressure lubrication is provided to all vital parts of the engine.

Again meriting its long reputation as an automotive pioneer, Oakland has developed an entirely new type of engine mounting for the eight. The two forward engine mountings are designed in the form of flat laminated springs. While rear rubber mountings ro-

STATE GAS TAX CUT FROM U. S. INCOME LEVIES

Revenue Bureau Ruling Saves Motorists of Five States $50,000,000 Annually.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Tax decisions affecting and affording relief to approximately 4,500,000 motorists of five states have just been announced by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, acording to the legal department of the American Motorists' Association.

"The rulings all relate to the question of gasoline taxes, the bureau holding that motorists of Pennsylvania, Illinois, Washington, Massachusetts and Rhode Island are entitled to a deduction in their federal income tax of whatever sum each has paid out during the past year on gasoline taxes.

MEANS $50,000,000 SAVING

"The effect of the decisions mean the exemption annually of approximately $50,000,000 from the motorists' federal taxation in those states, as each motorist last year paid an average of slightly more than $11 in gasoline taxes," C. H. Roth, vice president of the A. M. A., declares.

Simultaneous with the announcement of the decisions the bureau announced denial to the 325,000 motorists of the state of Georgia the right to take a credit for the six cents gasoline tax each must pay on his motor fuel, the department interpreting the gasoline law of Georgia to be a tax against the distributors of motor fuel in that state. To deny the deduction amounts to double taxation in that the motorist is taxed on his taxes, Mr. Roth says.

"Irrespective of the fact that it is the motorist who eventually pays the gasoline tax, the bureau holds that it can do no more than construe the gasoline tax laws of each state as the legislatures have enacted them. In those states where the provisions of the motor fuel act require that the tax on motor fuel is to be levied against the distributor as an occupational tax, the bureau holds the tax to be paid by the distributor or dealer and not by the motorist.

OTHER STATES FAVORED

"Up to the present time the Internal Revenue Bureau has interpreted the gasoline tax laws of 18 states and the District of Columbia. In addition to the five states mentioned, the bureau has ruled that motorists of the following states may deduct their gasoline taxes from their income tax returns: Wisconsin, Delaware, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, New York, North Carolina and Virginia. In the states of Ohio, Maryland, Connecticut, Colorado, Georgia and the District of Columbia, the bureau holds that the motor vehicle fuel acts impose the taxes upon the gasoline distributor and that it is not paid by the motorist."

Cold Wind Quickly Cools Off Engine

Car owners seldom have their option in parking spaces. If they do, though, it will pay to park in such a way that the car is headed with the wind. A cold blast directly across it cools the engine much quicker.

Keep Autos Clean During Bad Weather

It may seem useless to keep the car cleaned during bad weather. However, letting the dirt pile on is an excellent way to permit rust to start.

Soda Will Cut Out Scale in Radiator, Free Circulation

Water will not circulate properly in the cooling system if the pump is not in good working order or a pipe has become clogged. Unscrew the filler cap and see if the water swirls about just under the opening when the engine is running. Water will not cool properly if there is lime scale on the radiator walls or the fan belt slips. To remove the lime scale drain the radiator, then pour in a bucket of water in which a large handful of soda has been dissolved and fill up the radiator. Now run the engine for about 15 minutes and again drain. Then wash the soda out by filling and refilling with fresh water a number of times. Improper lubrication will cause overheating. Remember that an engine needs good oil and that the oil being used over and over again must be drained off about every 1,000 miles and fresh oil used in place of it. Running too long on retarded spark, or on low gear, will also cause overheating.

NASH OFFERS 3 NEW MODELS

KENOSHA, Wis., Jan. 4.—Three new and distinguished motor car models—finer, more luxurious and handsomer than any similar types produced in the past by the famous Nash quality and precision manufacturing plants—make their initial bow to American motorists this month, and take their places in the brilliant ensemble of cars that make up the Nash Motors Company's "400" series for 1930.

The interesting newcomers, placed in production following the flood of orders and consequent heavy demands made on Nash production lines that came with announcement of the new Nash series in October, are led by a new type five-passenger twin-ignition eight victoria, which promises to be one of the most popular town models of the straight-eight group. The other two new cars now in production are the flashing single six roadster and the unusually attractive single six landaulet — both cars of pronounced charm and individuality.

The new twin-ignition eight victoria answers a pressing national demand for a compact, distinctive and easily handled style-car with an intimate but ample capacity for five people. Built on the long Nash eight wheelbase, the new victoria provides a full rear seat, which offers limousine comfort for three passengers. The driver's seat is deep, comfortable, form-fitting and firmly backed. Although the wide auxiliary seat folds over compactly to allow easy access to the car's interior, it is an exact counterpart of the driver's seat and returns to its position flush with the latter, forming a deep, standard front compartment of unmatched comfort and utility.

Squeaks Symptons Of Brake Trouble

Squeaky noises are the most prevalent symptoms of brake disorders that usually show in slipping and grabbing. Rivet heads, as well as wires woven into the lining, become exposed by excess wear of brake lining. These metal parts, when forced against a rapidly moving brake drum, form a metal-to-metal contact under pressure, and when the brakes are applied the resulting vibration makes the brakes squeak and howl. An out-of-round condition of the brake-band localizes the wear on certain high spots, thus setting up a series of distressing vibrations. The distorted condition of the band permits only the higher spots on the lining to make contact with the drum when brakes are applied.

AUTO DRIVERS' CARDS MAILED FOR RENEWAL

Bureau of Motor Vehicles Asks Motorists to Aid Work in Pennsylvania.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 4.—The mails Monday will carry 2,050,000 operators' renewal cards, sent by the bureau of motor vehicles to men and women operating motor vehicles in Pennsylvania.

These cards must be returned to the bureau, at Harrisburg, prior to March 1, the beginning of the license year.

The fee for a driver's card hereafter is $2, not $1, the 1929 Legislature having doubled the price.

"As has been pointed out in connection with vehicle registration," said Commissioner Benjamin G. Eynon today, "those persons who have changed their address since receiving a card last spring will not receive a card unless they notify the Motor Vehicles Bureau of the change.

MARKED THIRD CLASS

"These forms are mailed third class, and even though a forwarding address has been left at the postoffice they cannot be forwarded to the new address, under postal regulations. It is important, therefore, that persons who have moved write Harrisburg for change-of-address form 1122 or M-18.

"This applies to persons who have mailed cards since October 16, at which time preparation of renewal cards was completed.

"All renewal forms are released from Harrisburg postoffice at the same time, not alphabetically, as the public seems to think. If the operator does not receive his card within a week he should ask for a duplicate keeping in mind the change-of-address proposition.

ASK CO-OPERATION

"There is no sound reason why operators' renewal cards cannot be mailed to Harrisburg immediately upon receipt. Two dollars is a trifling sum, compared with the amount of money spent annually by the average owner and driver," continued Mr. Eynon.

"The dilatory tactics of owners and operators result in a flood at the close of the period which works hardships on the clerical force, which is entitled to more consideration.

"Early mailing is an evidence of a desire on the part of the driver to play fair with the men and women working in the Motor Vehicles Bureau."

Steering Into Skid Straightens Out Car

The counsel to "steer into the skid" in order to stop it is somewhat mystifying to some car owners. It should not be. It means simply that if the rear wheels start to slide to the right, the front wheels should be turned to the right. Or, if the rear wheels slide left, steer to the left. Steering into the skid, of course, tends to pull the car back into a straight position.

Use Clutch Pedal Only to Shift Gears

Never depress the clutch pedal except to change from one gear to to another or to neutral. A depressed pedal with the engine running and the car in gear causes unnecessary wear on the clutch thrust bearing, besides, if the foot should slip, there is a possibility of damaging parts or causing an accident.

CAPT. HAL CELEBRATES NEW YEAR

IN CABRIOLET—Capt. Hal Bazley, local manager for Curtiss-Wright Flying Service, operating Bettis Airport, and commanding officer of the Three Hundred and Twenty-fourth Observation Squadron, Rodgers Field, celebrated the arrival of 1930 in a new Hudson cabriolet. He took delivery of the new car from Pierpoint Motor Company Tuesday. He is shown with his new car and a Gypsy Moth airplane, for which, with other planes in the Curtiss service, the Pierpoint company is district sales representative.

31 NEW LINES IN AUTO SHOW

the show. Hood lengthened eight inches to handle the 185 horsepower motor. The price was only slightly above $6,000. V-type eight-cylinders cars much improved.

Chevrolet — This six-cylinder car, which sold last year to the tune of 1,350,000, this year bears 76 improvements.

Chrysler—Thirty models in four different lines embody the offerings.

Cunningham—Featuring custom built bodies.

DeSoto—This make offers in addition to the six, a new eight-cylinder line of cars that will be sold around $1,000.

Dodge—This company added a six-cylinder and an eight-cylinder line of cars to its present two lines of sixes. The six prices were lowered.

TRIES AIRPLANE ENGINE

Du Pont — Showing new adaptations of this exclusive line of cars.

Durant—Two lines of six-cylinder cars with beautiful new body lines.

Elcar—Two lines of eight-cylinder cars.

Erskine—Increased horsepower. Seven body types are offered.

Essex — An entirely new six. Longer wheelbase, roomier body, more power.

Franklin—Only builder of air-cooled engines offers what he terms an airplane engine. Eighty miles an hour speed assured by factory.

Gardner — Two new eight-in-line lineups and improved six-cylinder line.

Graham—Name Graham-Paige changed to Graham only. Two new medium priced eights. Non-shatter glass incorporated.

Hudson—Now an eight. Cylinders are in line. Two chassis are available.

Hupmobile—There are now three series of straight eights and one line of six-cylinder cars. It is claimed that the series "H" Hupmobiles are the most powerful cars produced in America.

Jordan—New line of sixes and a new line of eights.

LaSalle—Larger V-type eight.

Lincoln—Family, sport and formal cars shown.

Marmon—Three new lines of eights and an improved line of eight-cylinder Roosevelts.

Nash—Three additional models offered. New colors are features.

MANY NEW LINES

Oakland—Lowest priced V-type eight-cylinder motor.

Oldsmobile—One new body type, a Patrician four-door sedan, added to line.

Packard—Three distinct lines of cars.

Peerless—Three new lines of eights.

Pierce-Arrow—An array of straight eights of new and larger dimensions was augmented with a line of cars on a 132-inch wheelbase with a 115 horsepower rating.

Pontiac—New styles and larger motor.

Plymouth—Beautifully designed roadster feature.

Reo—Three series of six-cylinder cars for 1930.

Studebaker—Three lines of eights.

Stutz—First stock car in America to have super-charger. Greater speed and greater power are advantages.

Viking—This V-type eight-cylinder car is now at its first national show.

Whippet Four—Several mechanical changes.

Willys-Six—An entirely new line of cars with large horsepower for a car of 110 inches wheelbase. Forty-eight miles an hour in second is claimed by the factory. Motor of poppet type.

Willys-Knight and Sterns-Knight—Continued with minor improvements.

Windsor and Moon—Improved. Also showing Ruxton front-wheel drive.

American Austin—This tiny car which will be shown for the first time in the spring, was displayed to dealers only at a hotel across from the show.

Leave Driving Gloves in Car

Driving gloves are bulky and hard to carry around. The result is that they are very easy to lose. It adds definitely to the expense of winter motoring. The ideal plan, many car owners have found, is to leave their gloves in the car, especially if it is a closed model, which is easily locked.

AVOID POOR GAS

Avoid the possibility of using a poor grade of gas in a high-compression engine.

Italy Lifts Bars To Auto Tourists

The long and tedious formalities which were hitherto required for the entry of foreign cars in Italy have been abolished almost entirely, and tourists will henceforth have no difficulties in visiting this beautiful country in their automobiles. The Royal Italian Automobile Club has undertaken to provide the certificate of temporary traffic, license plates and other necessary papers, and interpreters will be on duty at frontier stations to help tourists through these formalities.

Soft Tires Hard On Speedometer

That tires which are not properly inflated wear out more quickly should be known by all motorists—whether they use the knowledge or not. That under-inflation plays queer tricks with the speedometer is not so generally known.

In the calibration of the instrument, however, everything is based upon the proper inflation of the tires. Accuracy from it cannot be expected on any other basis.

16 CYLINDERS IN 1930 CADILLAC

Visitors at the Thirtieth Annual Automobile Show are displaying an interest in the new 16-cylinder Cadillac, on pre-announcement display there, that recalls the enthusiasm aroused when the first American 8-cylinder car was exhibited by Cadillac in 1914. This new automobile, to be called the Cadillac V-16, is the first 16-cylinder car this country has known.

The Cadillac V-16 will not be available for delivery to purchesers for several months. The two cars which Cadillac is featuring at New York were especially prepared.

Outstanding features of the engine are the almost magic smoothness and flexibility; the trim appearance, and the remarkable capability under all traffic conditions. In design the engine is V-type. The included angle between the two blocks of eight cylinders is 45 degrees. The valve mechanism is overhead, operated by a single camshaft set at the base of the V between the cylinder blocks and assured of absolute silence by a patented automatic valve silencer developed in collaboration with General Motors' research laboratories.

The V-16 power plant is provided with two fuel systems, two vacuum tanks, two carburetors, and two intake manifolds. Accelerator control is conventional. Lubrication is full pressure to all bearing surfaces. Crankcase ventilation is thermostatically controlled. Ignition is by Delco-Remy, incorporating two coils, an eight-lobed timer with double contact points, two condensers, and a distrubutor.

BELT WILL JUMP

A fan belt will jump the pulley if the fan bearing is not properly lubricated.

GRAHAM-PAIGE CHANGES NAME

An old name in a form that, though new, continues a long established tradition in the industry, appeared yesterday at the New York automobile show, where all cars built by the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation have nameplates bearing only the single name "Graham."

The adoption of Graham alone signifies more than a mere change of name. It marks the final completion of a definite plan of the three Graham brothers, who, even before they entered the passenger car field, resolved that ultimately they should build automobiles that would be entirely Graham in design and in manufacture, both chassis and body.

That goal has now been achieved. In the two and a half years since the Grahams, Joseph B., Robert C. and Ray A., took over the properties of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, they have more than doubled their manufacturing facilities. Two body plants—first one at Wayne, Mich., and then a great new factory at Evansville, Ind.—were acquired and equipped with the most modern production machinery. Lumber mills were erected at Perry, Fla., to supply these body plants with hardwoods for body construction. At the same time, the main plant was expanded and provided with new machinery and facilities for the manufacture of frames, engines and other major chassis units.

With this great development finally completed, the combined plants are now turning out Graham sixes and Graham eights that are as completely Graham in manufacture as they are to be hereafter in name. Every car built henceforth will be made up of a Graham-built engine in a Graham-built chassis, on which will be mounted a 100 per cent Graham-built body.

AIRPLANE TYPE MOTOR POWERS NEW FRANKLIN

95 Horsepower Engine Has Flown Plane; Bodies of Ultra Modern Design.

The first airplane-type motor ever to be employed in an automobile, one which has already flown an airplane, appears in the new line of cars brought out by the Franklin Automobile Company, of Syracuse, for the year 1930. The new cars are being shown here by the McKinley-Gregg Auto Company.

The revolutionary step brings the air-cooled automobile motor which the Franklin company developed in 1901 down to its most modern form as represented in aviation. The motor develops 95 horsepower and is said to operate in the ranges from 60 to 80 miles the hour with a smoothness of torque and power hitherto unparalleled in automotive power plants.

ULTRA MODERN BODIES

It is mounted in bodies new in design and ultra-modern in conception to match the advances of the age symbolized by the air-cooled aviation motor.

To prove the airplane efficiency of the new Franklin power plant, a dramatic flying exhibition was staged less than two weeks ago at the municipal airport of Dayton, O. One of the new Franklin engines was installed in the chassis of a Waco plane by the Johnson Flying Service of that city. With newspapermen and technical engineers as observes and E. A. Johnson at the controls, the plane, powered by the air-cooled Franklin engine, "took off" and maneuvered throughout the day above the field. The motor responded to every demand of the pilot, delivering great power in both high altitudes and low.

Never before has such an experiment been tried in automotive circles, Franklin engineers say, claiming that the test was made to prove that Franklin has brought true airplane engine performance to the automobile field.

The new Franklin presents a striking appearance, each model being distinctive and characterized by a new type of hood with gracefully arched front in which are mounted vertical vanes that give a slender effect to its proportions. The same pleasing contour is reflected in the bodies which are marked by a deep sectioned and well rounded roof. The entire style effect is set off by the staggered horizontal louvres, hood and belt moldings and the use of a military type visor.

SERIES OF CARS

Two series of cars are included in the line, comprising complete groups of body models on chassis of 125-inch and 132-inch wheelbases. The Series 145 is mounted on the former and the Series 147 is mounted on the latter.

Such new features as concealed running boards, deep cut doors, horizontal dart louvres, original treatment of windows, moldings and panelings and rakish slant of the windshield definitely place the new Franklin types in a conspicuous position in the fine car field.

For the first time in the motor car history, Franklin will offer four-speed or three-speed transmission as optional. Thus, persons living in a locality where continuous high-speed running is a possibility, may order the four-speed transmission with its maximum road speed at low engine speed and its attendant smoothness. On the other hand, persons residing in or using their car in mountainous or hilly regions or in heavy city traffic, may employ the three-speed transmission with its recognized acceleration and high-gear climbing ability.

GRUELLING TESTS

As an indication of its outstanding power and speed performance, executives of the Franklin organization point to gruelling road tests they have made, only a few weeks ago establishing a new transcontinental record from New York City to Los Angeles. In this test, which was officially timed by Western Union, the new airplane-powered 69 hours and 31 minutes, for an average speed of 46.89 miles an hour, beating the former record, which was also held by Franklin, by 4 hours and 29 minutes, and clipping 8 hours and nine minutes off the best record ever established by any other car.

Unusual liveliness is shown by the new Franklin in acceleration tests. The car will accelerate from 5 to 25 miles in 6.9 seconds, from 10 to 40 miles in 10.2 seconds, from 20 to 50 miles in 11.5 seconds and from 30 to 60 miles same remarkable smoothness and miles an hour.

NON-SHATTER GLASS

No detail which would provide utmost safety and convenience in driving has been overlooked in the design of this car. Non-shatter glass is used throughout. The original Franklin development of clear vision corner posts also is maintained. The hydraulic four-wheel braking system has been redesigned so that the necessity for brake adjustment has been reduced 50 per cent. These brakes respond actively to a very slight foot pressure, bringing the car to a smooth, easy stop. In case of emergency, however, a stronger application of foot pressure will halt the car almost in its tracks.

The new narrow radiator design is of striking appearance and maintains the same mark of advanced style which is carried out in every detail of the car. A narrow chromium framework follows the lines of a graceful arch, which is crowned by a racy adaption of metal of a coxcomb design. From top to bottom of the new hood are thin metal vanes, which act as shutters, thermostatically operated to control the temperature of the motor. Their jet black color makes a fine contrast with the chromium molding of the hood front.

Winter Accessories Make Driving Easy On Motorist and Auto

Winter motoring is much easier both on the automobile and the driver if the car carries the proper seasonal accessories.

Two that are almost imperative are a cover for the radiator and good warm gloves for the driver.

A car heater is a third accessory that is getting more and more popular.

A fourth good one is a hydrometer for testing the anti-freeze solution in the radiator.

Wiper Hose Leak Causes Stalling

Cold weather stalling is not always explained by the fact that the weather is cold. A fairly common cause of this annoyance is a leak in the tube which operates the vacuum windshield cleaner. It also means the wiper will not work, which certainly is not so good in winter.

WATCH PRESSURE

Full pressure in tires makes for dangerous driving on slippery or wet roads.

NAME CARRIER DURANT AGENT

The Carrier Motor Company, 5710 Penn avenue, has been appointed Durant distributor for the Pittsburgh district, according to an announcement made yesterday by Ed. Bisch, Durant representative in this district. The new company is headed by D. F. Carrier, president; W. B. Shomo, general manager, and Leo G. Henry, sales manager.

Mr. Carrier has been identified with the industry since 1916. During that time he represented Ford in Hollidaysburg for nine years, and later Chevrolet. In 1927 he transferred his activities to Clarksburg, W. Va., where he represented Chevrolet. Mr. Shomo has been identified with the industry for 12 years, the entire period as salesmanager for Mr. Carrier. Mr. Henry has been affiliated with the industry here for several years.

The Carrier Company will celebrate its taking over of Durant business here throughout this week with a special exhibit of the newest Durant models.

SMITH OPENS NEW QUARTERS

The Smith Chevrolet Company yesterday celebrated the formal opening of its new sales and service quarters at 3109 West Liberty avenue, Dormont. A complete line of the 1930 Chevrolet models was obtained for the opening celebration. The Smith company, of which Frank C. Smith, veteran Chevrolet sales executive, is president, has equipped its plant for complete day and night service for the South Hills district.

Alcohol on Cap Will Spoil Finish

In adding alcohol to the cooling system, one is warned against spilling any of the liquid on the lacquer finish of the hood. Equal care should be shown in putting down the radiator cap. Many times, fairly well saturated with alcohol, the cap is laid carelessly on the hood where it leaves a ring. It cannot be removed for the finish at that particular spot is dead.

Dents in Fenders Can Be Ironed Out By Simple Process

A slight dent in a fender may be remedied without damage to the paint with a little care. Two hardwood blocks should be obtained, one shaped to the curve of the under part of the fender at the dent and the other curved to the contour of the upper surface of the fender. While the one block is held under the dent, the other is held above it and hit with a hammer until the dent is smoothed out. It may be well to heat the underside of the fender with a blow torch to prevent the paint cracking. The heat should not be too great or the paint will be burned.

PLYMOUTH CAR DEALERS BAND

Plymouth motor car dealers of the Pittsburgh metropolitan district Monday night organized the Plymouth Allegheny County Dealers' Association. The organization meeting was presided over by J. T. Condon, Pittsburgh district manager for Plymouth Motors. George G. Wedd, of Derry & Wedd, Inc., was named president and Earl Colteryahn, of Colteryahn Motor Company, Carrick, was chosen secretary-treasurer. Further details of the organization program will be carried out at the next meeting, to be held January 13.

The NEW 1930 Series

Exhibited here this week and at New York Auto Show

The motor car Surprise of 1930! Values that excel all comparison! Prices that revise all automobile standards! Study the entire market, then take your pencil and figure for yourself how much more you must spend for any other car that offers you comparable wheelbase, power, room, strength, endurance, performance, and the last word in every motoring improvement and high-class advantage. Then DRIVE the Auburn, and there will be no doubt as to WHAT car offers the best investment.

AUBURN!

Values

120" Wheelbase SIX

Anyone paying less than $1000 for a car should inspect, compare and drive the new Series 6-85 four-door closed car. You are entitled to long wheelbase and a tremendously strong rigid frame, because they are the foundation of all automobile requirements. To skimp here is fatal to efficient, enduring performance. It cannot be glossed over with body attraction. The amazing value of this Auburn Six begins down deep with its rugged foundation, making possible a larger, uncramped car with ample head and leg room; a real, big luxurious automobile with fine car advantages. Bijur chassis lubrication, hydraulic shock absorbers, and hydraulic four-wheel brakes. Convenient payments.

125" WHEELBASE

Here Auburn announces the most important automobile news in all the world today. Not superficial changes or "talking points", but a vast sweeping fundamental change in the re-establishment of values in the entire industry. Auburn makes its new Series 8-95 Straight Eights available to the vast army of motorists who have known Eights were far superior, and who wanted to own them. Now NO car buyer need be handicapped by a lesser car. This four-door Sport Sedan of 125-inch wheelbase for much less than many Sixes! Not an untried, hastily produced model, but perfected through five years of Auburn's Straight Eight leadership; a definite, tested, proven value. Double armor-plated frames, Bijur chassis lubrication. Hydraulic shock absorbers, and four-wheel hydraulic brakes. Finest mohair upholstery, luxura springs, Brewster non-glare windshield, and every refinement and improvement you expect in a strictly quality car. Its sturdiness and efficiency are the result of long experience, of constant improving and of added betterments, until today its worth rises far beyond the limits ever attained by any other comparable car. It is the climax of our policy of making Auburn's success retroactive to buyers.

130" WHEELBASE

Auburn has earned a reputation for doing the unusual—for doing what others say is impossible. In this manner, Auburn has convinced a rapidly growing number of people that they can have not only finer motoring in Auburn cars, but also that it is much better business to invest in Auburn cars. Never has this been more evident than with this new Series 125 four-door closed car of 130-inch wheelbase. In fact, this car is the most daring departure from contemporary practice that Auburn has ever made. It eclipses all others. For here is a value in size, strength, power, refinement and endurance, that only those accustomed to paying the highest prices have ever enjoyed. Now—luxuries, performance and distinction are offered in a car that makes its purchase an act of thrift. You probably will never need to call upon its maximum of reserve power. But it is always there, priceless in emergencies, and continually saving the motor from strain and undue depreciation. The frame, the strongest under any automobile, resembles a steel bridge in construction. It is double armor-plated, firmly rigid, preventing shimmy, vibration and body twists and strains. Lycoming is the unquestioned leader in Straight Eights, and this motor with its smooth flow of over-lapping power impulses is the utmost of Lycoming's attainments in reliable, durable and efficient performance. Drive it and you will be amazed. And of course this fine car has Bijur chassis lubrication, hydraulic shock absorbers, and four-wheel, internal expanding hydraulic brakes. The upholstery, the fittings and the finish of this Series are the very last word in quality and good taste. We caution you not to delay. Place your order at once. Every year Auburn has been oversold. The demand for this value will break all records.

CHEVROLET

Today

- Chevrolet announces

THE GREATEST CHEVROLET IN CHEVROLET HISTORY

Today, Chevrolet presents the Greatest Chevrolet in Chevrolet History—a smoother, faster, better Six—with new bodies by Fisher.

Basically, it is the same sturdy, substantial Six which won such tremendous popularity in 1929. But it is a greater car in every way—for it embodies every worth while advancement that a year of engineering research has developed. There are scores of vital improvements which contribute to every phase of comfort, performance, endurance and safety!

An improved six-cylinder valve-in-head motor, with its capacity increased to 50 horsepower; four Delco-Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers; fully-enclosed internal-expanding weather-proof brakes; a new dash gasoline gauge; heavier and stronger rear axle; Fisher non-glare windshield; larger tires—

—these are typical of the many improvements which make this car the Greatest Chevrolet in Chevrolet History.

But most impressive of all from the standpoint of the motor car buyer, is the sensational dollar for dollar value which this new car provides. For, in spite of its finer quality—this smoother, faster, better Six has been made available—

-at greatly reduced prices!

During 1929, more than a million three hundred thousand persons bought six-cylinder Chevrolets. This enormous volume production has made possible many savings in the Chevrolet factories—and, in keeping with its long-established policy, Chevrolet is sharing these savings with the public. No written description can do justice to the extra value and quality provided in this new car. Visit your Chevrolet dealer—see this car—ride in it—and judge for yourself the sensational value it represents.

A SIX IN THE PRICE RANGE OF THE FOUR

TWO CHASSIS FEATURE NEW DURANT LINEUP

Examination of 1930 Products Reveals Handiwork Of Veteran Auto Leaders.

An entirely new line of Durant cars developed by the group of well known automobile executives who assumed control of Durant Motors last year, is being shown to the public for the first time by the Carrier Motor Company, 5710 Penn avenue, newly appointed Durant distributor.

There are two chassis, one equipped with a three-speed transmission and the other with a larger engine and a four-forward speed, standard shift transmission. The three-speed car is built to sell in the lower priced six-cylinder field and the larger, more powerful car in the thousand dollar price class.

Examination of the new cars reveal unmistakable evidence of the handiwork of Ralph A. Vail, vice president of Durant, in charge of engineering and manufacturing, and Roy E. Cole, chief engineer, both of whom worked together for many years at the plant of another prominent automobile manufacturer. Clearly apparent throughout both chassis and bodies are sturdiness and ruggedness of construction designed expressly to provide safety and to reduce wear and need of attention to a minimum over long periods of useful service.

NEW LINES APPEALING

Considered from an aesthetic viewpoint, the new Durant bodies make a strong appeal. Accentuated horizontal and subdued vertical lines and sweeping, graceful curves give the impression of a large, fleet, low-hung, powerful car. The spear point hood louvres first attract attention to the motif that is carried out through the art treatment of the entire car.

Wide doors give easy access to the roomy interiors and when seated the passenger or driver finds ample headroom and leg room to convince him that external appearance did not deceive him. Seat cushions and backs are so molded and so placed as to give a feeling of restfulness. Front seats of all the enclosed models and of the sport roadster are easily adjusted fore-and-aft.

The aim of the engineers in developing the new bodies has been to combine the strength of all-steel construction with certain advantages of wood frame construction, but without introducing any of the latent opportunities for creaks, squeaks and rattles that might frequently develop in wood-framed bodies. This rigidly braced body is secured to the chassis frame with 12 bolts.

In each model the engine is in unit construction with clutch and transmission and the power plant is mounted in rubber-cushioned supports. The multiple spring, single-plate clutch is fitted with a cushioning member of live rubber.

FREE OF VIBRATION

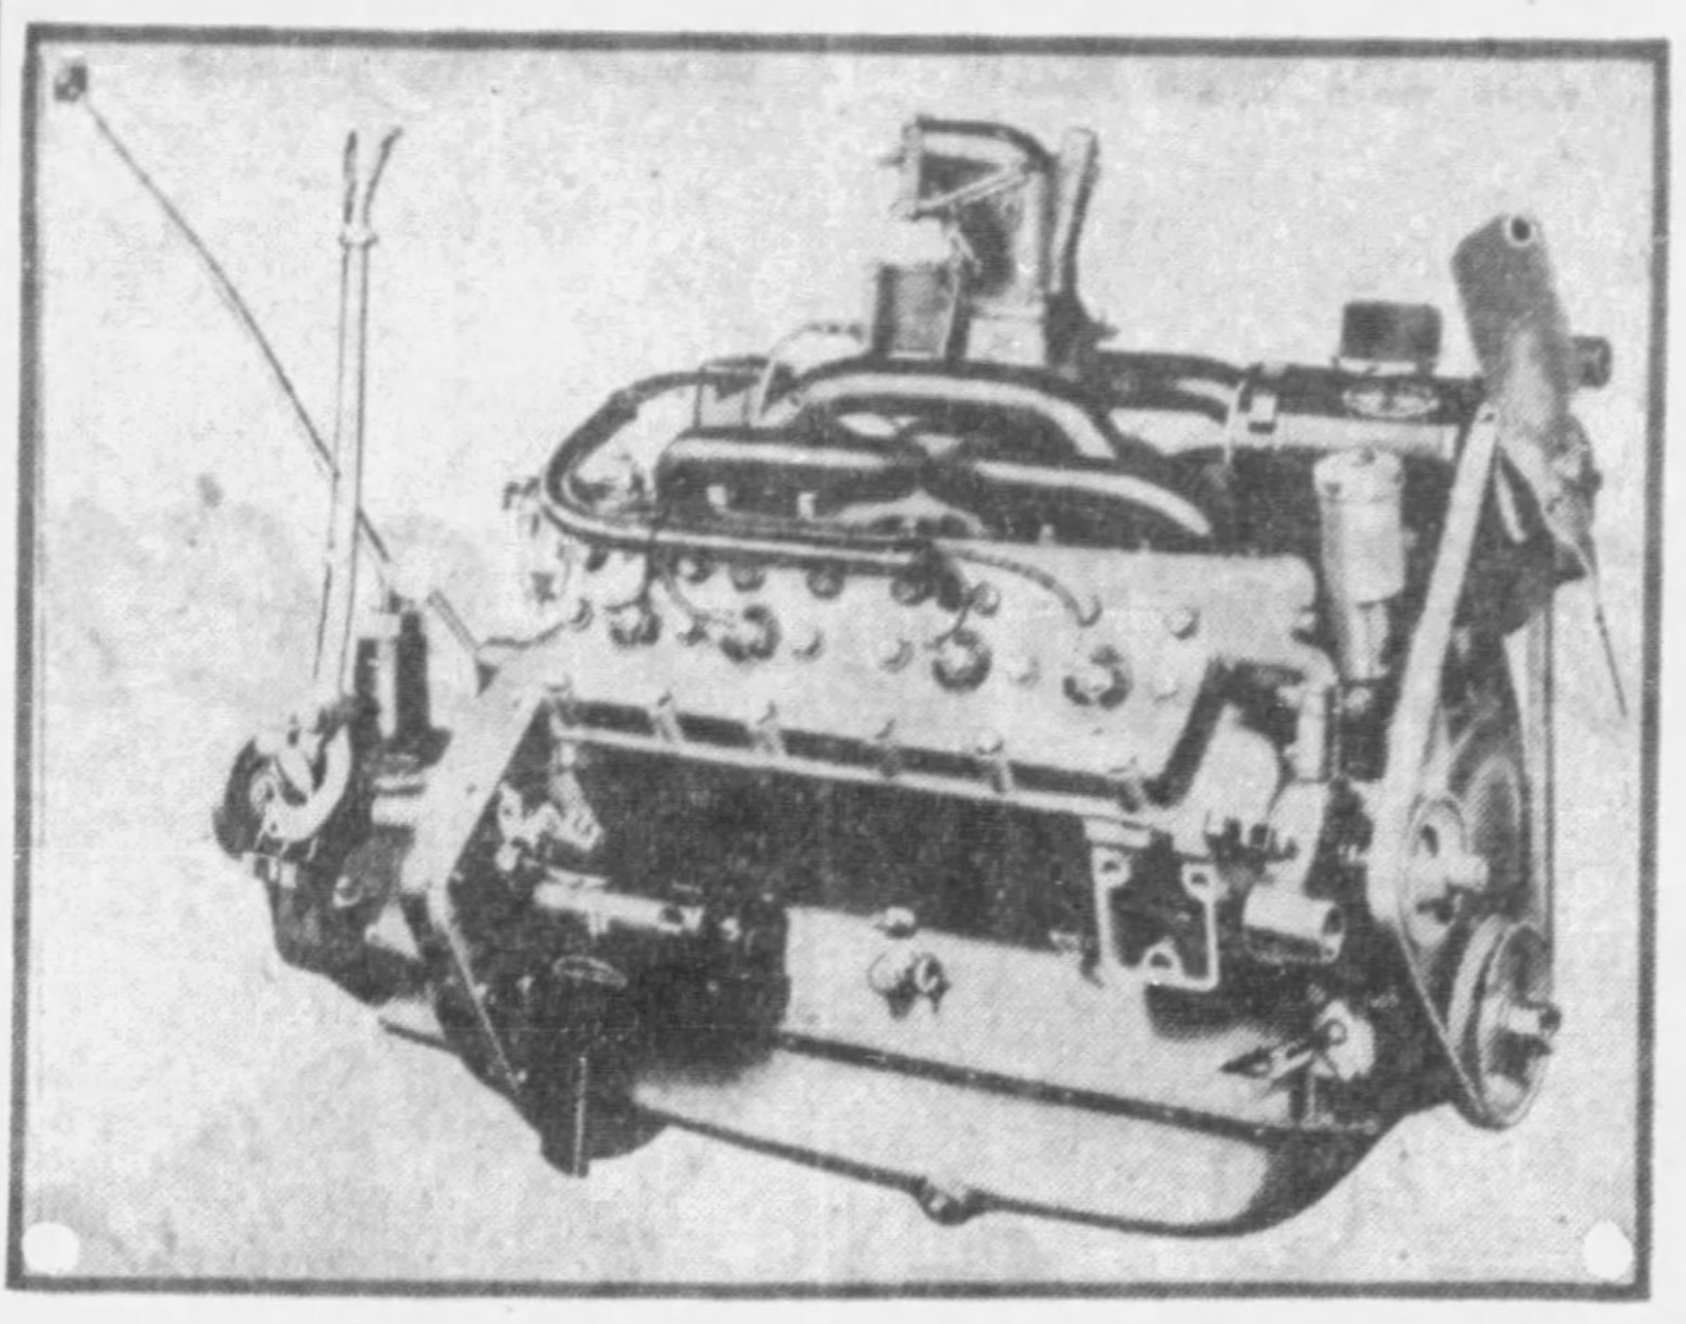
Live rubber between the clutch and engine, and live rubber between the engine and frame, careful dynamic balancing of rotating and accurate weighing of reciprocating engine parts, torsional vibrations dampeners on the crankshafts—all contribute to the smoothness of the power supplied by the engine and the car's freedom from vibration.

The three-speed transmission of the "6-14" and the four-forward speed transmission of the "6-17" are Durant-designed and Durant-built. The four-forward speed transmission employs what is called "standard shift," that is the lowest gear is locked out and the reverse, second, silent third and the direct drive top gear are in the same positions as reverse, low, intermediate and high in the conventional, standard shift three-speed transmission. Propeller shafts are tubular and have two metal enclosed, grease lubricated, yoke and ring type universal joints each.

Brakes are of the "steeldraulic" type operating inside of 11-inch drums on the "6-14" and 14-inch on the "6-17." The drums are flanged to increase stiffness and afford added heat radiation. Mechanism is well enclosed to afford protection from mud, water and sand.

The "Pyrodyme" high compression cylinder head, due to the special shape of the combustion chambers and the rigid webbing and reinforcing inside the water jacket, makes possible the use of ordinary fuel without detonation with a ratio of 5.3 to 1. Crankshafts in both engines are 2⅜ inches in diameter and are rigidly supported on interchangeable type babbitt lined bronze bearings having a total projected bearing area of 15.3 square inches on the "6-14" and 26.7 square inches on the "6-17." Oil is delivered under pressure to the main bearings by gear type, gear driven oil pump and passes through drilled crankshaft to the crankpins.

LATEST OF V-EIGHTS



"SQUARE"— A quarter view of the new Oakland V-8 engine which develops 85 horse-power, one horsepower for each 37 pounds of car weight. This engine is known as a "square motor," because it has a stroke that measures one-sixteenth less than the size of the bore.

Hudson New Great Eight Stands Most Rigid Tests

where the unused oil combines and returns to the pump. The pump is a new airplane type. It delivers three times the amount of oil of the former plunger pump.

Gasoline is raised from the 16-gallon tank in the rear to the vacuum tank which, as in the past, is provided with a visible filter and with a vacuum booster, the latter taking care of sudden demands on the fuel supply and of the additional suction that operates the windshield wiper.

The new carburetor, a 1½-inch Marvel, has an automatic air valve and three atomizing jets to take care of all speed ranges. An automatic choke aids prompt starting in cold weather. The carburetor is exhaust-jacketed for the proper vaporization of the fuel, and the exhaust gases, after they have heated the carbuetor mixture, are led back into the manifold.

The engine throttle and the carburetor heat control valve are inter-connected in such a manner that, although there is a quick warmup, no undue overheating of the motor takes place in running with wide-open throttle.

QUIET OPERATION

The quiet operation of the Great Eight engine is achieved, in part, by the "easy bow" intake passages of the cylinder head so that uniform volumes of combustible mixture travel without restriction into and out of all cylinders with great velocity and consequently without fouling combustion spaces, spark plugs or valves.

The ignition system incorporates several interesting features. One of them is a dual interrupter with two separate breaker arms and interrupter points. The breakers are so connected that they distribute through two sets of points the current ordinarily passing through a single set. This greatly reduces wear and prevents the burning of points.

Another novel detail consists of a graduated spark timing guide located at the base of the distributor housing; because of its unusual accessibility it enables owners and service men to set the spark with absolute accuracy.

The power of the motor is transmitted to the rear wheels through a single disc, cork-insert clutch with cushioned hub similar to that used in the motor and through a larger diameter steel propeller shaft with two all-metal universal joints inclosed in oil-tight housings.

NEW STYLE AXLES

The front axle, of I-beam section, includes a Hudson improvement in the form of drop-forged, cross-ribbed yokes. The front axle steering spindles are mounted on ball-bearings and the steering tie-rod is universal-jointed.

A valuable rear axle detail is automatic circulation of oil through the pinion shaft bearings. This is provided by locating a passage between the differential and pinion shaft housings through which the ring-gear pumps a large supply of lubricant into and through the pinion bearings. Having passed through the bearings, the oil is returned to the axle housing, for recirculation.

The springs are semi-elliptic, the rear springs being underslung and spread at the rear in accordance with previous Hudson practice.

FOUR-WHEEL BRAKES

The four-wheel brake system is of the latest improved weather-proof Bendix type, with two articulated self-aligning shoes operated by a floating cam. The shoes are rust-proofed by cadmium plating and the shoe ribs have been re-designed to give uniformly effective pressure, without over-heating, against the entire brake drum under all applications.

A special roller-bearing type brake stabilizer mounted on the floating brake cross shaft gives additional rigidity and positive action to the brakes.

Radiator and hood lines, wide, continuous fenders, chromium-plated ornamentations on hood hinges and elsewhere, beaded body belt lines and similarly beaded running board shields, deep upholstering, rich carpeting, tasteful trimming, distinctively modern, silver-finished hardware and fittings, highly decorative instrument panels, non-glare reflecting glass panels, the convenience afforded by two individually operated cowl ventilators, by the novel windshield toggle lever and the manually operated hood ventilators taking the place of the conventional louvres—all these points make the car a most attractive one.

STYLISH APPEARANCE

While all body roofs are lower, the floors have been lowered also, thus providing increased headroom and at the same time giving the stylish low-hung appearance.

The 126-inch wheelbase closed bodies are upholstered in luxurious materials, with new-style seat and back cushions, giving a veritable rocking-chair comfort and retaining their elasticity indefinitely.

Many improvements are incorporated in the welded-steel construction of all bodies, which are stronger, safer, more beautiful than ever.

With the color vogue definitely established, an almost bewildering variety of brand new color combinations, charming in their rich lusters and reflecting today's modernistic trend, have been developed for these new Hudson models.

POWER AND SPEED CHARACTERIZE NEW WILLYS SIX

of being mounted on the cowl or in the fenders, the parking lights of the Willys Six are carried immediately beneath the large head lamps.

A splendidly balanced braking equipment is found in this new car. The brakes are 11 inches and are of the internal expanding enclosed type with a total braking area of 148 square inches. The efficiency of these brakes is seen in the deceleration tests which show that an exceedingly light foot pressure brings the car to a stop in 19 feet when traveling at a speed of 20 miles an hour.

The six-cylinder power plant has a 3¼-inch bore with a 3⅞-inch stroke and a displacement of 195 cubic inches. It develops 65 horsepower at 3,400 r. p. m. and 136 foot pounds torque at 1,200 r. p. m.

During the course of the perfection of this new engine, tests runs in excess of 25,000 miles at speed of 50 miles an hour were made without any necessity for valve replacement. The larger size of the valves and the relatively large bore permit the entire encircling of the valve seat with cooling water, so that valve temperatures are held at the low end, still further reducing any tendency to burn.

Because of the high speed of this car, there is necessarily required a highly developed lubricating system which is entirely different from any type used heretofore on Willys-Overland low priced cars.

LUBRICATING SYSTEM

Each connecting rod is provided with squirt holes in the big end to throw a well directed stream of oil onto the thrust side of the bore and thus adequately lubricate piston and bore. The rear main bearing is provided with a return groove and an oil throwing helix which carry the return oil into the bearing cap and from thence into a tube which carries it to the lowest part of the pan.

Two complete lines of Knight engined sixes round out the company's presentation in the Willys-Knight division. These lines comprise the 1930 Willys-Knight Great Six, which has established a conspicuous position for distinctive style, beauty, comfort and performance in the quality car field and the Willys-Knight "70-B," which has proved so popular in the lower priced Knight field.

While the body lines and the outstanding style development of the new Willys-Knight Great Six show no material change, the power development of its improved six-cylinder sleeve-valve engine has been increased to 87 horsepower, the most powerful engine ever produced by the Willys-Overland Company. This results in a higher road speed than obtainable heretofore.

The Willys-Knight Great Six is characterized by careful attention to every detail to provide driving convenience, comfort and smooth riding qualities under all conditions.

VIBRATION ELIMINATED

The curved gear shift lever has been replaced by a straight lever and an improvement in the gear shifting mechanism results in shortening the distance necessary for the hand to travel in changing gears.

The method of mounting the spare wheel and tire has been changed. Although the spare sets in a fender well, the weight no longer is on the fender. This is accomplished by carrying the wheel on a bracket riveted to the side rail of the frame, which prevents any load on the fender or running board and provides a more rigid support for the spare. Vibration, often noted when the spare rests on the fender, is thus eliminated.

Because of the popularity achieved by the Willys-Knight "70-B" model among its thousands of owners during the last year, there have been no major changes in the 1930 models. However, a number of refinements have been added that materially increase its comfort and serviceability. Among these refinements were technical changes in the sleeve mechanism of the "70-B" engine, which, with an improvement of lubrication, further increase the long life of the engine.

Complete coverage is afforded in every price range through a continuation of the low priced Whippet four-cylinder models. The universal acceptance of this model because of its low price, lines of beauty, roomy interiors, speed, power and economy has made it undesirable to change any details.

'One-Eyed' Autos Danger to Traffic

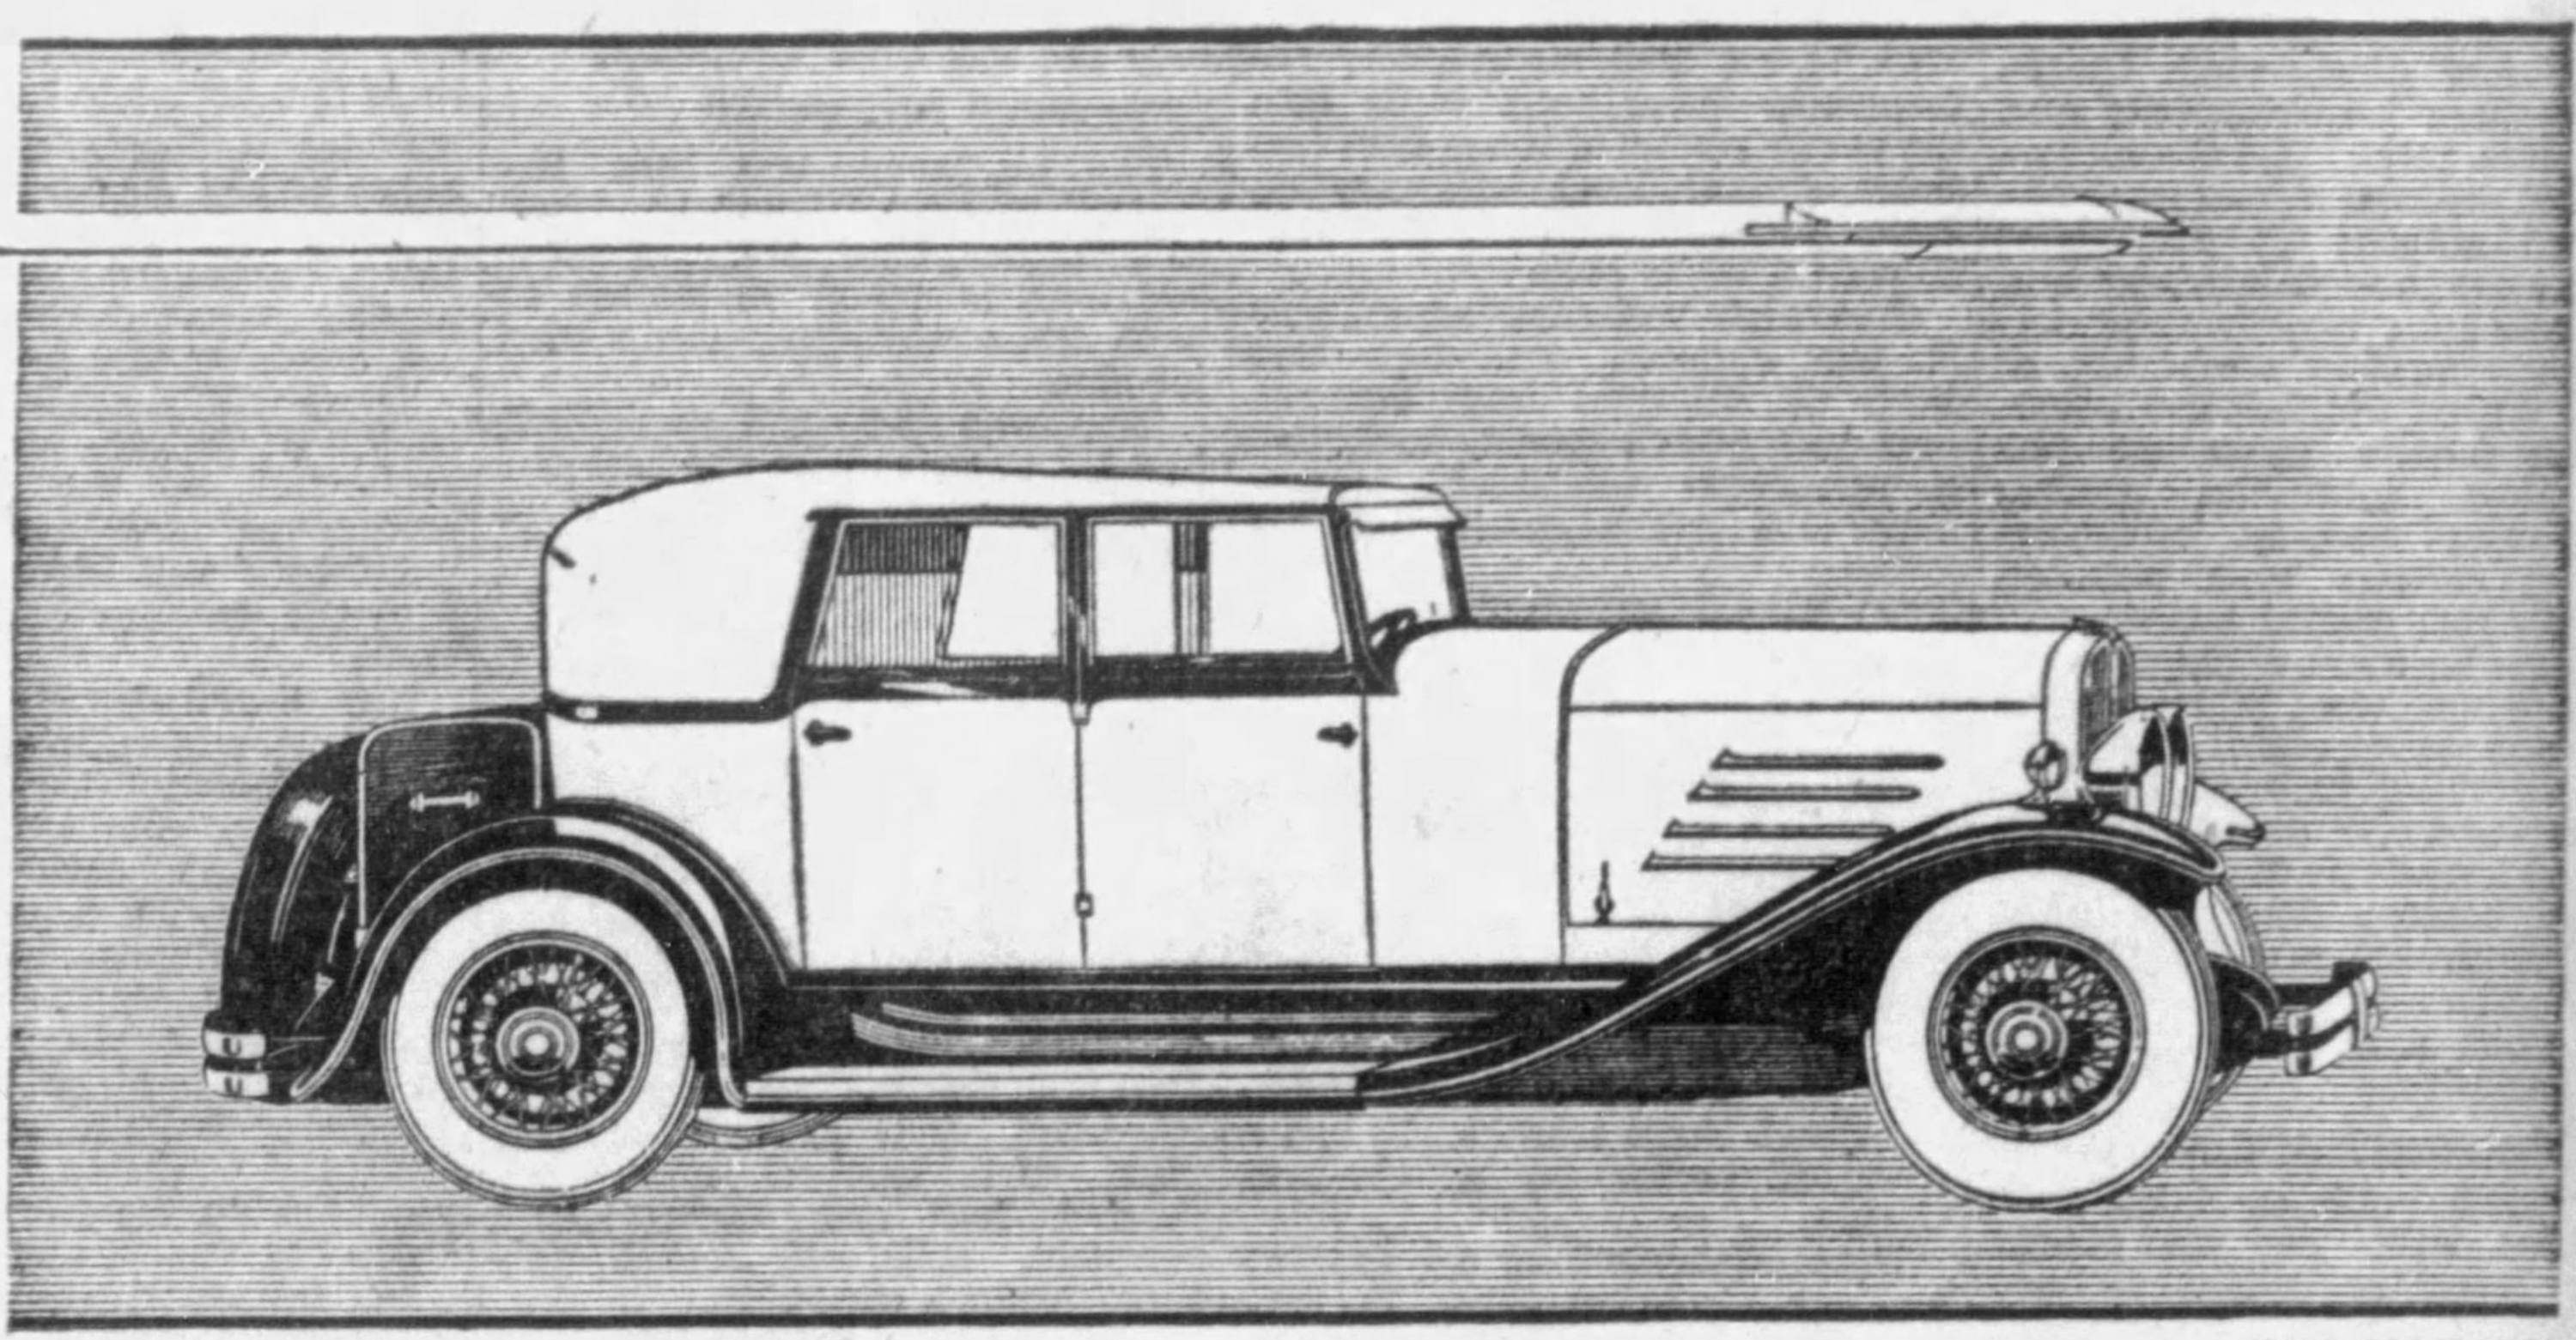
It is just as important to carry a kit of spare bulbs for headlights and taillights as it is to have the car equipped with spare tires. "One-eyed" cars are dangerous obstacles on the highway. Electric bulbs do not live forever. Constructed with an average life of 100 hours' continuous burning, headlight bulbs should last the average driver almost a year. Comparatively few operators do more than 100 hours of night driving in a year. However, a great many operators seem to expect the life of a bulb to be equal to the life of a car.

RUST PREVENTIVE

Burnishing brakes with powdered graphite helps to prevent rust, which interferes with brake action.

NEW - - - FOR 1930

Air-cooled engines power the planes now being used by Commander Byrd in his South Pole explorations.



THE SPEEDSTER

A CAR OF BRILLIANT BEAUTY POWERED WITH AN AIRPLANE-TYPE ENGINE

The great acceptance of air-cooling and Franklin's pronounced popularity which resulted in doubled sales in 1929, give you the right to expect of Franklin something outstandingly progressive. The 1930 Franklin richly justifies your expectations.

To realize that this car has an airplane-type engine, flown in the air and driven on the highways thousands of miles, an engine delivering the greatest power for cylinder capacity of all automobile powerplants—is to understand the great contribution Franklin has made to automotive progress. A distinct tribute to the ascendency of air-cooling engineering!

To see among the distinctive bodies, types never before offered—to note design elements of smart originality—to discover luxuriousness in the strict fineness of detail, is to gain an appreciation of Franklin's completeness of beauty.

The airplane-type engine of the 1930 Franklin gives you an utterly new sensation in motoring. You glide quickly to sixty, seventy, eighty with none of the usual experiences that go with great speed—but with complete quietness, smoothness and comfort.

This new engine brings to the motor car an endurance and power typical of the airplane—power which remains at the peak throughout the hardest climbs and long, fast runs. To make this ability most effective under all conditions, Franklin gives you choice of three-speed or four-speed transmissions—both with quiet intermediate gear.

Franklin models which have created sensations at current custom salons have inspired several of the body designs. Interesting style innovations—concealed running boards, low hung doors, embossed paneling and belled horizontal louvres—mark this car as definitely in the forefront of fashion. There is a wide range of colors and sixteen body styles for subtle difference in choice—and custom cars by Dietrich, Locke, Derham, and Holbrook for the more fastidious.

You cannot imagine the enjoyment of a car with appearance as distinguished as its airplane-type engine is modern, until you ride in it and drive it yourself. You are cordially invited to attend the first exhibitions now being held in display rooms.

3 NEW MODELS ANNOUNCED IN AUBURN AUTOS

Prices Cut on Two Larger Lines; President Cord Says Banner Year Pared Cost.

Auburn yesterday announced three new models, a 100-horsepower straight-eight, another straight-eight of 125 horsepower, and a new four-door six sedan. Announcement also was made that prices on the two larger lines had been reduced from $200 to $300.

Introduction here is being made through the Pittsburgh-Auburn Company, 5740 Baum boulevard.

The announcement followed rumors that E. L. Cord, Auburn president, was getting ready to spring a surprise but neither the public nor the industry was prepared for the amazing new 1930 models at such low prices.

In making the announcement of the models and prices Cord said the entire program is the culmination of a five-years' policy by Auburn of returning to the public the benefits of its success in the form of better automobiles each year at less cost to the buyer. He explained that 1929 had been Auburn's banner year and that with the new program greatly increased sales for Auburn in 1930 were inevitable.

FEATURES RETAINED

These new cars, while incorporating many improvements and refinements, retain the characteristics and distinctive features that advanced Auburn to new sales records every month last year and that have been largely responsible for the growing acceptance of Auburn during the last five years.

Eleven models make up the three lines, including regular sedans, sport sedans, cabriolets and the custom type phaeton sedans or year round models.

All three lines are equipped with Lycoming engines, Bijur chassis lubricating system; hydraulic shock absorbers; internal expanding four-wheel hydraulic brakes, cam and lever-type steering; steel running boards; Brewster nonglare windshields on closed models, re-enforced bodies, corona-proof wires and other features, many exclusive.

BIG, COMFORTABLE AUTO

The six is built on a 120-inch wheelbase with big and roomy bodies. Special attention has been given to the comfort and ease of riding and handling, and this has resulted in the building of a big automobile to sell in the small car price class.

The car is powered by a six-cylinder Lycoming engine which develops 72 horsepower. Chassis frame is unusually heavy, with five cross members, the rear one being 16 inches wide of 5-32 stock, and the front one being a specially designed inverted-pan type which eliminates front-end shimmy. The mounting of the engine also serves as an additional cross member. Springs are unusually long and wide, the front ones being 38 3-16 inches long and 2 inches wide, and the rear ones 56¾ inches long and 2¼ inches wide.

The 8-95 line is powered with a straight-eight Lycoming engine which develops 100 horsepower. This is the same engine, with minor changes, which Auburn has developed and used for the last two years. Wheelbase is 125 inches.

STRONG CHASSIS

Double reinforced chassis frame is used on these cars, giving unusual stability to the front end of the car. This double reinforcement is accomplished by pressing a second frame channel into the regular frame channel, and extends from a point in front of the radiator to a point at the rear of the engine. Auburn has used this method of chassis frame construction for two years with gratifying results.

Auburn's big straight-eight is powered with a 125-horsepower Lycoming engine, built on a wheelbase of 130 inches. Dual carburetion and dual manifolding are provided, giving the car unusual performance in both the low and high speeds. Like the 8-95 models, the double reinforced chassis frame is used, although of heavier stock.

Special attention has been given to those little niceties of finish that set a car apart and the deep and luxurious upholstery, combined with the individual Auburn lines, gives the car an appearance, as well as a feeling, of richness.

QUIET OPERATION

Quietness of operation has also been given attention by Auburn engineers. Bodies of all models are built with nonsqueak paddling between contact points and engine mufflers have been so designed to reduce noise to a minimum. A special by-pass is provided on the 8-125 models which permits the exhaust gases to escape without going through the regular muffler, and yet does not make an offensive noise. Use of this by by-pass gives additional power to the motor.

Acceleration has likewise been given considerable attention, and by the use of a special type clutch the new Auburns have an amazing acceleration from a dead stop, yet without the slightest tendency to jerk.

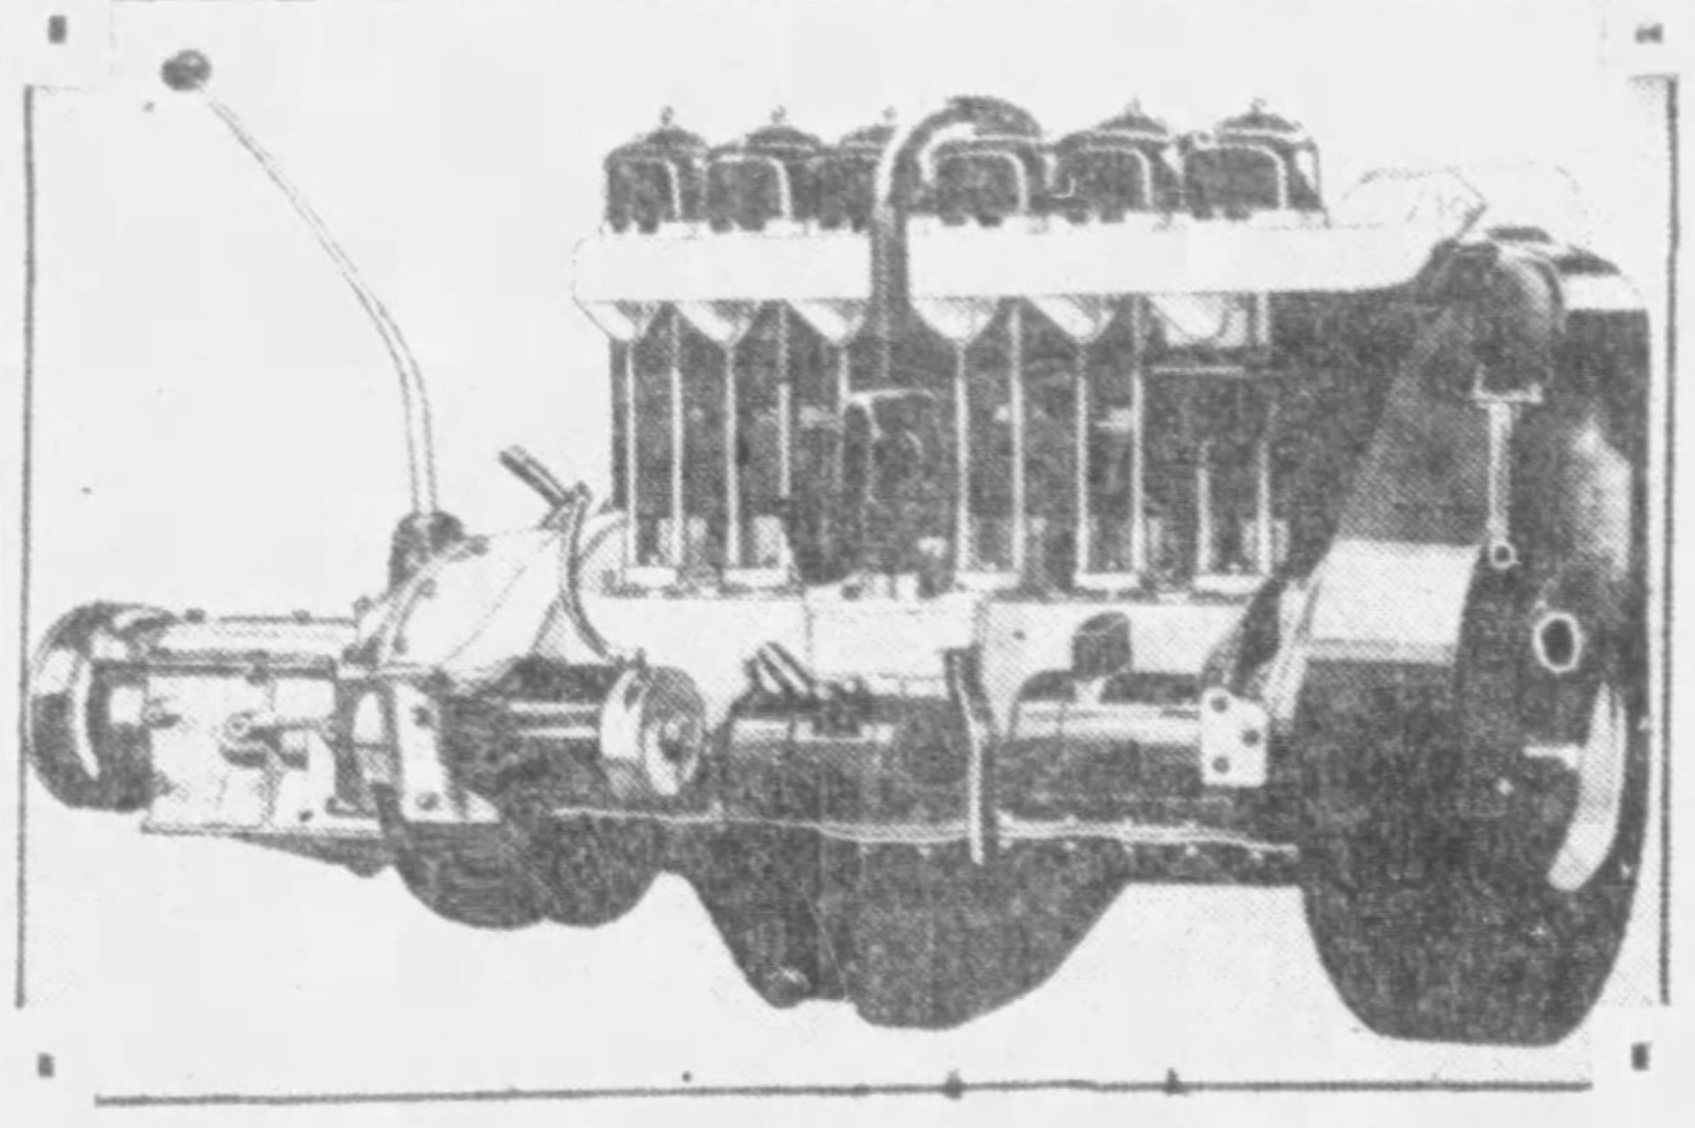
Models of all three cars are obtainable in a variety of colors and color combinations. Many of these colors have been developed especially for Auburn and are individual and exclusive.

Every effort has been made to make the driving of these cars as easy as possible. Steering wheels are adjustable and the gear shift lever is high and placed in such a position that the driver can manipulate it with the least possible effort. Accelerators are all of the foot-treadle type, especially comfortable and responsible.

AFFECTS DRIVING

The position of the accelerator pedal can be disturbed by loose floor boards, which, in turn, may affect the performance of a car.

"TAKEN FROM SKIES"



POWERED PLANE—The new air-cooled airplane engine employed in the 1930 Franklin has been virtually "taken from the skies," and thus brings airplane performance to the automobile field. The engine closely follows airplane design and develops 95 horsepower. This motor was recently used as a power plant for an airplane.

offers a large horsepower poppet type motor on a 110-inch chassis.

Auburn is introducting three new lines, a Six and two Eights. The cars are being shown by the Pittsburgh - Auburn Company, 5740 Baum boulevard. Many refinements have been built into the power plants of these cars and riding comfort has been increased. Prices on the Eights have been reduced $200 to $300.

Chevrolet yesterday announced its new models. The new cars have 73 different improvements over last year's model, including a non-glare windshield, larger tires and an improved braking system.

TWO TRANSMISSIONS

Durant, through the Carrier Motor Company, 5710 Penn avenue, is introducing two lines of Sixes. One of these lines has the four-speed transmission and the other a three-speed gearset. These cars offer a new beauty in body lines.

Erskine, introduced recently by the Studebaker Sales Company, 4724 Baum boulevard, continues to attract large crowds. It has a powerful motor on a 114-inch chassis.

Essex, described as an entirely new car, looks the part. It, with its companion car, the new Hudson Eight, is being presented by the Pierpoint Motor Company, 5001 Baum boulevard. Speed, power and beauty are features.

Ford, with its new and larger bodies, has attracted thousands of Pittsburghers to show rooms throughout the district since its introduction Tuesday.

MANY REFINEMENTS

Franklin, offering an airplane-type motor that actually powered a plane in the air, will continue to draw large throngs to the McKinley-Gregg Auto Company, 447 North Craig street. The design of these cars will make you want to see more of them.

Nash is offering three new models, additions to lines introduced last summer. They were announced by Nash-Pittsburgh Motors Company, 428 North Craig street.

Pontiac, with a new motor rating 60 horsepower, is being introduced, with its companion car, the Oakland V-8, by C. A. Rehtmeyer, Inc., Baum boulevard and Craig street. The motor of the new Oakland is the only one of its type. It has a stroke that is shorter than the diameter of its bore.

Willys Six, the newest of motor cars, is a companion car to the Stearns-Knight, Willys-Knight and Whippet Four. These four cars are being shown by the Rea-Seagert Company, 5800 Baum boulevard. The latter three have many new refinements that offer much of interest.

fully enclosed, develops 50 horsepower.

The rear axle has been redesigned while the differential unit has been strengthened and its oiling system redesigned to insure long life and quiet operation.

IMPROVED OIL PUMP

The oil pump has been increased in capacity and improved in efficiency, while the carburetor has been improved in respect to both its accelerating pump and jet size.

The same 48-pound crankshaft has been retained in the new car and a further contribution to smoother engine operation, improved distribution and increased economy has been made by the new intake and exhaust manifolds of the heated T design.

The clutch on the new car has been improved by the adoption of an integral disc, made in one piece of high carbon steel.

Easier riding and quietness are accomplished through a new type of self-adjusting spring shackle in which bushings in the spring eyes and brackets are eliminated. Hardened and ground tubular pins, with tapered ends, are pressed into the springs and brackets, while oil forced into them forms a reservoir.

TIRE SIZE CHANGED

Another improvement bringing about easier riding is found in the Delco-Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers in the form of a rigid link rod instead of a strap connecting the operating arms with the chassis and insuring positive transmission of all rebound movements.

A new type of gasoline gauge is found on the new Chevrolet. A double float in the tank insures correct reading of this gauge regardless of the position of the car.

Appearance and riding qualities of the car have been improved through a change in the tire size from a 4.50-20 to 4.75-19. The rim diameter has been reduced one inch.

The instrument panel design and arrangement this year is entirely new. The instruments are all mounted on a single carrier plate which is assembled from the rear. Spark and throttle controls as well as choke are located on the instrument panel.

Weak Batteries Costly to Autoists

That a weak battery could increase fuel consumption is not realized by many car owners. It can, however. It takes a good, hot spark of considerable intensity to fire effectively the "wet" mixture that gets into the combustion chamber under some conditions of cold weather operation. A weak battery will not provide such a spark.

ESSEX OFFERS LARGE LINE OF ALL NEW CARS

Wheelbase Longer, Bodies Larger and Motors Have More Power and Speed.

An entirely new Essex—from bumpers to tail lamp—this year carries the militant Challenger slogan, under which it swept to new triumphs last year.

Longer wheelbase, wider, roomier bodies distinctly different in line and finish, more power, faster get-away and smoother performance are the outstanding improvements which blend into what Essex officials declare to be the finest balanced, easiest handled automobile they have ever produced.

In every detail this new Essex Challenger eclipses any previous Essex. The designers have leaned largely to a modernistic note. The radiator is a distinct innovation and from that point to the end of the stream-lined, longer fender the new style is immediately impressed upon the observer.

EIGHT BODY STYLES

Seats are wider. The head-room and leg-room has been greatly increased. Upholstery, appointments and fittings are luxurious and modernistically "smart." And, because chassis and body have been designed as one unit, there is a complete balancing that provides a degree of smoothness never before approached.

There are eight body styles: coach, standard sedan, coupe, touring sedan, brougham, phaeton, roadster and sun sedan.

These will be available in a wide choice of colors, and, with the perfection of the synchronized production plan, every detail of upholstery will blend artistically with the exterior color combinations.

The 6-cylinder high compression motor is entirely new.

In addition to the balance of the motor, obtained by further successful application of the famous Super-Six principle and by the use of aluminum-alloy pistons and light connecting rods, the ultimate of 6-cylinder operating smoothless is attained through a Lancaster balancer of the latest improved design, which is mounted on the front end of the three-bearing crankshaft.

An improved method of lubrication — effective, positive and simple, is used in the new Challenger engine. A powerful pump carries screen-filtered oil from the reservoir to the crank chamber by way of two separate main feed lines, one leading to the front, the other to the rear of the motor.

NEW CARBURETOR

The carburetor is of a newly-perfected two-jet type. It has an accelerating pump with three-position seasonal control, and is effectively heat-jacketed. This means quick warm-up in cold weather, smooth operation even at lowest speeds, high fuel economy, full power at wide-open throttle, minimum motor heat at top speeds, and ability to operate satisfactorily, without detonation, on ordinary fuels.

The cylinder head of the new Challenger motor marks another step toward high compression, in the practical application of which Hudson's engineers have for a number of years been leaders. Through the evolution of a certain combustion chamber shape, a definite spark plug location, and an effective system of valve and cylinder head cooling, an automobile power plant has been produced in which high compression —in the ratio of nearly six to one—is utilized in securing more power from relatively little fuel, without the drawback of detonation which heretofore set definite compression limits.

The ignition system of the motor has fully automatic spark advance. A special graduated spark setting guide, permitting accurate spark adjustment, is mounted at the base of the distribution housing.

The motor is four-point mounted and rubber-cushioned in a new frame, the principal details of which are maximum strength and vibrationless rigidity.

New Oaklands, Pontiacs Boast Modern Features

strain the engine from motion relative to the rear frame, these front spring type mountings serve to absorb the normal reactions of engine operation. To prevent the spring type mountings from permitting the engine to respond to road shocks a new device — the "synchronizer"—was invented. It provides a lateral tie rod, solidly bolted to the right side of the frame and extending through an opening into the crankcase. There its point of contact with the engine is a vertical rocker arm which is moved slightly from side to side by a cam on the forward end of the crankshaft.

SHOCKS STOPPED

Synchronized with the normal engine reactions, this simple device permits the springs on which the front of the engine is mounted to absorb these microscopic reactions but, through its anchorage on the car frame, prevents outside shocks from communicating extreme motion to the engine. This revolutionary engine mounting, in conjunction with the rubber cushion drive commecting the power plant and the propeller shaft, develops a high degree of engine smoothness. The carefully balanced clutch, shaft and rear end all have been increased in size to handle the greater power of the new eight engine.

In the Pontiac Six four-point rubber mountings insulate the engine from the frame.

The thermostatically controlled cooling system of the new "V" Eight provides a new "recirculation" feature which contributes importantly toward better performance and higher efficiency. In other types of cooling the water becomes stagnant in the cylinder block and head when the thermostat valve is closed, permitting water in some of the engine passages to remain cool while steam is being formed in other spots. This condition causes uneven expansion and inefficient operation during the warming up period. In the new Oakland a small by-pass connects the water pump with the cylinder head outlet, thus allowing water, trapped in the engine by the closed thermostat valve, to keep circulating within the engine. Recirculation of this trapped water maintains uniform engine temperature until release of the thermostat extends the circulation on through the radiator.

CROSS-FLOW DESIGN

Contributing still further to the effectiveness of both the new Oakland Eight and also the New Series Pontiac Big Six is the cross-flow design of radiator, which remains an exclusive feature of these two cars.

Both cars, which originally introduced the pump type of fuel feed to the automotive industry, continue to employ the highly effective AC fuel pupm which provides exactly the proper amount of fuel at all speeds and positively prevents "starving" on long upgrades.

Oakland's original contribution to driver convenience, the toe button control of tilt-ray headlamps, is retained in both the Oakland and the Pontiac for 1930. In the Oakland Eight, a brand new lighting innovation is represented by the indicator lamps, mounted on the two front fenders.

Increased flexibility in the front springs of both the Oakland and the Pontiac results in even greater riding comfort as does also the introduction of solid metal links connecting the Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers with the springs. These solid links, replacing the straps formerly used, assure instantaneous action by the shock absorber pistons. All springs are fitted at the factotry with lubricated spring covers which preserve their original resiliency.

TRADE, PUBLIC RESOURCEFUL

By DU BOIS YOUNG,

President and General Manager Hupp Motor Car Corporation.

While I am opposed to making predictions as to future prosperity over which we have no control, I am always free to declare my firm belief in the inherent soundness of American industry.

Some statisticians and a few economists predict a diminished demand for motor cars during the next few months. Others have declared, in effect, that the volume of motor sales within the next few months will remain at least comparable with the corresponding period of last and other years. In the fall of 1926 we heard ominous predictions of a dark year in our industry, yet 1927 proved to be a pretty fair year on the whole, and the following year was even better.

I do not know if such will be the case in 1930. Yet so ingenious and resourceful is the American public and so recuperative are their impulses that the prophets of gloom have many times before been disappointed.

I believe that the motor car industry has learned a powerful and stimulating lesson in the events of the past three years. It has taken that long for manufacturers and sales organizations to discover that they have finally approached that point wherein sales demand must be met by production supply. And by the same token, the automobile industry has also discovered that the American automobile buyer has become a really good judge of motor car value.

DYNAMIC NEW ERSKINE

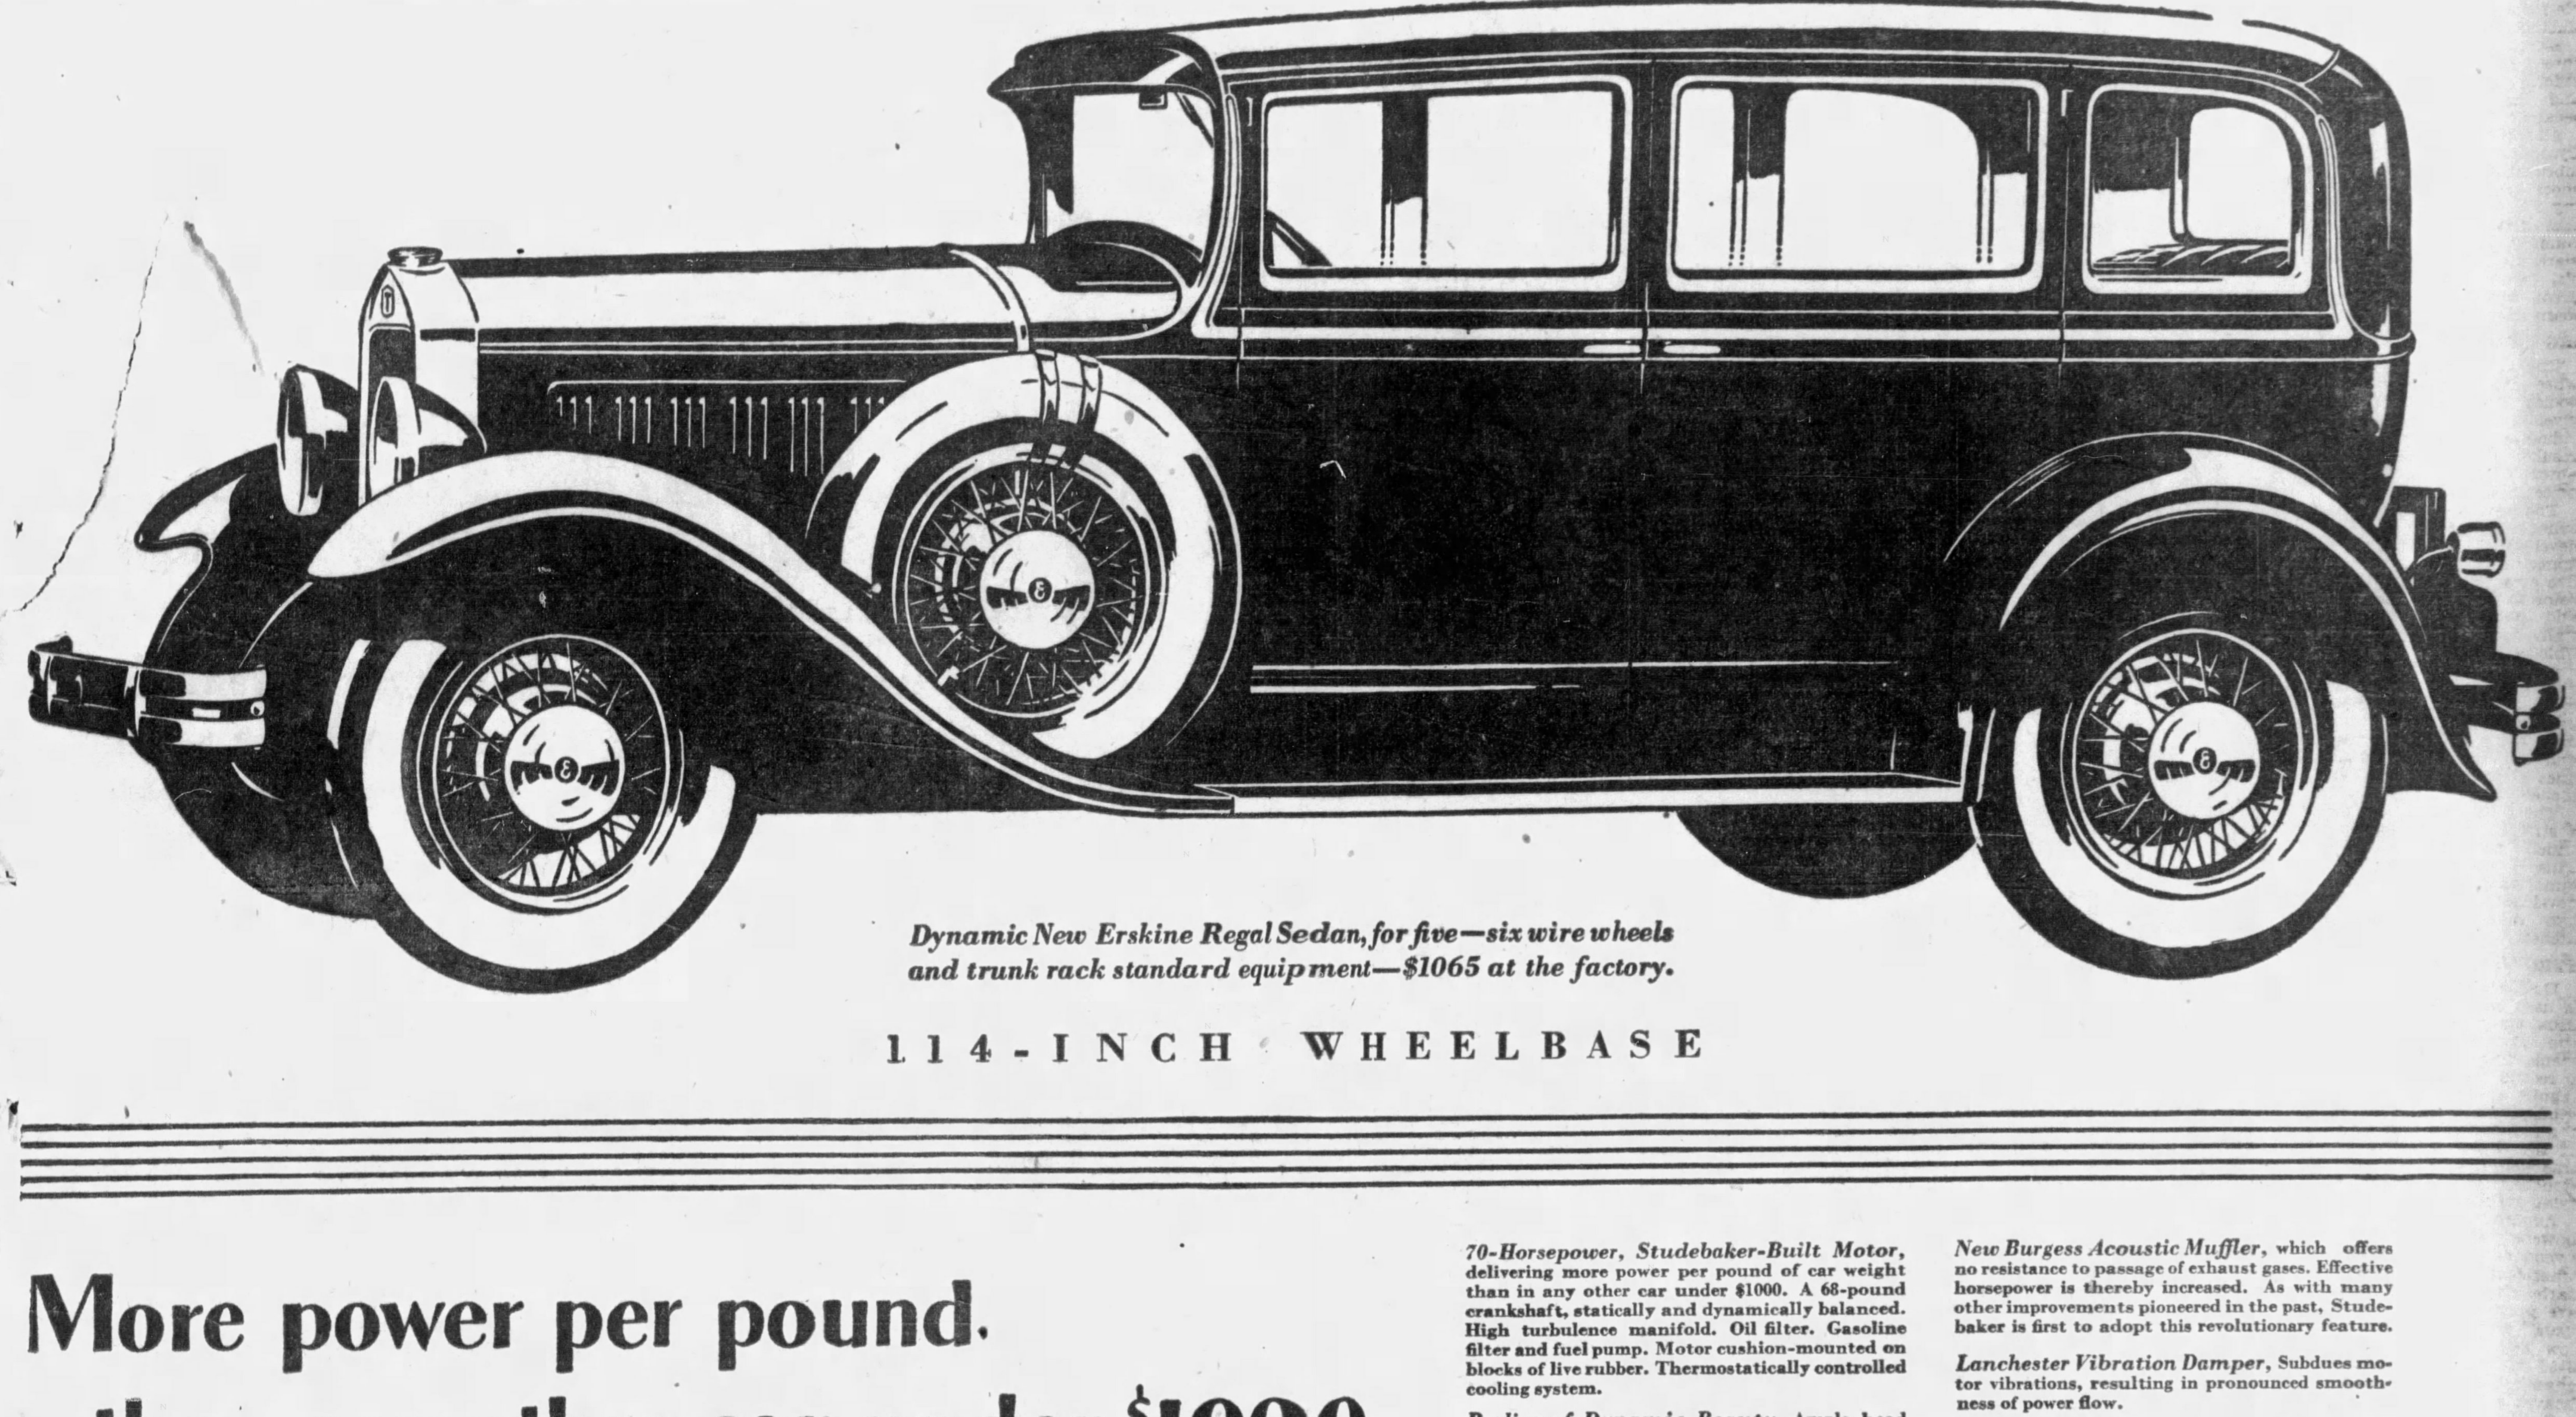
$895
AT THE FACTORY



Dynamic New Erskine Regal Sedan, for five—six wire wheels and trunk rack standard equipment—$1065 at the factory.

114-INCH WHEELBASE

More power per pound.
than any other car under $1000

IT'S a big car—full 114-inch wheelbase. It's a powerful car—its 70 horsepower delivers more power per pound of weight than any other car under $1000. It's a fast car—your daring dictates the speed you travel. It's a comfortable car—with hydraulic shock absorbers, long springs, deep cushions and generous head and leg room. It's a safe car—with never-failing four-wheel brakes, rugged double-drop frame, cam and lever steering and a steering wheel with an unbreakable steel core.

A significant car, first of its type and price—built by Studebaker to its 78-year standards of quality. Those who can command the best will drive no smarter-looking cars than this. Its design is as modern as the dynamic new skyscraper architecture of the day.

Only by actually seeing and driving the new Erskine can you know how impressively it interprets the spirit of these tremendous times. Take a Dynamic New Erskine for the revelation of a trial drive.

70-Horsepower, Studebaker-Built Motor, delivering more power per pound of car weight than in any other car under $1000. A 68-pound crankshaft, statically and dynamically balanced. High turbulence manifold. Oil filter. Gasoline filter and fuel pump. Motor cushion-mounted on blocks of live rubber. Thermostatically controlled cooling system.

Bodies of Dynamic Beauty. Ample head room and leg space; fine mohair, broadcloth or genuine leather upholstery; silken curtains; dome light; broad, sweeping fenders; tri-lateral belt moulding, originated by Studebaker artists.

114-Inch Wheelbase—Double-Drop Frame.

Clutch Torsional Damper, effecting gentle clutch engagement.

New Type Erskine-Bendix Duo-Servo Four-Wheel Brakes.

Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers.

Timken Tapered Roller Bearings, used at twelve vital points.

Self-Adjusting Spring Shackles, automatically take up wear.

Adjustable Front Seat, Steering Column.

Starter Button, located on instrument board.

Thin-Grip Steel-Core Safety Steering Wheel, unbreakable.

New Burgess Acoustic Muffler, which offers no resistance to passage of exhaust gases. Effective horsepower is thereby increased. As with many other improvements pioneered in the past, Studebaker is first to adopt this revolutionary feature.

Lanchester Vibration Damper, Subdues motor vibrations, resulting in pronounced smoothness of power flow.

Chromium Plating on Exterior Brightwork.

Complete Appointments, automatic windshield cleaner; electric ignition lock; tilt-ray headlights. Engine thermometer, gasoline gauge, speedometer, oil gauge and ammeter grouped under glass, indirectly illuminated.

40 Miles Per Hour Even When New—due to advanced engineering, precision workmanship and careful inspection, the Dynamic New Erskine may be driven 40 miles per hour even when new. Oil need be drained only at 2500 mile intervals.

THE NEW OAKLAND 8

$1045 AND UP

General Motors' Lowest-Priced Eight . . . . the Car with Superior Performance

Today a new eight-cylinder motor car makes its appearance. It is the newest General Motors eight and by several hundreds of dollars the lowest in price. It is the most recent accomplishment of a staff of engineers with sixteen years' experience in designing fine eight-cylinder cars. It is the New Oakland Eight with smart new bodies by Fisher.

Superior Performance

The New Oakland Eight develops 85 horsepower and is the first stock car of its size and weight to employ an engine of such high power. Since performance depends largely on the ratio between horsepower and weight, the New Oakland Eight is exceptionally fast and powerful. Oakland produces one horsepower to 37 pounds of car weight. That's why few cars are as fast. That's why few, if any, can pass it on the hills. That's why it accelerates so rapidly in traffic. Truly it is a car with superior performance.

Eight-Cylinder Performance

Exceptional smoothness and flexibility are other prominent characteristics of the New Oakland Eight. It has all the smoothness which results from the overlapping power impulses inherent in eight-cylinder engine design. In addition, it enjoys exclusive mechanical advantages which make it even smoother and more delightful to drive.

Sound Basic Design

Because of their wide experience with eight-cylinder engines, the men who developed the New Oakland Eight were able to produce a car remarkably sound in its basic design. Several of the engineers who participated in creating General Motors' first eight back in 1914 were responsible for the development of the New Oakland Eight. To this latest task they brought a wide knowledge of eight-cylinder design. It is reasonable to expect that the Oakland is a finer eight because of this fact.

Moderate Price

We believe you are going to like the New Oakland Eight. We believe it will appeal to you all the more forcibly when you consider its very moderate price. You will find its many new features worthy of a thorough inspection. And a demonstration will reveal how well it merits the description, "the car with superior performance."

NEW SERIES PONTIAC BIG 6

A Famous Name—A Finer Car . . . Introducing Important Improvements

When an announcement regarding Pontiac is made, it carries a message of great importance to everyone interested in low-priced six-cylinder cars. This has been true from the very beginning of Pontiac's career. The announcement of the first Pontiac in 1926 brought to the low-price field a new order of beauty, performance and reliability. And each Pontiac announcement since that time has introduced a car which represented an improvement even over its own highly regarded predecessors.

Important Improvements

Now comes the New Series Pontiac Big Six—an even finer car with a famous name. It retains all those excellent qualities which have been responsible for Pontiac's success in the past. And in addition it introduces many refinements in smoothness of performance, in comfort and safety.

New bodies by Fisher make this latest Pontiac Big Six more beautiful than ever. A new belt moulding, which encircles the car, emphasizes its stream-line length and lowness. A choice of attractive new Duco colors is available at no extra cost.

Greater Smoothness and Safety

The smoothness of Pontiac's 60-horsepower engine is further increased by the use of improved type rubber engine mountings. Pontiac's large non-squeak four-wheel brakes have been made even more efficient. A new sloping non-glare windshield also adds to its safety. Greater-than-usual handling ease is accomplished through the use of a new type of steering mechanism. Improved Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers bring about a notable increase in riding comfort.

Time-Tried Performance

In speed, power and pick-up the New Series Pontiac Big Six continues to uphold the Pontiac reputation for spirited performance. And Pontiac's economy and long life remain, as ever, the pride and satisfaction of everyone who drives the car.

When Pontiac is improved upon, the resulting car merits the careful consideration of everyone who is interested in a low-priced six. Come now to our showroom and inspect this finer car with a famous name—the New Series Pontiac Big Six.

The New Series Pontiac Big Six is available in seven body types. Shock absorbers standard equipment. Bumpers and spring covers at slight extra cost. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

MY LIFE IN THE WHITE HOUSE

By Mrs. Calvin Coolidge

MUSSOLINI:

'1930 TO SEE U. S. AT APEX OF ITS WORLD POWER AND THE ARBITER OF HISTORY'

"Practically Invulnerable in Peace and War, America's Policy Will Set Standard for the Course of the East and the West," Says Duce in Forecast of World Events for Year.

By BENITO MUSSOLINI,
Premier of Italy.

ROME,, Jan. 4.

GOING out prospecting for what 1930 will bring us, we find that it ought to be just as rich in important events as was 1929. It is the first year of the second decade after the war which starts out, after having created a status quo, to maintain that status quo. War again seems a very improbable occurrence, but not yet and perhaps not for many decades to come, can war be regarded as impossible. There is even the sensation that though we should successfully pass through 1930 without an armed conflict, little guarantee will be permitted us that the succeeding years will pass without disturbance.

BENITO MUSSOLINI

And this we can say after we have examined all the efforts which are being put forward to find a basis on which all nations can join in promoting peace. We have numerous pacts and instruments, such as agreements to outlaw war, international arbitration courts, schemes for disarmament.

In the midst of all these outward manifestations, we are faced with bigger war budgets than the world has ever known. How can we conciliate these two opposing tendencies? There is talk of peace, but there is a plentiful show of arms. The temple of international relations has a facade of brotherly love but inside it is a bristling armory.

The year 1930 begins with a formidable manifestation of the tendency to reduce arms. Nations feel the crushing burdens of the maintenance of great military establishments and want to come to some agreement so that one will not autdo the other and thus create a race in which the most zealous and warlike might outstrip its most dangerous rival. Nations see that it is better to ask "its probable enemy" to keep its arm within a certain ratio so that neither would have any overwhelming advantage if a conflict should burst.

Not Permanent

Building Will Be Resumed Later, He Says

For reasons of economy and even of practical strategy, it would be wise to keep the arms of "the probable enemy" at the lowest, for then and then only can any nation with safety decide to limit its weapons. A nation's forces are determined by the size of its most dangerous rival or group of rivals.

We hear much of cruiser tonnage, gun power, trained reserves and parity, and when we come to an agreement on all these, where are we? We have a holiday in building and that is all. The sensation, deeply rooted, is that after the holiday is over building must begin again, for the deep roots lying at the bottom of the conflict have not been eliminated. These stay no matter how many accords and pacts we seem to sign.

We may all agree upon rules by which we will fight, the number of our ships, the size of our guns, but none of this has anything to do with the removal of the cause of war. As long as one nation has what another wants and earnestly aspires to obtain, there will always be danger. This is inevitable though 1930 will not see the explosion, we trust and hope.

National aims are jealously guarded, and every nation has national aims even when professing peaceful policies. The world is not divided according to the needs of each, some have more than they can possibly use and others strive in poverty to maintain their identity as nations. There is an unrest in the world and 1930 will unmistakably mark a new status quo stabilization which the strong will use all their power to enforce and the weak will by their feeble protests endeavor to change.

The year 1930 will see the United States coming into the full bloom of its powers as not only the great Colossus of the West, but as an arbiter between the Orient and the Occident. Practically invulnerable in peace or war, her policy will be one of the chief standards by which both the East and the West will set their course. From 1930 the United States can fix its true beginning as having reached the apex as a world power and as having attained an influence which for decades will decide the trend of history.

U. S. Vigorous

Nothing Can Check Fulfillment of Destiny

Blessed with a dynamic people, a rich, compact territory, and a strenuous expansionist spirit, there is no restraining or hindering force to prevent the fulfillment of its destiny. While the older nations wrestle with impoverished lands or far-flung territories or lack of material resources, the United States is fresh, full and vigorous with wealth, territory and power.

Nineteen hundred and thirty may see the entrance of the United States into the World Court at The Hague.

As I forecasted for 1929, that the troublesome problem of reparations would receive its greatest impetus towards solution, I look with pleasure at what has been accomplished and the progress gained towards the general stability of Europe. For Europe, 1930 will continue the upward trend of complete, economical and political rehabilitation.

Much was done in 1929 with the formulation of the Young Plan and the partial evacuation of the Rhineland. Though these questions are still being discussed, 1930 should see the final settlement of these vexatious post-war problems. Europe has progressed and is continuing to re-establish itself on a firm economic basis, and this year will mark the second stage of European stabilization.

Politically, there is no great preoccupation for the immediate future. There are still some odds and ends to be smoothed over and all of them should meet successful solution in the New Year. France and Italy seem to be on the way to compose their difficulties, and we are full of hope that 1930 will mark a period of practical progress in the relations of the two countries.

The relations of the Balkan countries are still somewhat of an interrogation mark to world peace. One could still repeat the time-honored and ever truthful old phrase that they are the "powder magazine of Europe." Even one of those little border incidents—which if kept under proper control die without having caused much of a ripple—could still precipitate a storm.

Worse still, if the Balkan countries were encouraged in a frivolous though criminal spirit of mischief-making, we could not foresee where it would all end. It is the duty of all wise governments to assist them in setting their internal affairs in order. Instead of engaging in quarrels with their neighbors, each one is so harassed with internal strife

Mrs. Coolidge When She Became Mistress of the White House

A Colorful, Absorbing Narrative

HEREWITH is presented the opening chapter of a notable and fascinating narrative—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge's own story of her life in the White House. Frank in its revelations and delightful in treatment, it constitutes an absorbing chronicle of interesting happenings in the home of the President—the first vital contribution to American social history written by a President's wife.

Mrs. Coolidge's narrative not only discloses the lovable charm of this First Lady of the Land, but brings out in new relief the human traits of her distinguished husband.

In the opening instalment today, Mrs. Coolidge writes of her first experiences in Washington as the wife of the Vice-President which were destined to become the preface to her five and a half years in the White House that began unexpectedly with the death of President Harding.

In subsequent instalments of her colorful narrative to appear in later Sunday issues, she will describe in entertaining fashion many varied phases of Presidential life as she and her husband lived it.

FASCINATING REVELATIONS OF HER EXPERIENCES AS FIRST LADY OF THE LAND

"When I Arrived as a Stranger in Washington In 1921 I Had Had Very Little Preparatory Training in the Social Graces," Confesses Mrs. Calvin Coolidge in Her Own Story.

By Grace Coolidge

WHEN I was a freshman at college, students in one of the English courses were required to hand in themes twice a week. Sometimes subjects were assigned to us, at other times we were permitted to choose our own.

One day, with the assurance of youth, I prepared a theme upon "Life" and passed it in. It was returned to me with a single comment written on the margin: "I suggest that you refrain from writing upon this subject until you have had more experience."

That wise counsel has served me well and I have carefully avoided entering the literary field by way of any of its wide approaches. Now, however, I am meeting with so many requests that I recount some of my experiences while living in Washington that I am skirting the outer edges, carefully avoiding the section given over to the fruits of philosophical deduction.

Felt as Student Entering College

Wondered What Fresh Experiences Laid Ahead and How People Would Feel About Her

Approaching Washington a few days before the inauguration of 1921, I felt much as a young student feels as he is arriving at a university town to begin four years of college work. About to enter the freshman class, he wonders what experiences lie before him and how he is going to fit into the student body.

How are the upper classmen going to look upon him? Does he look as inexperienced as he feels? He hopes that some kindly person will take him in charge and give him a bit of advice, help him get adjusted and start him right.

In many of our institutions of learning the older students, often members of the Y. M. C. A., are delegated to meet incoming freshmen at the train, and a new man arrives to find himself greeted by name and given a friendly hand whose grasp puts him at his ease at once.

This was my fortunate experience when I arrived in Washington, and the hand extended to bid me welcome was that of the wife of the outgoing Vice-President, Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall. She had come with her husband to meet us at the station. All that I owe to her friendly guidance cannot be estimated. It is one of the choice memories of the years I spent in Washington.

In one way fate is kinder to the freshman than to the novice who enters a course of training as the wife of a Vice-President without previous residence in Washington. He is one of a class of beginners like himself, with no particular responsibility to the student body, no conspicuous position to assume, while she must at once become the presiding officer, of an advanced class.

I think every one knows about the organization called "The Ladies of the Senate," whose members are the wives and hostesses of Senators, and that it was organized during the World War as a unit of the Red Cross and continued as a luncheon club because it had proved of so much value in establishing acquaintance and understanding among the members.

"I had Not Been a Club Woman"

'My Activities Had Been Confined to the Teaching, Upbringing of Two Boys'

It meets for lunch on Tuesdays in the Senate office building during sessions of Congress. The by-laws provide that the wife of the Vice-President shall be the presiding officer of the club, and from that there is no appeal. So here was I, a stranger within the gates, about to assume the duties of the office while more than two-thirds of the members were upper classmen, as it were.

Here, again, my guiding friend smoothed the way for me. She took me with her to the luncheon which was held on the day following my arrival. There was a full attendance. She presented me to each member, telling me the State from which each came, and two days later she invited them all to come to tea in her apartment so that I might have the opportunity of seeing them again and getting their names and faces fixed in my mind.

I had had very little preparatory training in the soccial graces. I had not been a club woman. My activities had been confined to teaching and the upbringing of two lively boys.

True, I was the wife of a former Governor of my home state, but that state provided no residence for its Governor. My husband had lived at a comfortable but somewhat old-fashioned hotel, where the rates were moderate, and I had spent the larger portion of my time at home with the children.

"Cook a Little"

Husband Thought Her Pie Was Rather Tough

I was more proficient in getting up and operating miniature tracks and trains on the dining room floor than in receiving and entertaining guests in the drawing room. I could cook a little, but, I must confess it, I was never a great success at this, although some of my "favorite recipes" are spread abroad in the nation.

I shall tell a story in this connection. My one household helper, who had been with me during the nine years of our married life, became ill and the preparation of the food for the family was thereby placed in my inexperienced hands. I flatter myself that I carried on with a reasonable amount of success, until one day I became a little extra ambitious.

I undertook to make an apple pie, aided and advised by a reliable standard cook book. Rather proudly I brought forth the result of my efforts at the evening meal. In outward appearance it was everything that could be desired. The family partook of it and made no comment. I was my own critic and I admitted to myself that the crust was a trifle tough.

That evening two of my friends came to call. As they were about to leave, my husband came into the room and asked if they would like a piece of my pie. They would. He conducted them to the dining room, where he had set out plates, knives, and forks and—the pie.

Devotedly they ate, and when they had thus lent their aid in the banishment of the pie, their host inquired, with ne'er a smile, "Don't you think the road commissioner would be willing to pay my wife something for her receipt for pie crust?" Being stanch friends and not overaccustomed to his way of taking his daily toll of fun, they were properly protestant.

Urges Sewing

All Girls Should Be Taught The Art, She Says

But I could sew, and I have always taken great delight in all forms of this domestic art, preferring that pastime to playing bridge; and when my friends had card parties, they invited me to come and bring my sewing.

Every girl should be taught to sew, not merely for the sake of making something, but as an accomplishment which may prove a stabilizer in time of perplexity or distress.

Many a time, when I have needed to hold myself firmly, I have taken up my needle; it might be a sewing needle, knitting needles, or a crochet hook—whatever its form or purpose, it often proved to be as the needle of the compass, keeping me to the course.

I look for a revival of the homey household arts. Such a revival may not bring about the peace of nations, but I firmly believe it will aid in bringing peace within our homes, and this will be more far-reaching than we realize.

The people of Washington, both those who are permanent residents and those who are there in an official capacity, have the habit of hospitality. It is as natural to them as breathing and they are always looking for an excuse to plan a party. We soon found ourselves at the center of a busy social life.

It has been said that the Vice-President is the official diner-out of the administration, and it is true. In a surprisingly short time we had formed a wide acquaintance and began to feel very much at home.

We had taken up our residence at the Willard Hotel, living in the same apartment which had been occupied by our immediate predecessors and which the management had changed and adapted to their needs. Here we made our home for two years and a half.

The wife of the Vice-President receives on Wednesday afternoons. The drawing-room of our apartment was not large and sometimes my guests were rather crowded, but nobody seemed to mind and most of them came again.

Cards are not sent out for these afternoons at home. They are announced in the society columns of the daily papers and the doors are open to all who wish to come.

Bellboy Is Aid

Coolidge Popularity Increased by Youth

On one of my afternoons, a friend drew near and whispered in my ear that a bellboy was standing in the corridor on the main floor shouting, "This way to Mrs. Coolidge's apartment," and people were turning in off the street to follow his directing hand and discover what the excitement was all about.

I soon sent word that he was to cease his efforts in my behalf, and I haven't decided yet whether his idea was to make me appear a favorite in Washington society by piling up a large attendance record or whether he sought to stand in with the hotel management by increasing the demand for tea and cakes.

The members of Washington society were not the only ones who partook of Vice-Presidential hospitality. We were also at home to a family of mice, which had a private entrance behind a large davenport placed across one corner of the dining room, which served as a sitting room, for we had our meals downstairs in the main dining room.

Seated at my desk one evening, I was suddenly aware that I had a visitor who had arrived unannounced and was sitting up looking me over quite as critically as any other guest who favored me with a call. Finding me amiable, he got down and began an inspection of the place. I made no protest, sitting quite still and allowing him to go about at his will.

Having completed his tour of investigation, he disappeared beneath the davenport, presumably to report on his findings to his family, and I arose to do a little investigating of my own, discovering that he had made his exit by way of a small, semi-circular hole in the baseboard just above the concrete flooring.

On several succeeding evenings we were dining out, but on the next evening which we spent at home my little visitor in gray was back again and brought one of the children. In accordance with the rules of hospitality I served tea. The larder afforded only pieces of dry cracker, but these seemed to meet with approval and were quickly nibbled away.

From then on, Father Gray looked at me for daily food for his family, consisting of himself and his wife and several children. Mother Gray was a rather portly lady, and when she paid me a visit she found the doorway a bit low and narrow, but she was resourceful as well as plump, and she managed to enter by turning over on her back, placing her feet against the baseboard and pushing herself through.

I brought all sorts of delicacies from the hotel table for the delectation of these visitors of mine and I firmly believe that I thus acquired some friends in Washington who would have pronounced me the perfect hostess. Their favorite form of amusement was to scramble up the outside corners of the metal scrap basket, and from the edge jump into the waste paper in the bottom, as I have seen boys climb to the beams of a hayloft and jump into the hay.

When all were buried in the bottom, I would tip over the container, and after they had run out, set it up again, and they would repeat the performance. I think they missed me when I had gone and I often wonder how they fared.

I saw them last in the spring of 1923. The short session of Congress adjourned on the 4th of March and we went home.

SENIOR AND FRESHMAN—When Mrs. Coolidge arrived in Washington as the wife of the Vice-President-elect she was warmly welcomed by Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the outgoing Vice-President, to whose friendly guidance in the intricacies of Capital society Mrs. Coolidge makes grateful acknowledgment in the accompanying chapter. Above are Mrs. Marshall (left) and Mrs. Coolidge at a pre-inauguration luncheon given by Mrs. Marshall to her successor.

IN the next instalment of her absorbing narrative next Sunday Mrs. Coolidge tells of her first days as the mistress of the White House, also her own inside story of the famous "I do not choose to run" message of President Coolidge.

The Life of Pope Pius XI

By His Eminence, Cardinal Cerretti

Turning Point in Pontiff's Career Came When He Was Sent to Poland

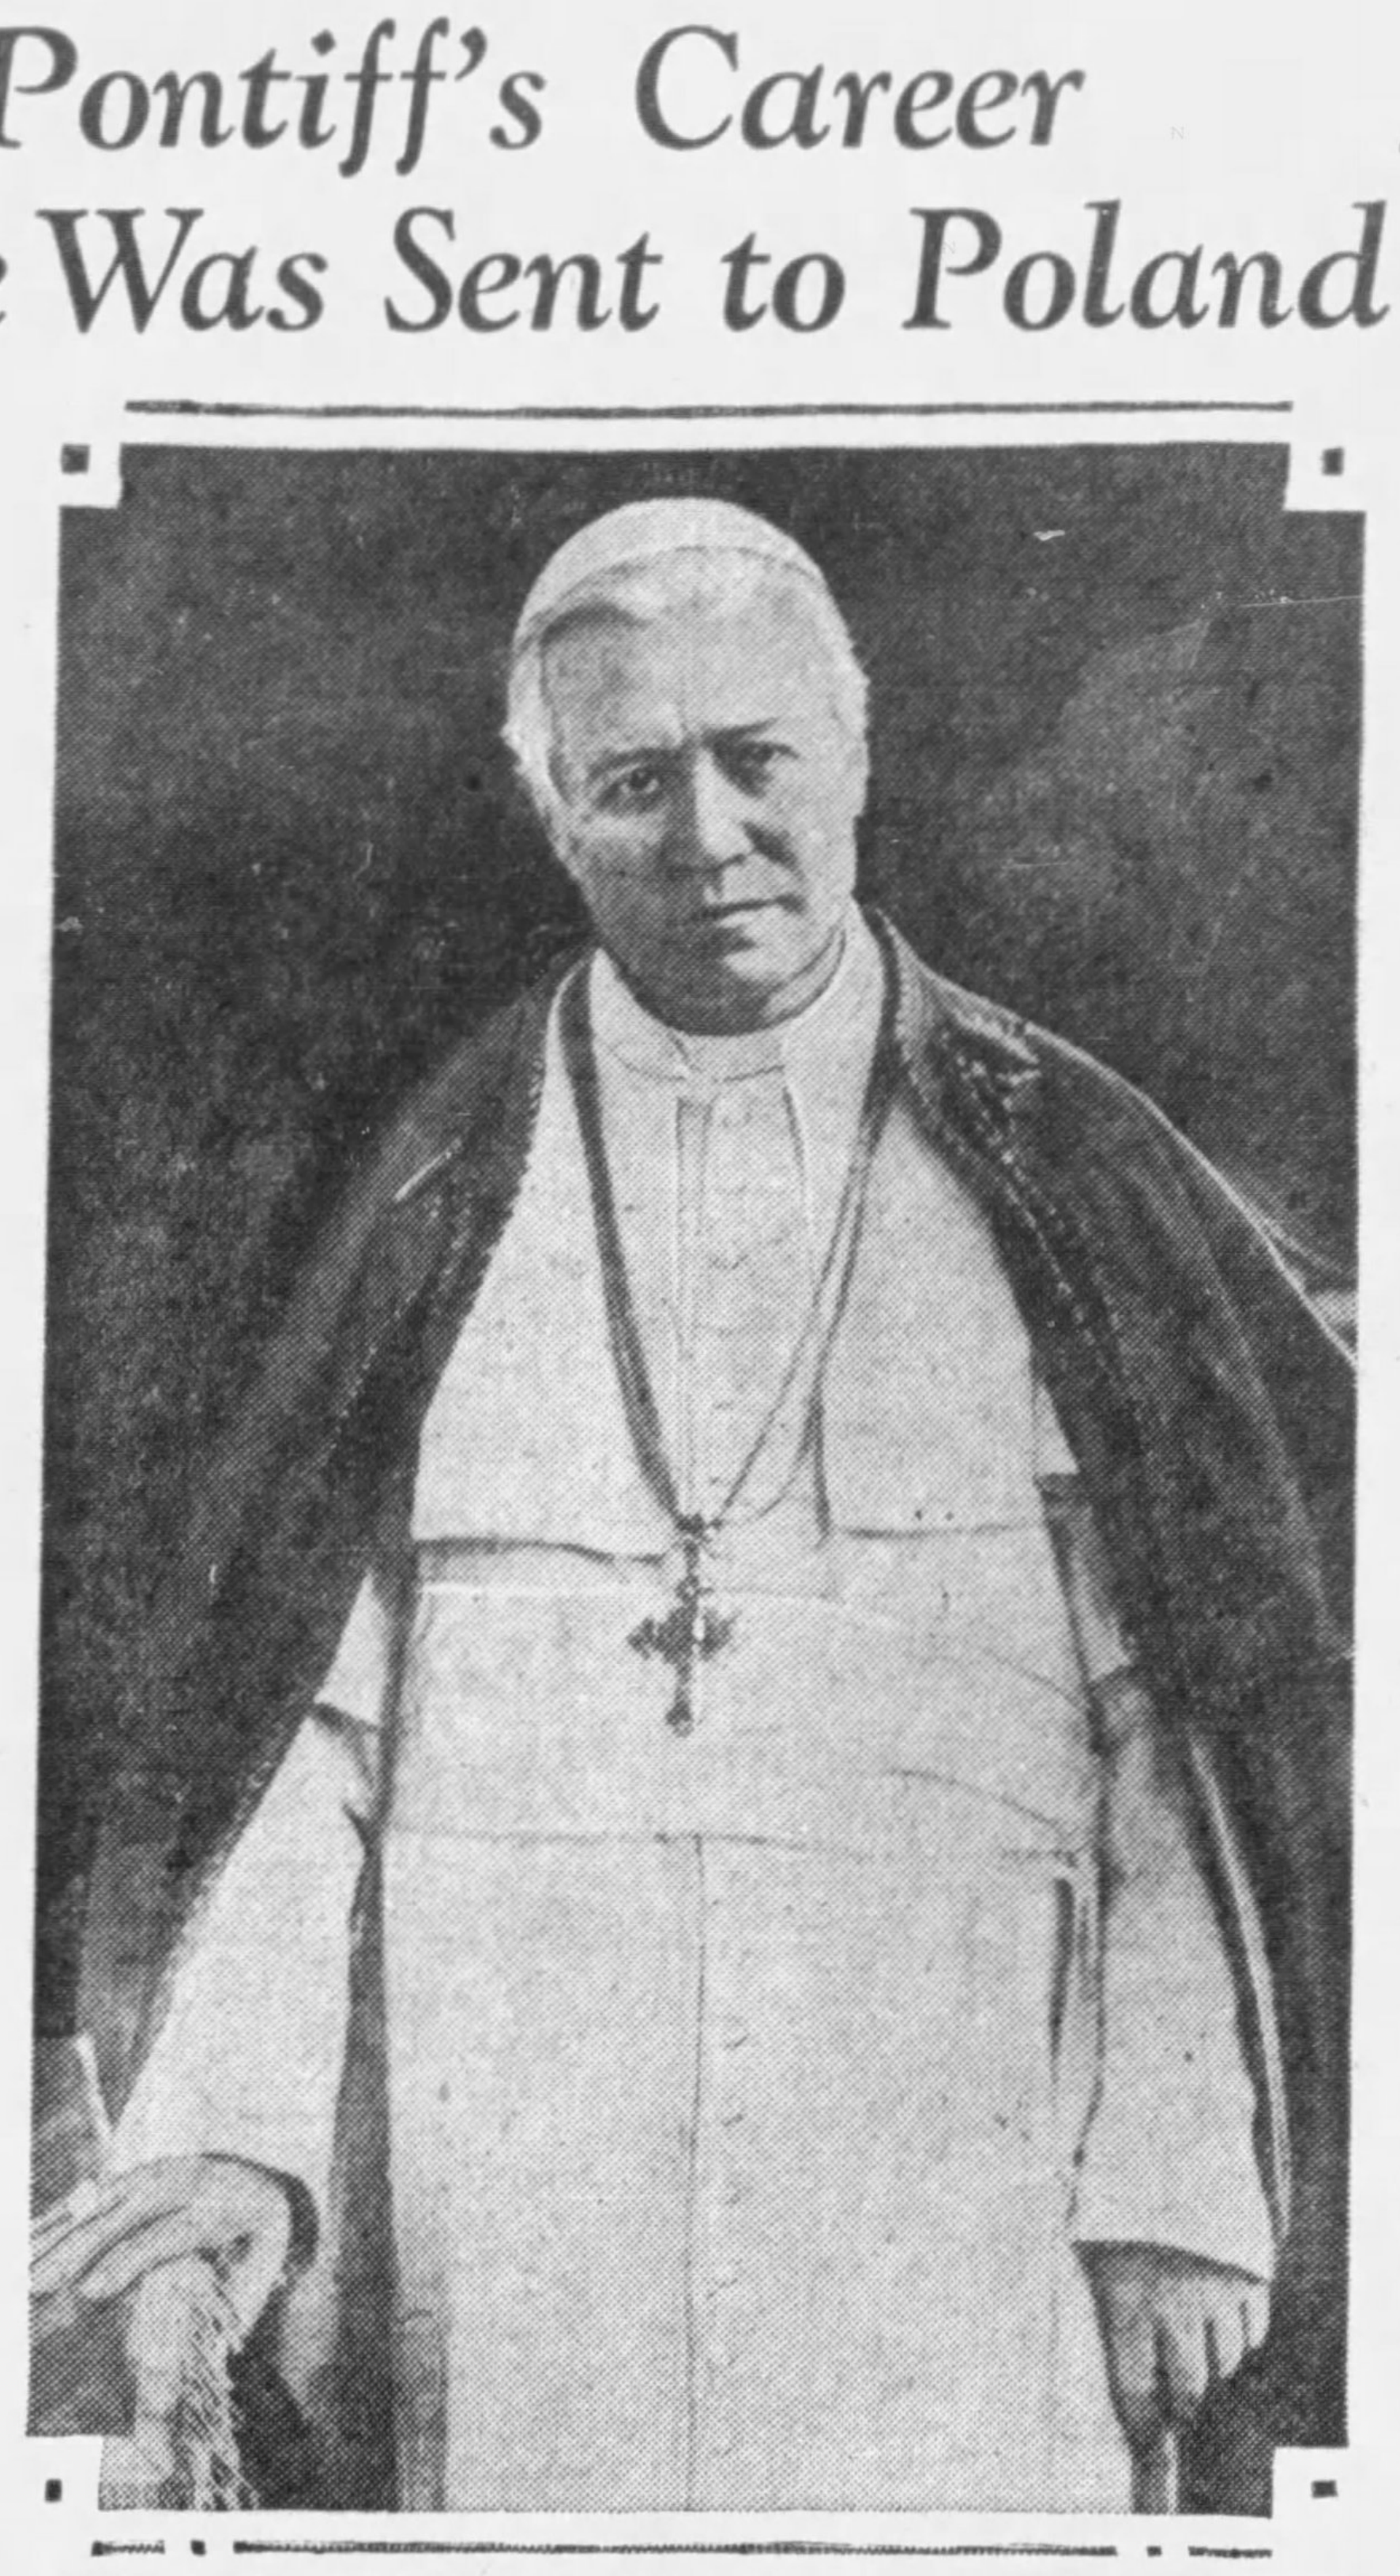
'As Vatican Librarian He Was Chosen by Pope Benedict for Important Diplomatic Mission

IN the preceding instalment of his Biography of Pope Pius XI, published last Sunday, Cardinal Cerretti told of the binding friendships and qualities of human affection of The Pontiff.

In the accompanying instalment, Cardinal Cerretti tells how the Monsignor Ratti was chosen for an important diplomatic mission to Poland which won him the Red Hat and opened the way for his elevation to the throne of St. Peter.

By HIS EMINENCE, BONAVENTURA CARDINAL CERRETTI,

Member of the Sacred College and for Many Years a Close Associate of Pope Pius XI.



PONTIFF—Pope Pius X, who called Monsignor Ratti to Rome to take charge of the Vatican Library in Rome. When Monsignor Ratti expressed his sorrow at leaving his aged mother in Milan, Pope Pius sent her a photograph of himself affectionately dedicated to her as a token of consolation.

PRINCE OF CHURCH—It was in recognition of the notable success of his mission to Poland, first as Apostolic Visitor, later as Nuncio, that the red hat was bestowed upon Achille Ratti, now Pius XI, by Pope Benedict in 1921. A year later Cardinal Ratti was chosen Pope. Above is a view of the then Cardinal Ratti and a group of ecclesiastics in the Vatican.

CHAPTER VIII.

AS we have said, the ecclesiastical and scientific life of Achille Ratti had always followed a uniform and constant line. His fame in the world of the learned had increased from day to day. The exemplary nature of his priestly life had always won for him universal admiration and esteem.

Cardinal Cerretti

The direction of his life, however, seemed definitely and irrevocably traced along one single line, and an observer who had followed the forecasts capable of being made according to the ordinary contingencies of life, could have compared his existence to that of a handsome, luxurious train, shunted off on to a siding and unlikely to be moved in other directions. But a time came when this was ended.

It is true that some of his more intimate friends, being in a position to appreciate all his worth, did think that his high intelligence and his practical capacity could have been used in a more useful way for the interests of the Church.

Thus a friend of his, who occupied a notable position in the Vatican, returning from Milan in the autumn of 1907, after the summer holidays, speaking of the post which was then vacant for the Apostolic Nuncio at Munich, said to a prelate of the Secretariat of State:

Merit Lauded
First Hint of Promotion From Librarian

"If you have not already made provision for the post of Nuncio at Munich, I can suggest to you an excellent candidate, little known in the Vatican, but with the most eminent qualities for a diplomatic office. He is Monsignor Ratti of the Ambrosian Library."

"It's a pity," replied the other prelate, "but only yesterday we appointed the Dominican Father Andrea Fruhwirth, to the post, and he promises very well. If you had told us sooner, we should have certainly taken your proposal into consideration, for we have great need of capable men, and there are very few really excellent ones."

This was the end of the first fugitive hint at a possible destination for Monsignor Ratti to other posts than those of librarian.

Father Fruhwirth was sent to Munich, and remained there as Nuncio for eight years, after which he was created Cardinal.

Six years later, another important Vatican personage thought of Monsignor Ratti, though still in connection with his activities as a librarian, which it then appeared was to be the sole specialty in his life. This personage was the Jesuit Father Francesco Ehrle, Prefect of the Vatican Library, afterwards created Cardinal.

This man was a regular giant in library study and had spent long and patient years in the work of the Vatican Library. He became the highly efficacious instrument of Leo XIII in enriching the magnificent institution, especially regarding reference, for which he gained the admiration of so many learned men.

Named Prefect
Was Also Nominated Canon of St. Peter's

Having arrived in 1913 at the respectable age of 68, and feeling somewhat tired, he asked to be substituted and proposed as his successor the Prefect of the Ambrosian Library, Monsignor Ratti.

The appointment was first limited to the post of coadjutor, with the right of succession. Pope Pius X approved the plan and Monsignor Ratti was appointed.

At the beginning he did not leave the direction of the Ambrosian Library. He established himself in Rome in the summer of 1914, when he took up the effective post of Prefect to the Vatican Library, and was nominated canon of St. Peter's, becoming a member of that illustrious chapter which had given nine Popes to the church.

These were: Innocent III, Boniface VIII, Gregory IX, Nicholas III, Paul II, Clement XI, Benedict XIV, Pius VI, and Leo XII. Achille Ratti was to be the tenth canon of the chapter to become Pope.

On Eve of War
Substitution Proved to Be Excellent Idea

It was pointed out that the substitution of Father Ehrle by Monsignor Ratti in the prefecture of the Vatican Library was almost a Providential disposition, because it happened on the eve of the World War.

The substitution of a German by an Italian, giving to the new Prefect that special aspect of internationality which Italians traditionally acquire when they become members of the Roman Curia, appeared a specifically favorable circumstance for an institution having so definitely a universal character as the Vatican Library.

In fact, the new Prefect, even in the most tremendous moments of the great world struggle, was able to preserve correct relations untouched by political passion, taking as his ideal the words of the Bible, which speak of the triumph of justice and peace: "Justitia et pax osculatae sunt"—"Peace and Justice have kissed."

The time was now approaching when the marked destiny of Achille Ratti was about to mature. It was 1918, and the war was coming to an end. The Central Empires, in their ephemeral victories over Russia, had created a Poland which could not withstand the onrushing incidents of the war, but which contained unmistakable symptoms of the definite resurrection of the nation.

The Roman Curia, faced by governments and peoples in every quarter, had a steadily growing need of men capable of worthily representing it where its presence was invoked by the urgent spiritual interests of these nations and peoples.

Envoy Needed
Poland Requests Holy See Send Representative

The name of Achille Ratti was again mentioned in this connection. This time Divine Providence, through her mysterious ways, had prepared all the circumstances to make the choice of Achille Ratti an accomplished fact.

The writer was then occupying the post of Assistant Secretary of State. One morning while in conference with the Holy Father, His Holiness Benedict XV informed him that he had received a request from Poland that the Holy See send a representative there.

The Pontiff ordered the subject examined, as usual, in a meeting of Cardinals, who had to pronounce themselves, first of all, on the advisability of accepting the request and, if affirmative, to suggest who should be sent on the mission.

When the Assistant Secretary of State brought the results of the meeting to the Pope, the latter found nothing new in the fact that the opinions were unanimously favorable to the request since he, himself, was convinced that Poland should receive a representative. He was, however rather disappointed that no clear indication had been given as to the person who might be sent.

Is Honored
Pope Benedict Selects Him for Polish Post

We have already said that Monsignor Ratti had been mentioned for a diplomatic post and his qualities highly praised and recommended. It therefore was quite natural that the name of the Prefect of the Vatican Library came up during the conversation.

The Holy Father remained silent and thoughtful for a few moments and then said:

"Certainly he is one of the most distinguished prelates we have here in Rome and his learning and merits in his own field are really exceptional. Still, until now, his life has been wholly absorbed in study. Would he be prepared for practical diplomatic work? We will think it over."

Pope Benedict thought the matter over and a few days later, without preamble, informed Cardinal Gasparri, his Secretary of State, that he had decided to send Monsignor Ratti to Poland as Apostolic Visitor, reserving to himself whether he would later enhance his mission as circumstances would warrant.

Thus, one morning Monsignor Ratti, while engaged in his usual studies in the library, received a call from the Secretariat of State. He may have imagained everything as to the reason for the call except its real significance, and when he heard that the Pope wanted to send him as his representative to Poland he could, in the beginning, see nothing but the difficulties of the case.

Preparation
Appointee Made Extensive Study of Task

"Has the Pope thought the question over well," he said. "My life up until now has been dedicated completely to study. I have remained outside all practical activities. I should have to leave my books and adventure in a new field. The thing to me does not seem over-practical or possible. Do you think the Pope has really decided, or that it is only a vague idea?"

"No," replied the Cardinal, "it seems to me that the Pope has already decided. In any case, if you wish, you can make your observations on the matter. Ask for an audience and you will have a chance of saying to the Pope all you wish."

Monsignor Ratti, in fact, requested his audience and prepared a list of all the difficulties which he proposed to lay before the judgment of the Pope. But when he came into the presence of Benedict XV he was not able to explain even one of them, for the Pope, as soon as he saw him, asked him straight away, "Well, when do you leave?"

The conversation thus begun was all taken up with the instructions which the Pope desired to give to his new representative to provide him with rules for the carrying out of his new mission.

There was nothing for Monsignor Ratti to do but to return to the Secretariat of State, and announce the accomplished fact asking, at the same time, to be placed au courant with the situation, as it was necessary for him to have a knowledge of the subject matter of his future activity.

It was, therefore, arranged that Monsignor Ratti should go every morning early to the Secretariat of State, where at a special table, he would find assembled and prepared documentary material from which he could derive full and complete knowledge of the Polish situation.

Happy Choice
Good Selection Made for Diplomatic Mission

The future Apostolic Visitor to Poland began in this first attempt at diplomatic preparation to apply all his qualities of studiousness, method, regularity and conscientiousness. He determined to read everything with the greatest accuracy, and it was only when he had finished his examination of the abundant documentary material that he declared his preliminary study finished.

The person who directed him in this preparation, told him to make a resume of what he had read and examined, so as to be able to discuss thereon, and draw the conclusions which should serve him as guide in carrying out his mission.

A reading of the resume which Monsignor Ratti made of the documents laid before him was sufficient to show immediately what a happy choice the old librarian was for the new diplomatic mission.

Monsignor Ratti's report was marvelous, not only for the precision and exactness with which he had considered the elements of the case, but also for the perspicacity and sure judgment which he had at once shown regarding the persons and circumstances concerned after having read only a few papers.

Pope Pleased
Affectionate Correspondence Is Started

When Pope Benedict XV learned of the first happy trial of the qualities of Monsignor Ratti and the way in which he was approaching his new diplomatic mission, he was greatly pleased, and from that moment began that affectionate correspondence between the souls of the two great men which was never diminished, even in the most arduous moments.

Monsignor Ratti left Rome on May 19, 1918, on the Feast of Pentecost, and stayed at Milan a couple of days to greet his aged mother. Then he left for Munich, Vienna, Berlin and Warsaw, where he finally arrived at the end of the month. He was received with the highest honors and with a veneration which made it apparent that the authorities and the Polish people recognized and venerated in his person the person of the Pope himself.

THE next instalment of Cardinal Cerretti's biographical study of Pope Pius XI will appear in next Sunday' issue of the Sun-Telegraph.

'1930 to See U.S. at Apex of Its World Power'—Mussolini

that all their efforts are needed for internal reconstruction, and 1930 ought to see them quietly endeavoring to consolidate their domestic affairs.

From present indications much will be said about the proposed United States of Europe in 1930. This is no new idea, but efforts are apparent in certain quarters to push the idea, not perhaps so much for the promotion of a political accord, but rather at arriving at some economic adjustment.

Europe is composed of so many heterogenous elements that an agreement eve an economic basis would be difficult. Economic claims clash with too much frequency. Markets are wanted by all, but no one is anxious that the market which he particularly regards as his own should be made the common property of all. The whole network of economic lines is endless and complicated and jealously does each value his own particular trade and commerce before risking it in the common lot of all.

Europe will be at peace during 1930, but when we set our eyes towards the east, we cannot see with such clearness, for unrest is threatening. With Russia working through interminable channels of propaganda with provocative tactics, the Orient does not seem to lie reposefully and calmly. China, India, Afghanistan, have all their periods of excess. Perhaps therein are the seeds from which may sprout a new world of conflicts in the distant future.

The cause of conflict lies in the clash of interests. Small may be the incident which starts a muster to defend or enforce those interests. While these clashes are bound to occur in this uneven world, the year 1930 should successfully pass from beginning to the end without having perturbed the present equilibrium. Too much optimism may represent a danger. Reasonable prudence is the beginning of wisdom, and by keeping our eyes open and our minds on the alert we may hope that the New Year will create new foundations for a peaceful outlook leading to future prosperity.

RADIO NEWS and PROGRAMS

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin
Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor

SCALPED!

Everything was going fine. The announcers were whooping it up and the girls on the staff were ki-yoodling like Minnehaha might, when the telephone jingled.

"Say, put those Indians to sleep," growled an irate fan who didn't think so much of a local premiere. The program series ended right there.

'NOW TELL ME—'

Pittsburgh announcers have the wisdom of Socrates if we may judge from the number of letters received by them asking their advice in love matters and business affairs. "Would you do this?" or "Have you found in your experience that—" are two very common interrogatives. As for experience the boys have had lots of it, but they do not feel themselves at liberty to act as sages. Love affairs, of course, are a different matter and often the fellows play Beatrice Fairfax for their listening public.

IMAGINE THIS

A pretty East End girl who is reported to have lost $25,000 in the stock market crash works an eight-hour day at KDKA, we are told. She drives downtown in her own coupe, takes things leisurely and luxuriously, at times drifts into the KayDee studios to sing and play her own accompaniment. She likes good books, studies art exhibits, defines her culture with a charming personality. We watched her shop one day and concluded that the tale about her pennies is not a myth.

I WONDER IF—

This young and beautiful girl has her home in Ligonier. Without getting too snooty we might surmise that wealth came from wise farmland investments years ago. If by this time you're wondering if—well, she is, but has little desire for boys.

FIRST AT MORNING

Artists and announcers don't brush their teeth "the first thing in the morning," but grab for the mailbag. Boys and girls in the limelight never tire of fan mail and often read a letter four or five times, in addition to showing it to associates and friends. We have noticed that the best artists on Pittsburgh stations are those who receive a moral stimulus from fan mail.

SOCIETY FOLK

Among those who "step out" quite a bit around local studios are Cousin Lora, Herb McGee, Walter Myers, Virginia Harmon, Glenn Riggs, Marcella Deverson, Virginia Kendrick, Dick Powell. They are studio luminaries who may be seen at your next frat dance, society meeting, study club or those few places where society folks go.

LOOKING BACK

An unusual request from M. A. Shuster, of Homestead, who wants to know why the Pittsburgh-Sun Telegraph allows other newspapers to copy various radio features.

Very kind of you to take this interest, Mr. Shuster, but we have taken it as a matter of course for others to follow us since the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph "Tells It First" in radio as in everything else.

You're right about program structure. The Sun-Telegraph was the first paper in Pittsburgh to print programs in detail by the station and the first paper in the United States to print programs in detail by the hour. Some other "firsts" in radio in 1929 were:

Announcement of KDKA new 200,000 watt transmitter at Saxonburg;

C. W. Horn employed by NBC to establish international hookup that was used successfullly on Christmas Day;

WCAE plan to build new transmitter and Federal Radio Commission's O. K. for use of 1,000 watts;

Announcement of WJAS new studios in Law and Finance Building, story of new transmitter and story of increase in power to 1,000 watts;

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph first paper in America to use Radio Poll for determining popular features as a guide to preparing material for radio pages;

First Radio Poll in Pittsburgh conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph;

First radio column in Pittsburgh in the Sun-Telegraph.

RADIOGRAPHS

Earle Ferris, commercial manager at WTAM in Cleveland, lived in Edgewood for a number of years.

Like the throw-aways we used to pick up from under the door advertising "Poor Pauline" at the corner music house, back in the days of 1915, we find on our desk a card: "Wonderful Radio Program. WNBO at Washington will broadcast a wonderful program of Russian music every Sunday from 2 until 3 o'clock. Do not miss it. Set your radio for 1200 kilocycles."

Tonight the first in the series of Sunday night famous light opera radio presentations, under the sponsorship of the Gainaday Electric Company, will be broadcast over KDKA at 10:15. Frederick G. Rodgers will direct "The Chocolate Soldier" with Norma Altwater, Viola Byrgerson, Patti Rude Baldridge, Erbin G. Thomas and himself in the cast.

Calvin Coolidge will speak on "The Economics of Life Insurance" from St. Petersburg, Fla. on Thursday night at 9:30 through KDKA.

Billy Sunday, the famous evangelist, will be heard tonight at 11 o'clock through WLBW at Oil City and WABC, New York.

Inventory is on at the William Penn Hotel, but the $2,500 grand piano missing from the KayDee studios for several weeks has not been found.

"PRINCESS CHARMING"

HELEN CHARLESTON, known as "Princess Charming" on the vaudeville stage will be heard Tuesday night at 10:30 o'clock in the RKO Hour over Station WCAE.

Peter Biljo, Guest Artist

Lively melodious tunes of old and new Russia will form the high lights in the next presentation of "In a Russian Village" when that feature is broadcast over WJAS at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday evening. All of the color and atmosphere of a real Russian village will be portrayed by Peter Biljo and his group of native Russian musicians in this broadcast.

Guest artists on the program include the Villagers Quartet, Mme. Valia Valentinova, contralto, and Peter Biljo.

"Looking at the Sunset" is the composition which Mme. Valentinova has selected as her principly contribution to the program. This number tells of a young lover whose love continued until he died. On his deathbed he says his love shall live in song to reproach in its sorrow.

Besides the specialties by the contralto and the quartet, the balance of the program will be made up of selections by the Balalaika Ensemble under the baton of Peter Biljo.

Real Folks Seek Bostonian Purity

Not to be outdone by such centers of civic virtue as Boston, Thompkins Corners is going to start the year right by organizing a local Watch and Ward Society. The folks will meet at Matt's store to elect officers and decide on plans for carrying on the good work of the society when the Real Folks program is heard over KDKA Monday night at 9:30 o'clock. The Thompkins Corners Watch and Ward Society will censor all literature, establish a curfew law and in other ways safeguard the morals of the village.

Harold Van Duzee Choir Boy at Six

Harold Van Duzee, who began his musical career as a boy soprano in a Minneapolis church at the age of 6, will be the featured tenor soloist when Roxy and His Gang broadcast over KDKA Monday at 7:30 p. m.

Van Duzee's parents were church and concert singers and the elder Van Duzee was a personal friend of S. L. Rothafel. When Roxy opened the Lyceum Theater in Minneapolis he promised the youthful choir boy that "when we both grow up, you and I will work together."

Stars Presented In R. K. O. Program

Robert Ripley, of "Believe it or not" fame; Lita Grey Chaplin, vaudeville star, and Welcome Lewis, popular NBC contralto "crooner," will appear with other well-known artists and Leo Reisman and his orchestra in the R-K-O Hour to be heard over WCAE Tuesday night at 10:30 o'clock.

Drama of New York of 1894

The pitfalls and dangers of New York City in 1894 will be depicted in a dramatic presentation, "Dangers of a Great City," by Oliver North, forming the theme of the next Hank Simmons' Show Boat broadcast, to be heard over WJAS at 11 o'clock Wednesday night.

Diamond smugglers, thieves, gunplay and romance mingle freely in this thrilling "mellerdrammed," which will be entirely enacted in the New York studios of Columbia under the supervision of Harry C. Browne and Phil Maher.

Most of the action of the drama is laid in a prominent jewelry store on Manhattan Island early in 1894. Other scenes of exciting moments are Mother Thunder's lodging house on the Bowery, the thieves' den and the Panther's house.

Current Hits on Old Gold Program

A foxtrot medley from the current musical comedy, "Fifty Million Frenchmen," is featured in the Old Gold-Paul Whiteman hour to be broadcast over WJAS at 9 o'clock Tuesday evening. Other popular musical numbers to be heard during this program include "Flippity Flop," "I Miss You," "Turn on the Heat" and "Laughing Marionettes."

MRS. FLORENCE LEE, food expert of the Women's Radio Institute, will speak in a new series of household talks over KDKA Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

PRIMA DONNA HAS KENNEL OF DOGS

FRANCES ALDA has one other hobby in addition to music. She loves her country estate and her pets. Alda is to be starred in the Australian program over KDKA Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock. She will sing numbers rarely heard on the air.

Wile Goes to London Parley For Columbia

Radio's First Foreign Correspondent to Send Daily Reports of World Conference.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 4.—Frederic William Wile, noted Washington political analyst and broadcaster has been selected by the Columbia Broadcasting System to keep the American radio audience informed on the proceedings of the London Naval Conference called by President Hoover beginning January 21. The announcement was made today by William S. Paley, President of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

This marks the first time in the history of radio broadcasting that a special representative of any network has been sent abroad for the express purpose of reporting a conference of this nature for a listening audience.

Engineers have completed all arrangements for the trans-Atlantic short wave rebroadcasting circuits whereby Mr. Wile, speaking from his suite adjacent to the conference chambers in the English capital, will be enabled to send his voice directly into the homes of millions of American radio listeners from the Pacific to the Atlantic coasts, and from Hudson Bay to the Gulf of Mexico. The opening remarks of King George will also be heard here.

A special corps of engineers have been at work for several weeks installing the necessary apparatus. The voice of Mr. Wile will cross the Atlantic by means of radio waves, be received at several points on the American coast, and relayed by land wires to the control room of WABC, the key station of the Columbia broadcasting system, where it will be sent out on their network to sixty-five stations in this country and Canada. WJAS will be the Pittsburgh station.

The American delegation will sail for London January 9, aboard the S. S. "Olympic," and Frederic William Wile will accompany them, bearing the first credentials of a fully accredited radio broadcast correspondent.

'Puppy Love' Leads To Lover's Reunion

How a "puppy love" affair consummated a war-time romance will be told over WCAE in The Eternal Question drama, presenting humor and pathos in romance, Wednesday night at 7:45 o'clock. The story centers about a French actress whose sensational success has caused Broadway producers to bring her to America. Here her fame increases. A young American boy falls violently in love with her, but the actress treats him merely as a boy. His uncle, worried about the boy's condition, goes to the French woman in hope of breaking the boy's admiration. He also wants to return the nephew to the girl to whom he is affianced. The uncle and the beautiful French woman meet and the story fades into a dream of shell-torn France.

Intrepid Trio Save President's Life

Jimmy Otis, Rowley Rawson and Detective Sergeant McCarthy wade through plots and counter plots and succeed in saving the life of the president of the revolution-torn republic of Parador, in the episode of the Johnson & Johnson musical melodrama which will be heard over KDKA Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock.

Interesting revelations involving the city editor of Jimmy's newspaper mark the broadcast. Rawson has unusual luck in rediscovering the Spanish senorita, Raquel, who first interested the group in the revolution.

Anglo-Persians Visit Great Britain

The Whittall Anglo-Persians visit Ireland and England on their flight of fancy and music to be depicted over WCAE Monday night at 10 o'clock. The orchestra, directed by Louis Katzman, traces in a medley the evolution of the old English country dance into the latest jazz manifestation. The master weaver, spokesman for the travelers, will describe scenes of the Emerald Isle and historic towns of England.

"Waves" Here Too Crowded, Fans Complain

SEVERAL complaints about the wavelength situation in Pittsburgh have been received by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in the last few weeks, indicating that the Federal Radio Commission reallocation of last November is a failure. Why Pittsburgh, a sixth city and the pioneer in radio, does not receive better treatment from the Commission has long puzzled everyone. Wavelengths here are too crowded and something should be done. If you wish to aid the cause send a wire or a letter to the Federal Radio Commission, Washington, D. C.

'Cincinnati' by Mac, Lennie

"Mac and Lennie" and Walter Samuels, who have achieved success as popular song writers, will play and sing two of their recent compositions during the Kolster Radio hour, to be broadcast over WJAS at 10 o'clock Wednesday night. "I Gotta Have You" and "Cincinnati" will be offered by "Mac and Lennie," whose appearances in character have been outstanding on several well-known radio programs.

Another musical high light on the program is a medley from the semi-classical field—works by Carrie Jacobs Bond, including "I Love You Truly" and "At the End of a Perfect Day." Also to be included are a revival of the sprightly "Valencia," Victor Herbert's "Dance of the Toys;" "Charming," from the new Ramon Navarro picture; "Song of the Islands," a recent importation which is stirring the Hawaiian Islands, and "Rhythm Man," from Connies' "Hot Chocolates."

League of Nations In Retrospect

"Ten Years of the League of Nations" will be discussed over WCAE by James G. McDonald, president of the Foreign Policy Association, while analyzing dangers threatening the league, Monday evening at 7:15 o'clock.

"Ten years ago the League of Nations was born and today it is a vitally important means of carrying on international affairs with 54 member states," McDonald will say.

Mediterraneans Play Symphonic Jazz

Hugo Mariani and the Mediterraneans will interpret semi-classical selections in symphonic jazz arrangements in the program to be broadcast over KDKA Tuesday evening at 9:30 o'clock.

LOTS of laughs with Phil Cook, now heard daily except Sunday at 8 a. m. through KDKA.

Former Local Stars in Big Film Series

Benny Rubin, "Ukelele Ike," Featured from Hollywood, Started in Radio Here.

Joan Crawford and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.; Benny Rubin and Cliff (Ukelele Ike) Edwards will be heard over WABC and the Columbia Broadcasting System during the first "Voices from Filmland" program to be broadcast at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening. Bits from forthcoming talking pictures, songs and intimate chatter of the film world will be heard at this time, together with music by Earl Burtnett and his Biltmore Orchestra, the Biltmore Trio, and a special symphony orchestra. The program will originate at KHJ, the Columbia Broadcasting System station at Los Angeles, and in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio at Hollywood. WJAS will be the Pittsburgh station.

Edwards, who was born in Missouri, came to Pittsburgh and then moved to New York with his family, and shortly after drifted into the night club field with his ukelele. Night clubs led to the stage, and musical comedy lifted Edwards several notches up the scale, eventually landing him in pictures. While in Pittsburgh he was heard frequently from WJAS with Brian McDonald.

Starting in as a song and dance man in vaudeville, Rubin was drafted into burlesque and played eccentric comedy roles until called to do a short comedy picture in Los Angeles. In this field his knowledge of the types he had burlesqued brought him quick recognition, and following his work in Marion Davies' "Marianne" a long time contract for talking pictures was given him. For three months Rubin was m. c. at the Aldine Theater here and broadcast many times over WJAS

Miss Crawford entered pictures directly from the musical comedy stage, and in a short time had climbed to stellar roles. Her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., went into pictures as "his father's son," finding out after contracts for his appearance had been signed that he was to be starred on the strength of his father's reputation. Since that first picture, however, young Fairbanks has won himself an enviable place by his own efforts.

Foamers Feature Chauncey Parsons

"My Rosary for You," by Ball; Cowan's "Web of Love," and Victor Herbert's "Neapolitan Love Song," three solos by Chauncey Parsons, tenor, sustain a more serious note in the program of light popular numbers and comedy presentations which the Yeast Foamers will broadcast over KDKA Wednesday night, at 8 o'clock.

The Owen brothers, vocal duo, will present "Singin' in the Bathtub" and "My Wife is 100 per cent Talkie" as their light-hearted contributions, and Harry Kogen and his orchestra will offer a group of the latest popular successes.

Empire Builders Honor Settlers

The story of the exploits of Joseph Chapman, the first Yankee pioneer to settle in California in 1818, will be heard in a dramatic sketch when the Empire Builders broadcast over KDKA Monday at 10:30 p. m.

Chapman ingratiated himself with the natives and the hostile Spanish settlers when he successfully constructed a grist mill and ship. Romance as well as adventure came to this roving spirit when he wooed and wed a Spanish senorita named Guadaloupe.

'Second Symphony' On Slumber Music

A graceful suite from Andre Messager's fairy operetta, "Isoline," and the "Larghetto" from Beethoven's seldom-heard "Second Symphony" mark the program of Slumber Music which Ludwig Laurier and a string ensemble will broadcast over KDKA Tuesday evening at 11 o'clock.

DOUG'S WIFE TO SPEAK

JOAN CRAWFORD, who in private life is Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., will be heard from Hollywood Monday night at 7:30 in "Voices from Filmland" series over WJAS.

Joe, Vi Try Week Ending

The wonderful results to be derived from a week-end at a quiet country retreat will be detailed in the program of Graybar's Mr. and Mrs., to be broadcast over WJAS at 10 o'clock Tuesday night.

Joe having worked himself to a point of exhaustion, the invitation from two wealthy friends to spend a week-end at their "little country home" is more than welcome, and with his faithful spouse, Joe sets out to knit up the raveled sleeve of care. The restful time Joe had envisioned for himself quickly disappears before the onslaught of a roustering party of fresh air fiends, and much against his will the exhausted business man is forced to lead a hare and hounds chase over the snow-covered hills.

Having discarded his snow shoes and made the best of time back to the fireplace, Joe has just relaxed again when the restless horde is upon him once more, this time determined to include him in a skating party. Joe's deliberate immersion in the ice water of the pond does obtain a temporary respite, but his host's solicitude again interferes, and Joe is carted away, via ambulance, to the hospital.

ELSIE BAKER, contralto, is the featured star of "Golden Gems," WJZ network every Tuesday night at 10:30.

Henry, George In Finance

High finance, large sums of money, statistics and figures in general will predominate in the Henry-George program to be heard over WJAS at 8 o'clock Monday evening.

When the two bell hops whose names title the program on which they appear are caught by the microphone in their pursuit of the drama, they will be presenting five "black outs" whose underlying themes have to do with money and finance.

Two penniless gentlemen who become, for a moment, millionaires; the business of conducting a raffle, with all of the bickering which accompanies such a proceeding; a young man seemingly stricken with an incurable malady; a lawyer engaged at a high salary to defend a murderer, and a scene in war-time France, all provide opportunity for the two budding playwrights, and for the musical background provided by their friend and ally, Pete, the orchestra leader.

Widow Biddle Uses Shotgun on Louie

Although Louie's stupidity in obtaining a hunting instead of a marriage license saved Gus from escorting the Widow Biddle to the altar, the determined lady makes use of her permit by obtaining a shotgun which causes some excitement in the Schradertown Band's broadcast over WCAE Friday night, at 9:30 o'clock.

Needless to add, she uses it on Gus to help him change his mind about matrimony. Only Gus' keen insight into the workings of the feminine mind postpones the fatal day. He reminds her that a "shotgun wedding" would eliminate the possibility of obtaining presents.

'Shepherd's Hey' on Halsey, Stuart Hour

Percy Grainger's "Shepherd's Hey" reflects the spirit of a program composed largely of operatic excerpts which the Chicago Little Symphony Orchestra, directed by George Dasch, will broadcast over WCAE during the Halsey, Stuart program, Wednesday night, at 9 o'clock.

The "Old Counsellor," financial authority, will show in his weekly talk how essential it is to financial well-being that a periodic analysis should be made of one's investments.

'The Midshipmate' by Seiberling Singers

An aria from Gounod's "Faust" sung by James Melton, tenor, and Wilfred Glenn's bass solo interpretation of "The Midshipmate" represent highlights of the entertainment which the Seiberling Singers, directed by Frank Black, pianist, will present over WCAE Thursday night at 9 o'clock.

Just arrived! This wonderful new Philco creation! More radio for less money than has ever been possible before! This great 7-tube Screen Grid Radio Receiver in a rich, handsome console cabinet, equipped with genuine Electro-Dynamic Speaker and Acoustic Equalizers, sells for only $112.00. The tubes are extra.

This new Philco has such powers of performance that it will amaze and certainly delight you. Everything you want—beauty of tone, sharp selectivity, vast distance range, ease of operation and rare beauty.

1. That Wonderful Philco Tone—Clear, pure, rich at any volume; a tone exclusively "Philco" because of exactly balanced electrical units.
2. Enthralling Distance Ability—Instead of using a 227-tube as the detector, as in ordinary sets, this new Philco uses a screen grid tube, thereby doubling amplification. It brings in fascinating new stations you have never heard.
3. Selectivity Extraordinary—Crowded local stations mean nothing to the owner of this new Philco because of the new double-tuned input circuit and armored four-gang condenser. Select almost any station you want, with super-acute fidelity, and over the entire dial.
4. More Daylight Programs; More Evening Programs—As a result of its great amplification, a whole new field of radio entertainment, instruction, inspiration and amusement is opened up for you.
5. Beauty of Cabinet—This Compact New Console Model is a piece of furniture to grace the finest homes, yet how modest in price! Note the beauty of line. Panelled in handsome butt walnut and bird's-eye maple.

Blood Cell
Means Heritage for the World
Protein Serums— What Is More Valuable?

"Heritage, My Son—Is the Greatest Word in Our Language"

ALL human development is dependent upon the health of the people. All future remedies will be to build up and increase the blood cell. Health is wealth. Pure blood is the first requisite to perfect health. We all know that the blood is the life; it contains the essential nutritive elements, organic and mineral, required for the maintenance of function and structure. Both organic and mineral constituents are derived from the food eaten from day to day, and most all chronic ailments as well as susceptibility to acute infections can be traced directly to a deficiency in the dietary. This is well illustrated in rickets, scurvy and multiple neuritis, and probably the same is true of cancer and tuberculosis. It is also a well-known fact that unsuitable food leads to debility, hence many persons suffer from debility, due to bad digestion, and yet have food in abundance. They are victims of impaired digestive capacity and bacterial infection, persistent and self perpetuating.

Why Drug the Stomach When Your Blood Cells Control High Blood Pressure and Most All Chronic Diseases?

The blood stream is merely the medium through which these energies float and carry on their duties. If the stream is thick and slovenly, if engorged, swollen, contracted or tortuous, is not the function hampered or arrested as the case may be? A clot in the brain—apoplexy. If a stoppage in the lungs or limbs—dropsy. If in the brain—paralysis. If in the heart—sudden death. If too much blood—vertigo, insomnia. Repeated colds, low vitality, due to faulty blood. The germs themselves are harmless, but the toxins formed by them produce the poisoning. If an infection takes place, what suffers? The blood. In fever, where is temperature the highest? In the blood. In malaria, where is the germ? In the blood. In diphtheria, smallpox, rheumatism, gout—nearly all infections find their seat in the blood stream. Don't you believe it is time to give some special thought to these basic facts and eliminate this stomach drugging, which you know is wrong, neglecting the one only sure and effective avenue of medication—the blood stream?

Lack of Protein Hinders Cells' Work

Chemical analysis and physiological investigation establishes the living principle in the protoplasmic cell — the physical unit in both animal and plant life. When the body cells undergo degenerative changes in Bright's Disease, arteriosclerosis and in all chronic diseases, we find distinct and demonstrable evidence of impairment in nutrition.

KDKA—Booth Tarkington's "Penrod."

Woodshed Party.

The first episode presents the imaginative complications which follow when Penrod and his comrade in deviltry, Sam, witness a motion picture, "The Drunkard's Progress." Because the drunkard beat his wife and child, Penrod immediately concludes that his Aunt Clara and Cousin Clara, visiting the Schofields, are also the victims of a drunken father. His worry over such a state of affairs in his own family, he tells his school teacher, explains his day dreaming at the blackboard.

The school teacher's sympathy for Aunt Clara arouses Mother Schofield's suspicions and the resulting explanations lead to a woodshed party for the worried scholar.

KDKA—Gainaday Light Opera.

"Chocolate Soldier."

The scene of the opera is laid in the Dragoman Pass, Bulgaria in 1885. Servia and Bulgaria are at war. The family of Col. Popoff, of the Bulgarian army, consisting of the daughter, Nadina, her cousin, Mascha, and the mother, Aurelia, ensconced in their home, fearful of the approaching engagement between the conflicting armies. Nadina, a romantic maiden, is in love with Alexius, a young Bulgarian who has become a hero amongst his countrymen for his brilliant cavalry charge against the Servians. This young officer is idealized by Nadina, and she is filled with complete admiration for his conquests.

Lieut. Bumerli, a young Swiss officer, attached to the commissary department of the Servian forces, is attacked by the patrol whom he eludes by climbing into Nadina's boudoir. His suave manners, compelling arguments and quick wit under his difficulties force Nadina to conceal him, against her will, and he is saved by the three women who greatly admire his youthful mien and carriage. Later Bumerli, who has engaged in this flirtation with Nadina to save his life, falls in love with her and she, almost against her will, yields her affections to the business-like, scientific Swiss soldier, who shows the half-savage Bulgarians what training and education accomplish against their bombast and mock heroics.

The sentiment of "The Chocolate Soldier" is evolved by the love affairs of Bumerli and Nadina, Mascha and Alexius. The comedy situations are furnished by the episode of Col. Popoff's house coat, which is delivered to Bumerli in order to make his escape; its return, and the fact that the photographs of the three women are hidden in the coat, make unusually funny scenes when the participants are thrown together during the succeeding scenes and situations.

Census of Sets in Homes Vital to Radio Industry

Speaking for the radio division of the National Electrical Manufacturing Association, Louis B. F. Raycroft, vice president, stated that the addition of the radio set ownership question in the 1930 census would be instrumental in benefiting the entire industry through the disclosure of such vital statistics as the number of homes having sets in use, the size of the radio audience and its distribution.

When Congress recently refused to include this question among those listed in the census most leaders of the radio industry were greatly discouraged and many considered the matter closed. However, subsequently, the advisory committee of the Census Bureau recommended the radio set question and in that way it has become part of the census.

The important contribution of these figures will be to give an accurate index to the distribution of the radio audience in every part of the country and thereby substantiate the value of commercial broadcasting and establish the economic foundation of the public's program service on a still firmer foundation. It will also assist in equalizing the distribution of radio receivers according to population needs.

TREATMENT FOR DEAFNESS, HEAD NOISES AND CATARRH SENT FREE!

Offensive Catarrhal Conditions Relieved By Home Remedy!

Successful Home Treatment Originated by Dr. W. O. Coffee Assures Quick Relief for Nasal Catarrh.

Free Trial Treatment Sent to All Sufferers

This is a generous offer. An offer of a special, carefully prepared and tested home treatment for catarrh of the nose, throat, head and air passages absolutely free. No strings to it in any way—it is open to everyone—to every catarrh sufferer in the entire United States. Every sufferer, everywhere, who reads this announcement, should unhesitatingly accept it.

There are sure to be thousands of these treatments given away. The more the better; because it is certain that all who make this free test will prove to their satisfaction the worth of Dr. Coffee's treatment, that—Every self-treatment will make a permanent booster.

For no matter how much you are told about this way of combating catarrhal conditions, or of the thousands who have been given relief by its use—a real test—a chance to actually try it and its reactions—in your particular case is better than all explanations.

This treatment for catarrh—for relief from that condition—relieves and forestalls many feared and distressing situations. A real test is better even than the real testimonials from those who have been given relief. And when the gift-treatment has been tried, you will wonder why this splendid treatment was never called to your attention before.

Dr. Coffee won success as a catarrh and deafness specialist. He, too, suffered with catarrh, deafness and head noises and many of its complications. Innumerable treatments failed to better his condition.

Is This Your Condition?

He experimented until he found a way that gave him real and actual relief in a permanent way. Following this, he treated thousands of sufferers in the same manner. Many have written, after completing the treatment, expressing thanks for their recovery; for their absolute relief from colds, nose and throat discharges; from poisoned systems, foul breath, bronchial affections and even rheumatism and intestinal troubles. All due, as they say, to their catarrhal condition.

Catarrh Is a Handicap

Dirt and dust, from contaminated sections are deposited in the nose and throat with every breath. Much of it finds its way into the mouth, for nasal catarrh causes the disgusting, offensive mouth breathing. The impurities in this filth-laden air are deposited in the catarrhal fluid—the mucus. Soon it finds its way into the body—and it is a strong constitution indeed that can withstand the disease, once it is started.

Thousands Recommend Dr. Coffee's Treatment

Don't miss this chance to make the acquaintance of this logical and purely medical catarrh treatment. A treatment, the worth of which is attested by so many who have written of their relief.

Slowly and carefully it was developed—until at last, after many thorough, painstaking tests, Dr. Coffee was convinced that he had the best treatment, the most effective course he had ever found. Its success in the past proves that it accomplishes its purpose. And it is free on trial to you. Just send the coupon.

Deaf Since Childhood; Hearing Greatly Benefited This Way

Chronic and Acute Deafness Ends

Mrs. Mona McBride, of Illinois, says: "This is to certify that since having scarlet fever when a little girl, I have been hard of hearing, and for the past four or five years I have been almost entirely deaf. A few months ago my left ear began to discharge. I found it to be abscessed and discharging a foul fluid. Nothing seemed to stop it and finally I tried Dr. Coffee's treatment. To my surprise and delight the hearing in the ear, which was partially deaf for nearly 20 years has returned and the abscess has healed. Now I can hear a conversation six feet away. I didn't believe it possible, and I certainly advise anyone suffering with deafness to try this treatment. I obtained relief in a short time."

Treated Successfully at 80 Yrs.

"I used the medicine you sent me and have been completely cured. I am 80 years of age and you can use my name and this letter as you see fit, but I am very thankful for your help and I think Dr. Coffee's treatment is great."
Calvin Gibston, Okla.

"DON'T YOU THINK AN OLD LADY LIKE ME WOULD BE HAPPY TO BE RELIEVED OF HER DEAFNESS AND CATARRH?"

Saved From Deafness and Catarrh by Home Treatment!

Literally thousands of people from different sections of the United States have used this special, original home treatment. Not only have many found relief from distressing head noises, but restoration of good or normal hearing as well.

Wonderfully Improved

"I received your treatment for catarrhal deafness and in just three days after I had used it, my hearing began to improve. And now I am wonderfully improved."
Yours very truly,
D. H. Carpenter,
Alabama

Please accept my sincere thanks for the successful treatment of my hearing. After being nearly deaf in both ears I have attained my good hearing once more.
Sorry not to have acknowledged before and wish to say I am grateful to you for the wonderful results.
Mrs. O. Lunden,
Per E. Lunden.

Head Noises Gone

I was remarkably benefited by your treatments. I have been troubled for years with violent head noises and finally a friend advised me to try your method; he sent for the treatment himself. I noticed improvement at once, and now I am well."
Mr. C. McGinnes,
Pennsylvania.

I am writing this letter in reply to the one that I received from you. Your treatment has certainly done wonders for me. I can't find words to express my thanks. I will recommend your treatment wherever I go. If you wish to publish this letter you have my permission to do so.
Yours truly,
Mamie A. Chapman.

"I had been suffering with catarrh for seven years and tried a great many remedies, but did not find anything that helped me until I got hold of Dr. Coffee's. Can say after taking the treatment I noticed a change for the better inside of a week. I will recommend your treatment to anyone who has catarrh."
P. A. P., Monte Vista, Colo.

Deafness Due to Catarrh Of The Air Passages

Authorities Blame Ear Tubal Catarrh for a Large Per Cent of Deafness Throughout the World.

Free Trial to All Sufferers

According to authorities who base their assertions on years of research and actual medical observation and practice, a very large percentage of the deafness in the world today is due to catarrh—ear tubal catarrh.

Not only is ear tubal catarrh, which is really a devolopment of nasal catarrh, blamed for deafness, but at its door are laid many other diseases, such as stomach catarrh, poisoned conditions of the body, and a generally diseased condition.

This May Be Relieved

This condition may be relieved. Dr. W. O. Coffee, a specialist in the Middle West for many years, developed a home treatment for deafness, head noises from ear tubal catarrh, and catarrh itself. Through this method, it is possible to remedy the catarrhal condition in many cases and make hearing practically normal once more. It has been proved that in many cases this is true.

Great Success

Phenomenal success has attended the Dr. Coffee home treatment. More than 500,000 cases of deafness, head noises due to ear tubal catarrh and ordinary nasal catarrh have used this method in all sections of the country and out of this number a huge number have reported complete satisfaction.

Most of these sufferers have been people whose hearing was bad in one ear and was rapidly getting bad in the other. With every cold, the hearing grew worse. This condition was relieved for many; relieved not only for the time, but the catarrhal condition was bettered and in many cases all traces of the disease disappeared.

Deafness strikes at all—old and young—and Dr. Coffee's home treatment has been used by people of all ages. By this method many who were apparently destined to go through life with the handicap of impaired hearing were made normal once more.

Improvement General

Physicians state, authoritatively, too, that in these cases doubtless other diseased conditions were combated and relieved by the defeat of catarrh; for it no longer poured its daily portion of poison into the human system and the body was no longer required to use a great portion of its strength in throwing off this poison. As a result it was better able to combat new disease and the general physical condition was bettered in addition to the relief given for deafness.

Dr. Coffee's Home Treatment for Deafness has been used by over 500,000 persons. It should benefit you likewise, provided you are not totally deaf from disease of any kind, or from shock, or from any cause where the hearing apparatus has been broken down.

Ear Tubal Deafness Successfully Treated By Simple Home Method

Trial Treatments Given Free to Sufferers From Deafness, Head Noises and Catarrhal Conditions

Dr. W. O. Coffee, for many years an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist in the Middle West, developed a treatment for deafness and dullness of hearing from ear tubal catarrh and for catarrh itself which has resulted in the restoration of hearing for so many.

Basing his treatment on the fact that in a very large percentage of the cases, loss of hearing is due to a catarrhal condition, Dr. Coffee by concentrating his efforts in that field proved that restoration of hearing is not a myth. Thousands of people from all sections of the United States have taken this original home treatment and have been benefited. Letters from hundreds of these people attesting to the effectiveness of this method are on file here.

Dr. Coffee never claimed that his original treatment would restore hearing to all cases of deafness, but he said if the deafness or head noises are caused from a catarrhal condition and the tissues of the middle ear are not damaged, the hearing should be restored to real good or normal. Basing his experiments in his office on this practical relief of these conditions, he positively demonstrated that the restoration of hearing to many severe cases is an easy, practical thing for the sufferer to accomplish for himself at home.

Tells of Development

Years ago the late Dr. Coffee himself began to suffer with head noises, dullness of hearing and catarrh. He was rapidly losing his hearing. It was bad in one ear and with every cold it would get bad in the other. Slowly but surely the hearing appeared to be leaving him. He naturally tried every treatment that he knew of, as deafness in his profession would have been fatal to his success. After a great loss of time and when two operations had failed to give permanent relief he calmed his fears and began to analyze the cause and effect of the trouble.

Basing his treatment on the results of this study he evolved a system which he believed would remove the handicap of deafness if anything would. There was nothing magical about it. It was a logical scientific treatment and after a short time he began to improve. After some time, he was practically normal again.

Treatment Sent to Thousands

Acquaintances and friends of the doctor's inquired as to the treatment and soon he was overwhelmed with requests for the method. To treat this number of people in time alloted to office hours would have been impossible; and so he started to develop a home treatment. After careful consideration he effected a course which he believed to be effective. He allowed a number to try it at home, without the assistance of a physician, and found that they could do the work with almost the efficiency and the good results that a doctor could.

Explains Free Offer

To prove that this treatment is effective—that deafness, dullness of hearing and head noises from ear tubal catarrh, and nasal catarrh can be treated and relieved at home, free trial home treatments will be sent to sufferers on request. These announcements are being made in newspapers throughout the entire country and you are urged to send for free treatment now before offer is withdrawn.

Those who are suffering with deafness, dullness of hearing or head noises from ear tubal catarrh, may try free, and to them whatever, this original treatment. Even the parcel post charges are prepaid and treatment arrives at the home of the deafness sufferer free of all cost or obligations.

It Is Sent Free

So send the coupon in today. If you are a sufferer from deafness or head noises from ear tubal catarrh or simply nasal catarrh, which may cause you to become deaf, you will receive a free treatment for this distressing condition. Do this now—while the offer lasts. Send the coupon.

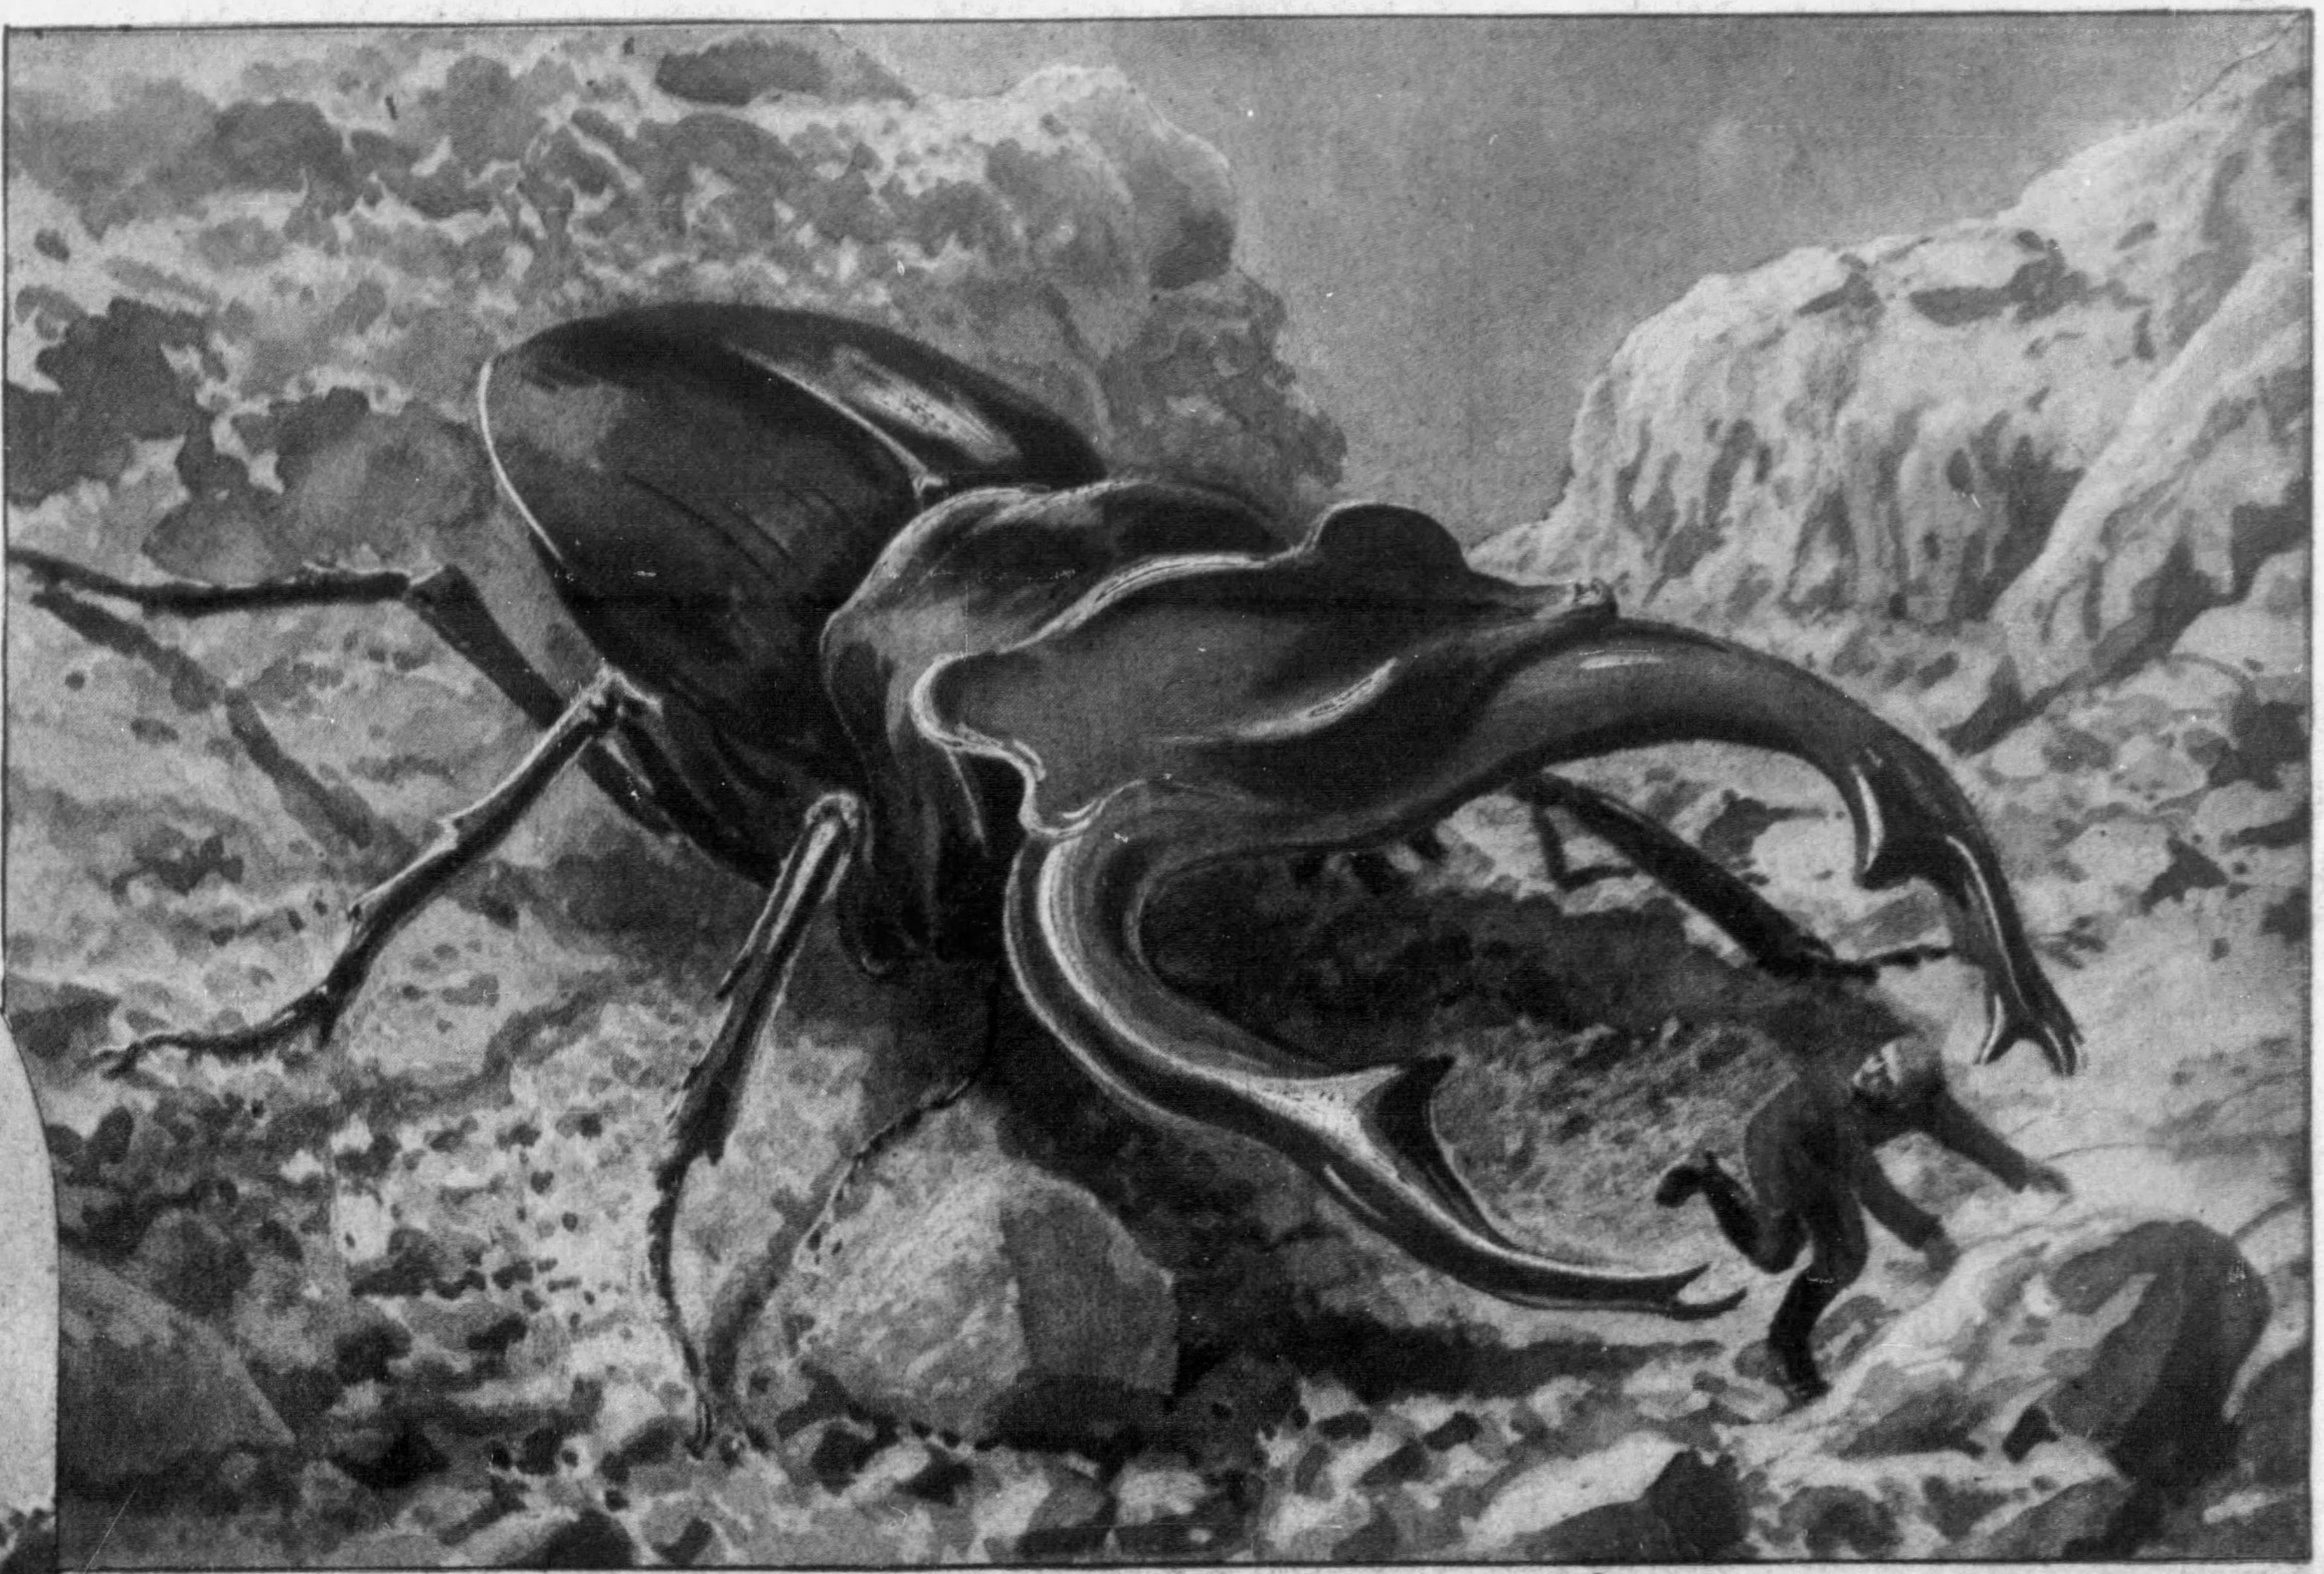
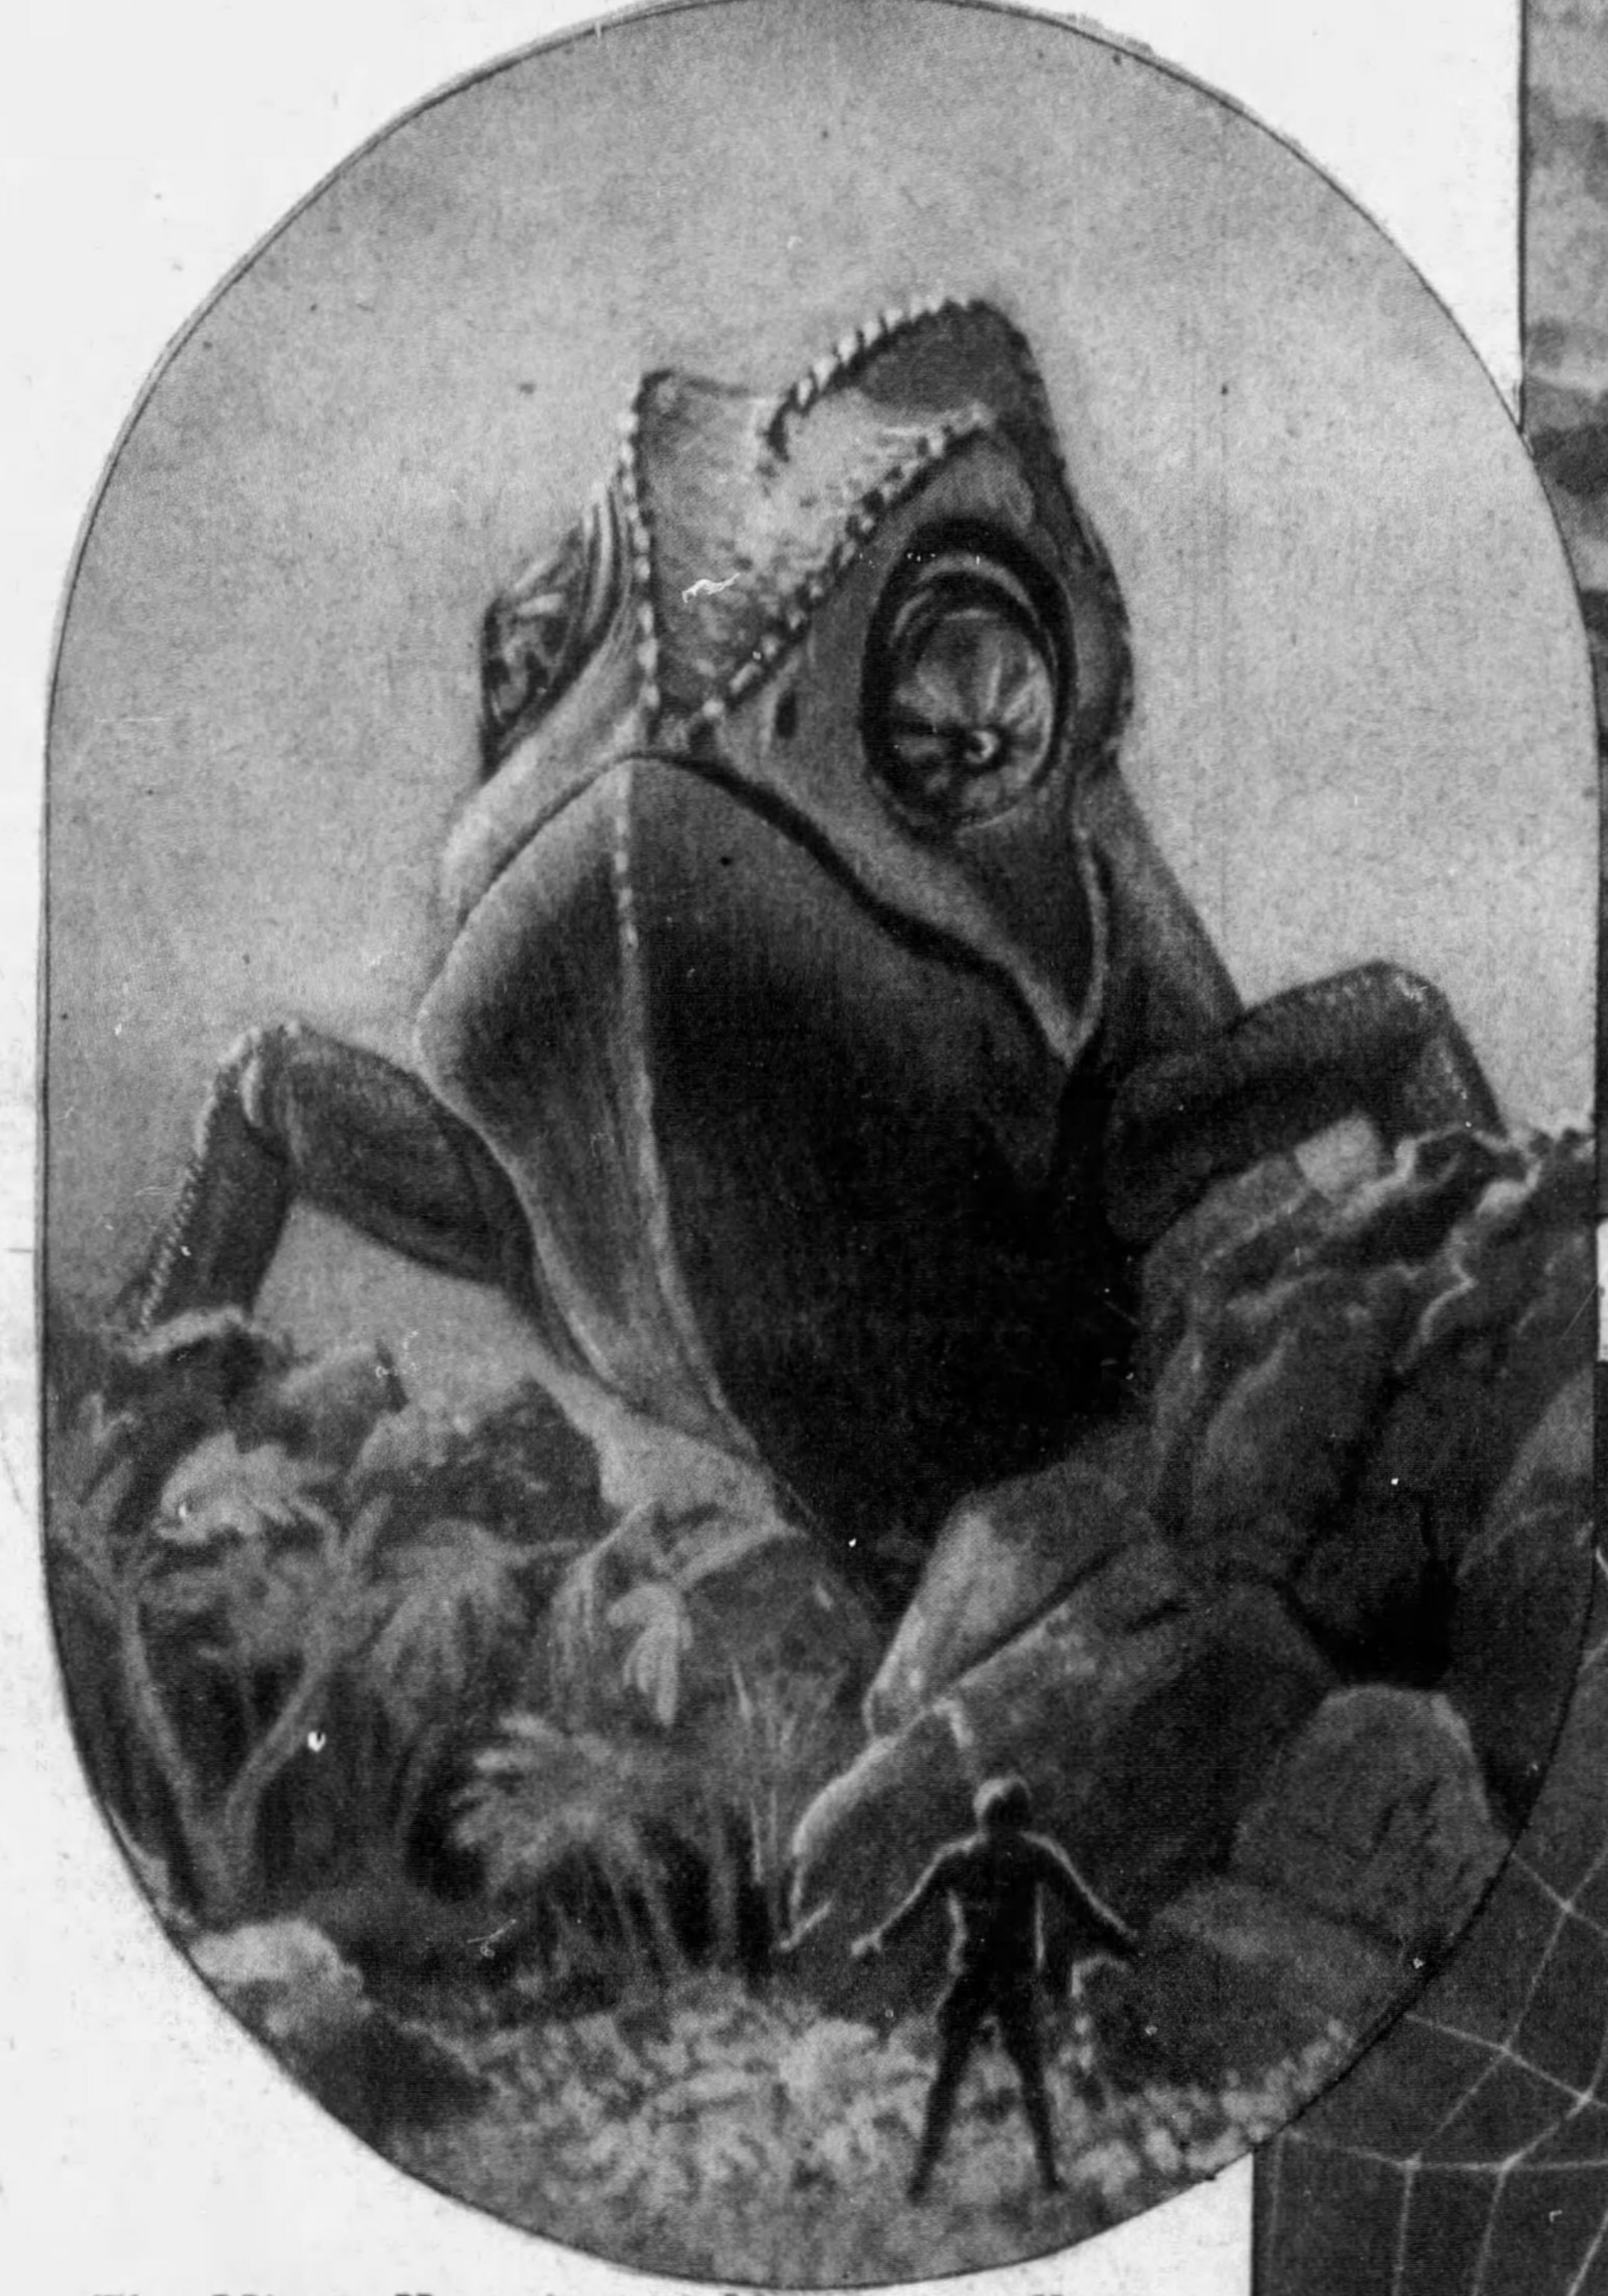
How The World Would Look If We Were Built Differently

Unsuspected Marvels of the Universe Would Be Unfolded If Our Eyes, Ears, Nose and Brain Were Improved or the Laws of Nature Somewhat Changed



This Picture Shows the Dangers That Would Have Menaced Man if the Insects Had Developed at the Same Rate as Some Other Species of Animals—a Development That Was Fortunately Moderated by Certain Laws of Nature.



The Minute Hypothetical Man Shown Here When He Finds Himself in the Presence of a Common Chameleon of the Ordinary Size Is in an Alarming Position. An Ordinary Man Would Find Himself in a Similar Position if the Enormous Reptiles Which Occupied the Earth in the Secondary Geological Period Had Continued to Exist to the Present Time.

By Prof. Rene Thevenin,
The Distinguished French Scientist.

CHAPTER VI.

THE illustrations which accompany this article are not simply amusing fantasies, but accurate representations of natural objects, with their ordinary proportions to one another changed.

Without doubt man never found himself even in the earliest period of his history in the presence of enemies as terrible as those which are shown here. But some of these monsters are quite possible, for creatures as large as they are in proportion to man, lived on the globe before the human period, and there is nothing absolutely impossible in the supposition that they may live again. They swarm around us as little insects, and, although there may be reasons why they cannot attain the size which is allotted to them here, they are, nevertheless, dangerous enemies for man, even when of their present-day size, and a very slight change of environment and living conditions upon this planet might make them so terrible for us that they would triumph over all our defenses; and then our mighty science, our industry and the triumphs of our intelligence would not be sufficient to protect us against them if they felt a desire to destroy us.

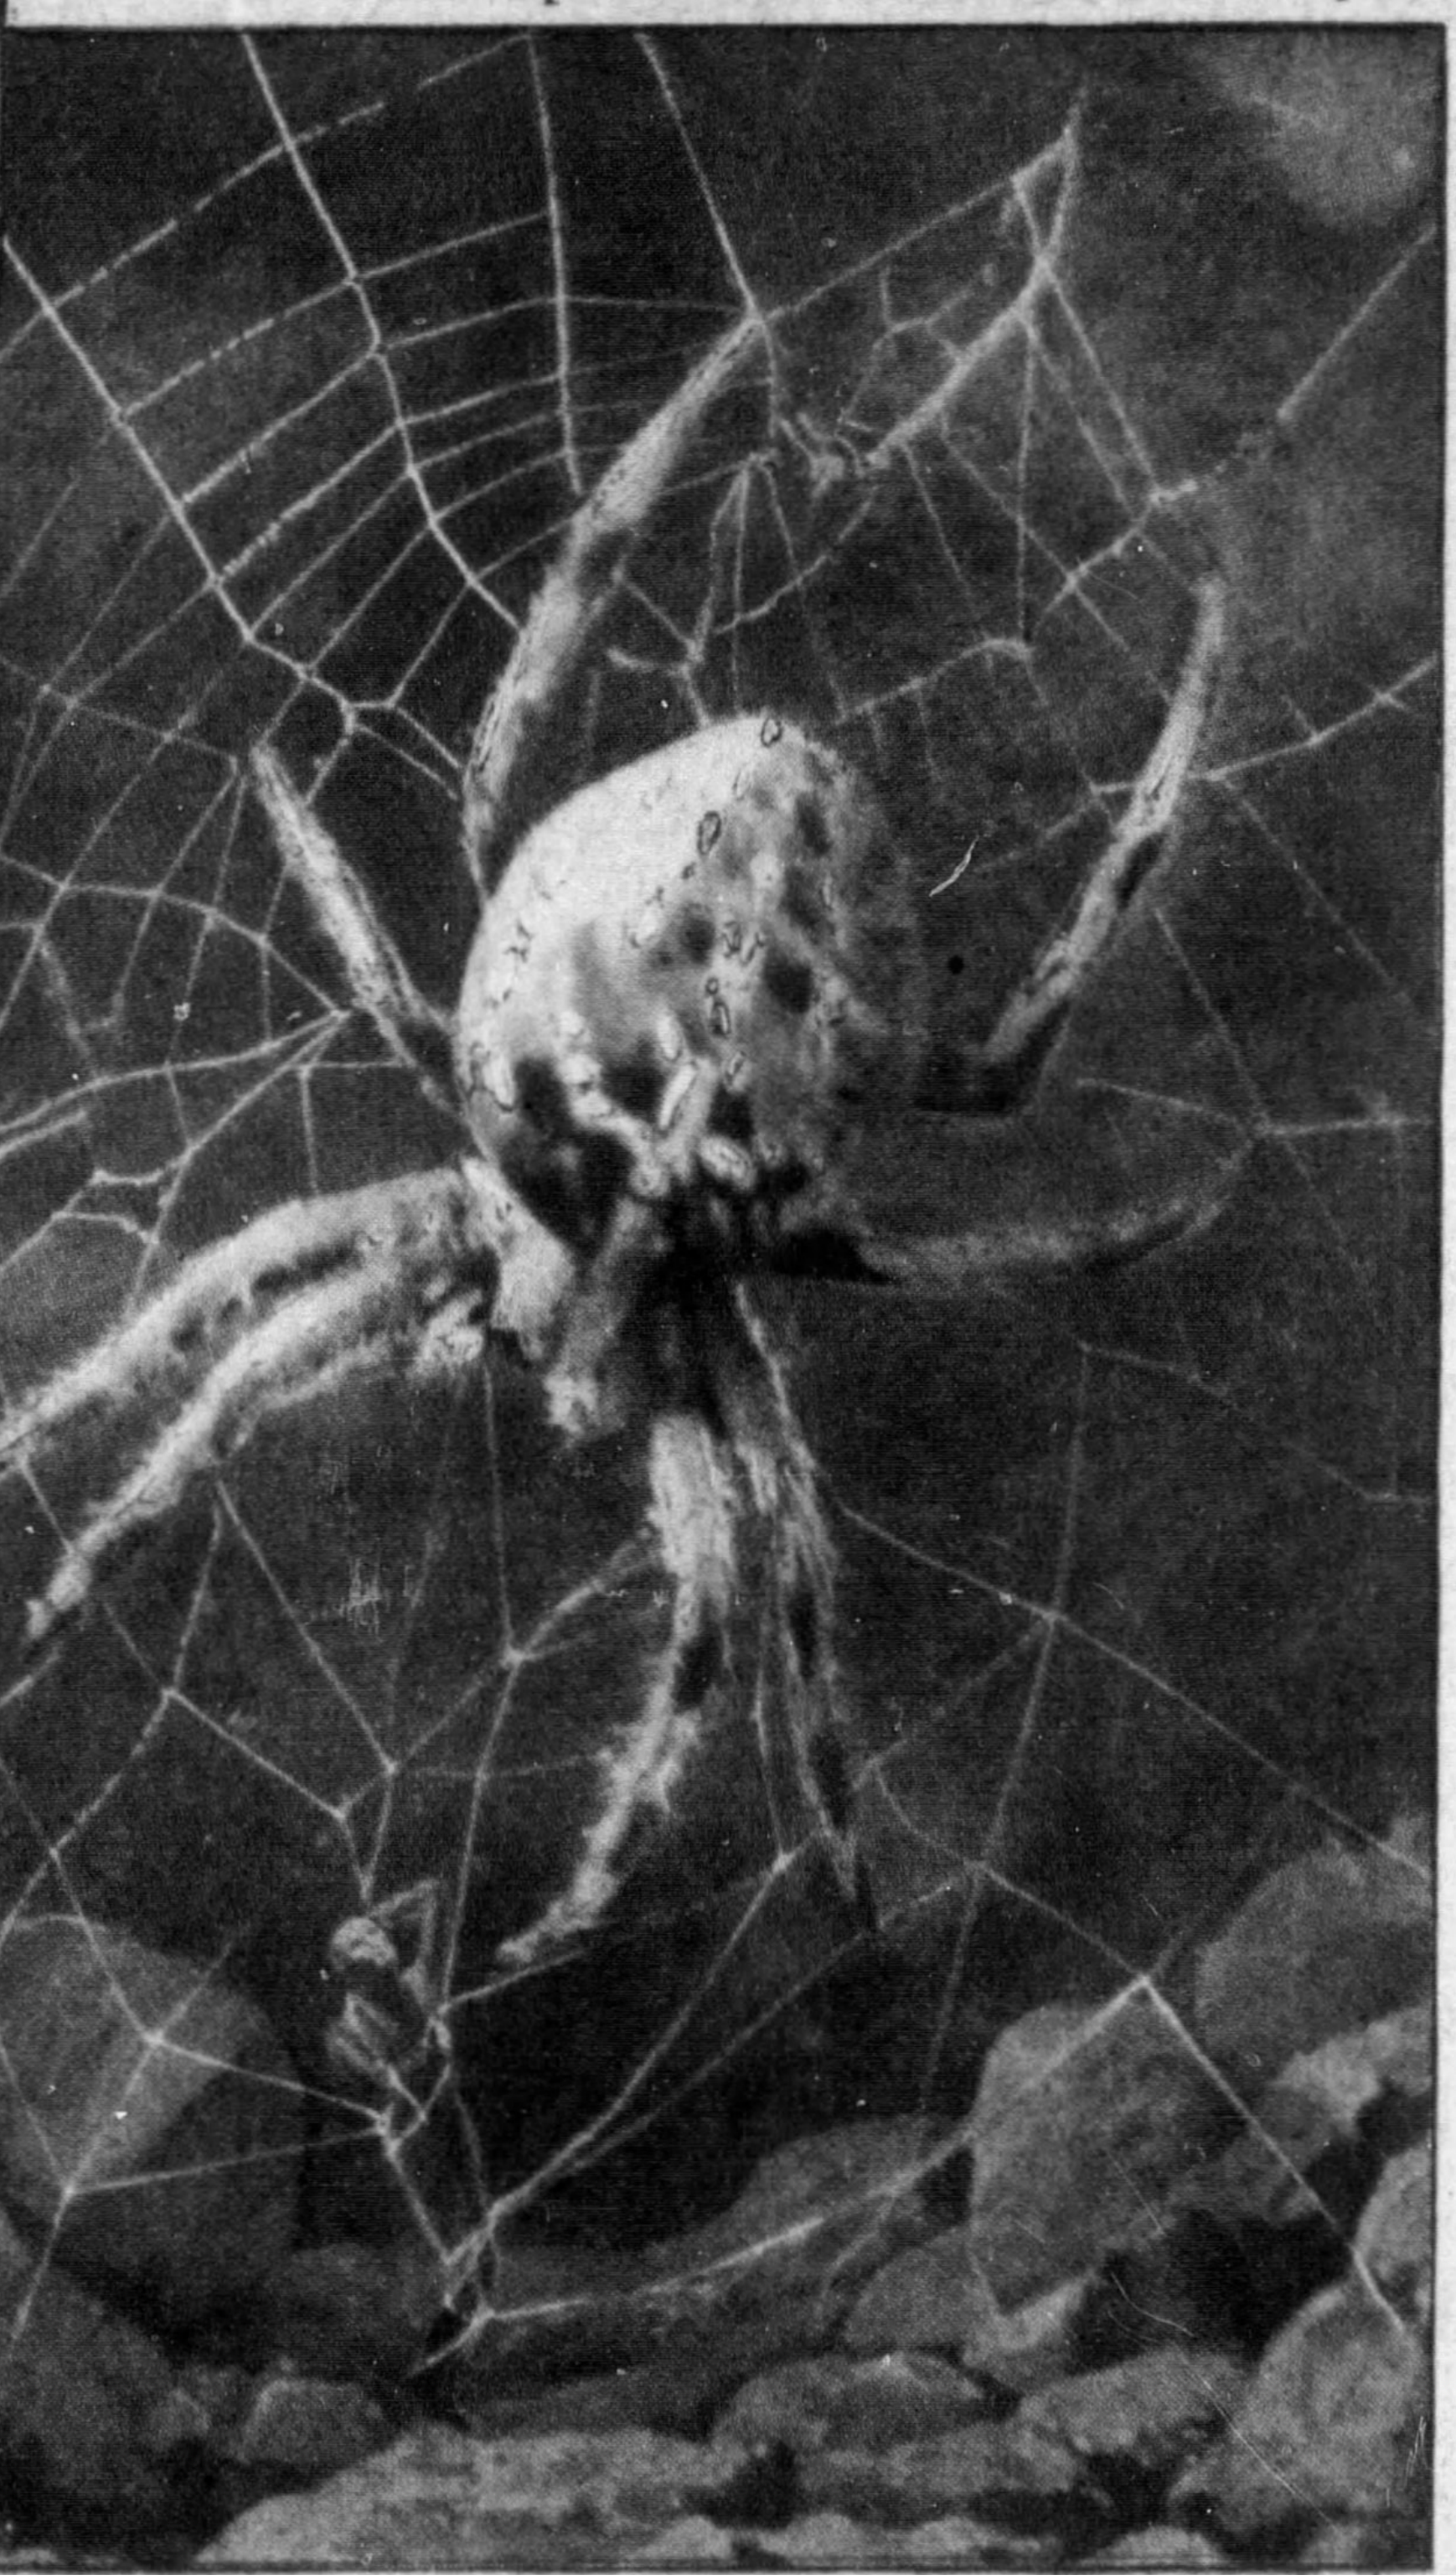
These alarming statements call for some explanation. To give them a less abstract character, the reader must suppose once more that he is in the company of the tiny man, whom he left in the middle of a garden in a previous article, and must observe under new circumstances the sensations which the midget is experiencing in this world where he has wandered, a world which is the same as that we are now living in, but which has become terrible and uninhabitable for him, simply because he has grown smaller.

The little man continues to wander through the blades of grass on a lawn, which appears to him an immense forest. While he struggles on, he makes startling observations.

It may be remembered that when the reader last left him he was comparing the little plants through which he was pushing his way to the great plants as large as trees which flourished in the secondary epoch of the world's existence millions of years ago. The conviction that he has returned to that distant period takes hold of his mind as he is stopped by a terrifying spectacle.

A fearful monster rises suddenly before him from the jungle. The figure of the animal is gigantic compared to his own, for it attains the size of ten inches. It is really only a little chameleon out in search of food. It might be a lizard or a toad of the same size, and the effect would be just as startling to him. The little man is terrified at the sight and cries out:

"I have made no mistake. The world has stepped back millions of centuries. Here is one of those fearful dinosaurs which lived in the Jurassic period and which are supposed to have become extinct ages before man made his appearance. What is to become of the human race if these creatures are going to breed again?"



The Spiders Are the Most Terrible and Ingenious Enemies to Their Captives Ever Known Among Created Beings. Their Web Is a Perfectly Armed Trap. It Has a Double System of Wires, Some of Which Are Dry and Act as Telegraph Lines and Warn the Spider That a Victim Has Been Caught, While the Others Are Sticky and Paralyze the Movements of the Captive. There Is No Chance for Him to Escape from a Cruel Death.

Since the little man asks this question, the writer will try to answer it. The survival of dinosaurs would not be so surprising as it appears at first sight. In fact, if certain changes of climate and environment had not taken place those strange giant animals—the Atlantosaurs, the Diplodocus, etc.—whose fossil skeletons are found today and are sometimes more than a hundred feet long, would have been able to go on living just as several species of strange fish and invertebrate animals older than they have continued to live. They would have gone on living on the earth up to and past the time that the higher mammals and man made their appearance.

What should we have been able to do against these monsters? Although they appear very terrible, it is possible that they would not have injured us very much in our development, and that, in spite of their enormous proportions, they would not have been very dangerous enemies. That is because we brought into the world, when our race was created, the very weapons which are most conspicuously lacking in these creatures, the absence of which, in fact, caused their extinction. The weapons which were used by the earliest mammals against the giant reptiles were the development of brain activity and the power of rapid adaptation to changes of environment and living conditions. The great dinosaurs were powerfully equipped to protect themselves against living enemies with their thick shells, their shields and their armor of horn and scales, but they were poorly armed from the offensive point of view, and were quite incapable of changing their habits when the least change occurred in their environment.

They would have been infinitely less dangerous for us than creatures much less terrifying in appearance, which immediately followed them in the development of life, and which were contemporaries of man, such as those carnivorous mammals, the great cave bear, the tiger, the lion, the wolf, etc. These animals were much better armed than man, and he would have been an easy prey to them, and probably have been quickly wiped out of existence in spite of his wooden clubs and his stone axes, if at the very beginning of his evolution he had not won the mastery of the world by the greatest and most unique invention that was ever made, the invention from which all subsequent discoveries resulted—the invention of fire.

Unfortunately for the hypothetical little man, this supreme resource is no help to him, for as has been previously explained, the reduced size of his body makes him incapable of starting a fire. Therefore, he is in great peril from the chameleon. But this peril is nothing compared to those he is going to encounter in a little while.

There is upon the earth a large class of animals usually considered far below the warm-blooded creatures which, although derived originally from the same ancestor as other species of animals, have developed prodigiously in a diametrically opposite direction from the others. By following different methods they have attained powers of action and organization to which those of the human race among all animal species alone can be compared.

It is probable that if conditions very early in the history of the world had not checked the expansion of these creatures, they would have conquered the earth, and would have annihilated man, as they are much more powerfully armed than he is, even if we assume him to possess modern weapons. One little error alone made by these creatures at the beginning of their evolution in their method of building up their bodies saved man from destruction; without it we should have been destroyed.

It is known that in a certain period in the geological history of the earth the development of intelligence was placed in great danger by the necessity which the animals encountered of defending themselves against profound climatic changes. At this period they all protected themselves from cold and the evaporation of the body liquids by means of a thick and immovable shell which suppressed in them the sense of touch, deprived them of all control of their external sensations and in this way stopped their brain development. This type of body as the philosopher Bergson has expressed it, "was an obstacle which nearly stopped the ascent of animal life." The animals which did not change later the form which they took on at this time fell into a torpid existence from which they never awakened. In this state of torpor the Echinoderms (star-fishes) and mollusks (snails, etc.) are living today.

But other groups escaped from this danger by two different roads. The backboned animals cast off their rigid shell to replace it on the outside by furs and on the inside by a structure more or less movable which continued to support their tissues and gave free play to their muscles. At the same time this proceeding permitted them to enlarge their size. After this they became agile and alert, developed more and more keen senses, received new impressions that enlarged their nervous system, and, in short, acquired a highly developed brain.

Animals of another class surmounted the difficulty in a different manner. They broke through the horny envelope that bound them, in various places, and furnished it with joints, which gave it suppleness without depriving it of its protective value. They also acquired in this way the agility and mobility necessary for their evolution. These animals, while going through these changes, developed the remarkable resources of their instincts with an intensity greater than that with which man developed his intelligence. Fortunately for us, the armor which they retained continued, after all, to be a restrictive apparatus, and prevented them from growing beyond certain very meager limits. It was this circumstance which saved man from being extinguished by them. The reader has, no doubt, recognized by this time that the creatures referred to were the insects and their near relations. If the insects had an internal

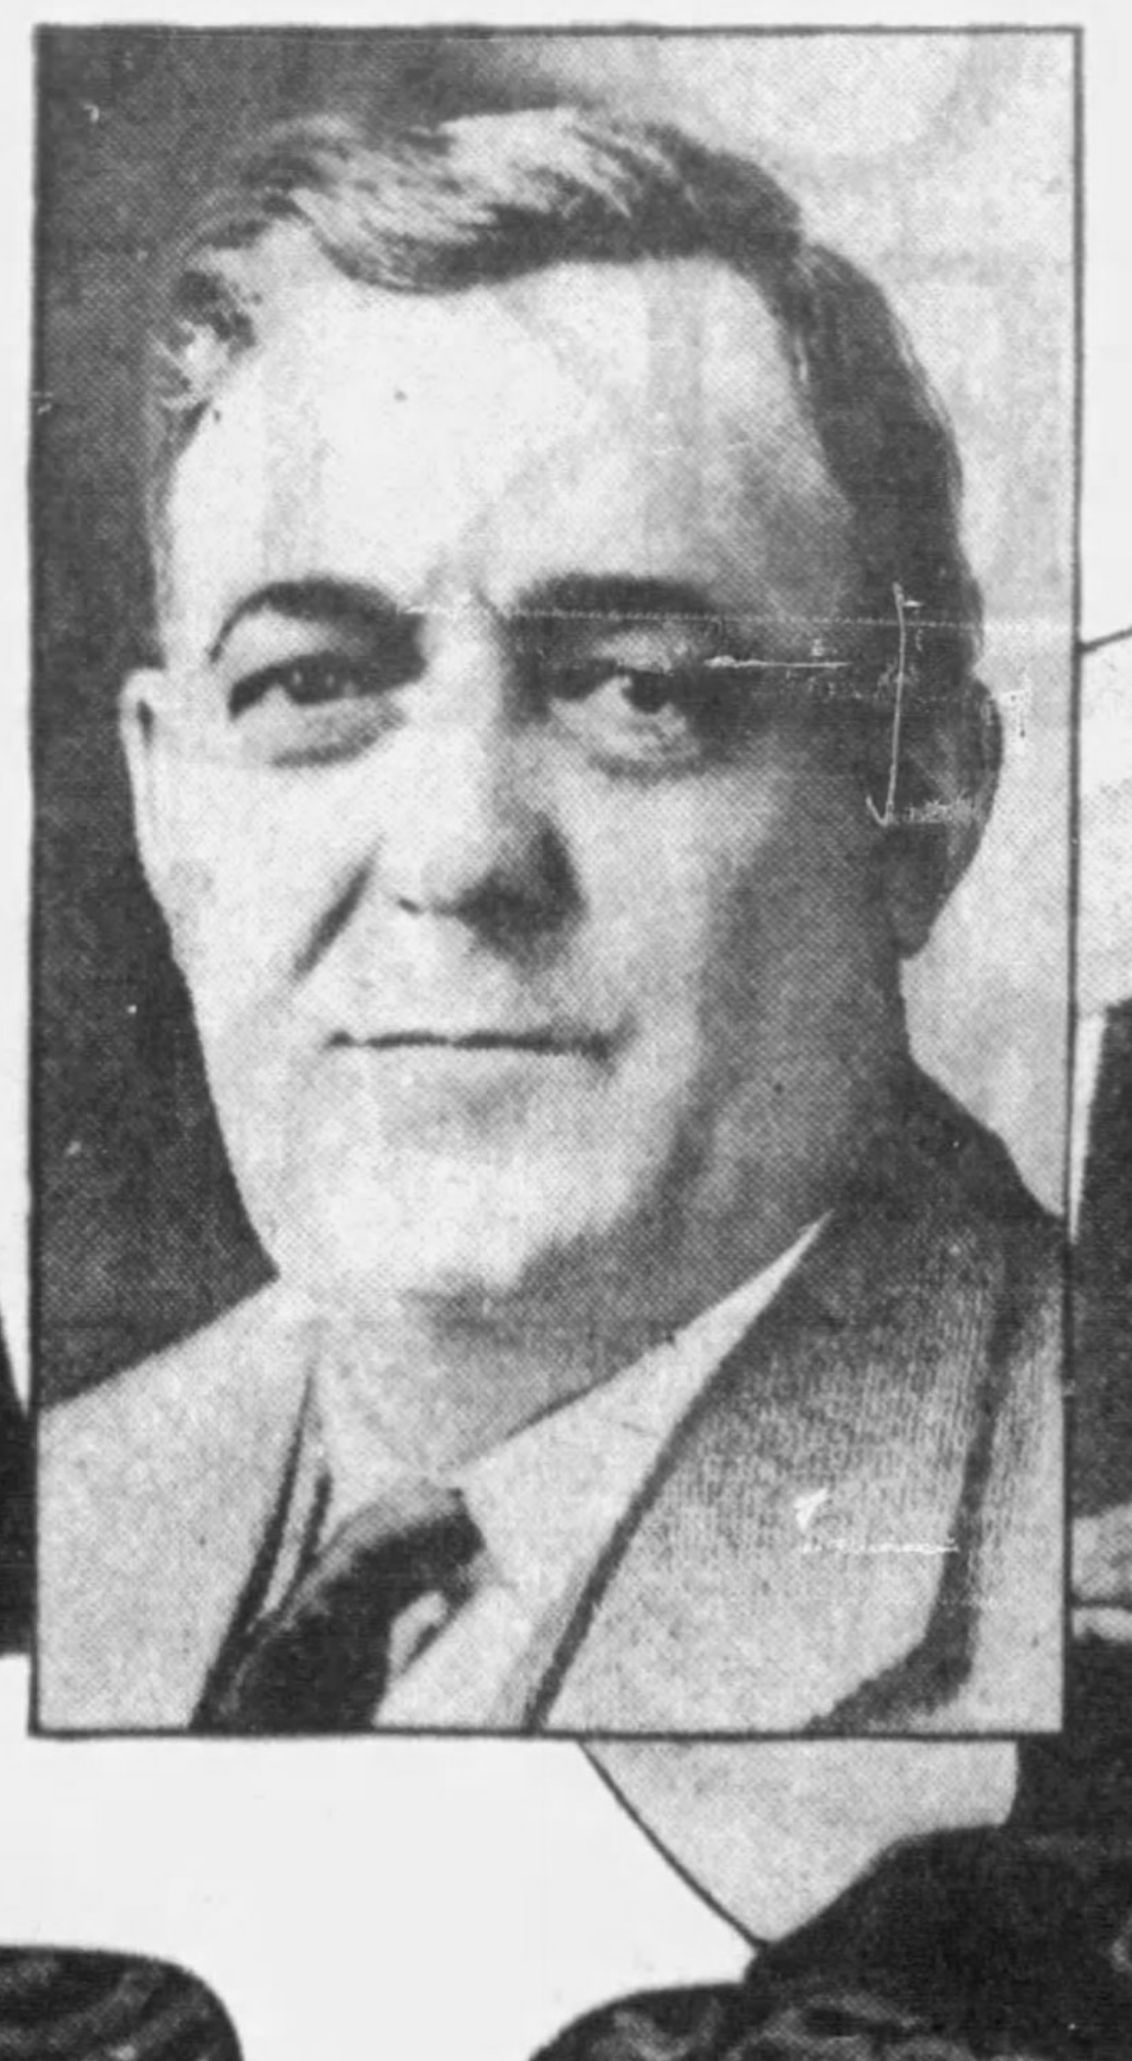
Fleeced the Townsfolk of $50,000 With Tale of a Hidden City

Miss Emma Etherton, of Cape Girardeau, Missouri, Who Helped the Detective in His Plans to Unmask the Swindler Who Fascinated the Town With a Weird Story of a Hidden Cave City.



—On the Left—
Detective C. T. McDermed, Who Put the Dancing Sisters on the Trail of the Villain.

Miss Bertha Etherton Who Obtained the Faker's Confession, But Too Late to Save the Money Invested in the Spurious Project by the Missouri Farmers.

HOW a man who called himself Rand McMurry, a traveling salesman, fleeced more than a hundred Missouri farmers of $50,000 by selling them stock in "a great white cave city thousands of years old" is one of the saddest and most incredible chapters in the state's history of swindling.

And how the detective who was put on McMurry's trail almost caught the smooth and highly imaginative bunco man by baiting him with two pretty dancers supplies the colorful denouement of a story which would seem to heap additional proof on Showman Barnum's classic remark about the world's supply of "suckers."

McMurry's fairy tale was so obviously a dream that only his intimate friendship with his victims and his rare brand of persuasive eloquence made it possible for him to hoodwink them out of their savings eked out of years of hard work on the soil.

The day he arrived in Cape Girardeau with the big news, he set the whole community agog with veiled and alluring hints of an isolated spot in the southwestern part of Missouri. And then, the interest of his intended victims aroused, he promised to tell them more about this exciting secret if they would gather in Salvation Army hall that night.

They did gather, these trusting farm folk who had always found McMurry a truthful, amusing and personable fellow, and listened for more than an hour to a story well worthy of a place in the Arabian Nights.

"Believe it or not," said Discoverer McMurry, "I have found, not far from this town, an ancient hidden city built in a great white cave, the floor of which stretches for, I should say, 140 acres. The floor is dark, but the walls and ceiling are of a glassy, transparent substance, which radiates an eerie glow that makes the cavern as light as day."

This opening revelation put McMurry's audience on the edge of their chairs, and with open mouths and bulging eyes they awaited further details. The speaker was lavish with these, for reasons now only too plain to those who assembled to be let in one the secret.

"In this cave," McMurry went on, "I found mummified human bodies—more than 200 of them. All of them, except two, were men. I also found a beautiful palace of many rooms. This palace, like the rest of the cave, was fashioned of that glassy, transparent substance. This curious material is as light in weight as aluminum, but so flexible and so strangely composed that a bullet from a revolver won't penetrate it." The speaker's face was serious.

And not satisfied with these astounding revelations, the ex-traveling salesman broke out with additional "facts" about his hidden city that would have strained the fertile and elastic imagination of Jules Verne. "In one part of the cavern," said McMurry, "I found two curious automobiles, made nobody knows how many centuries ago. They resembled somewhat the automobiles of today, but after a hurried glance at their mechanism I judged that they were operated by electricity or compressed air.

"Both machines were made of that luminous substance I found in the palace and both were box-shaped. Neither of them had fenders, and their wheelbases were longer than the cars in use at the moment."

A few eyebrows were raised and a head or two wagged at this detailed description of motor cars built by some extraordinarily intelligent prehistoric people. But McMurry convinced his friends that he was speaking the sober truth and that one day he would show them the wonders of his subterranean city.

"When?" demanded his intrigued audience, which was exactly the question McMurry had been cleverly working to draw from them. And then he came to the point of his discourse at the strategic moment.

It was his liberal intention, he confided, to form an organization which would own the cave and open it to the general public, to the great and sudden profit of everyone financially interested. Each member of this organization would be permitted to invest in the unique project, and as soon as the money—about $50,000—had been paid in cash, the members would meet in Sikeston, Missouri, and be taken to the hidden city. It all sounded believable, if amazing, when McMurry announced that he had a "discoverer's right" to the property from the Government and that representatives of the Government would be present when he led the way to the underground metropolis.

Several days later, when McMurry had collected $50,000 from his partners in the enterprise, one of the stockholders grew suspicious and hired C. T.Mc-McDermed, a St. Louis detective, to shadow McMurry and learn, if he could, the location of the hidden city, if any. The detective promptly learned that McMurry had a weakness for pretty girls and he enlisted the services of Bertha and Emma Etherton, two young women of Cape Girardeau locally distinguished for their comeliness and dancing ability.

The Etherton sisters had no trouble in making a boon companion of McMurry and cleverly worked on him until they drew from him what amounted to a confession that the ancient hidden city existed only in his imagination. But before they could apprise the detective of this important bit of news to scores of gullible "investors" who had given McMurry their savings, the swindler sensed that all was not well and made his departure before the detective could find and arrest him.

No one in Cape Girardeau has seen the City of the Great White Cave or its missing discoverer since that day, and they have little hope of getting back a cent of the money they put into what authorities have called "the wildest dream of sudden wealth since the days of the South Sea Bubble."

Tree-Top Home of Forest Rangers

AMERICA has hundreds of lookout stations from which forest rangers constantly scan thousands of acres of valuable timber always in danger of being destroyed by fire. But none of these isolated homes of the rangers is as high above the ground or as unusual as the tree-top lookout station set on the top of a 190-foot fir tree in the heart of the Olmypic Mountains, Washington.

The Government planned to erect a station of the usual type—a small building on top of a steel framework— but the foresters suggested the tree-top house and helped build it with their own hands.

The giant fir stands on top of a high mountain and, with their powerful binoculars, the rangers can view the surrounding forest for thirty miles in every direction. The lofty perch is connected with the nearest town and other lookouts by telephone, so that the observers may quickly sound a general alarm when a blaze is sighted.

How the World Would Look— If We Were Built Differently

skeleton and a body of equal size to man's, he would have ceased to exist long ago.

It would, indeed, have been better for man to die than to live with insects of giant size. It would have been a cruel fate if he had been forced to live on the same ground with beings so different from himself in the form of their bodies, their powers and their morals. The insects seem, indeed, not to belong to the same world as man. Many other races of animals, although far below him, nevertheless obey the same laws, can be understood by him in various ways, and live a life nearly like his and at his side, a life based on the same principles, and, one might almost say, upon the same morality.

But the insects appear to be the product of another creation, a ferocious and monstrous creation. And we cannot escape from a sort of terror when we peer into the secrets of their existence and compare their activity, their energy, their fertility, their powers and their terrifying weapons with those of man. It is not a mere freak of imagination to suppose that the insects might have been our equals upon earth in the matter of bodily size alone.

If the reader will recall what the writer recently said concerning the proportions that must exist between the brain of man, his faculties and his body, it will be remembered that a man weighing not more than thirty pounds could have the intelligence of a normal human being. That is the weight of a child of about four years and about three feet high. The first insects that appeared in the world were of gigantic size compared to those of today. Some of them had the dimensions of a seagull or a hawk. There seemed to be no reason why they should not continue to develop to a larger size. If we had remained smaller than we are now and they had become larger, we should have been face to face with enemies much more dangerous than the most formidable wild beasts against which our first human ancestors had to fight.

Not only had the insects numbers on their side, but also a terrible war-like equipment, an understanding of the art of fighting, a ferocity and a boldness which placed them far above the most ferocious carnivorous mammals. One does not dare to think what this world would have been like—this little world where man has succeeded after thousands of years of striving and fighting in making himself a relatively peaceful and comfortable home—if the insects had been large enough to hunt us as they hunt their ordinary prey.

Take, for example, the mantis (a relative of the grasshopper), an insect of the order of Orthoptera, which is common in warm countries, and endeavor to imagine the sensations of a man of the same size entering upon a fight with such an enemy. When at rest the mantis seems inoffensive, and remains motionless and quiet on his tree branch. But watch him the instant a victim passes within reach of him. In your everyday experience it may be a cricket, a butterfly or a [illegible]und spider. But imagine the mantis as large as a man and the man having to struggle with the monstrous insect.

At the sight of its prey the mantis rises up as if animated by an electric current. Its wings open and then form a gigantic helmet over its back. The rear portion of its body rises and falls with a peculiar noise. The insect then lifts up its two forelegs, opens them and closes them like the two halves of a pair of scissors on its victim, who finds himself stabbed with knives and mutilated with saw-like weapons. Soon the man, gasping in this fearful embrace, feels the jaws of the monster seize his neck. One of its saw-toothed arms continues to hold the victim in place, while the other rests on his head to hold the neck in a certain position. With its saw-toothed jaws it lays open the man's brain and presses upon it to destroy nervous resistance. The struggles of the victim grow less, he lives in order to become a meal of living food, but can no longer defend himself.

The mantis can now devour its prey at leisure. The victim is as large as the hunter, but his body is soon totally devoured.

It is impossible to say how many human beings would be the victims of a mantis of the size described. It is an insatiable eater. They are so gluttonous that when put into a cage with others of their family, they eat one another whole. Does it do this because it is driven by hunger? No, it does it from wanton gluttony and cannibalism. It devours members of its own family even when there is other food within reach. In fact, the spirit of murder is so developed in this terrible family that the wife eats up her husband as soon as the future of the race is assured.

To preserve his existence against such enemies, man would have needed at the time of his first appearance on earth to possess all the war-like weapons invented by modern science, for the insects had already at that period a great advantage over him. Our old-fashioned steel weapons would have been useless against the darts, the knives, the swords, the pincers of the Arthropod animals such as the spiders. The latter in many ways have outstripped the inventions of modern industry and could today give lessons to our surgeons, our chemists, our engineers and our soldiers in the form of their tools and weapons and the methods of using them which are today in some instances even beyond the range of our intelligence and power.

The last war revealed to us the terrible power of poisonous gas. But certain insects of the Coleoptera class, beetles of the species called Brachinus, used similar gases a hundred thousand years ago. Our anaesthetics and paralyzing poisons are crude compared to those distilled by some of the insects.

Our doctors today are very proud of knowing how to inject cocaine into the spinal marrow of a human being so that they can operate on him without rendering him totally unconscious, but the insect known to science as Cerceris employed this method before man came into existence, to render helpless the prey which it was about to feed to its young. With the hollow needle of its mouth, very similar to a surgical syringe, it touches the nervous center controlling the movement of its victim and paralyzes it. The victim remains alive but helpless while th larva, the young insect, eats it up whenever it feels hungry.

It would be possible to catalogue the examples of the formidable powers of the insects indefinitely. In addition to their fighting powers one might mention the marvels of architecture, of geometry, of mechanics and of buildings constructed by these faultless workmen. One might point to the many scientific problems which the insects have been able to solve better than man. But this would be merely repeating facts known to everybody. It is enough to confine ourselves to a few examples of their methods of fighting, which man would have been compelled to adopt if he hoped to survive alongside them and from which he might take lessons.

What would have become of man if it had been necessary to make war on this merciless race to save himself from extinction? Would the barbarous and disorderly hordes of our first ancestors have been able to resist armies of ants as large as themselves? Scientists of today see ants of various species using modern methods of warfare, digging trenches which they defend to the last insect, fighting against their enemies step by step, stopping up all the openings with bits of earth which the enemy must remove before advancing, as Forel, the noted authority on ant life, has observed.

In other species of ants colonies of insects advance in [illegible]ic order for the conquest of a new country, make a sudden offensive, loot the dwellings of the enemy, carry away slaves, torture and assassinate the leaders of the conquered nation with a cruelty that is never relaxed. Unity in the offensive and in labor is the common rule among these creatures, but pity is absolutely unknown to them. Slavery for the conquered and the weak, death for the useless is the inexorable law of their world, in which everything is sacrificed for the benefit of the species, and in which no allowance is made for the benefit of the individual. Man might, if circumstances on the young earth had been a little different, have been subject to this terrible enemy.

It is not unreasonable to imagine that the human race might have evolved in the same direction followed by these pitiless creatures. Nothing forbids us even to suppose that our social organization is developing slowly along the same patn. The large colonies in which certain social insects live, recall in many ways the condition of extreme communism toward which many people think that human society is moving at the present moment. If men are ever organized into a society of this type, it seems that any member with an understanding of what his ancestors called liberty, must feel himself to be in the grip of the most merciless tyranny.

In the insect society the worker is bound to an endless task o which h not know the object. He works all his life without reward or profit for a community where everybody works without being allowed to amuse himself. At his side watches a soldier furnished with cruel weapons and solely ordered to watch over the defense of the city. The soldier is incapable of feeding himself, sacrificed as soon as danger threatens, coldly exterminated by the withholding of food as soon as the legal number of the population is reached. At a little distance are wandering certain insects whom an ignorant man might suppose to be persons of leisure, the comparatively happy beings of this world of terror.

They are the individuals whose duty it is to propagate the species. But their lot is no more enviable than that of the others. For, like the soldiers, they cannot feed themselves and they pay for an instant of happiness with a miserable death. In the center of this nightmare realm sit the king and queen imprisoned for life in a palace which is also a tomb, solely occupied in giving birth to a whole race, which will pursue into an unknown future the same incomprehensible labors.

It is only a wild flight of the imagination to suppose that human sociey will ever follow such a course. Modern nations, happily for us, have not yet arrived at such a stage and it is reasonable to hope that after trying many experiments they will never arrive there.

We will now leave aside these speculations to return to the problem of the struggle between man and the insects. Keeping to the field of absolute reality, let us ask ourselves again what would have happened if a certain small change had happened not in the size of the insects but in their power of expansion.

Let us look for an example at the termites, commonly called white ants, which seem to be about the most formidable enemies of man in nature. Even when we do not increase their size they are so powerful that it is a miracle men have so far escaped destruction by them. "There is in all the tropical countries," says W. W. Froggatt, one of the best observers of these creatures, "no race of insects which leads such a ferocious war against all the works of man.

"Nothing is safe from their attacks. Everything disappears under their savage onslaughts in the most extraordinary manner, for they always work under cover until at the last moment the total collapse of the building they are attacking reveals their presence. Then furniture, food and clothing all disappear, houses crumble away and trees vanish in dust. The rapidity of the destruction they cause is stunning.

"A Queensland farmer one evening left his wagon in a field; the next day he could find only the iron parts. A colonist returned to his house after a few days' absence. Everything was well in appearance. But when he sat on a seat it collapsed. He tried to support himself by the table, it disappeared. He leaned against the wall, the wall faded away and then all the house went with it."

The naturalist Smeathman, who was studying these insects, went to sleep one evening near their nest. The next morning he woke up completely naked. The termites ate up all his clothing. The English naturalist, Forbes, when he returned home to his house in India, noticed that all the engravings, with their frames, that decorated his apartment, had disappeared. But the glass remained there, strangely held against the wall by a cement manufactured by the insects.

In the presence of such facts it may well be asked how man can fight against the termites. It must be remembered that whole towns may be destroyed by this terrible insect—indeed, this happened at Jamestown, the capital of the Island of St. Helena, in 1840.

It is possible that the entire world would have been the prey of their triumphs if nature, which alone can undertake such a task, had not opposed a barrier, but it is not certain that the insect may not one day cross this barrier. Up to the present the termites have needed, in order to live, a temperature which must not fall below 68 degrees Fahrenheit or mount above 113 degrees Fahrenheit. It is also necessary that this warmth should be accompanied by a certain humidity which is not present in all warm climates. It is only this circumstance which has saved humanity. But the law is not so absolute, nor the family of termites so incapable of climatic adaptation, as to relieve us of the fear that it may adapt itself to new conditions.

There has even been evidence of this alarming possibility. In the year 1780 a ship accidentally brought back to the port of La Rochelle, in France, some termites of the Lucifuge species, one of the smallest of the group. A short time afterwards several houses in the town collapsed, the archives of the prefecture were destroyed and the ravages of the insects spread to other cities. It is not known how far the plague might have spread, if little by little the species had not lost its powers, as shown in tropical countries, and become inoffensive. Today these insects, which are found freely in the same neighborhood, are no more injurious than native ants.

This is fortunate for France, but the occurrence does not authorize science to affirm that things will always happen in the same way. A hardier and more adaptable species of termite may some day move into temperate climates and prosper and multiply there. On that day humanity will have to face one of the greatest dangers it has ever encountered.

Thus a small change in the condition of the universe may bring about a complete upsetting of its destiny, including that of man, if circumstances lend themselves to this result. Man should profit by this consideration to face from a new point of view the series of problems which have been raised in the course of these articles. Up to the present, the writer has only considered the results which would happen if man should be changed more or less and left amid the same surroundings.

In another chapter the writer will set forth what might happen if man should remain as he is and nature should undergo certain important transformations.

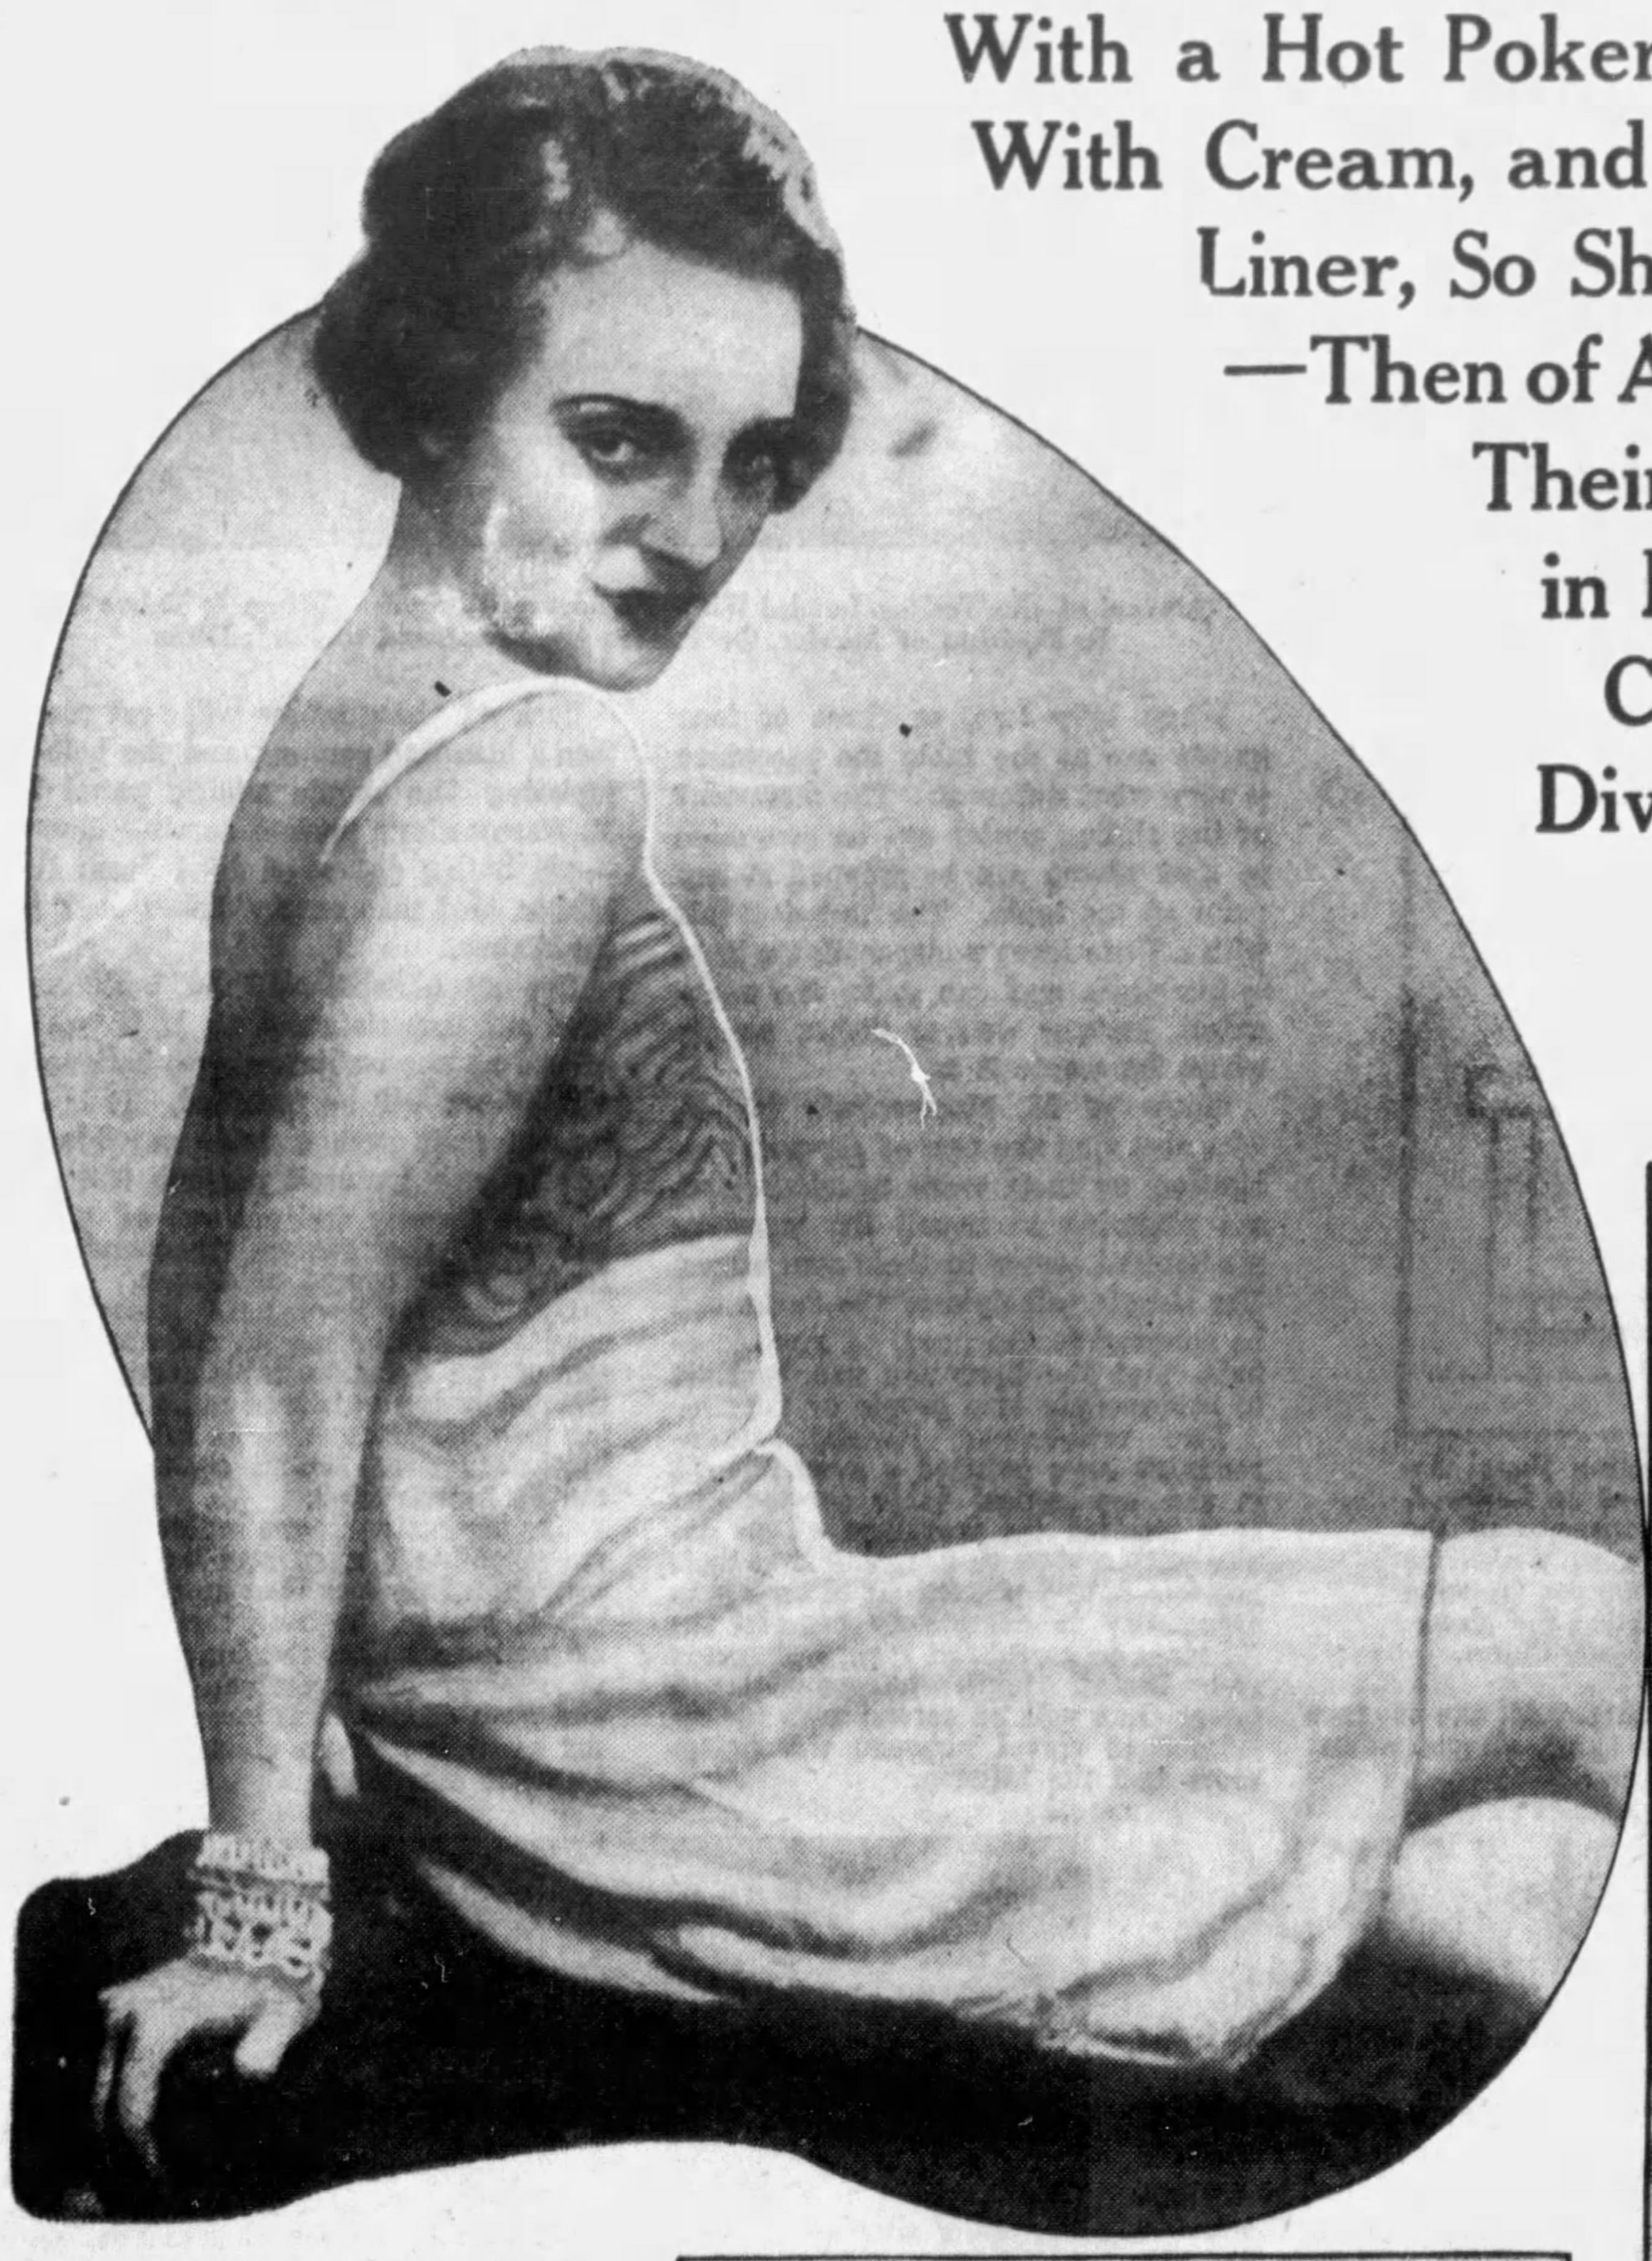
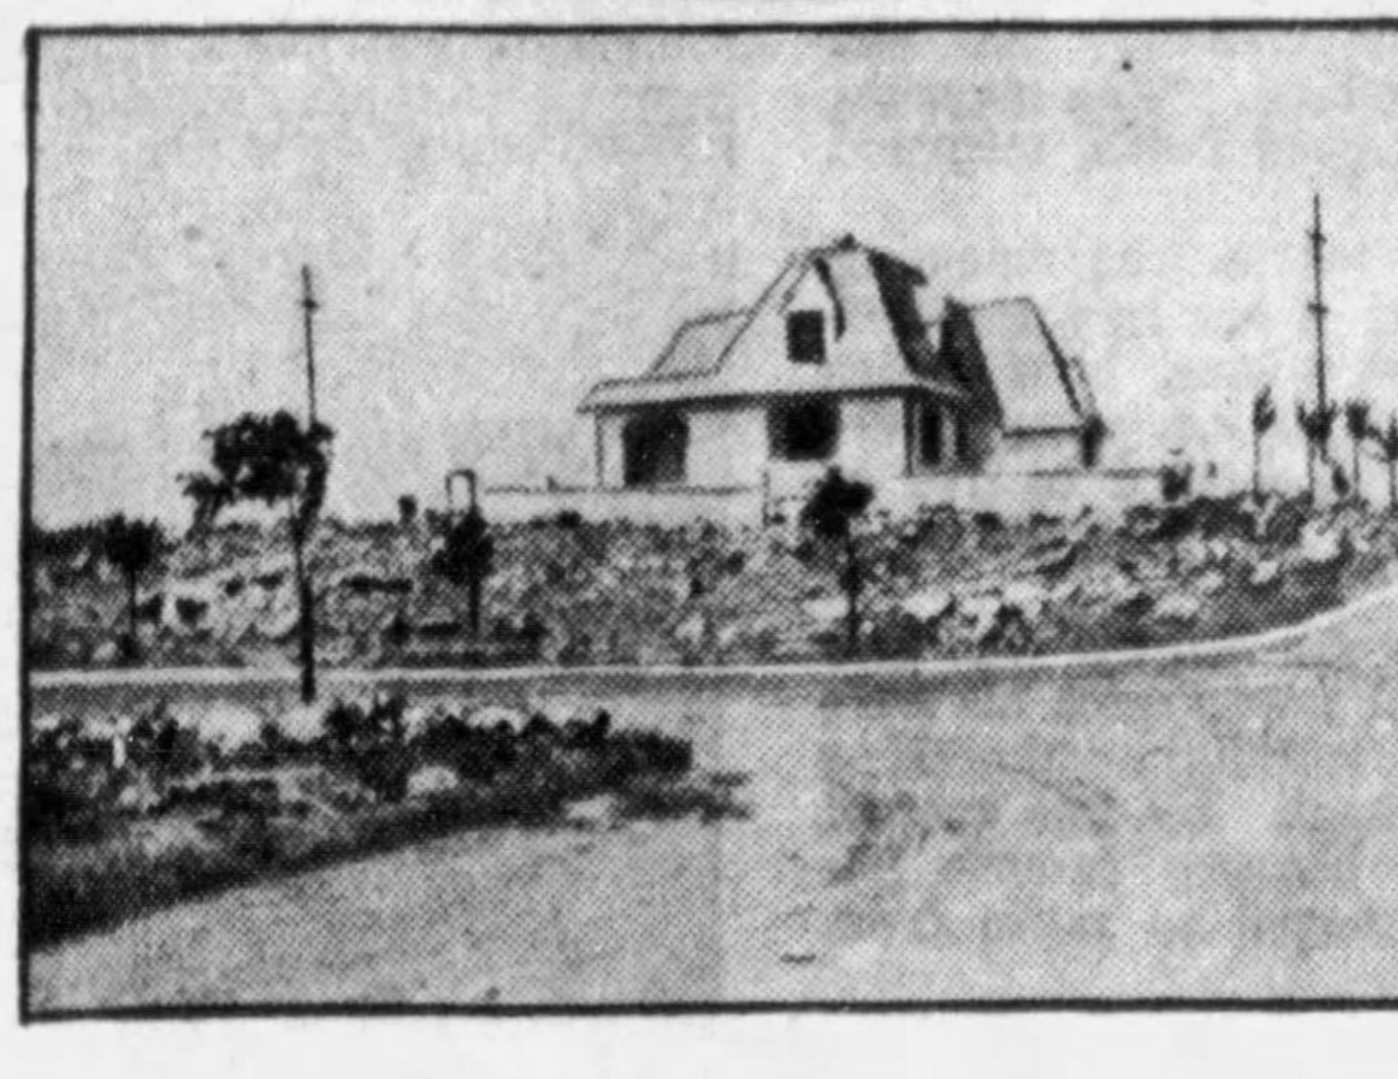
Mr. and Mrs. Morton Hoyt Are Divorced Because, Rich and Idle, He Is Around the House Too Much, Then He Brands Himself With a Hot Poker, Eats a Whisk-broom With Cream, and Jumps Off an Ocean Liner, So She Marries Him Again —Then of All Places, They Make Their Happy Home in Reno and, of Course, Get Divorced Again



Miss Tallulah Bankhead, the Ex-Mrs. Hoyt's Ornamental Actress Sister, Who Also Has Peculiar Views About Marriage.



The Cottage Which the Hoyts Bought at Reno, Nevada, After Their First Divorce and Which Came in So Handy for Their Second.

Young Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Enjoying Themselves in the Friendliest Fashion at Reno While the Courts Were Considering Their Divorce.

Jean Bankhead Hoyt, Who Has Just Been Freed By Divorce for the Second Time From Mr. Morton Hoyt.

A FEW days ago Mrs. Morton Hoyt was to be seen with her arm around her husband sitting on the steps of their $12,000 home in Reno, Nevada, a picture of domestic happiness.

The only thing wrong with the picture was the fact that both knew that wifey had just filed a divorce complaint against hubby, charging him with extreme cruelty and that, in a few days, they would be free from each other. Also it would be the second time this loving couple had been divorced.

"Perfectly logical, isn't it Darling?" said Mrs. Jean Hoyt, who is a sister of the well-known actress, Tallulah Bankhead and daughter of Congressman Bankhead of Alabama. Mr. Hoyt admitted affectionately that it was. He is a son of the wealthy Henry M. Hoyt, ex-Governor of Pennsylvania and Solicitor General under the Taft administration.

"Just because a husband and wife are going to be divorced is no reason why they should not pal around together and be good friends, especially if they love each other as we do," said the complaining wife in the pending divorce case of Hoyt vs. Hoyt.

"But then what is the idea of getting a divorce?" asked the American Weekly representative.

"Because we have incompatibility of temperament," Mrs. Hoyt explained gayly. "It's nobody's fault. I don't hold it against Morton and he doesn't hold it against me, but he always wants to do one thing and I want to do another. You can see what that means —one of us must always be making a sacrifice for the other—such a bore and a nuisance, you know. Somebody always has to be a martyr and a martyr is such a disagreeable lout, don't you think?"

That having found each other incompatible, it might be logical for the Hoyts to get a divorce was not disputed, but Mrs. Hoyt was asked if it was logical to go back and marry the same incompatible all over again and thus make this second divorce necessary. Mrs. Hoyt thought so but admitted it was a bit complicated. She explained as follows:

"You see, Morton deliberately branded himself on the arm with a red-hot poker and then he chopped up a whisk-broom and ate it with cream and sugar and finally he jumped overboard in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean. That settled it."

"Oh, that's why you are divorcing the second time," the questioner suggested. Mr. Hoyt chuckled but his wife replied:

"No, that's why I married him the second time."

To understand the Hoyt romance, it is necessary to go back to its beginning. Until this second divorce, the other day, the two had been married and together for the last nine years except for what Mrs. Hoyt calls "a year's vacation," and Mr. Hoyt refers to as "our sabbatical year of rest," taken just before and after the first divorce. As the couple was well to do, the bride had no household or other work. This would have been all right but her husband also happened to belong to the leisure class. In most families the husband is away at work all day, which leaves only evenings and Sundays for him and his wife to be incompatible. But Mr. Hoyt being home all the time, they had the entire day, every day.

Living in Paris, Morton and Jean thought the growing incompatibility might be cured by a return to the U. S. A. But after they arrived, in 1927, the New York environment seemed to make it so much worse that a divorce was soon agreed upon. The usual arrangement is for the wife to go to Reno, while the husband stays at his desk and earns the alimony. In this case the husband had no desk, so the chore of putting in the necessary time in Reno was handed to him, while Jean went to England to see her actress-sister Tallulah and to have a try at the stage.

Morton charged his wife with cruelty, extravagance and not loving him. He said she had scolded him frequently, found fault with him continuously, sworn at him and that he could not pay her gambling debts. That a man may obtain divorce for such comparatively mild cruelty may seem strange, but it is possible when the wife assists by putting in an appearance, but not contesting. Mrs. Hoyt, in London, was duly notified that on April 13, 1928 she was a divorced woman and therefore Morton Hoyt meant nothing more in her life. She obtained a small part in "The Barker," a play running in London, and started to forget her ex-partner.

In a few weeks someone wrote her that he was in Paris, convalescing from the "Reno Cure." That was quite all right, but more letters came informing Jean that he was "acting up something dreadful, just one wild party after another." Her correspondent thought Morton must be mourning her like the "Lost Lenore." Wasn't it romantic and just too bad? It was, but what could poor Jean do about it? She wrote expressing hope that he would find some nice girl to make him happy.

The next news item from Paris was that instead of taking her advice he was remaining single and getting wilder. At a party, he had pulled the red-hot poker from the stove in an artist's studio and branded himself on the arm with it. This unusual act disturbed the former Mrs. Hoyt, for he had never acted that way before. Soon came word that at a breakfast, after an all-night revel, he had scorned the conventional sobering off ham and eggs. Instead he had chopped up a whisk-broom, put it in a bowl with cream and sugar and eaten it. His explanation was that the doctors recommend "roughage" and that he "didn't give a darn, anyway."

Jean telegraphed to find out if it had killed him and was relieved to learn that an emetic had fixed him up nicely. Also she was glad to hear that he was on his way back to America where people don't have quite so many original ideas in the way of parties. To cheer him up, Jean sent him a nice radio repeating her advice to find some nice girl to keep him from eating whisk-brooms and not giving a darn.

Morton did find a nice girl even before he landed. Right on the steamer Rochambeau, he met the charming seventeen-year-old Miss Elsie Ekengren, a society debutante of Washington, D. C. But, alas, the prescription instead of curing, made the uneasy Mr. Hoyt worse. Jean read, to her dismay, that Morton had jumped overboard, one foggy evening, causing the liner to stop half an hour while a life boat went back and fished him out of the cold Atlantic.

Miss Ekengren had dared him to jump over and Mr. Hoyt had done so, without a moment's argument. Very few husband are so compatible as that, but little Elsie did not marry him and Jean began to think very hard. As soon as "The Barker" closed, the former Mrs. Hoyt packed her trunks and took the next steamer in the direction of the Statue of Liberty. She reasoned that longing for her had made her divorced husband act that way and that his next jump might be from the Woolworth Building. It really ought to be possible to get along with a man who was so obliging as to vault into the ocean just to please a comparatively strange flapper. Perhaps, too, in that year off, he had gotten over his incompatible habits. Anyway she still loved him and something ought to be done.

The former Mrs. Hoyt found her ex-husband in New York and both agreed that the divorce had been a mistake and the way to correct it was to get married again, which they did at the "Little Church Around the Corner," on Christmas Eve, 1928. Their next move was out to Reno where they bought a $12,000 home and settled down to live happily ever after, within a rifle shot of the divorce court.

Considering that they had already revealed symptoms of the divorce habit, this seemed to some observers as risky as an alcoholic patient getting a job in a speakeasy. A stranger must reside in Nevada three months before bringing a divorce suit, which gives time to think things over and cool off. But a resident can file the papers while she is still red in the face and before her husband knows she is out of the house.

Of course that hazard was not in their minds when they chose the divorce capital of the world for their happy home. They went there because they thought it would make them more compatible. Morton, when he was waiting for a divorce, had fallen in love with the Western atmosphere and, while courting his bride the second time, convinced her that she, too, would like it. So it was logical that both enjoying the same life they would be compatible at last.

But there was a flaw in the logic. Mrs. Hoyt found that she had only imagined she liked the great wide-open spaces and that she really did not care for the West at all. As Hoyt liked everything and she nothing, they were soon face to face with the fact that they were more incompatible than ever. So politely, good-naturedly, even affectionately they once more decided on divorce. As both were right in town, it was no trouble for either to take the step and so, as usual, the lady did the necessary legal "bawling out" of the spouse. Her complaint contains the following long and flattering paragraphs:

"That shortly after the inter-marriage of plaintiff and defendant herein, defendant began to manifest a very cold and indifferent disposition, and constantly and continuously nagged, scolded, abused and found fault with plaintiff over the most trivial and trifling matters, and on numerous and divers occasions too numerous to mention called plaintiff a —— and a —— of a —— and applied to her other equally as vile and opprobrious epithets, and constantly and continuously told plaintiff that he had made a mistake in marrying her and that he wished he had remained single, and plaintiff herein avers and so alleges the fact to be that defendant was constantly humiliating plaintiff by accusing her of gross extravagance and of telling her that she didn't know the value of a dollar, never did know and never would know, and was constantly and continuously telling her that she spent all of their money on clothes for herself, never thinking of his welfare.

"And plaintiff herein avers and so alleges the fact to be that defendant was diffident and was of a sullen and morose disposition and would go for long periods of time without speaking to plaintiff and answering questions addressed to him by plaintiff and if he did so during these spells, it was always in a gruff and grouchy manner. And plaintiff herein avers and so alleges the fact to be that defendant wanted to be the center of attraction in their home and when out visiting, and always objected to plaintiff receiving any attention from other people, and made it so disagreeable for friends and acquaintances when visiting them that it deeply humiliated plaintiff, and made her extremely nervous, and made her sick in mind and in body, and made her married life, unhappy, unpleasant, miserable, and unendurable."

But there were no hard feelings over those allegations. Mrs. Hoyt got her divorce and the house in the town she doesn't like and immediately left for Honolulu. Hoyt, having now no home, left the city he likes and went East. It is evidently hard to be logical in matrimony. Sister Tallulah's logic works the opposite of Jean's. Not long ago, Europe was much interested in her engagement to the gay and handsome Count Anthony di Bo·dari. But the wedding bells kept being postponed until finally, in calling the match off, Miss Bankhead explained:

"Oh yes, we were in love with each other no end, but he has his work and I have my career, so we really would not have much time together."

In other words one sister would not have a husband who would not be around the house plenty, and the other threw one out twice because he was.

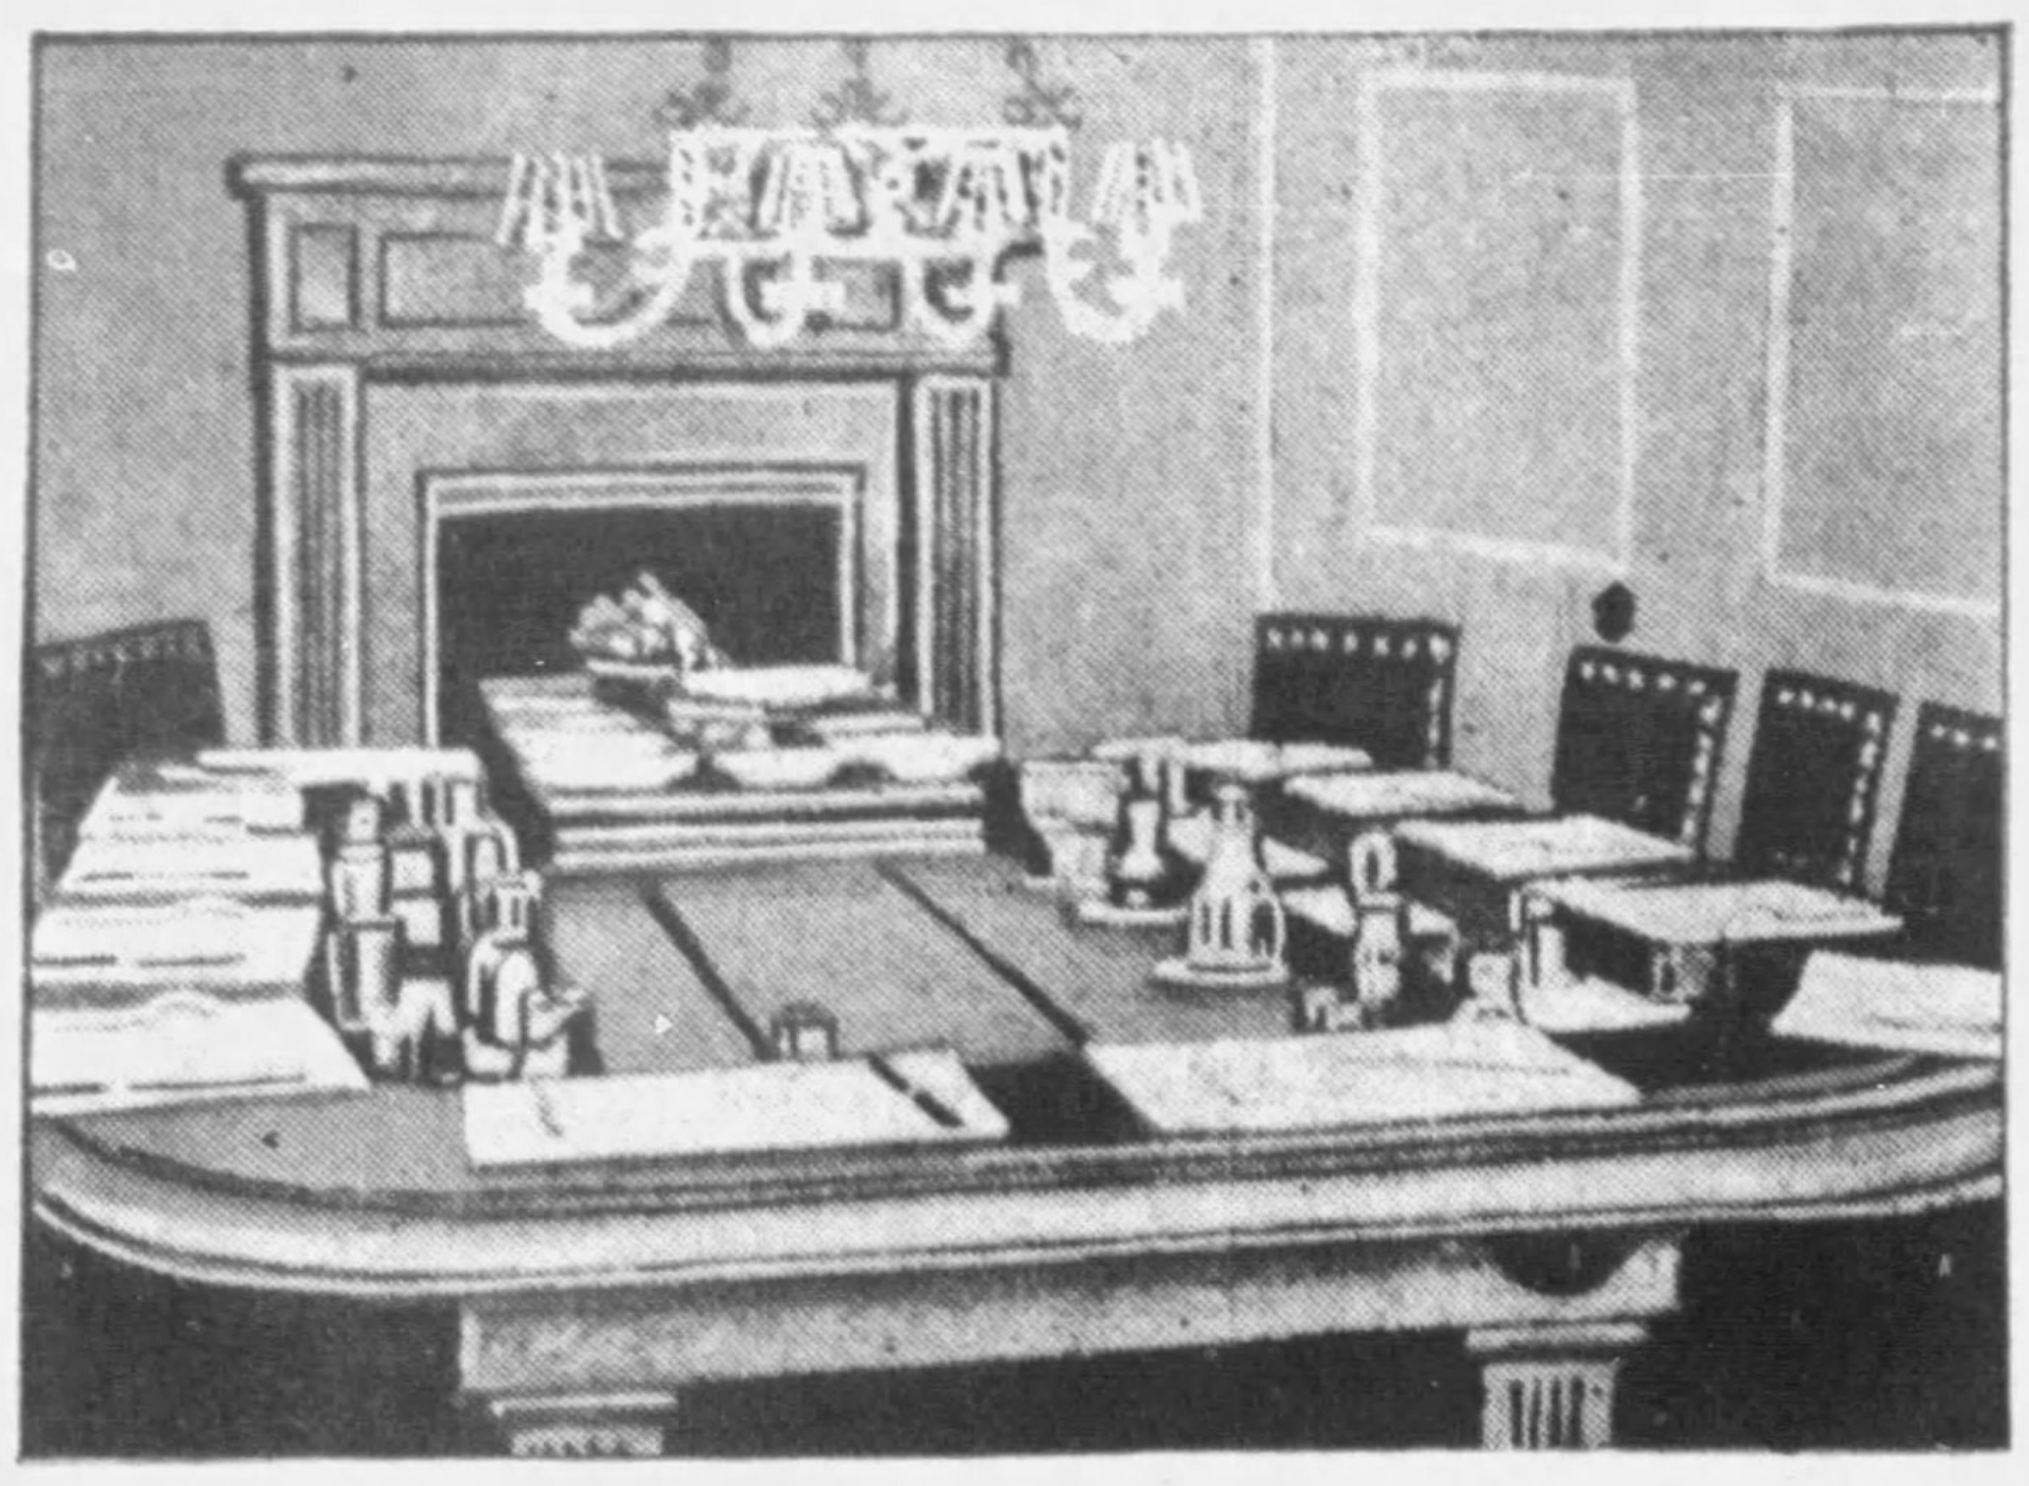
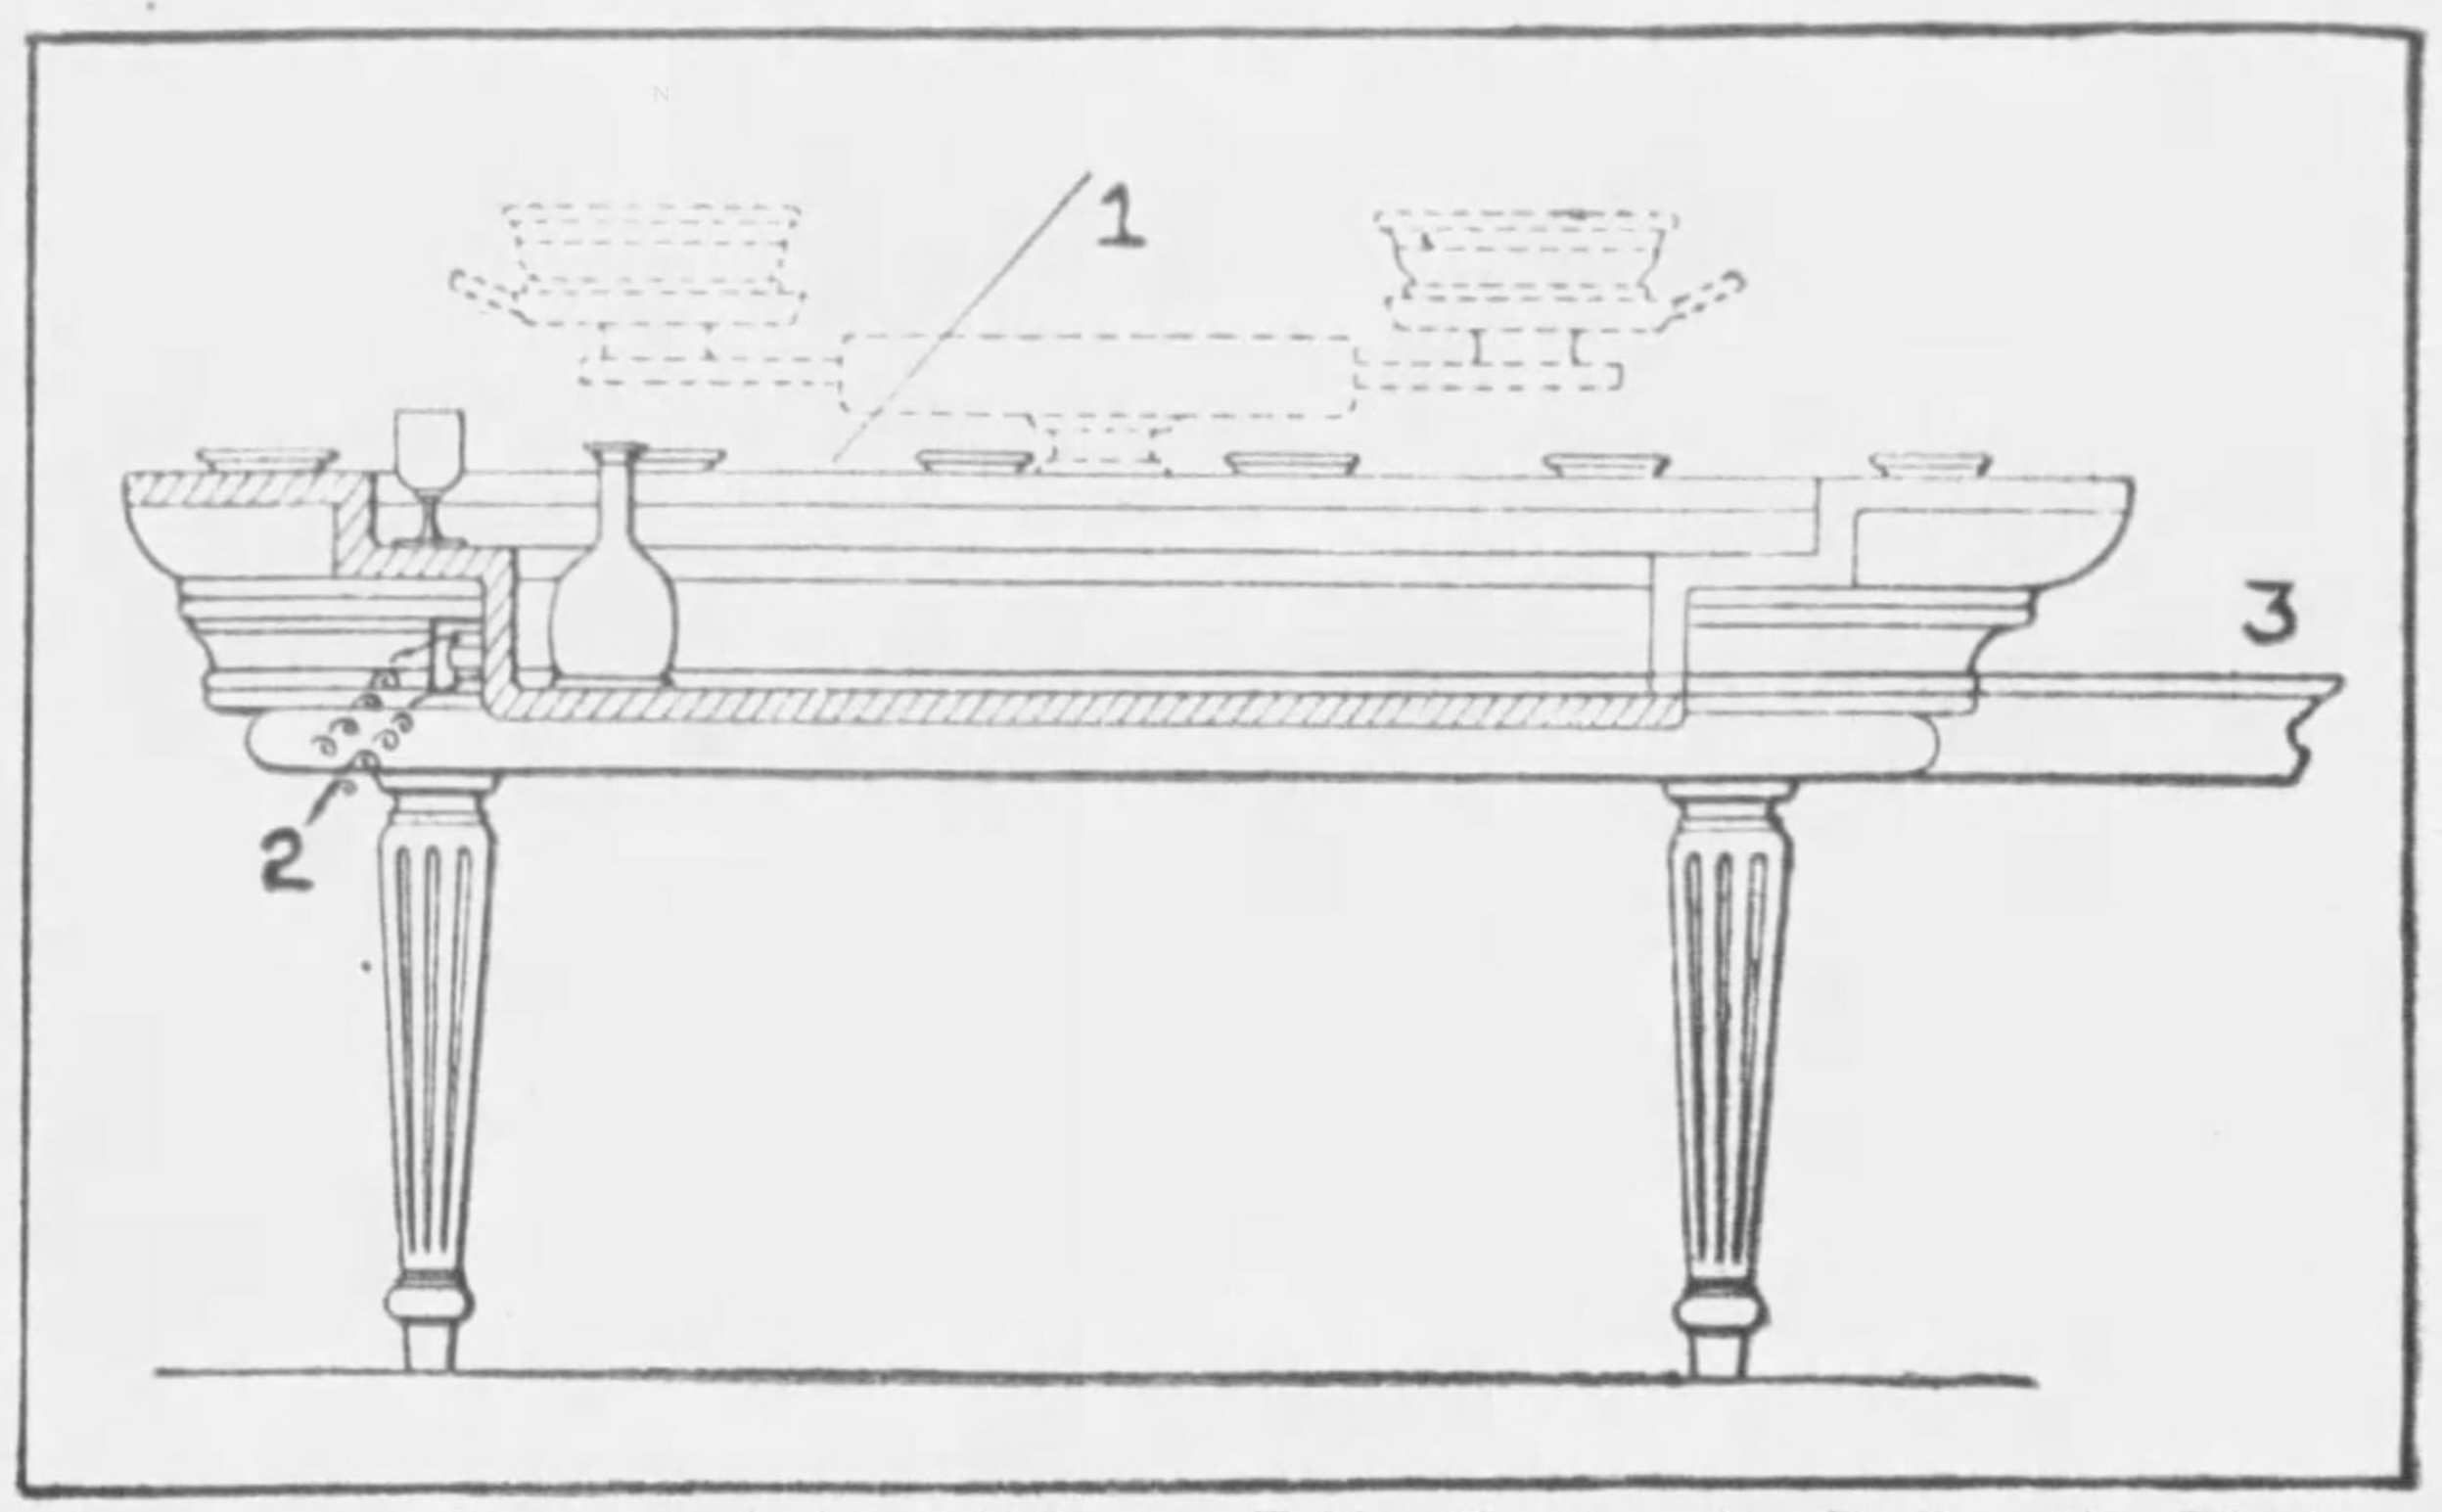
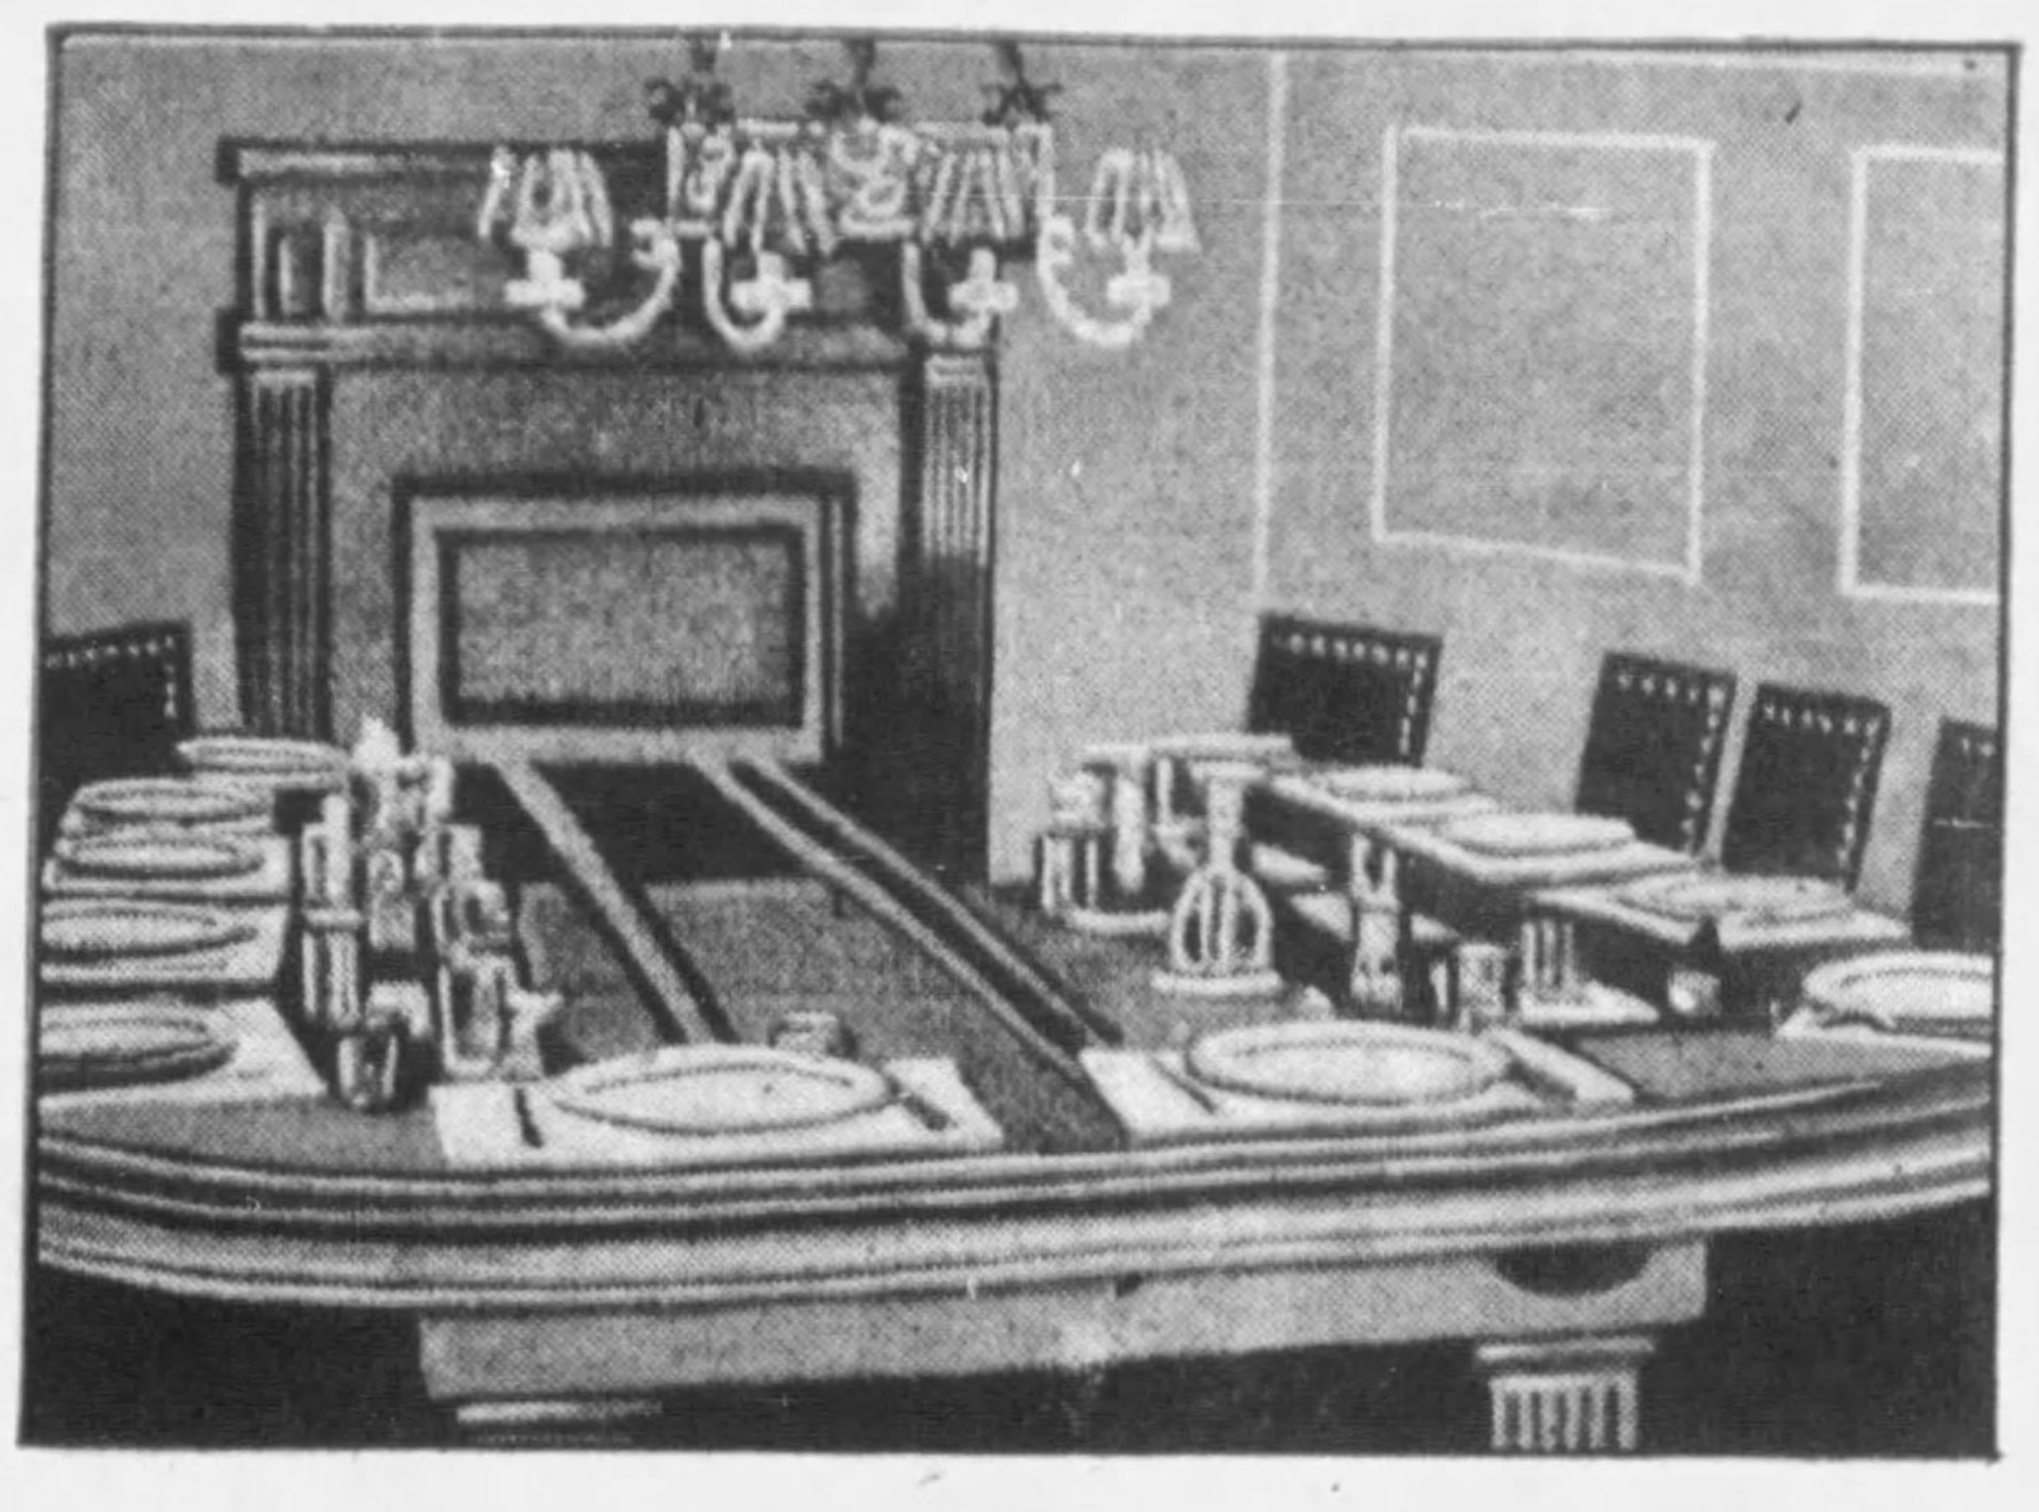
Automatic Service At Meal Time With Table That Makes Servants Unnecessary



The Graduated Table With the Trolley in the Kitchen. The Lowered Glasses and Carafes Permit the Passage of the Plate Shelf.



Cross-Section Diagram of the Self-Service Table, Showing the Trolley (1) Which Shuttles Back and Forth on the Track (3) Between Kitchen and Dining-Room. The Power Is Supplied by an Electric Motor, Which Winds a Cord (2) and Causes the Trolley to Move.



Arrival of the Trolley Loaded With Platters and Plates. When It Takes Up Its Position of Service, the Plates Are Presented to Each Diner.

DETERMINED to solve the expensive and troublesome servant problem in his own household and to give others the benefit of his solution, M. Marmonier, a wealthy builder of Lyons, France, has invented an inexpensive and ingenious mechanical servant to wait on his table.

The device, a trolley that moves on noiseless wheels between the dining room and the kitchen, is as efficient as it is simple and can be used to serve a meal of any number of courses to as many as twelve persons. The polished wooden plate shelf which brings the food to the diners and takes it away is operated by an electric motor. The cost of operating the device is only a few cents an hour, and it works much more quickly than several servants possibly could.

The rolling shelf, which shuttles back and forth between the kitchen and the table, is spacious enough to accomodate twelve plates at a time, so that each person at the table is served at the same time as the others about the board.

The outer rim of the table is raised a few inches above the center of the table so that the automatic servant brings and removes the dishes on a level with the rim where the diners sit. Between the center of the table where the serving trolley moves back and forth and the outer rim is a space for placing carafes, glasses for water or wine and condiment vials.

When M. Marmonier's family and guests are seated at the table ready to be served, the trolley with its ample surface is in the kitchen and the cook places the dishes of food at the proper place on the trolley so that when the panel between the dining room and kitchen is lifted, the mechanical servant slides from the kitchen to the center of the dining room table presenting each diner with a plate exactly in front of him. The plates are lifted from the trolley to the rim of the table.

When the guests are finished with the course they replace their plates on the sliding center of the table, the host presses a button connected to a buzzer in the kitchen and the cook pulls a lever that brings the automatic servant back into the kitchen with its load of empty dishes. All the courses are served in the same, simple, silent and efficient manner.

D—The Electric Motor. E—Revolving Drum on Which the Cord Operated by the Motor Is Rolled. F—Arrangement for Opening and Closing the Panel Between the Rooms and for Starting the Motor. G—Device for Stopping the Trolley at Intervals of Four Plates.

When only two, or three or four guests are at the table the procedure is somewhat different. The movement of the sliding center can be controlled so that plates can be stopped at any point at the table. The host does this with a little lever underneath the table at his place and can make the mechanical servant deliver dishes exactly where he wants it to.

Many of M. Marmonier's friends, who also find the cost of servants prohibitive or their work unsatisfactory, are planning to install the ingenious mechanical server in their own homes. The simple principle of the device can be adapted to the needs of any household, and the invention can be built to accomodate two people or fifty.

Two well-known Parisian restauranteurs have evinced a keen interest in the mechanical table servant and have studied the workings of the device with a view to adapting it to their popular eating places. It is their plan eventually to completely remodel the interiors of certain of their restaurants and install long, horseshoe-shaped tables that will be served with endless belts that travel between the dining-room and the kitchen.

Each of these tables will seat more than a hundred persons, and the belt—replacing the simple sliding panel in M. Marmonier's private serving device—will bring dishes of food from the kitchen and take empty dishes back to the kitchen.

One such table will be built and tried out experimentally. If it works as well as the restauranteurs believe it will, others will be installed. It is estimated that such a table capable of serving one hundred persons will put at least twenty waiters out of a job and save the owners thousands of francs in the course of a year.

One popular Paris hotel is seriously considering installing an elaborate version of the domestic table server in its banquet hall and is said to be negotiating with M. Marmonier to submit them blueprints from which such a device can be constructed.

The inventive Lyons builder has also equipped his kitchen and laundry with mechanical devices that do the work of human hands. Among these mechanical workers he has machines that wash vegetables, grind coffee, beat sauces and wash dishes. He has even gone so far as to install an electric bootblack to polish his shoes.

Cathedral's Rare Treasures Looted By Noble Thief

INTERNATIONAL NEWSREEL Photo

Mrs. Daisy Warner, of Cleveland, With the Stolen Ivory Book Cover, Worth $30,000, Which Was Returned to the Cathedral of Zagreb by the Cleveland Museum.

HOW Count Pyelik Inna plundered the world-famous treasury of Zagreb Cathedral in Yugoslavia under the very nose of the bishop and his assisting priests charged with the stewardship of priceless works of ecclesiastical art is a true story which rivals the most exciting pages of detective fiction.

The Count, who was not to the purple born, but acquired his title when he was adopted by an Italian countess, might have concealed his thefts if it had not been for the suspicion of a Vienna art dealer by the name of Gluckselig.

Not long ago Gluckselig called on the Bishop of Zagreb and attempted to purchase from the cathedral's treasury a beautifully carved ivory diptych depicting events in the life of Christ. He had seen the masterpiece at an exhibition of historical art in Zagreb in 1925, and offered $20,000 for it. The Bishop declined to discuss the offer.

Shortly after his unsuccessful visit to Zagreb, Gluckselig was surprised to hear that the diptych had been sold to the Cleveland Museum for $40,000, and that the museum had acquired the carving from an American art dealer, who had bought it in Paris in 1927 for $10,000, half the sum Gluckselig had offered.

The Vienna art dealer rushed to Zagreb and was told by the Bishop that the diptych was still in the cathedral's treasury and that the one sold to the Cleveland Museum must be a copy. But to the amazement of the Bishop and himself, Gluckselig learned that the supposed original in the treasury was the copy, and the genuine diptych was in Cleveland. The museum officials, although they bought the relic in good faith, returned it to Yugoslavia.

That gave the Bishop the clue that led to the alarming discovery that many of the priceless works of art in the cathedral treasury had been replaced with copies—and poor copies at that—by Count Inna, who, because of his supposed noble blood and keen interest in art, had been permitted to live in the tower of the cathedral for a time and study the rare relics in the world-famous treasury.

The police were put on the trail of the count, who had been making his residence in the cathedral tower with his wife for about a year, and learned that he had established himself as one of the leading art dealers on the continent. He had opened an exclusive shop in Paris which soon became famous because of the "lucky finds" the count managed to make from time to time.

The police were not long in picking up Count Inna's trail and soon after arrested his "Countess," a pretty Yugoslav girl, who professed to know nothing of her husband's activities in the field of art. The count was found in an obscure hotel outside of Paris, where he was living under an assumed name. He was locked up in Paris and, according to recent news dispatches, is to be sent back to Yugoslavia to stand trial for his daring thievery.

England's Play-Room Barber Shop

A LONDON barber, who specializes in children's hair cuts, recently equipped his shop with several ingenious chairs made in the form of automobiles. The novel seats brought him more young patrons than he and his assistants could accommodate, but they did not keep the customers quiet, which was the real purpose of installing them.

The barber saw the chairs built like tiny motor cars at a hairdressers' fair, and was assured by a glib salesman that when a youngster was put in the upholstered driver's seat he was so intrigued by the shining machine that he, or she, sat as still as a mouse, thus making the haircutter's job more easily and quickly accomplished.

So the owner of the shop bought several of the unusual and up-to-date chairs and made a veritable playroom out of his establishment. He advertised this fact in the London dailies, and was rewarded by a small army of youngsters, brought to his place of business by doting mothers and watchful nurse maids.

He explained to his assistants that the real purpose of the new chairs was to increase the efficiency of the shop, and asked them to observe how much time was saved on each haircut. He estimated that at least twenty-five more customers could be served in a day now that all the youthful patrons were going to sit still with the delight of "riding" in an automobile while the shears trimmed their locks.

But he promptly discovered that the psychology of the automobile chairs is all wrong from the barber's point of view and that little boys and girls just can't sit still when they are confronted with a steering wheel, a horn and foot pedals. They play they are driving a racing car around the speedway, or cleverly dashing through heavy traffic. They honk the horn at imaginary crossings and keep both feet busy putting on the brake and manipulating the clutch. They even lean out of the machine to be sure that the road ahead is clear.

The greatest difficulty experienced by the barbers, however, is to prevent boys sitting in adjacent machines from indulging in death-defying races while they are supposed to sit placidly upright.

The progressive owner of the London barber shop has found that every haircut takes longer than it did when his youthful patrons sat in comfortable but unamusing chairs and he is trying to devise some convincing line of talk that will discourage his customers from becoming strenuous automobilists the moment they are put in the new chairs.

He admits that the motor car chairs have made his shop the most popular of its kind in London, but the strain of handling boys and girls who just can't sit still with wheels, levers, pedals and horns to play with is telling on him and his assistants who sometimes sigh for the old chairs that made little appeal to young and energetic imaginations.

No Women In This State

THE State of Mount Athos, situated on a mountainous promontory jutting out into the Aegean Sea, recently appealed to the League of Nations for redress against the seizure by the Government of Greece of certain of its properties.

It was revealed as a result of the subsequent investigation that the ancient Republic of Mount Athos is unique among the nations of the world. It is a country where no women are allowed.

Originally the home of a pagan oracle of Apollo, and noted in ancient Greek times for the number of pilgrimages to its temple, the mount was purged of its idols in Christian times, and about the fifth century became the haunt of holy hermits. They lived in caves and huts.

There are about twenty vast fortress-like monasteries on the promontory, all built before the fifteenth century. Their vicissitudes included raids by pirates, Arab invasions, massacres by the Turks and other troubles. These, however, were minor enemies, from the point of view of the monks. The common enemy was woman. No woman has ever been allowed to set foot on Mount Athos.

The rights of the monks have been respected down the centuries by the various governments under which they lived. Until the war the republic was under Turkish sovereignty. At the peace conference of Lausanne, Mount Athos was to have been given an international status, but it was finally given over to Greece, which solemnly promised to respect the terms of the articles of transition.

The monks who live high up on the cliffs of this womanless land, are regarded as the most learned and studious of the world, and many of the finest pieces of religious writing and masterful translation of ancient philosophical and theological works have come from their barren cells.

On several occasions curious femininity has attempted to get across the borders of this no-woman's land, but an alert military has made every attempt unsuccessful—even those shrewd efforts in which the would-be invaders disguised themselves as male peasants and volunteered to carry supplies to the isolated monasteries.

The monks on Mount Athos have no particular grudge against the fair sex. But they are a studious lot, and are at their reading and writing when not sleeping, or at their devotions or taking the daily walks that keep them in good physical condition.

Their wants are few and they have found that these wants can adequately be supplied by themselves and by the small corps of men who work about the monasteries and bring in materials from the outside world.

Killed by a Pet Parrot

A Scene in the Play Required the Leading Actor to Caress a Parrot—And From This Bird He Caught Its Disease, Psittacosis, Usually Fatal to Human Beings, and One Actor and One Actress Are Dead and Seven Nearly Dead

TEATRO LICEO
LA GELOSIA MI MORDE IL CUORE

The Lyceum Theatre in Buenos Aires, Argentina, Closed by the Epidemic of Death and Disaster Caused by the Parrot. The Photograph Shows the Announcement and Posters of the Play, "Jealousy Is Gnawing at My Heart," in Which the Parrot Tragedy was Unconsciously Enacted.

The Parrot Is Known to Scientists as a Very Filthy Bird, and if Newly Imported He May Harbor the Germ of Psittacosis and Infect Members of the Household Where He Lives With the Germs of His Disease Which Are Often Fatal to Human Beings.

BUENOS AIRES,
Argentine, Dec. 21.

THE play "La Gelosia Mi Morde il Cuore" (Jealousy is Gnawing at My Heart), though selling out at the Liceo Theatre, in Buenos Aires, suddenly closed because its star, Florencia Parravicini, the great Argentine comedian, and eight other members of the cast were stricken by a strange disease that seemed like a combination of typhoid, pneumonia and malaria. Where it came from, what it was and why it singled out this troupe of players nobody could guess.

One actor and one actress had died and the hospital was still puzzling over the agonies of the other seven cases when the death of yet another and humbler member of the cast provided the clue.

The company's property man dropped in at the hospital one morning to ask if the doctors had found out what was the matter. His business, among other things, was to care for a parrot. The bird had an important bearing on the plot of the show and was on stage in its cage nearly all through the performance. The property man, when informed that the medical men were still searching, remarked that it was an unlucky show because now even the parrot had died.

Stage folk are commonly superstitious, but he was surprised to see a passing doctor spin around at his words and pounce on him with a demand to bring that parrot's body to the laboratory as quick as he could get there. A few minutes after its arrival they knew the cause of the "bad luck."

It was psittacosis, or parrot disease, a rare but deadly infection that man can get only from the feathered talkers. The Asistencia Publica, which is the Argentine National Board of Health, was notified and immediately took precautions. But already an epidemic had started and was only stamped out by the inspection of every bird store and the slaughter of every parrot with symptoms of the dread disease and even those that were known to have been exposed to it. In all about ninety per cent of Argentine's captive parrots were killed, many no doubt unnecessarily.

The author of the successful play, who had watched this unaccountable pestilence stop his show, kill and strike down his actors, was then informed that when he wrote that "stage business" of the various actors and actresses sticking their faces and hands close to the parrot's cage as they talked and petted it, he had also added the characters' death and disease to the caste though they did not appear on the program.

The dead are Senorita Carmen Mas, leading lady of the play, and Humberto Zuros, who played an important part. Senor Parravicini, the comedian and star, is of a well-known aristocratic family, president of the Aero Club of Argentine and a member of the Municipal Government of Buenos Aires. He was a big, heavy man, with hair as black as patent leather before the malignant Nocard bacillus passed from the parrot into his system. Now he weighs less than 100 pounds and his hair is white as snow. He will get well and so will the others, it is believed, but the doctors have advised them all not to work for a year, if possible.

Such are the ravages of psittacosis, when it does not kill its victim. The comedian was not joking when he said the tortures of the hereafter cannot be any worse than two of his worst weeks. During that time he had to be strapped to his bed to keep from committing suicide. Yet all this came from a parrot that looked no different from several others bought at an ordinary animal store, with cats, dogs, white mice and rabbits.

When the Argentine health authorities spread the news of the psittacosis outbreak among the theatrical company, there was not much fear that the human victims would spread the disease to others. Fortunately that rarely happens, but one sick parrot can cause an almost incredible amount of death and suffering before it gets well or dies. In Cordoba the news helped the physicians diagnose properly an extraordinary epidemic of supposed influenza and pneumonia. Fifty of these cases were traced to a boarding house in which a parrot vendor had a room and many callers. His birds were promptly slaughtered, the room disinfected and the epidemic stopped.

Mlle. Carmen Mas, an Attractive Member of the Theatrical Company, Who Caught the Parrot Disease, Lingered in Agony for Several Days, and Finally Died.

In the semi-tropical parts of Argentine where the parrots are caught, the parrot disease is well known among the natives, who never have the creatures for pets, and keep away from them unless they make a business of catching and shipping them to the cities. The professional parrot-catcher takes care not to get hold of a sick bird. If by mistake he does catch a "quiet one" he knows it is deadly and lets it go as well as any healthy captives with which it may have come in contact.

But after a parrot has been exposed it requires about a week for the germs to incubate before the bird begins to feel sick and show it. This explains why quite often the parrots come down with the disease after they have been shipped or even arrived in the cities. When many are kept together they can keep on infecting new cases almost indefinitely.

In 1892 Paris had an epidemic of psittachosis in which 26 out of 42 cases died. The French doctors were naturally a bit slow in suspecting this rare tropical disease which most doctors in Europe and the United States have never heard of. But they ultimately traced it to a shipment of Argentine parrots. Incidentally 300 out of the total 500 parrots of that shipment had died during the passage. The French quarantine officers had not been told that such a death rate indicated psittacosis, nor did they know that a parrot could have a disease almost as deadly to humans as anthrax.

It is quite likely that similar short-lived outbreaks have occurred in most parts of the civilized world and that numerous men, women and children have gone to their graves with death certificates certifying pneumonia, influenza and even typhoid when it was really a psittacosis microbe from the filthy feathers and feet of a sick parrot. All authorities unite in condemning the dangerous and not very clean trick of letting the bird take food out of its master's or mistress' mouth. This they agree is the surest possible way of getting the disease in its most deadly form, in case the parrot has it.

Florencia Parravicini, Leading Man of the Company, Whose "Stage Business" Required Him to Caress the Parrot, and He Was the First One to Catch the Disease and, After 17 Days of Agony, Finally Recovered.

Humberto Zuros, One of the Company Who Died From the Parrot Disease.

Pretty Little Carmen Valdez, Who Caught the Disease and Very Narrowly Escaped Death.

What proportion of parrots in their wild state, recovers for psittacosis, is not known, but fortunately, in captivity, they almost always die, which prevents their continuing to spread the germs during convalescence. The sick birds die usually about the time the first crop of their human victims begin to feel sick. The Buenos Aires doctors, alert on account of the theatrical outbreak, were suspicious of a crop of curious cases of "influenza," all living in a long row of apartment houses. An inspector, sent on a hurried tour, reported no parrot in any of the buildings but a more thorough investigation revealed that one had died, a week before, the pet of a visitor who had encouraged everyone to play with the bird. The medical authorities issued the following description of the symptoms of the disease in a parrot:

"A bird affected with psittacosis is listless and sleepy; the feathers stand on end and the wings droop. This condition lasts from a week to a fortnight, during which period diarrhoea and anorexia (loss of appetite) are present. The wasting is rapid and the disease ends fatally in nearly every case. Death may be preceded by convulsions. The disease appears to occur entirely in newly imported birds or those which have come in contact with such birds on their arrival. Parrots that have been in the family for some time are immune.

"Contamination from bird to man takes place in various ways. Thus, in order to make the sick bird eat, the evil habit of feeding from mouth to beak is employed—a dangerous method which explains the frequent onset of the affliction with transient oedema (general swelling or puffiness) of the face and diphtheroid patches in the mouth or the pharynx, or, with angina (any disease characterized by suffocating symptoms)."

Another equally dirty and dangerous habit is to fondle the sick creature and warm it under the clothes. The bird's feathers and feet are certain to be infected from its droppings, for the parrot, even in health, is not a cleanly bird, and thus the fondler's hands and clothes become infected. But the disease can be caught without direct contact with a parrot. Merely touching the cages, perches or any other object that has been exposed to the sick bird is enough. There is good reason to believe that just standing in the same room and inhaling the invisible dust particles, stirred up when the parrot ruffles its feathers, is sufficient to transfer the disease to a human being. In human patients, psittacosis is described as follows:

"The general character of the disease is that of a typhoid infection, rapidly complicated by pulmonary troubles. The incubation seems to last from 7 to 12 days. The onset is insidious. The patient complains of lack of appetite, lassitude, and pains in the limbs, kidneys, and trunk. The morbid process commences with peribuccal oedema (swelling around the mouth), prostration, and headache which may be accompanied by epistaxis (nosebleed), nausea, and vomiting. Rigors (chills) are constant and the temperature may exceed 104 degrees F. with a slight morning remission.

"After 4 or 5 days, the stationary stage declares itself. The symptoms of the onset become more marked, the patient is prostrated, and lies in a state of muttering or of delirium with restlessness and involuntary movements. The tongue is coated, the thirst is acute, and the loss of appetite is absolute and lasts until the fever fails. Vomiting of food and of bile is frequent, and the stomach is slightly distended, and the bowels affected. The liver is normal, but the spleen is generally enlarged. Pulmonary troubles are early and of the highest importance. At the onset, the cough is paroxysmal and distresses the patient greatly. The dyspnoea (labored breathing) is severe if the pulmonary lesions are extensive. According to the case, we may find general bronchitis, lobar or lobular pneumonia, or pleural effusion. Nervous troubles (headache and delirium) increase during the course of the disease, especially when thoracic complications appear; and we may then note hallucinations.

"The disease remains stationary for 8 or 10 days and then, in favorable cases, the fever diminishes, the other symptoms improve, the patient passes out of his stupor and enters on convalescence, although he remains feeble and anaemic for several weeks. The mortality amounts to 37 per cent, being highest in old people and much less in children. In the majority of fatal cases, death is due to pneumonia which may be lobular or lobar. Patients should be isolated. In general, the treatment is that used in typhoid fever and pneumonia."

This parrot disease may make its appearance in any part of the world where there is a sick parrot. In London Dr. Daniel L. Thomas has just died, cable dispatches report, from psittachosis.

In 1893, Nocard, a French bacteriologist announced that he had isolated the specific psittacosis germ from the marrow of a parrot, and that it belonged to the group of colon bacilli. Three years later, in an outbreak of the disease among human beings, Gilbert and Fournier found the Nocard bacillus in the heart's blood of one of the men who had died. According to them, it proved to be an extraordinarily virulent organism, killing rabbits, mice and pigeons within 14 to 18 hours of inoculation.

However, in 1896, laboratory methods were not as exact as today and more recent investigation indicate that the Nocard bacillus may not be the specific germ but, as often happens in other infections, it is one of those that appear on the scene after another microbe has begun the war and perhaps fought the decisive battle. In any case, a droopy parrot is something to be avoided by anyone ambitious to keep out of the hospital and cemetery.

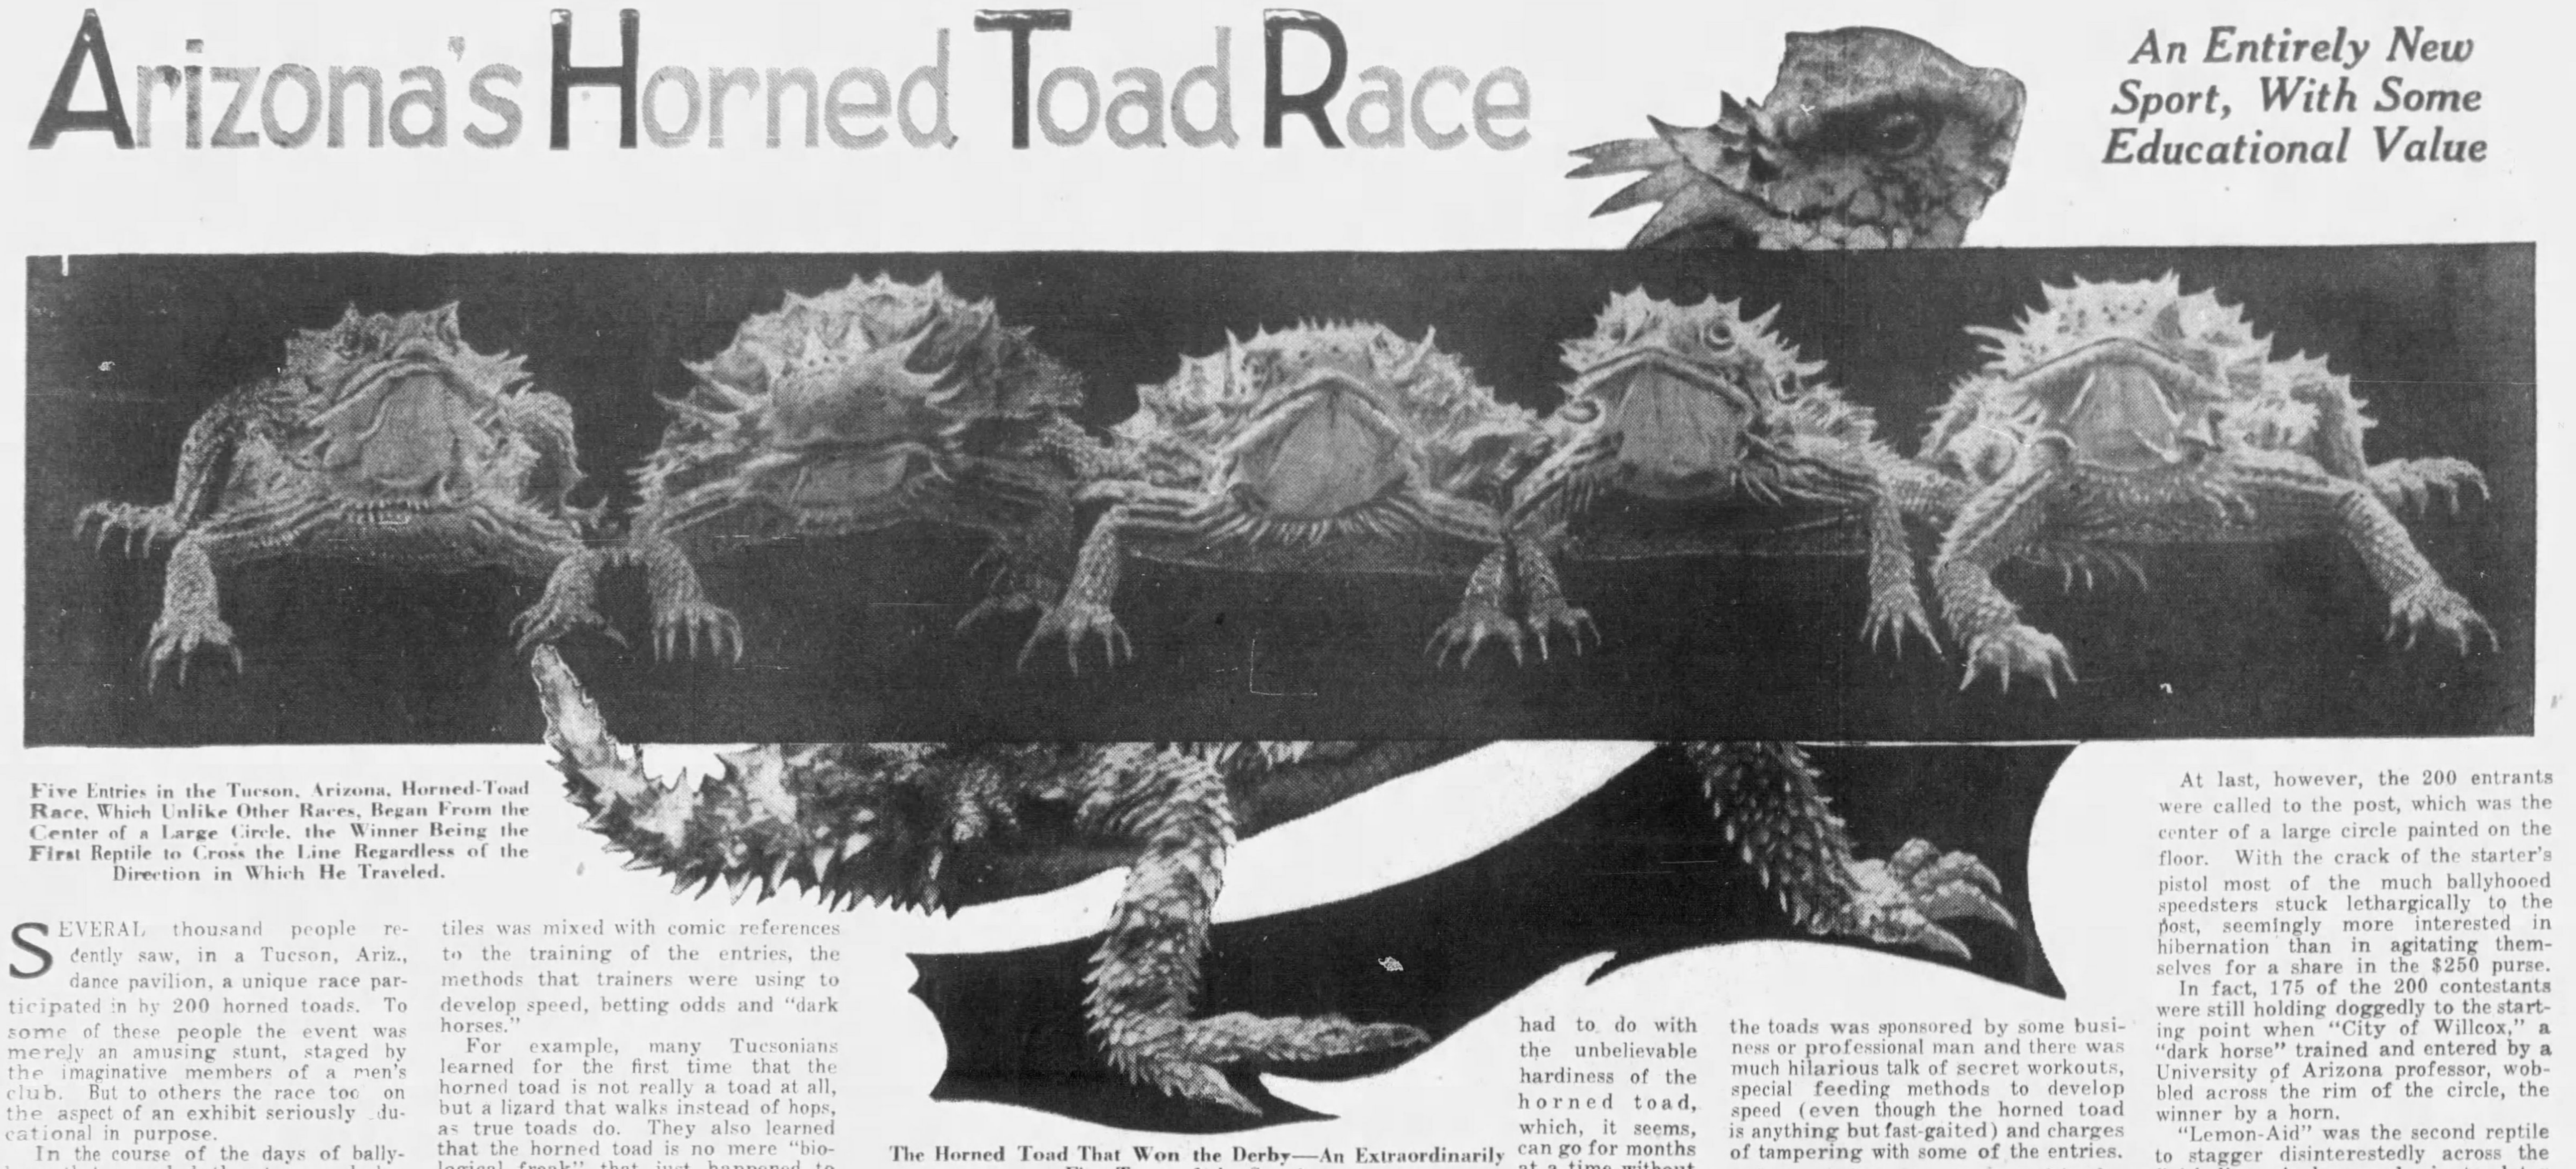
Arizona's Horned Toad Race

An Entirely New Sport, With Some Educational Value



Five Entries in the Tucson, Arizona, Horned-Toad Race, Which Unlike Other Races, Began From the Center of a Large Circle, the Winner Being the First Reptile to Cross the Line Regardless of the Direction in Which He Traveled.

The Horned Toad That Won the Derby—An Extraordinarily Fine Type of the Species.

SEVERAL thousand people recently saw, in a Tucson, Ariz., dance pavilion, a unique race participated in by 200 horned toads. To some of these people the event was merely an amusing stunt, staged by the imaginative members of a men's club. But to others the race too on the aspect of an exhibit seriously educational in purpose.

In the course of the days of ballyhoo that preceded the strange derby, much interesting information about the rather fearsome little desert reptiles was mixed with comic references to the training of the entries, the methods that trainers were using to develop speed, betting odds and "dark horses."

For example, many Tucsonians learned for the first time that the horned toad is not really a toad at all, but a lizard that walks instead of hops, as true toads do. They also learned that the horned toad is no mere "biological freak" that just happened to appear in the arid wastes of the desert, but a descendant of the huge dinosaurs which roamed over the Southwest millions of years ago. They also found out that the horned toad is not, as many suppose, a pestilential curiosity because his diet consists largely of ants and other insects that are an annoyance and an expense to man.

The pedigrees of certain of the toads entered in the race were humorously gone into, but even in this seemingly senseless "horse play," the people of Tucson were able to draw more than a few interesting facts about an unsightly creature that most of them had ignored all their lives as just another curious animal.

Not the least surprising of these facts had to do with the unbelievable hardiness of the horned toad, which, it seems, can go for months at a time without air, food or water. Few other creatures on earth can hibernate as long as the horned toad and emerge from the long sleep alive and kicking.

Weeks before the widely advertised race, the desert around Tucson was combed for entrants in the strangest derby ever staged, and 200 horned toads were gathered and housed in a specially constructed stable. Each of the toads was sponsored by some business or professional man and there was much hilarious talk of secret workouts, special feeding methods to develop speed (even though the horned toad is anything but fast-gaited) and charges of tampering with some of the entries.

So much interest was aroused in the race by all this colorful and obviously cooked-up publicity that the race drew a $3,000 gate and the dance pavilion was packed to the doors on the night of the contest. Mock judges delayed the start to investigate charges that some of the toads had been doped and that others had been fed mysterious potions which rendered them capable of great speed for creatures of their slow-moving breed.

At last, however, the 200 entrants were called to the post, which was the center of a large circle painted on the floor. With the crack of the starter's pistol most of the much ballyhooed speedsters stuck lethargically to the post, seemingly more interested in hibernation than in agitating themselves for a share in the $250 purse.

In fact, 175 of the 200 contestants were still holding doggedly to the starting point when "City of Willcox," a "dark horse" trained and entered by a University of Arizona professor, wobbled across the rim of the circle, the winner by a horn.

"Lemon-Aid" was the second reptile to stagger disinterestedly across the finish line. And several minutes later "Weinco" captured the remaining prize just before settling down for a long night's sleep.

All the entries in the derby literally had "blood in their eyes" because every horned toad expels a tiny stream of blood from its eye when aroused—and all of the alleged racers were aroused even though most of them made no effort to crawl away from the barrier.

London's Zoo Acquires "Ancestor of Man"

THE monkey house of London's world-famous zoo boasts many strange breeds of apes, but none so curious as the pair of pigmy lemurs that recently arrived there from the jungles of Madagascar. The two diminutive simians are not mates, but a mother and child. The youngster was born on the steamer on the way to England and may or may not survive the rigors of the London climate.

The lemur is distinctive in the species of simians because in evolutionary theory it represents one of the first progressions from lower animal life toward the human plane. That is why it is often referred to as man's ancestor.

The pigmy lemur is comparatively rare and is extremely difficult to capture. Lemurs live in the highest trees and usually make their habitat in remote parts of the Madagascar jungle almost inaccessible to man. Because of the creature's small size and light weight it can negotiate branches where even average-sized monkeys do not dare venture, and it seldom falls a prey to jungle beasts that delight to feast on monkey meat.

The directors of the London Zoo are not yet sure that their two rare specimens of the "ancestor of man" are going to live in captivity, even though the temperature of their cage is carefully adjusted to their bodily needs and a natural diet of insects, birds' eggs, buds and fruits is being supplied them.

The lemurs, unlike most of the families of apes, are very tiny, ranging in size from types no bigger than a squirrel to other breeds about the size of the common house cat. They are nocturnal creatures and prefer to sleep in the daytime and feed at night. Their faces are the funniest in the whole monkey kingdom because of their pointed snouts and big, saucer-like eyes. Their fur is soft and woolly and their tails are unusually long for the size of their bodies.

Lemurs are about the noisiest creatures that inhabit the jungle, and they usually are found in large colonies that chatter and screech in the treetops. The din they make is piercing and high-pitched and can be heard for miles.

The tiny simians are so wary, however, that they take flight at the slightest sound, and travel so fast through the branches that no human hunter can hope to catch them. They possess an uncanny judgment of sound and seem to know whether the noises they hear are beasts who cannot reach them or men stalking them with guns.

The Big Vibrator, the Newest Mechanical Beauty Aid Being Used by Miss Dolly Jarvis for Spinal Massage.

Quivering Newest Beauty Aid

THE latest device which seems to lend weight to the modern belief that pulchritude is a matter of mechanics, is a giant massage machine that operates on the vibratory principle. Chief among the many claims for its beautifying effect is its alleged ability to take off flesh where taking off is necessary to health and beauty, or to put on flesh if the "patient" is inclined to be unduly skinny and burdened with unsightly hollows that should be comely curves.

The vibrator might be said to quiver the user into a state of good-looking vitality, for its business end is a kind of circular pad that massages the flesh with surprisingly rapid strokes. Unlike some of the beautifying contraptions now in more or less common use, the machine has no belts or straps that go around whatever part of the body the user desires agitated, but depends upon its mechanical hand to massage with a speed and thoroughness impossible even to skilled masseurs.

The invention appears to be a small cannon, and the military effect is heightened by the pull cord by which the device is turned on and off. This cord looks like the lanyard by which swashbuckling seadogs of several generations ago discharged the "Long Toms" filled with deadly loads of grapeshot and cannister.

The beautifying "gun" is mounted on a base much in the manner of small cannon and its muzzle, which ends in the pad that quivers the user, can be elevated or lowered so that any part of the anatomy from the feet to the head can be set a-quivering.

The girl in the photograph is just about to pull the string that will start the new beauty device to agitating the flesh on her pretty shoulders. When she feels that sufficient treatment has been administered by the mechanical masseur, she merely pulls the string again and the current is shut off.

Like most of the present-day inventions to shake and rub and roll a person into vitality, the vibrations can be adjusted to the particular needs of the individual. For the sturdy person the machine can give a brand of quivering that would do credit to a husky rubber in a Turkish bath, and if the user is too frail to stand such strenuous treatment, the quivers can be made gentle and soothing.

The principle of the newest aid to health and beauty is the same as that of many other devices that massage by mechanical means—that of stimulating the circulation of the blood in the parts massaged, and thus speeding up the process of metabolism. All of these machines really supply a substitute for physical exercise.

If the body has a surplus of fat, massage tends to reduce the quantity of fat and replace the burdensome avoirdupois with a lesser and more alive amount of healthy muscle. And if the body is underweight, massage tends to fill in unsightly hollows with solid flesh induced by an awakened blood stream.

A Holy Man of Tunis, Whose Principal Appeal to a Horde of Worshipers Is His Strange Diet. It Is a Daily Routine for Him to Eat Several Live Scorpions.

Holy Man Eats Live Scorpions

THE holy men of the East, particularly those in Northern Africa and India, appeal to their host of followers by performing a great variety of tricks that would seem to have no connection with religious worship. Most of these stunts seem more suited to the vaudeville stage than to religious gatherings, and are bizarre and revolting to people of the Western World.

Perhaps the most surprising of these stunts is that of live scorpion eating, which is indulged in by one of the many holy men of Tunis. Every day, unless there is a shortage of scorpions, he feasts on several of the poisonous insects, and always manages to take his meals in some public place, where crowds can watch him—and reward him with coins for his dangerous stunt.

This man is, strictly speaking, a fakir. But there is no question of his ability to make a meal on creatures that most people shun as they would a deadly cobra or a man-eating lion. As soon as the barker that accompanies him has attracted a crowd with the announcement that his master is about to eat a live scorpion or two, the holy man deftly takes a kicking scorpion from the little sack he carries them in, and holds the thing aloft so that all can see it is very much alive.

Then, as though he were eating a luscious berry or a delicious sweetmeat, he drops the scorpion into his throat, chews it with apparent relish, and swallows it. He has been doing this for years—and has made a good living at it—and apparently has suffered no ill effects from his odd diet. Sometimes, when he has a plentiful supply of scorpions in his bag, he will eat three or four, one after another.

More than one person more or less familiar with the routine that holy men go through to keep their followers interested has tried to explain how it is that man can survive such a deadly diet. And the only theory they can offer is that, for some strange reason, his system is immune to the poison of the spider-like insect.

On occasions, when the holy man feels in an especially spell-binding mood, he holds a scorpion in his mouth and lets the insect sink its stinger into the sensitive flesh. And, never once, has the fanatic suffered any ill effects from the bites that would make the average person deathly sick.

Fakirs that hold their arms over their heads until they shrink to a thing of flesh and bone, and who punish their naked bodies by lying on beds of spikes, cannot draw an audience when the scorpion-eating holy man of Tunis is in their vicinity.

The natives in the Tunis towns frequented by the fakir look upon him as a charmed creature and have the idea that he has the supernatural power to cure the malady that always follows an attack by a scorpion. His usual procedure is to suck the wound clean of poison and complete the treatment by mumbling incantations that his patients cannot understand.

Astonishing Confessions of a Slave Trader

Episodes and Incidents of Almost Unbelievable Cruelty and Ingenious Schemes to Escape the Vigilance of the War Vessels Which Were Policing the Oceans on Watch for Slave Ships

Inspection and Listing of Slaves at a Trader's Hut Before Acceptance and Shipment.

"IN ORDER to make the venture pay, the slaves were packed as tightly as cases of Scotch whiskey. The Volador was the size of a small coasting schooner; she carried 747 negroes, of whom 136 died in crossing the ocean.

"The slaves were laid on their sides, spoon fashion, the bent knees of one fitting into the ham-strings of his neighbor. On some vessels, they could not even lie down; they spent the voyage sitting in each other's laps. The stench was terrific. A British officer testified that one could smell a slaver 'five miles down the wind.'"

The above is from "Adventures of an African Slaver," by Captain Theodore Canot, "Trader in Gold, Ivory and Slaves on the Coast of Guinea", written in 1854 and recently published in London. Continuing, the account explains that no vessel could be confiscated as a slaver, unless the warships actually found slaves on board which they could produce in court as evidence. This law at once suggested to the slave runner the same simple method that the rum-runner uses when he is about to be caught—to destroy the evidence by throwing it overboard.

However, it is one thing to toss over 600 cases of whiskey which will sink to the bottom and a very different one to hurriedly dispose of 600 live negroes, so that their murdered bodies would not be picked up by pursuing warships. The fiendish ingenuity with which one of Capt. Canot's friends, Capt. Homans of the slave ship Brillante, got around this difficulty, is told as follows:

"This slaving brig was trapped, late in the afternoon, by four cruisers approaching from different quarters. There was no chance for escape. However, the light breeze died away and night crept over the sea before the first of the British vessels came within gunshot.

"Hidden by darkness, Capt. Homans made his preparations for saving his vessel. He set his largest anchor ready for dropping. He hauled the chain-cable out through the hawse pipe and stretched it around the ship outside the rail. He brought the slaves on deck, to the number of six hundred. Piling them up at the rail, he bound them to the anchor chain by strong cords, attached to their manacles.

"Soon the boats of the four cruisers were heard approaching through the night. There was the grind of oarlocks, the splashing of oarblades in the still water. Capt. Homans cast loose the anchor. Through the night arose a confused wail of voices as the chain with its load of living bodies followed the anchor down to the bottom of the calm ocean.

"The cries of the slaves had been heard by the British sailors, the smell of the slaves clung heavily to the vessel, the huge kettles for cooking their food, and the food itself, and some of their manacles, were still on board; but there was no slave left to serve as evidence. Homans, jeering in the faces of the boarders, went free."

The slaver-author virtuously points out that such wholesale murders did not happen any oftener than the slavers could help. Capt. Homans had saved his vessel but lost his precious cargo which was very bad business. In fact, the cargoes were worth so much more than the ships that in the last days of the slave industry when the slave laws became tighter it was customary after successfully landing a cargo to avoid further trouble by burning the ship.

Neither did anyone mean to have his human cattle die or get sick. Corpses were a total loss and a sick slave had to be sold at a bargain. The wretches were forced to make the entire ocean passage stark naked, not from meanness, but because, only in that state, packed like sardines as they were, could they be kept clean enough to survive the trip.

Every day when the weather permitted, they were brought out of their foul smelling hold on to the upper deck, in batches, and made to scrub themselves with salt water. Meanwhile the planks on which they spent the rest of the 24 hours were also sluiced down and made at least approximately clean. Clothes, blankets, mattresses or anything of the kind would have become filthy at once.

They did not shiver in their nakedness because the animal heat of their bodies, packed almost to suffocation, kept them more than warm enough. Nor did Capt. Canot think sleeping naked on the planks was too much hardship because the African native often sleeps on the hard ground with hardly anything between. Sometimes, too, the captives would be allowed to sit on deck and indulge in their tribal African songs, using a kettle as a tom-tom accompaniment.

The Spanish slavers being perhaps the most devoutly religious in the business discouraged such heathen singing and were more interested in their spiritual than material welfare. It was the Spanish custom to make the slaves say grace in their native tongue before they were allowed to eat their two pitiful meals per day of rice or horse beans.

Next to a British or French cruiser, the thing that most terrified the slaver was the appearance of smallpox among the slaves. In those days, before vaccination had made that scourge only a memory, an outbreak was likely to wipe out not only 60 per cent or 70 per cent of the slaves, but so many of the crew that the survivors would be unable to work the ship and control the fever-crazed, dying wretches below.

For this reason a slave captain who knew his business had a strict daily inspection, and at the first sign of a pink flesh and tiny pimples on any of the cargo, that individual would be locked in a special room, flatteringly called a "hospital." Should other cases develop, there was little to do but hope that they would not all perish. If, however, no others came down with the dread malady, it was the custom to get rid of the one case by an overdose of morphine and tossing him to the sharks. Some captains used to toss the first case over without waiting to see if there would be others.

In the daytime, with the feeding, coming on deck, washing and all, the slaves were permitted some liberty in moving out of the fixed position in which each could lie and use up the least possible number of square inches of floor space. But with nightfall it became important that each human sardine should take his alloted posture and no other. The second mate and boatswain, whip in hand, attended to this matter. When they had gone it was necessary not only that everyone should keep his place but maintain strict silence, that all might get such sleep as was to be hoped for.

This discipline was maintained during the night by appointing one in every ten slaves a constable with a whip and authority to beat anyone who moved or was noisy. Sometimes billets of wood were distributed among the sleepers as pillows, but this luxury was never furnished until several days had proved the good nature of the negroes. Slaves have been tempted to mutiny by the possession of even such poor weapons.

At the points on the African coast where the slave ships touched to pick up their cargoes of "black ivory," every effort was made to keep the poor creatures in good health. A negro who was not young and robust not only failed to bring a good price, but more likely would bring none at all, as he might die on the crossing. Before purchasing a slave, every muscle, joint and sinew was examined and even his internal organs as far as could be judged by the prodding of rough but expert fingers. Even a single tooth missing called for a discount on the regular market price.

And as with horse, cattle and dog traders there were fakers, renegade doctors who were skilled in drugging, anointing and generally "pepping up" a sick or even dying slave so that he would look well for the moment. Captain Canot tells of seeing what looked to him like a fine, well-muscled specimen contemptuously pushed aside as of no value. This happened on his first trip, so he asked why and learned that the man had been "doctored"; that is, that he was a doped-up sick man. The expert had noted that his pulse was too high and that was enough.

Slavery was a business that called for conscience and nerves of iron. Captain Canot certainly had them, but once in a while even he got a shock. On one of his marches to the interior of the African continent to bring out slaves, he was invited to sit down to a native feast. It was just at the end of Lent, which, as usual, he had faithfully observed by eating no meat, so the savory odors from the stew cooking in the huge pot made his mouth water.

The first portion was as delicious as it smelled, but when he came back for a second helping something happened that made the hard-boiled slaver turn pale and drop his plate with a gasp. The ladle brought up from the depths of the pot a grinning and very human skull. They assured him that it was only the skull of an African baboon, but the captain knew something about baboons and did not believe them. Dizzy and sick, he fled from the feast.

The slaves were obtained in the first place by various methods. The tribal kings and chiefs found it their most profitable method of taxation. Instead of taking the man's money or property, as civilized governments do, they simply took the man himself, which required no bookkeeping. The chance of taking prisoners kept wars going busily over many parts of Africa, and the Mohammedan chiefs felt justified in selling into slavery every non-believer they could lay hands on. Also it was a practical and profitable way to maintain law and order. Keeping offenders in jail is expensive and most law-breakers had no property to pay fines. All this was solved at great profit to the king by selling all sorts of malefactors into slavery.

One local potentate, suddenly confronted with an offer to buy several hundred slaves for what he considered a fancy price in cloth, muskets, tobacco, gun powder, rum and other valuables, hadn't a man to sell. His jail was empty, and though he was planning a large war for that very purpose, the military operation would take some time and the opportunity would be gone. He was heart-broken.

In this emergency His Majesty remembered all the charges and complaints against the young and able-bodied men and women of his tribe for the last year or two and which he had not considered worth the trouble of a trial. Now, however, he sent his soldiers on the double quick to round them all up that he might remind them of these old forgotten complaints. Then, being judge and jury, without appeal, he rapidly tried, convicted and sentenced everyone of them to be sold into slavery to the white man. As a white man happened to be waiting with his shackles and chain, the sentence took effect that same day and the King pocketed the price.

The white trader in slaves did not himself capture the "goods" he sold to the slave ships. But Captain Canot did once. His caravan, marching through the jungle on its way to buy slaves, came upon a party of a score or more who had managed to escape from another slave dealer. According to the customs of the time and country, these fugitives were fair game for anyone with the enterprise to take them. Captain Canot always had plenty of enterprise.

Interesting New Discoveries of Italy's Classic Treasures

Mussolini's Government Pursues Its Work of Searching the Ruins of Ancient Rome and Also Recovers Relics of Historic Grandeur in the Provinces

THE wealth of ancient buildings discovered in Rome and other parts of Italy under the administration of Prime Minister Mussolini is astonishing

Few people had any conception that so many buildings and palaces, so many treasures remained hidden beneath the soil. Italy was always considered incomparably rich in relics of the past, but its vast wealth in sculptures, stones, bronzes, wall paintings and other relics of the past surpasses all expectations.

It is said that more has been discovered under Mussolini's administration than in the three hundred years or more that have passed since the civilized world, emerging from the darkness of the Middle Ages, first began to appreciate the greatness and glory of ancient Rome. The appearance of Rome itself has been completely transformed and now represents an approximation to what it was in ancient times.

If Julius Caesar had returned to Rome ten years ago he would have had difficulty in recognizing the place where he lived, and when he had found traces of the buildings and streets he once knew he would have been indignant at the way they were treated. But if Julius Caesar were to come back today he would have no difficulty in recognizing his city, and be rather pleased by its appearance.

He could find the Forum, instituted by him, restored nearly to its ancient appearance, and in a very creditable condition, although frequented by citizens in trousers instead of togas. Around it he would find the other Forums established by illustrious Romans. A few years ago he would have had difficulty in recognizing the locality, as many parts were covered by shabby tenements.

But it is not only in Rome that the treasures of the ancient Empire have been revealed. As far as the authority of the Italian Government extends Mussolini has delved for the relics of Italy's glorious past. In the large territory on the Adriatic and to the north, recovered from Austria at the end of the war, he has unearthed majestic relics of the past that were long neglected by an unsympathetic conqueror.

Ostia, once the busy port of ancient Rome and the greatest commercial centre of that time, had been forgotten and abandoned in modern times. No more melancholy sight than Ostia could have been found twenty years ago. Today not only have its ancient halls and temples been restored but it is enjoying something approaching the prosperity of early days. A magnificent triumphal avenue is being constructed from Rome to this port, an avenue like that over which the Caesars rode on their triumphal journeys to Asia, Africa and other distant parts of the world.

That part of Africa which belongs to Italy is regaining the beauty and prosperity it enjoyed when it was a dependency of Rome. Temples, palaces and harbors are appearing as if by magic where until recently there was nothing but desert, and a small population of wild men. Northern Africa furnished a great part of the beef, corn, wine and other products that enabled Rome to keep up a high standard of living.

Later ages abandoned this fertile region to the desert sands and the barbarians. Mussolini is training modern Italians to reclaim the heritage of their fathers and make the wilderness a land of fertility and culture.

Lake Nemi has been drained in order that the Emperor Caligula's house boats might be recovered. It was there that the somewhat insane Emperor held wicked revels of an extravagance that modern lunatics could never attain. Other lakes are being drained and a forgotten Greek city is being recovered from the bottom of one of them, a city that few scholars even had ever heard of. The lake formed over the city more than two thousand years ago and the place was forgotten before Rome became an empire.

The Appian Way, the road from Rome to the cities on the Bay of Naples, is being restored both in appearance and usefulness. The Pontine Marshes, once a region from which Rome drew much of its food supplies, but for many centuries past a breeding place of deadly fever, is being drained. Extremely fertile truck gardens are being created where there was until recently nothing but a fever-haunted swamp.

At Ostia, the port of ancient Rome, the old theatre has actually been restored to enable performances to be given that are amusing present-day audiences. The Forum, the centre of the ancient city, has now been completely cleared. The temple, which was always a prominent feature of the ruins, and had generally been called the Temple of Vulcan, has now been identified, with almost absolute certainty, with the Temple of the Roman trinity, Jupiter, Juno and Minerva. It was an indispensable institution in a Roman city. It faced upon the area of the Forum, at the other end of which was another temple dedicated to Rome and the Emperor Augustus.

As one looks southward from Rome, the highest point which strikes the eye is the Alban Mount, the summit of the Alban Hills. It was crowned in ancient days by the Temple of Jupiter Latiaris, which was a meeting place for the tribes of Italy before the Roman State was consolidated. This sanctuary was reached by a paved road, which ascended from the south, and not from the north, as the modern road does. A considerable portion of this old road has been uncovered. It is from eight to ten feet wide. The standard width of a Roman highway on level ground was about 14 or 15 feet.

On the 'Great North Road" of ancient Rome, the Via Flaminia, an interesting tomb has been discovered a few miles out of the city. It is cut in the rock, and decorated with paintings. Those in the niches, below which sarcophagi were hewn in the solid rock—are well preserved. One shows a vase full of flowers at the back standing in a flowery meadow, toward which fly two spirits or genii, while the other displays two peacocks who are pecking at a garland which hangs between them. The paintings show a belief in a life beyond the grave and are possibly decorations of a Christian character, although that is not certain. The paintings, which probably belong to the end of the second century after Christ, are somewhat like those in the tomb of the Nasonii family, on the same road, and in some of the earlier decorations of the Roman catacombs.

A general survey of Italy, beginning with the north, reveals the great demand of new archeological work done. At Aquileia, ancient mosaic pavements of many houses have been found well preserved, although the walls long ago perished. They are artistic, well constructed colored mosaics, of complicated pattern and excellent effect. They add to the world's knowledge of the luxuries of Roman domestic life.

Pola, in Istria, was before and during the war the chief naval harbor of Austria, but it has now been restored to Italian hands and they are busily revealing its long hidden treasures. The Temple of Rome and Augustus of that city has been cleared and restored, and its steps reconstructed. It was dedicated, as the inscription on the frieze of the front shows (the holes for the bronge letters may still be seen), between 2 and 13 A. D.

In the course of the work it was found that this temple and its twin (called the Temple of Diana, though its real name is unknown) had been erected upon an older foundation, perhaps the base of a great altar. The temple, with the enclosure round it, serves as a museum, containing a number of sculptural and architectural fragments. It is a centre of municipal life as it was in the days of ancient Rome, and in this way Mussolini is realizing his ideal of restoring the life of the Roman Empire.

The lagoon of Val Trebba, near Comacchio, on the east coast of Italy (south of the delta of the River Po, and north of Ravenna), has recently been drained. This has led to the discovery of a very ancient cemetery dating from the fifth to the fourth century B. C. connected with a city that has not yet been traced.

One of them contained four very pretty small vases of yellow clay. Two of them represent deer, one a dappled hind, and the other a stag with branching antlers. The remaining two vases represent a goring bull and a bull in repose. The cemetery may, it is thought, have belonged to the mysterious city of Spina, the exact position of which is as yet unknown. It is mentioned in ancient literature, and its inhabitants were great practitioners of magic. It is thought to have been a Greek colony. Thus new chapters of ancient history are being written.

A theatre was a normal feature of even a comparatively insignificant Roman town. At Gioiosa Ionica, on the east coast of Calabria, a small Roman theatre, close to the railway station, has been found, and has recently been entirely cleared. The plan is nearly perfect, and it is interesting to notice that here for the first time have been found in position some of the terra-cotta jars, which, as the historian Vitruvius tells us, were used as amplifiers in the theatres of small towns, which could not afford vessels of bronze for the purpose. The Romans had considerable scientific knowledge, the extent of which is only beginning to be understood.

In the course of reclamation works on the desolate and marshy shore to the north of Cumae, another city of mystery, long stretches of the pavement of the road, which the Emperor Domitian built across the swamps, have been discovered. The pavement is very well constructed. Like the road which ascended the Alban Mount, it is formed of slabs of lava, with edgings of the same material, and is about 15 feet in width—the standard width of a Roman high road, even in the open country.

This great road was called the Via-Domitiana, and is described in a well-known poem by Statius. It diverged from the Via Appia at Sinuessa, a town now called Mondragone, and formed a direct route from Rome to Naples, which is followed more or less by a newly constructed railway. This is one only of the many cases in which the Romans have shown the way to the moderns.

From Tiriolo, high among the mountains of Calabria, come a number of bronzes, found in a tomb a few years ago. The finest of them is a bronze of the Satyr Silenus, forming part of the decoration of the handle of a vessel of the same material, in which the play of light and shade is remarkable. Silenus was a drunken but gay and happy old man who acted as companion and teacher to Bacchus.

Never it seems has political foresight been combined with artistic taste as perfectly as in Mussolini's case. Ancient temples, roads and monuments are restored. This gives employment to hundreds of thousands of workmen and the country enjoys increased prosperity. Good roads and reclaimed swamps help the farmers. Restored temples become museums, and forums are delightful meeting places. More foreign tourists are attracted because there is more to see, and add to the national wealth.

And in all these enterprises the laborer is made to feel that he is working for the glory and greatness of his country.

To Settle The Question Whether Actresses are "Respectable"

England's Fashionable Regiments, the King's Guards, Where an Officer Who Marries a Stage Favorite Must Resign, Appeal for Relief From the Antiquated Regulation

Miss Teddie Gerard, Said to Have the Most Beautiful Back on the London Stage. Captain Grant Resigned His Commission in the King's Scots Guards to Marry Her and Then Lost His Bride as Well as His Commission.

LONDON, Dec. 2

THE famous King's Guards are the most fashionable regiments in England. Every officer is a man of wealth and fine social position but, while he is very close to the royal family and has many privileges and distinctions, there is one thing he must not do—marry an actress.

More than a hundred years ago, when the English stage was poorly paid and the players not so much better off than strolling street minstrels, it was perhaps true that there were no respectable actresses. And it was at that period when the rule was established that any officer of the King's Guards who married an actress must resign or be thrown out—the social relations between the royal household and the officers and their wives were too close to endure the thought of a disreputable woman of the stage achieving a veneer of respectability and intimate association in royal social circles by marrying an officer of the Guards.

But times have changed. At least some women of character can now be found on the stage and yet the old rule still holds that an officer of the Guards who marries an actress must resign. The growing resentment against this antiquated regulation has stirred the younger men of the Guards to move for a reconsideration and the removal of the restriction. British social autocrats must now make an official ruling whether actresses are respectable.

The Guards regiments have the duty in the first place of attending and guarding the King and in a general way of protecting government offices. The organization consists of two cavalry regiments—the Life Guards and the Horse Guards, and five infantry regiments — the Grenadier Guards, the Scots Guards, the Coldstream Guards, the Irish Guards and the Welsh Guards. The two cavalry regiments are always within an hour's march of the royal palaces in London and at Windsor and the infantry regiments are never far away.

The Life Guards and the Horse Guards are known to most American tourists, because they furnish the mounted sentries who stand like statues in their steel breastplates and helmets in front of the army headquarters in Whitehall. It costs more money to be an officer in these two cavalry regiments than in any other military organization and the officers are all supposed to be sons of millionaires. The officers in the Foot Guards regiments are the pick of the aristocracy.

These young men are the most favored specimens of the human race in a country which puts wealthy young men before everybody. It is considered very important to keep them unencumbered by undesirable relations or troubles of any kind. They live only to be ornamental.

Mrs. Hilton Philipson, Formerly Mabel Russell, Married an Officer of the Scots Guards and Was Herself Elected a Member of Parliament.

Therefore, the King has authorized regulations requiring every officer to obtain his colonel's permission before marrying. He must never marry an actress. The colonel makes enquiries about every fiancee whose name is placed before him and if there is anything hazy about her past or anything peculiar about her family for generations back he forbids the marriage. If the officer disobeyed the edict he would be dismissed in disgrace and so he usually resigns before marrying an actress.

When the rules were made a hundred years ago, there was no dispute that no actress could be a lady or even respectable. To have an officer of the King's Guards lawfully tied to such a person would be very dangerous and might even affect the purity of the royal family.

The rule has come to have a humorous side nowadays, for many men of the highest position in the country, such as generals, cabinet ministers and members of Parliament are married to actresses.

Moreover, the young officers of the Guards have always spent many of their evenings dallying around the Gaiety Theatre and other resorts and the various colonels have never stopped this practice. Therefore, the rule seems to be that it is all right to pay attention to actresses, but wrong to marry them.

The latest officer to be affected by this ancient rule is Lieut. Francis Francis, of the Royal Horse Guards, who has become engaged to pretty "Sunny" Jarmann, the American musical comedy actress, who has won a great success in London. The son of an Englishman and an American mother, Lieut. Francis is a grandson of the late Jabez Bostwick, of the Standard Oil Company, from whom he inherited an enormous fortune. He has resigned his commission in the Horse Guards, although he did not wish to.

"I just had to do it," said Francis. "How the custom started or who started it, I don't know, but it's the rule and that's that. It is no use trying to quarrel with it, even if one wanted to."

The Hon. Maurice Brett, of the Coldstream Guards, son of Lord Esher, married Zena Dare, noted as the prettiest girl in the Gaiety company. He was compelled to resign his commission in the Coldstreams much against his wishes. His beautiful wife would like to see him still wearing his magnificent uniform and bearskin helmet and feels very indignant about the King's regulations.

"It is a very unfair rule indeed," said the Hon. Mrs. Brett. "If a Prime Minister married an actress would he be expected to resign? I don't think so. Then why should an officer? During the war the husbands of at least two very distinguished actresses were fighting as officers in the Guards and were not asked to resign. I don't understand why men of the same social position should be regarded as undesirable simply because there's no war on."

Many ex-officers with actress wives have protested against the rule.. Philip Durham was compelled to resign his commission in the Scots Guards, when he married Miss Norah Blaney, a talented actress. He called the rule unfair and absurd.

The young Earl of Northesk, well known in America, had a peculiar experience, but one which may happen to other officers. He resigned his commission in the Scots Guards, when he married Jessica Browne, the American dancer. In a short time they disagreed seriously and she divorced him.

Lord Northesk thus found that he had given up his commission for almost nothing. If he had been allowed to remain an officer while testing out the possibility of living with Jessica Browne, he would have soon been freed from his actress wife and able to devote himself exclusively to serving the King. Instead of that he was compelled after he had separated from Jessica to spend much of his time wandering about the world in pursuit of Peggy Joyce and other lively persons.

Jessica Browne has since married Mr. Vivian Cornelius, a member of the British diplomatic service, proving that this important branch of His Majesty's Government does not consider an actress an undesirable encumbrance.

Captain Archie Grant, of the Scots Guards, was more completely fooled than Lord Northesk. Captain Grant became engaged to Miss Teddie Gerard, celebrated for many charms and talents and especially for having the best-looking back on the stage. In preparation for the happy event Captain Grant resigned his commission in the Guards. But the engagement was broken and he had sacrificed his career for absolutely nothing. The army does not allow an officer to step back after resigning his commission unless his services are needed in a big war.

The inconsistency and absurdity of the rule were shown still more glaringly in another case. Lieutenant Hilton Philipson was forced to resign from the Scots Guards before he married Mabel Russell, one of the most refined and popular actresses on the musical comedy stage. In a few years he was elected a member of Parliament and his wife helped his election. A woman not considered good enough to be the wife of a junior officer was an advantage to a man chosen to help rule the country in Parliament.

But this was not the end of the Hilton Philipson affair. In a few years more Mrs. Hilton Philipson was elected a Conservative member of Parliament and proved a very successful one. So the woman who was not good enough to be an officer's wife was good enough to control the affairs of the country, including its army. In fact the King had to make his annual appeal to her as well as to the other members of the House of Commons to grant him enough money to administer the country, including his own household and his Guards.

If Mrs. Hilton Philipson had risen in the House of Commons and asked the House to instruct the Secretary of War to change the unpopular rule forbidding officers in the Guards to marry actresses, she might have changed the system. But perhaps the House would have resented being asked to interfere in such a matter and the fair legislator might have been greeted with audible smiles. As she is a very tactful and politic person, she did not raise the delicate question in this way.

Mrs. Hilton Philipson is a very dignified as well as influential person, and it is believed that she may use her influence in having the objectionable rule changed.

The question is a delicate one and is likely to worry the King a great deal. The duties of the various Guards regiments are very important as far as His Majesty's public life is concerned. Whenever he goes out in state he is escorted by a detachment of the Life Guards or Horse Guards, very impressive on their big horses with glittering helmets and breastplates.

The mounted band of either of these cavalry regiments is one of the most gorgeous spectacles of English life. How the drummer manages to use a drumstick with each hand and still guide his horse is a puzzle to the beholder.

The duties of the Guards are much more ceremonial and social than military. They furnish the band that plays outside Buckingham Palace and St. James's Palace every morning when the Guard is changed. Most of the aide-de-camps and equerries that attend His Majesty at his public appearances are chosen from the Guards. Every officer has a rank one step higher than his actual position—a lieutenant is a captain, a captain is a major, and so on.

The Guards officers are the leading figures in the aristocratic life of England. Many people will recall Ouida's delightful description of a Guardsman as the climax of manly splendor. He still carries the same prestige in English society. The mere presence of an officer from the Guards at a dinner party or ball makes it a grand affair, a success.

The King and the aristocratic leaders of society of course wish to keep the Guards on their pedestal. The thought that one of these lordly young men may be the devoted husband or even the slave of a little thing who sings and dances behind the footlights is disturbing. It is hard to understand how such a gorgeous creature can condescend to such a point, when they have the pick of the well born women of the land to choose from.

Many young women of aristocratic society, thinking it was the footlight atmosphere that attracted the most desirable husbands, became actresses themselves, but then they were cruelly disappointed to find that the husbands they wanted most of all, the officers of the Guards, were forbidden to marry them.

The regulation is part of the internal administration of the army which is left to certain high officers.

The Government of the day could of course interfere and change the regulation which mixes up the lives of so many young officers and actresses. The present Government is theoretically opposed to monarchy and militarism and is disinclined to interfere with a detail that is mainly of social importance. It is from the King himself that the permission will probably have to come to admit women of the stage into the select social circle of the Guards. Will he make the concession?

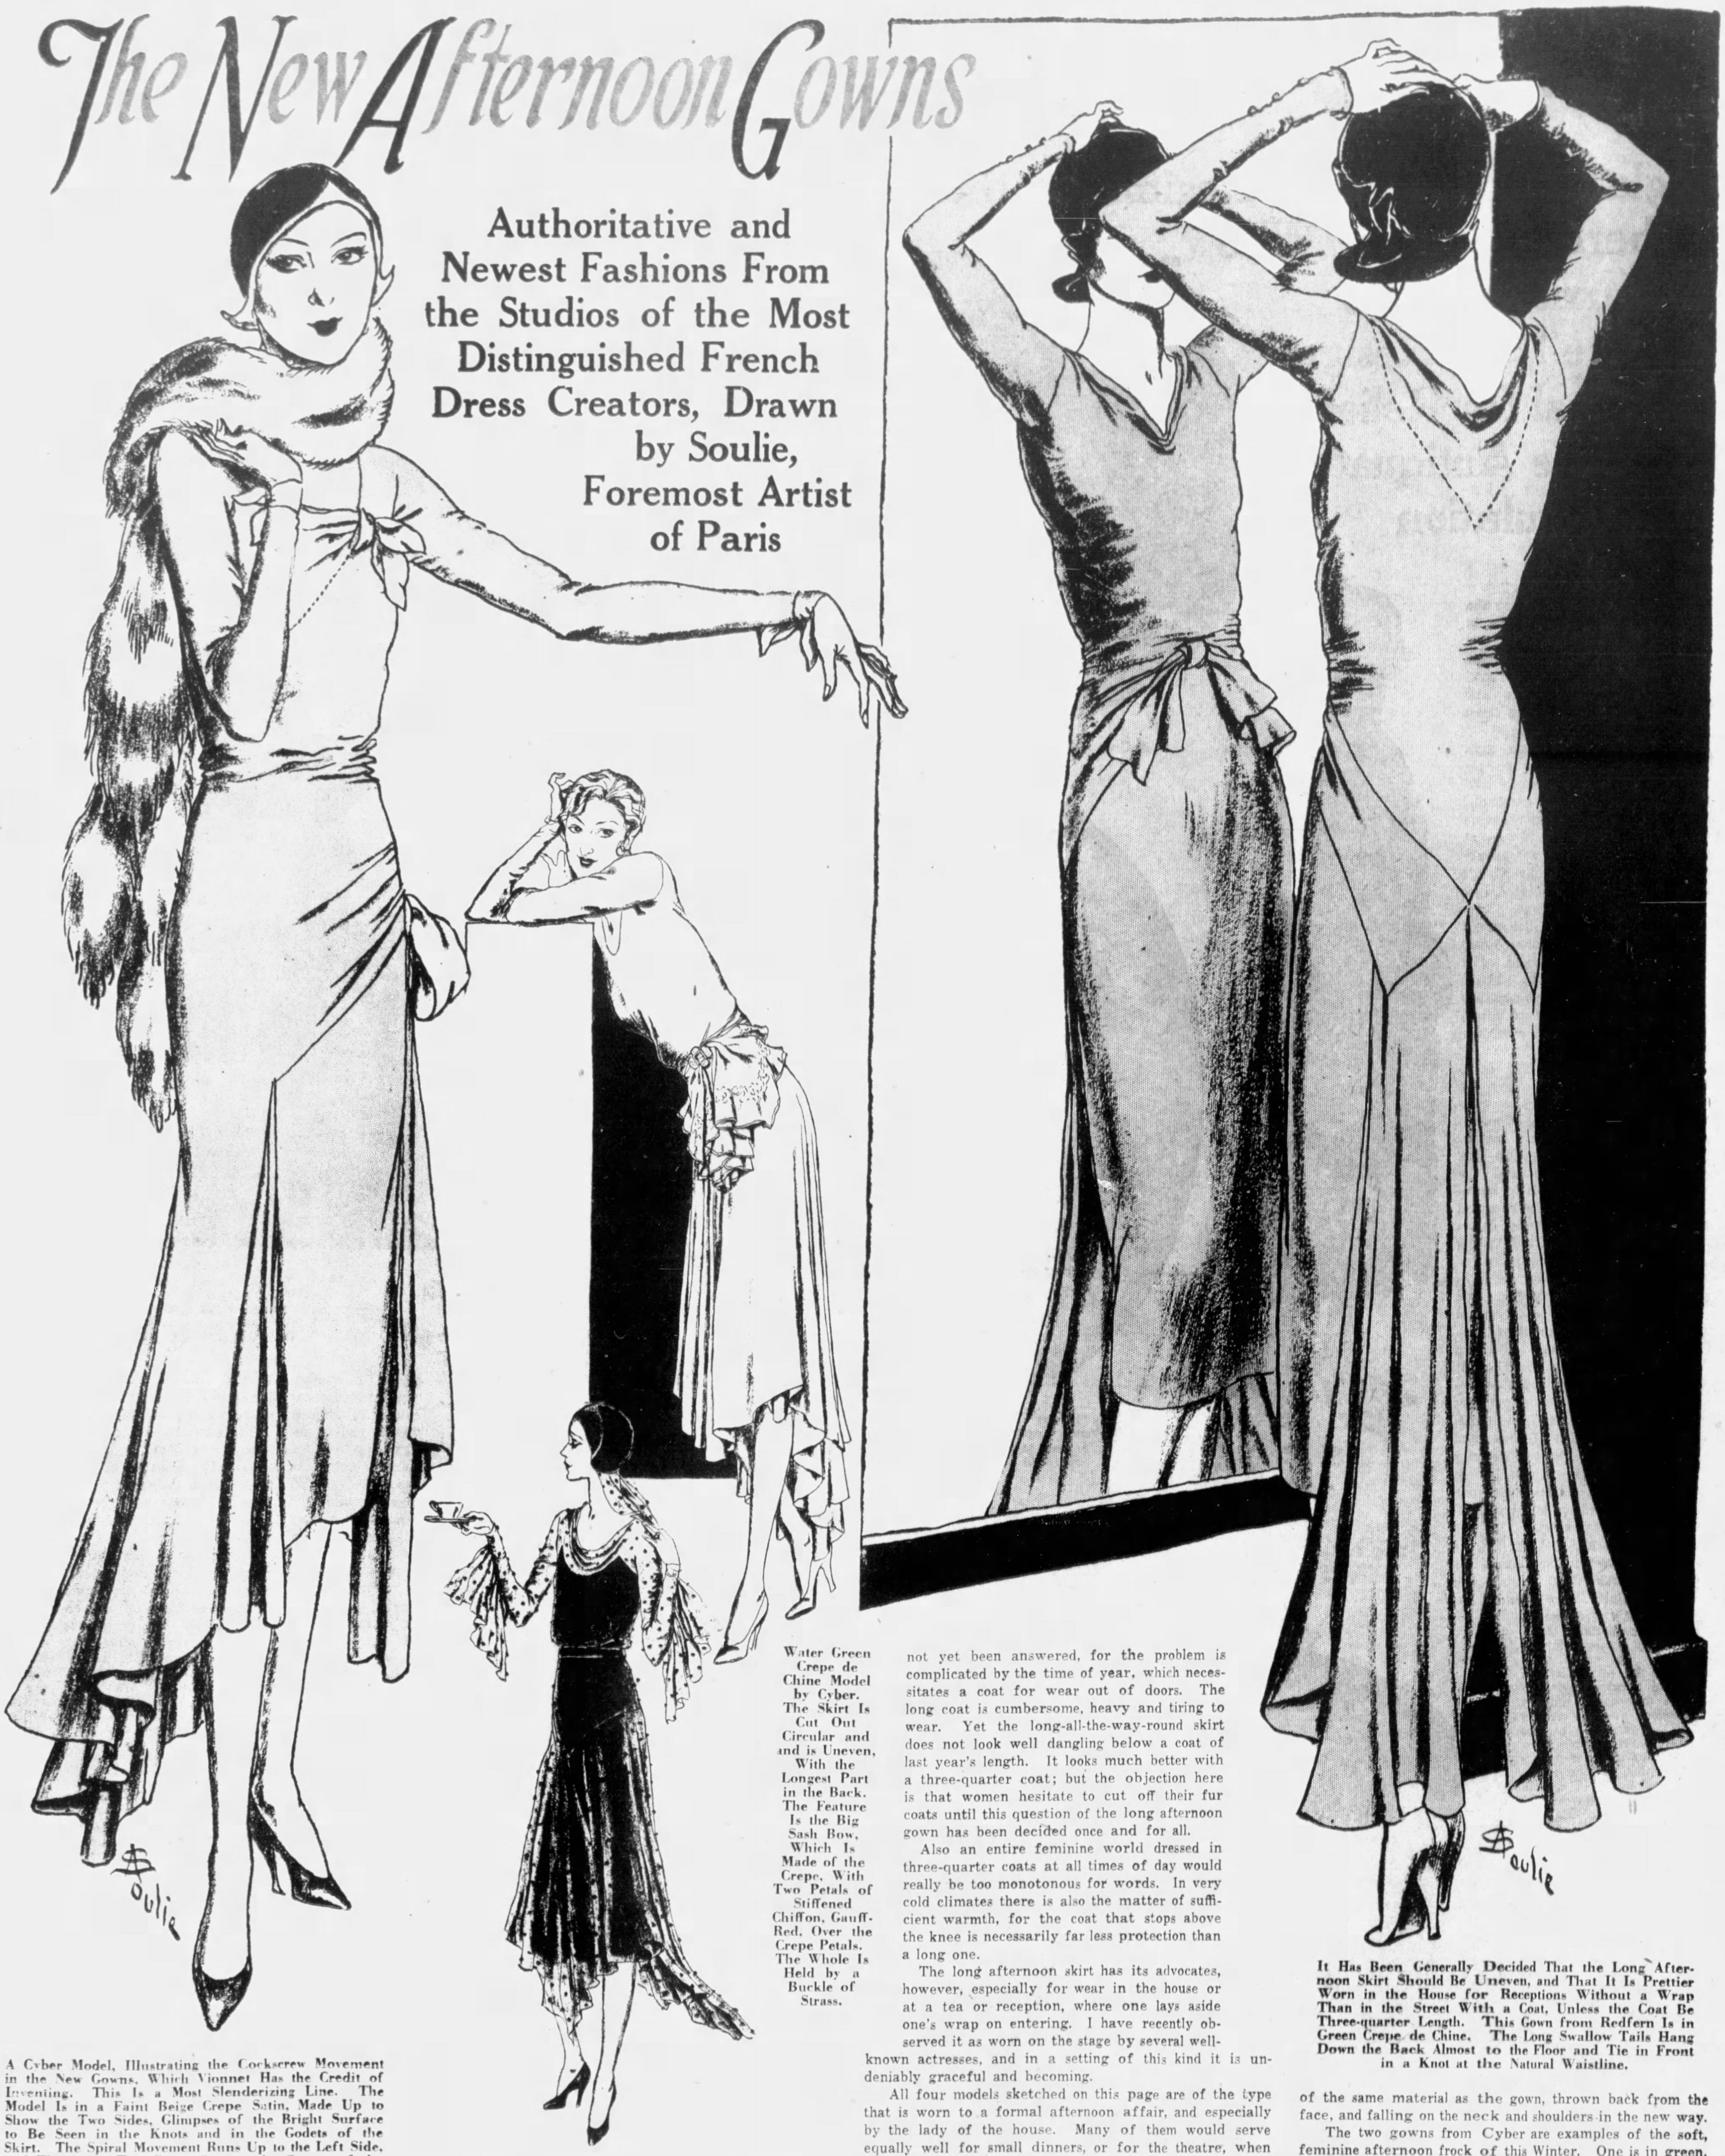
The New Afternoon Gowns

Authoritative and Newest Fashions From the Studios of the Most Distinguished French Dress Creators, Drawn by Soulie, Foremost Artist of Paris



A Cyber Model, Illustrating the Cockscrew Movement in the New Gowns, Which Vionnet Has the Credit of Inventing. This Is a Most Slenderizing Line. The Model Is in a Faint Beige Crepe Satin, Made Up to Show the Two Sides, Glimpses of the Bright Surface to Be Seen in the Knots and in the Godets of the Skirt. The Spiral Movement Runs Up to the Left Side, and There Are Two Bows, One at the Corner of the Decollete, and the Other, a Large One, on the Left Hip. The Skirt Dips Decidedly in the Back.

Water Green Crepe de Chine Model by Cyber. The Skirt Is Cut Out Circular and and is Uneven, With the Longest Part in the Back. The Feature Is the Big Sash Bow, Which Is Made of the Crepe, With Two Petals of Stiffened Chiffon, Gauff-Red, Over the Crepe Petals. The Whole Is Held by a Buckle of Strass.

A Jeanne Lanvin Gown of Chiffon Dotted With Large Chenille Dots and Made Up Over a Slip of Black Satin. The Sleeves Are Left Semi-transparent and Have a Frill at the Wrist. The Neck Line Is Draped Back and Front in a Greek Line, and Is Also Left Semi-transparent, While the Skirt Is Set in a Full Frill on a Tightly Fitted Yoke and Dips Both Back and Front in Semi-transparent Points. The Hat Is a Close Fitting Toque of Chenille, With a Veil Dotted Like Chiffon Thrown Back Off the Face and Falling on the Nape of the Neck in the Back.

It Has Been Generally Decided That the Long Afternoon Skirt Should Be Uneven, and That It Is Prettier Worn in the House for Receptions Without a Wrap Than in the Street With a Coat, Unless the Coat Be Three-quarter Length. This Gown from Redfern Is in Green Crepe de Chine. The Long Swallow Tails Hang Down the Back Almost to the Floor and Tie in Front in a Knot at the Natural Waistline.

PARIS, Dec. 27.

WHILE the long evening skirt has been generally accepted in Paris, there is difference of opinion about the length of skirts in the daytime. For tailored and sports wear the skirt remains short, that is to say, two or three, or in rare cases, four inches below the bent knee.

For the afternoon, however, skirt lengths vary tremendously and this was the principal question that interested the dressmakers at the time of mid-season collections. In some houses, afternoon gowns had decidedly long skirts, ankle-length all round; at others, the length remains four inches below the knee; while at still others, a very uneven hemline, running up to a short point somewhere, and trailing along somewhere else, was offered.

The question of the ankle-length afternoon gown has not yet been answered, for the problem is complicated by the time of year, which necessitates a coat for wear out of doors. The long coat is cumbersome, heavy and tiring to wear. Yet the long-all-the-way-round skirt does not look well dangling below a coat of last year's length. It looks much better with a three-quarter coat; but the objection here is that women hesitate to cut off their fur coats until this question of the long afternoon gown has been decided once and for all.

Also an entire feminine world dressed in three-quarter coats at all times of day would really be too monotonous for words. In very cold climates there is also the matter of sufficient warmth, for the coat that stops above the knee is necessarily far less protection than a long one.

The long afternoon skirt has its advocates, however, especially for wear in the house or at a tea or reception, where one lays aside one's wrap on entering. I have recently observed it as worn on the stage by several well-known actresses, and in a setting of this kind it is undeniably graceful and becoming.

All four models sketched on this page are of the type that is worn to a formal afternoon affair, and especially by the lady of the house. Many of them would serve equally well for small dinners, or for the theatre, when one goes in "demi-toilette."

The one from Redfern is of a particularly pretty cut. The length appears only in the back—in the fashion of our evening gowns of last year, and these long panels tie in the front at the natural waistline, giving the new short-waisted look to the bodice without defining the waist with the hard line of a belt.

The gown from Jeanne Lanvin is the sort of thing that might be worn to a luncheon, or a wedding, or perhaps to the theatre for a matinee. It is in a new material, black chiffon dotted with big chenille dots. The transparency of the neck, arms, and points at the hem of the skirt give lightness to the effect. The hat, also from Lanvin, who always makes hats to complete her frocks, is worthy of notice. It is a close cap of chenille with a veil of the same material as the gown, thrown back from the face, and falling on the neck and shoulders in the new way.

The two gowns from Cyber are examples of the soft, feminine afternoon frock of this Winter. One is in green, for green promises to be one of the best of the Spring colors, it has a very full skirt, dipping in the back, and the feature of the model is the sash belt, tied with big crepe loops at the side front. Over the crepe loops are two others, made of that stiffened chiffon which Cheruit loves to use, gauffred like the petals of a crinkled poppy. The silhouette of this frock is very young, and would be pretty for a debutante at an afternoon reception.

The other model from Cyber is for an older woman. It is in a shade of putty beige, becoming to a fair skin. It shows the spiral movement in cutting, as she has invented so many of the leading principles of modern clothes. The frock is in crepe satin, the dull side being used, but the shiny surface showing here and there, in the bow knots and in the godets that soften and give movement to the pretty skirt.

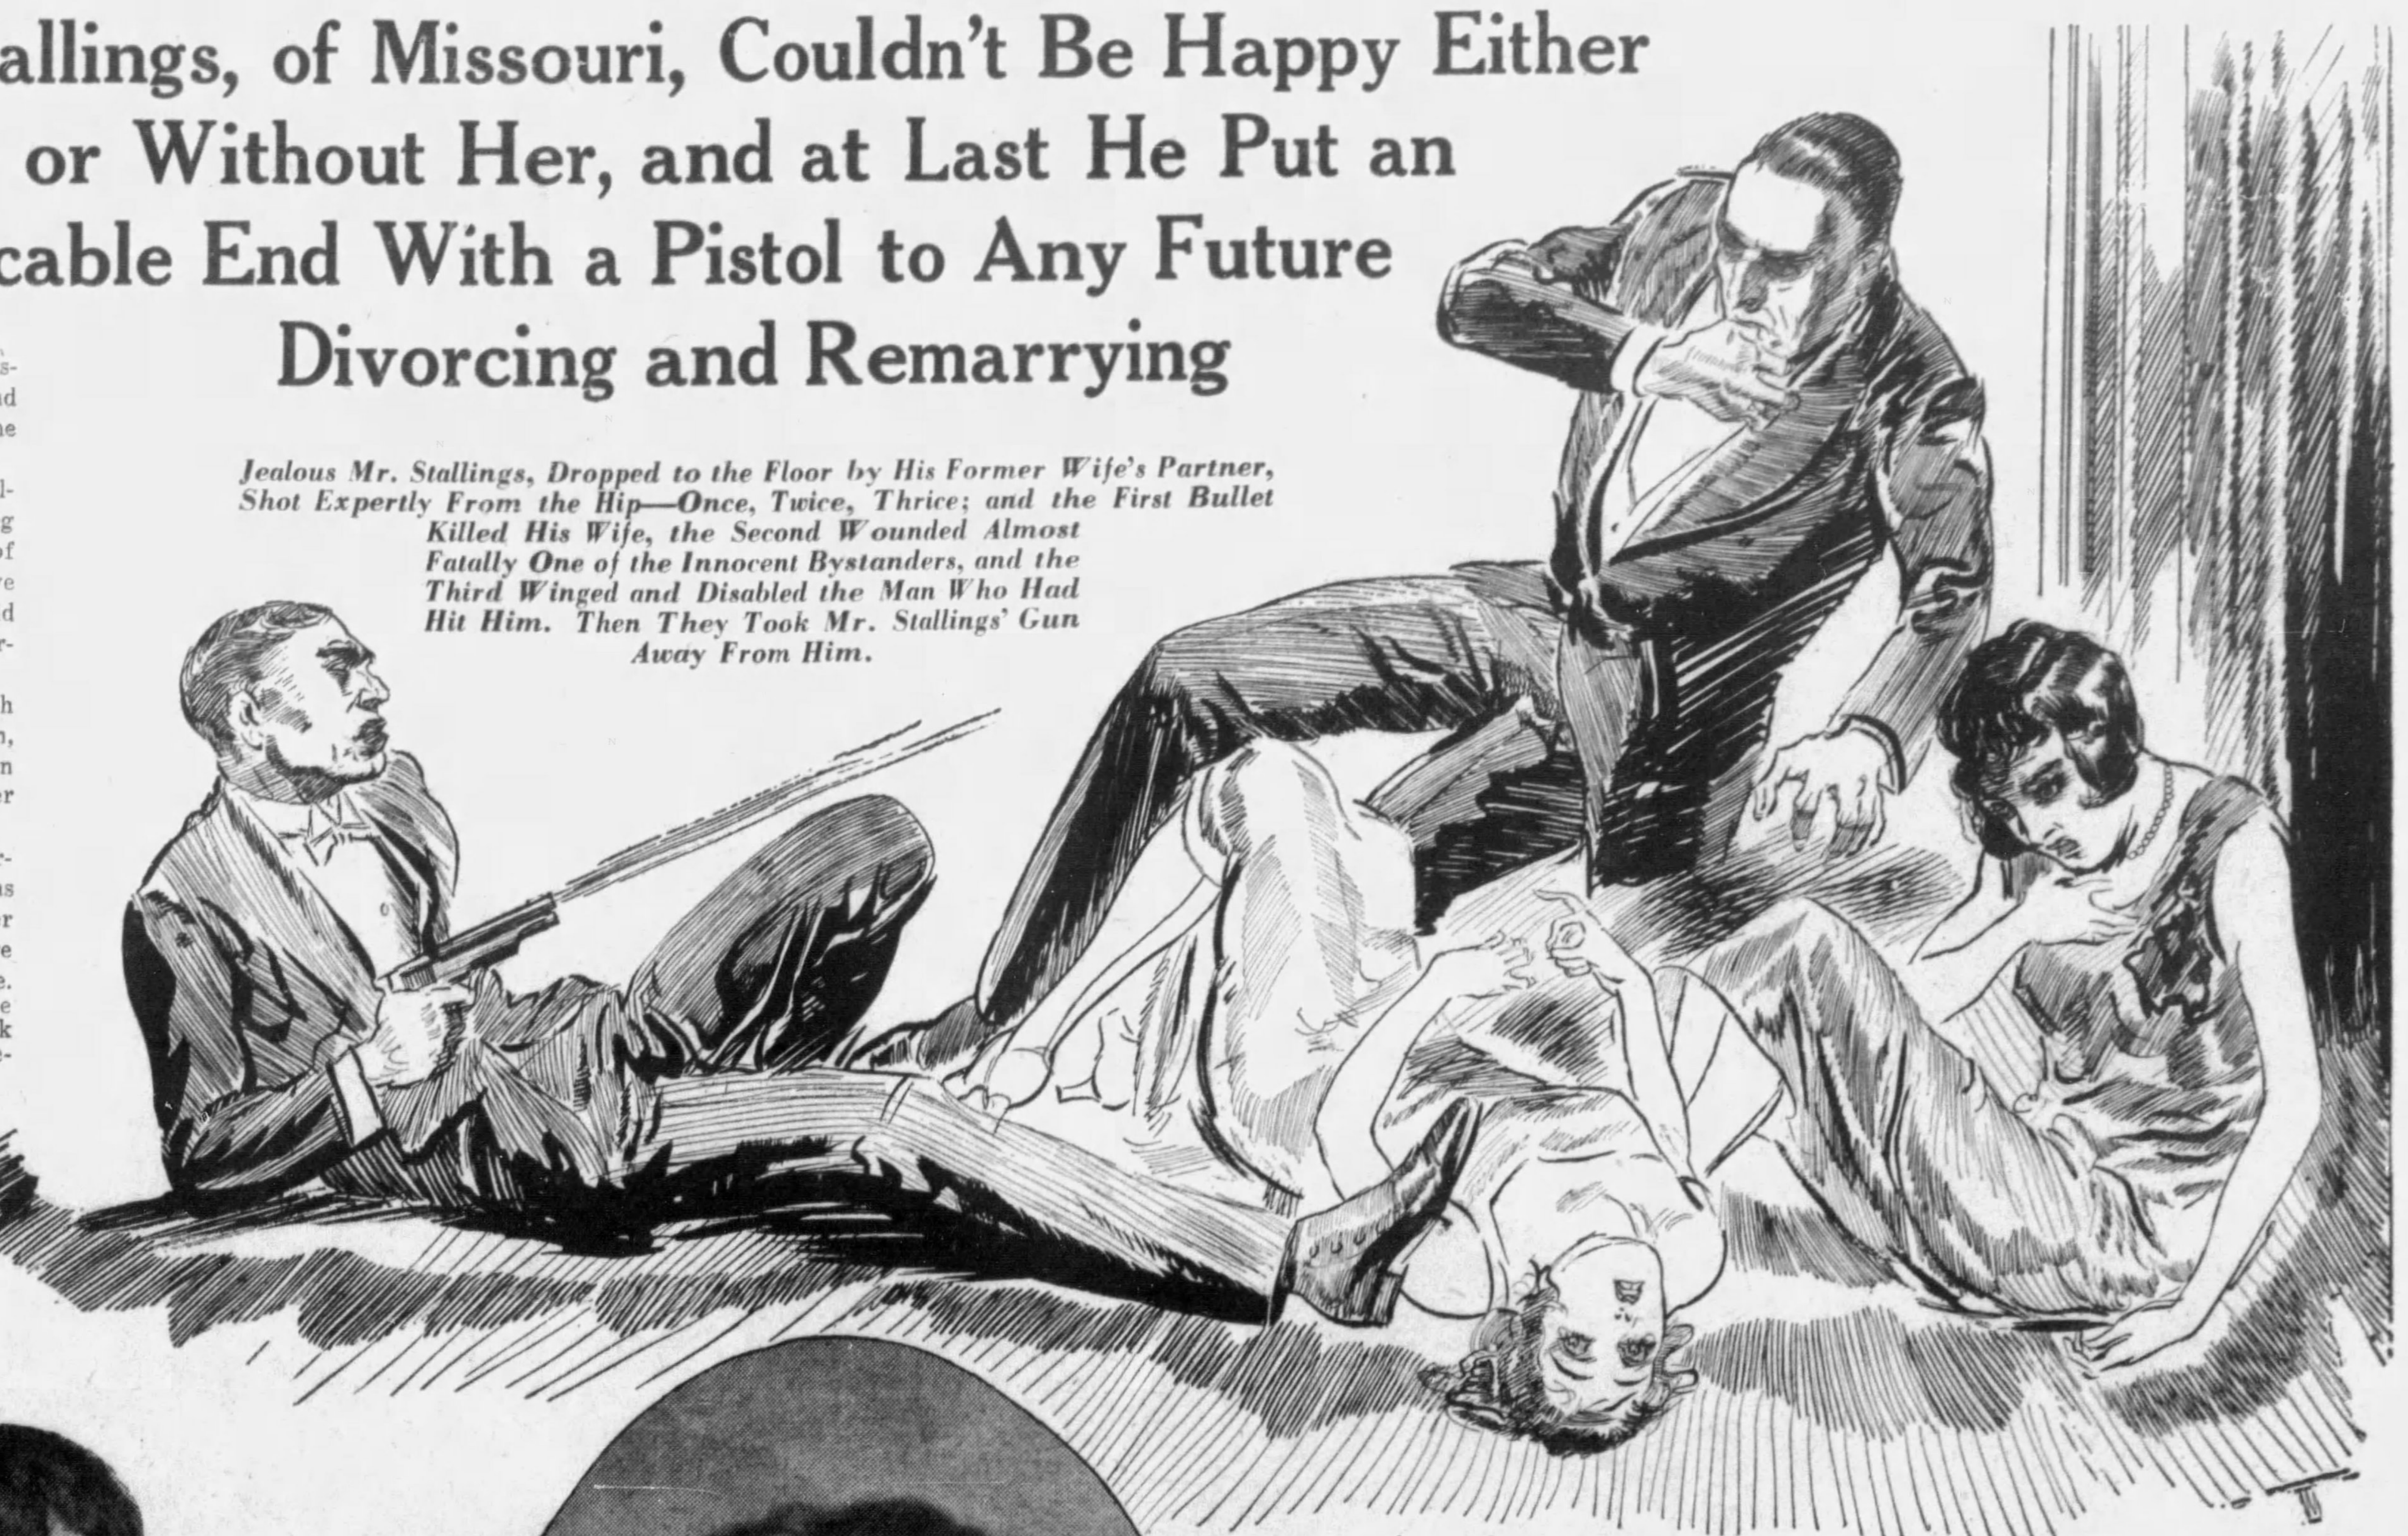
Married His Wife Three Times Then Killed Her

Jealous Mr. Stallings, of Missouri, Couldn't Be Happy Either With Her or Without Her, and at Last He Put an Irrevocable End With a Pistol to Any Future Divorcing and Remarrying



Jealous Mr. Stallings, Dropped to the Floor by His Former Wife's Partner, Shot Expertly From the Hip—Once, Twice, Thrice; and the First Bullet Killed His Wife, the Second Wounded Almost Fatally One of the Innocent Bystanders, and the Third Winged and Disabled the Man Who Had Hit Him. Then They Took Mr. Stallings' Gun Away From Him.

R. C. STALLINGS, of Cape Girardeau, Missouri, killed his wife, wounded a man and almost killed another woman who had the bad luck to step within range of his pistol.

A much puzzled judge and jury, after vacillating between hanging the shooter and letting him go, finally compromised on a sentence of fourteen years. Stallings would probably have gotten the noose had he not sworn that he did all the shooting with a bad aim but the good purpose of protecting a woman.

The jury did not believe that statement much because Mrs. Stallings had recently divorced him, thus relieving the ex-husband of any protection duties, and he had evidently been looking for her with a gun in his pocket.

Still, this man had three times wooed and married that same woman he finally killed and was ready to do so again when his bullet, whether intentional or not, sent her to a place where there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage. A man who thought it a good idea to marry the same woman three times might honestly think most anything, the jury decided. So thev removed him to another place where there is no marrying, but with a chance to come back from it that the other hasn't.

The married life of Mr. Stallings was a long one. Even if his marriages and divorces had been with three different women instead of with the same one, he would have averaged ten years to a marriage, which, in these free and easy days, is not such a very poor record. On June 27, 1899, just before the new century started, the pair was married for the first time in Rector, Arkansas. Then, after a few weeks honeymoon, they settled down near Whitewater, Missouri, where Stallings owned several large farms.

The bride was a city girl, and as this was before the radio, telephone and automobile had given the farmer most of the benefits of city life, one might look for the cause of unhappiness in that fact. But Stallings was a very well-to-do farmer, and it so happened that he had more time to devote to his wife than most city men have. What was even more important, they both enjoyed dancing more than any other diversion and both attended every dance within driving distance.

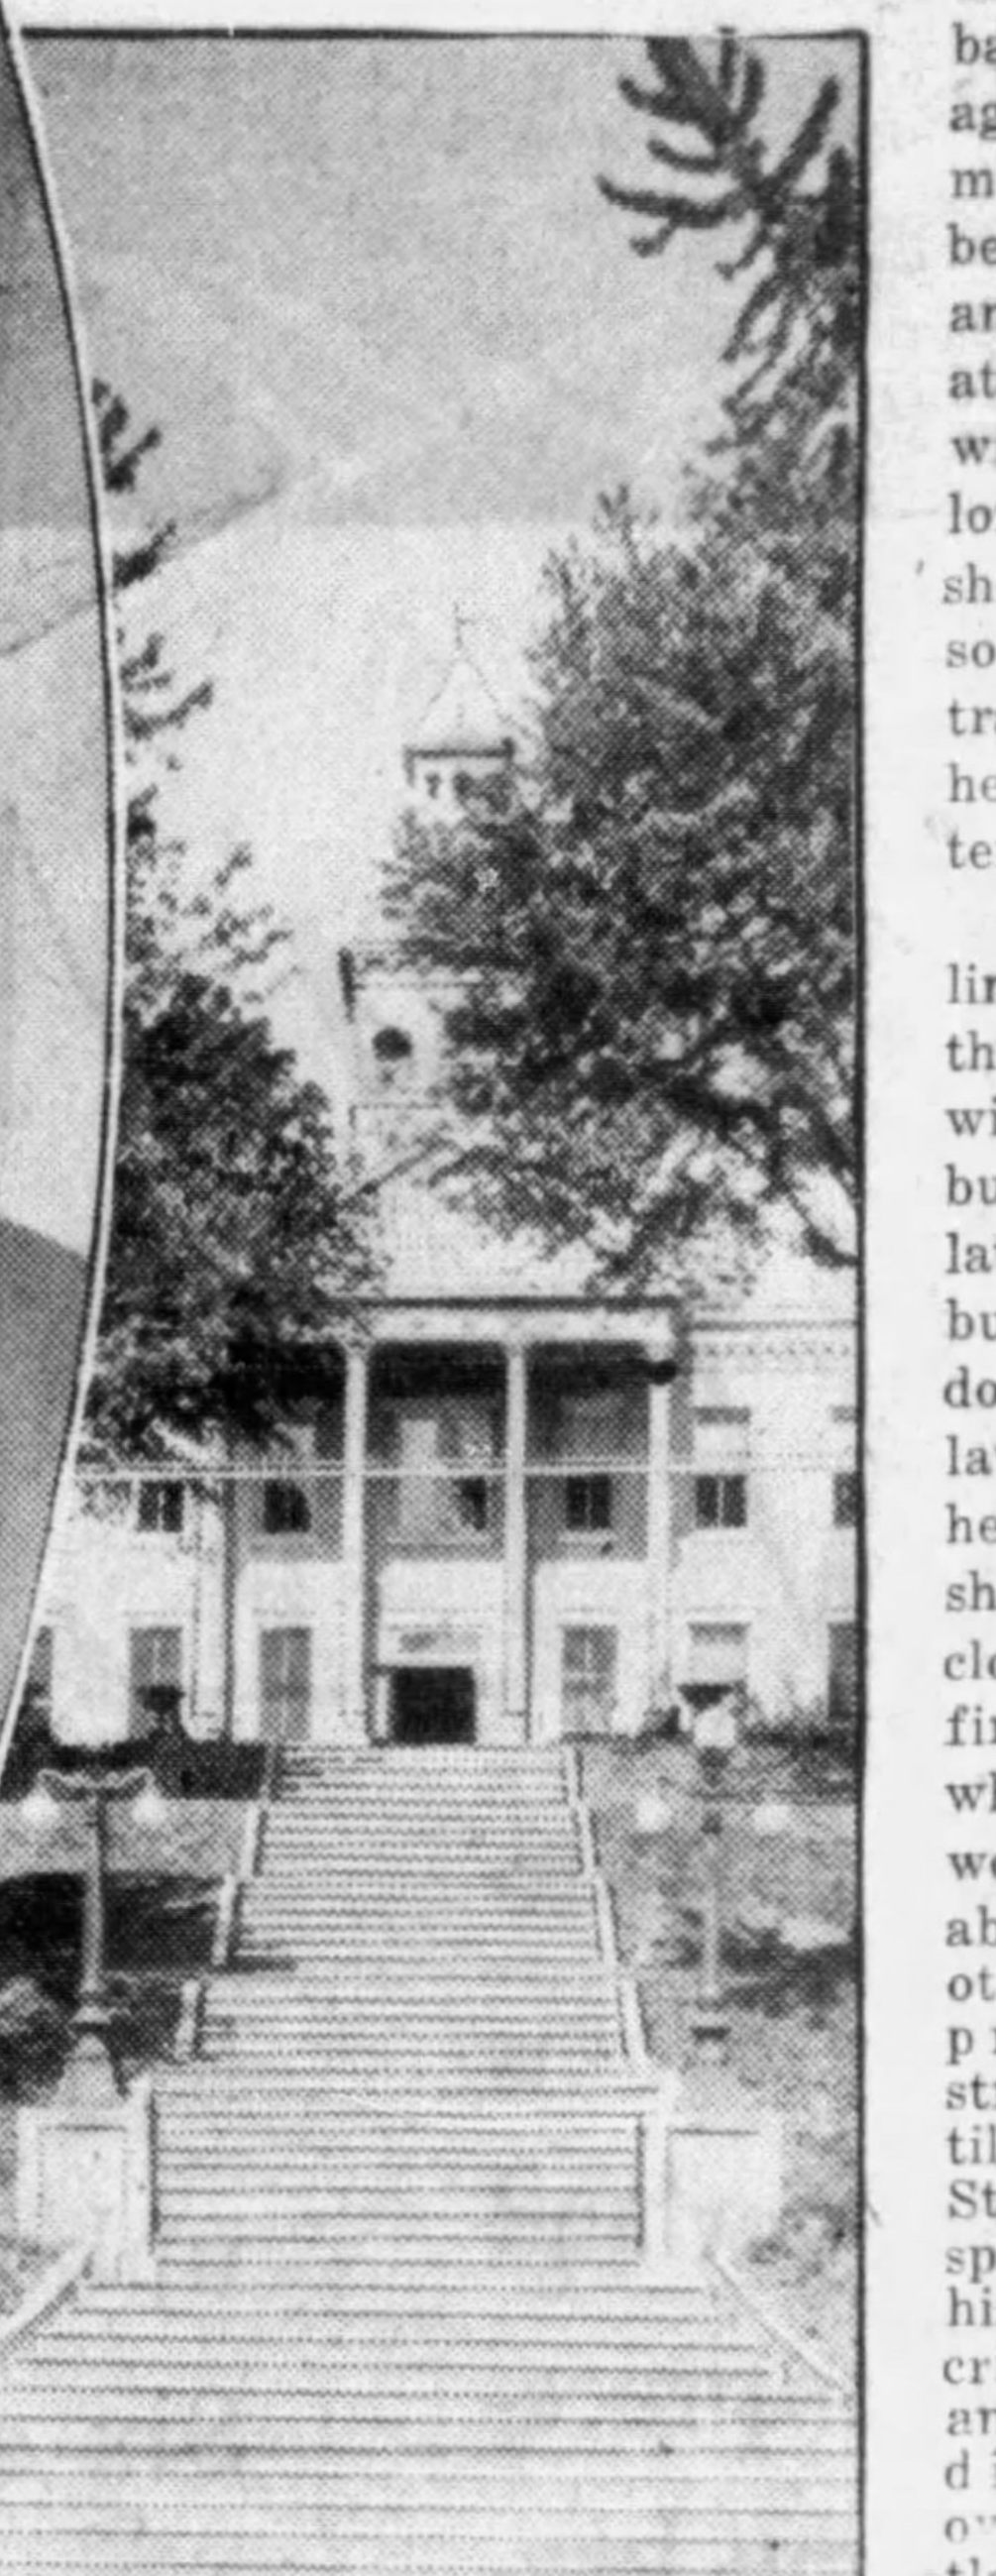
Both were excellent dancers. In fact it was mutual admiration for each other's skill that first drew them together. So, theoretically, they ought to have danced happily through life together, in each other's arms, and nothing but losing a leg have caused incompatibility.

But Mrs. Stallings was very attractive and that ceremony at the altar had not cured that habit of wanting more men to stare at her and clamor for dances than happened to any other woman. The husband saw this with inevitable jealousy, but he was quite sure that his wife meant no real harm by this general flirtation with the masculine world in general. It was more to show the other women that she could have had their husbands too, if she had wanted them. Only if she began to show favor to some one man would it be dangerous, her husband thought.

Mrs. Stallings, Who Divorced Mr. Stallings Three Times and Re-wed Him Twice, and Was Finally Killed by Him.

Mrs. Muriel Boussum, Who Was Shot Down by Mr. Stallings, While He Was Trying to Discourage His Ex-Wife's Dancing Partner.

Mr. Stallings, Who Has Been Sent to Jail for Fourteen Years.



The Picturesque Courthouse at Cape Girardeau, Mo., Where Mr. Stallings Was Tried.

To prevent such an event, Stallings did what marriage experts of both sexes have agreed is the best thing for all husbands to do if they wish their wives to remain sweet and tender and "bridey." He kept right on courting her with flowers, candy, compliments and all the thoughtful details, just as if he were not her husband yet, but still trying to pursuade her to marry him.

This policy has been guaranteed by some philosophers to make most any wife contented, and there must be something in the idea because it worked with this one for a long time. It is said that the first ten years of married life are the hardest and Stallings managed to hang onto his wife more than twice that long before the first break.

All this time many of his neighbors called Stallings a fool to "spoil" his wife that way. And then in 1921 she disappeared. The neighbors saw a broken-hearted man wandering aimlessly about his big place and they hadn't the heart to press him with questions. However, it was known that she had gone away to have the marriage annulled on some technicality.

Those who had criticised Stallings now said: "I told you so. No good can come from pampering a woman that way." But others pointed out that many husbands who had been careful not to "spoil" their wives had failed to keep married even half that long.

Furthermore, Stallings had wavered a bit from his policy. He had criticised his wife. The reason was that at last the situation he had dreaded had arrived, or so he believed. One man was attracting the interest of his wife more than any of the others, including himself, he thought. The trouble was that he was younger, taller, stronger and infinitely better looking than Stallings who did not like the light he thought he saw in his wife's eyes when the handsome man came to claim her for a dance. In the hope of putting out that light, Mr. Stallings told Mrs. Stallings that she ought to discourage those attentions and her reply was to leave his bed and board.

After a while Stallings also vanished from the farm and never returned. A few months later came surprising news. Mr. and Mrs. Stallings were remarried and living together at Allensville, Missouri. Neither would tell much about what had happened, but it was said that Stallings had located his wife shortly after the annulment and found her being diligently courted by several others. To the dismay and mortification of these suitors, Stallings frankly joined their ranks and in a few months beat them all out.

Once more Mr. and Mrs. Stallings were solemnly made man and wife till death should them part, and this time it was done so carefully that there were no legal or religious mistakes made.

"Now we know he's an old fool," said the same critics who had picked on Stallings before for being "immoderately kind" to his wife. But others, including the man himself, felt he had vindicated the theory that perpetual adoration of a wife pays. His rivals must have thought so. He had been such a devoted and attentive lover, as a husband, that his willing but untrained competitors seemed by comparison careless and almost indifferent. Before that same year 1921 was over he had her safely back in the bonds of wedlock.

But was it safe? Love laughs at locksmiths and sometimes at wedlocksmiths, such as the devoted Stallings. After a while the handsome, broad man began to darken the husband's horizon again. And once more the husband became alarmed, and redoubled his attentions to the wife who was no longer as young as she used to be, but somehow still attracted more than her share of attention.

Once more Stallings tried to hide that light in his wife's eye under a bushel of chocolates and flowers, but it could not be done. When he lavished money on her he noticed that she spent it on clothes, and the first occasion on which these were worn would invariably be where the other man was present. The struggle kept up till 1923 when Stallings, in despair, duplicated his mistake of criticizing his wife and asking her to discourage the over-attentive gentleman.

Indignantly Mrs. Stallings marched right out of the house a second time, vowing to be free of a man who couldn't "trust her even to be polite to his men friends." No annulment was possible this time, so she had to get a divorce at Jackson, Missouri.

At Allensville there had been heard that same sort of criticism about spoiling a wife and some came from women, wives of men who admired Mrs. Stallings. These wives maintained that their "foolish" husbands were inspired by Mr. Stallings' abnormal attentiveness to his own wife, into imagining that she must be more than humanly attractive. It was the opinion of the wives that if Mr. Stallings would only treat his better half to a little healthy neglect, there would not be so many curious men buzzing around—"after all, Mrs. Stallings was no longer a chicken."

And once more the Stallings matrimonial history repeated itself and, after six months of heartbroken mourning, the deserted husband vanished from Allensville. And once more he waited till his wife was free and as before, he joined in the free competition he found going on to lead her to the altar.

Apparently it was about the same set of contestants, including the man who appeared to be the favorite. And, as before, the husband, through his long experience, won and carried off the same old matrimonial prize that he had captured twice before! Had it been a tournament cup instead of a woman, he would have had his name engraved on it three times and probably it would have been his forever, without further worry.

It had been much harder this time, taken six months instead of three, and he knew that it had been touch-and-go whether he won her at all. He was suffering the same fate as the great Napoleon, who, in beating his adversaries, could not help teaching them how it was done until finally they had learned enough to whip him.

This third marriage was celebrated in 1924 and the curiously detachable pair, whose matrimonial life could be scrambled and unscrambled over and over, settled down at Cape Girardeau, Missouri, to last four years, until the end of 1928. After that it was the same old story, including Stallings' objection and his usual reward of a divorce!

Stallings woke up the morning after he had complained to find the other half of the bed empty. Downstairs lay a note explaining that she was getting another divorce. Also he found a box of roses. They bore no card but he thought he knew who had sent them and that they were not for him.

Mrs. Stallings got her divorce in the same place and the same way as her last, and as soon as her husband received his notice he set out to woo her a fourth time but could not find her. In a car he spent months searching every dance hall within 50 miles of Jackson, and finally his persistence was rewarded. He found the woman he wanted to find dancing at the Hiawatha Dance Hall, in the country, some distance from Jackson.

The thrice-set-aside husband pranced up gaily as a long lost friend and asked for a dance. All knew perfectly well that he was starting his wooing for the fourth time. His ex-wife said she was sorry but her dance card was full, but there was a note of hesitation in her voice. After all this old husband of hers was the most persistent admirer she had ever had or seen.

Stallings noted the hesitation and persisted in his pleading so well that whether she really wanted to or not, Mrs. Stailings started to rub out a name for the next dance. At this point her partner, a Mr. Jerry Hogans, injected a novelty into the old story. Roughly pushing Stallings aside, it is reported, he said to the woman:

"You needn't dance with him unless you want to."

This is said to have moved Stallings to call the other man a name not at all popular in Missouri and caused Jerry to knock him down.

Stallings saw red. Right on the floor, he remembered the pistol in his pocket and fired three times from his hip. After each of the first two shots there was a woman's scream, and at the third down went Jerry.

Mr. Stallings then arose and discovered that besides slightly wounding Jerry he had killed his ex-wife and very seriously wounded Mrs. Muriel Boussum, an innocent bystander.

Anyway, he had made that last divorce final and irrevocable.

The Notorious Mr. Flow—by Gaston Leroux

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

JUST before the Summer recess Albert Rose, a needy young Parisian lawyer, is appointed by the court to defend Charles Durin, a stupid valet, charged with stealing a stickpin from his employer, Sir Archibald Skarlett.

When Rose visits Durin in his cell after the preliminary hearing, the valet drops his pose of stupidity and persuades the lawyer to get some papers and a leather bag from an apartment in the Rue Chalgrin.

Out of curiosity he opens the bag and finds it full of burglar's tools and records which identify Durin as The Notorious Mr. Flow, the Man of a Hundred Faces—a super-criminal who has outwitted the police for ten years. The lawyer rushes to Durin's cell and refuses to go on with the bargain, but the super-criminal has Rose in his power and easily persuades him to deliver the bag and papers to Lady Helena, Sir Archibald's wife, at Deauville.

Rose is disguised as Arthur J. Hooker, an English gentleman, who recommended Durin to Sir Archibald.

His mission accomplished, beautiful Lady Helena invites him to remain for a time, Sir Archibald being absent in Scotland. They plunge into the mad life of Deauville and Rose falls violently in love with Helena, who seems to reciprocate his passion. The lawyer discloses his real identity and Helena confesses that from the time she was seventeen she has been Flow's accomplice. Flow taught her the burglar's trade and arranged her marriage with the stupendously wealth sixty-seven-year-old baronet, planning to make Sir Archibald disappear, then marry Helena and settle down to enjoy the baronet's wealth. Disguising himself as Durin, he took the position as valet to see that all went well.

Helena persuades Rose to assist her in several burglaries. After the last one they separate for the sake of safety, the lawyer going to visit Nathalie and Clotilde, Parisian friends who have a tiny villa on the beach. He writes to Lady Helena and later sees her walking with her husband, but she refuses to recognize him.

Back in Paris, on the eve of the trial, Durin congratulates Rose for so cleverly impersonating Mr. Flow. At the trial Durin is about to be released when Sir Philip, Sir Archibald's estranged brother, denounces Durin as The Notorious Mr. Flow.

A detective, however, convinces the court that Hooker and Flow are one and the same, which automatically clears Durin, who is released to return to Sir Archibald's service.

Rose thus discovers that he has furnished Durin with a perfect alibi. He hates Lady Helena for making a fool of him but when she writes him to come to her aid as Sir Archibald is dangerously ill at his castle in Scotland, the lawyer hastens to join her there. Once more he is under her spell and readily promises to escape with her if anything comes of her fear that Sir Archibald suspects their intimacy.

Sir Archibald, however, tells Rose that Durin has tried to poison him because he now suspects that the valet really is Mr. Flow and is intent on exposing him. But Helena convinces the lawyer that her husband has more diabolical motives and that they must escape immediately.

CHAPTER XXII.

Conclusion.

COULD I have known into what Helena's proposal was to lead me, I should have fled then and there, but—I did not.

"Now listen closely, Ruddy," she said. "Tomorrow afternoon you will receive a telegram from Paris, calling you back there on urgent business. I have arranged for that, too. You will write a note to Sir Archibald, who will be asleep, leaving the telegram to prove the necessity for your departure, and I will drive you myself to Stirling, where you will be supposed to have taken the train to London."

"Why only supposed to?"

"Because you will come back with me."

"Back to the castle?"

"Yes; the important thing is for Albert Rose to leave without arousing any suspicion, and not to be in the castle when something happens later—which I am going to explain to you."

I waited in silence, dreading what she might unfold next.

"The rest will be nothing," she continued, "and I shall be at your side. You don't imagine we can leave without money, do you? And my only personal fortune is my jewels, which he has stolen from me."

"He?"

"Sir Archibald! Since the death of Fathi he is never separated from them. Right now they are in a little leather bag under his pillow. But there is something else in the bag, too: a paper he has been writing on for the past two or three days. I haven't seen it, but I suspect what is on it. It may well be the whole story of us three: a precaution he is taking in case he should die before settling with Durin and Lady Helena and Lady Helena's darling little Ruddy. This paper he intends to give himself to the pastor from Oak Village, at the foot of the hill. The pastor is visiting his brother in Edinburgh at present, and Sir Archibald has left word at the parsonage that he is to come here as soon as he gets back, whatever hour of the day or night it may be. Here they have orders to take him at once to my husband's room and leave him there, even if Sir Archibald is asleep. The good pastor will wait patiently until the Baronet wakes up, when Sir Archibald will put the bag in his hands, with all that it contains: my jewels, my disgrace, and the story of Mr. Flow, Mr. Hooker and Albert Rose. The Hundred and One Masks will be torn aside, and we three shall be ruined. That is why I am going to drive Monsieur Albert Rose to Stirling and bring back the good pastor to Black Rooks. . . . You will make an excellent pastor, I assure you!"

I did not protest, our situation was too dangerous. In Helena's eyes everything always seemed simple, but the tasks she heaped on me demanded the skill of a genius and the assurance of a master.

"Granted that I assume this role," I pointed out, "Sir Archibald will recognize me at the first words I say. Or even if I say nothing, he will know that I am not the pastor . . ."

"You will not have to say a word, and he will not recognize you because he will be asleep. He takes his sleeping draught at regular hours, and we can plan on it. You will simply take the bag, leave quietly by the vestibule, without disturbing the page, who will be in the room in the rear, and join me. I will have the doors opened for you, and you will be saved. We shall both be saved, for I shall not be long in joining you. It's the only solution."

"But if, by any chance, he should wake up . . ."

"He won't. He sleeps like a stone when he has drunk his medicine. And when he does wake up, he is always semi-conscious for a time. In a pinch, you could tell him that you were the brother of the pastor from Oak Village, and that he has sent you because he could not come back yet himself. He has never seen the brother. In any case, he wouldn't keep you, for he has nothing to say to the brother. And we must take some risk, if we are to escape from this nightmare. . . ."

"I know, I know. . . . But why not wait until the real pastor leaves the castle with the bag and rob him of it between Black Rooks and Oak Village? Wouldn't that be simpler?"

"That is out of the question; because I know that he will not be back from Edinburgh within four days, and before then everything will be finished."

She leaned over and took my hand.

"There is nothing for you to fear. A long black coat, a vest that buttons in back and a clerical collar, a white wig and a broad brimmed hat—with me to bring you in and let you out, and Sir Archibald asleep. That will be easy for you."

"Helena, just one thing more. Are you sure that Sir Archibald knows the role I played this Summer? Do you know what he said to me about our famous Mr. Hooker, whom he believes to have been impersonated by Victor, the barber——"

Helena started.

"And you believed him? You thought he meant that? It was Victor who betrayed Durin! And it was from Victor Sir Archibald learned that you were Mr. Hooker at Deauville!"

"My word!"

"Well, are you willing to act now?"

"I'll do whatever you say."

"Good. You will see that we will come out all right. And, as for Victor, I have an idea that his account will be settled without us. Durin will take care of that. Sh! Did you hear that?"

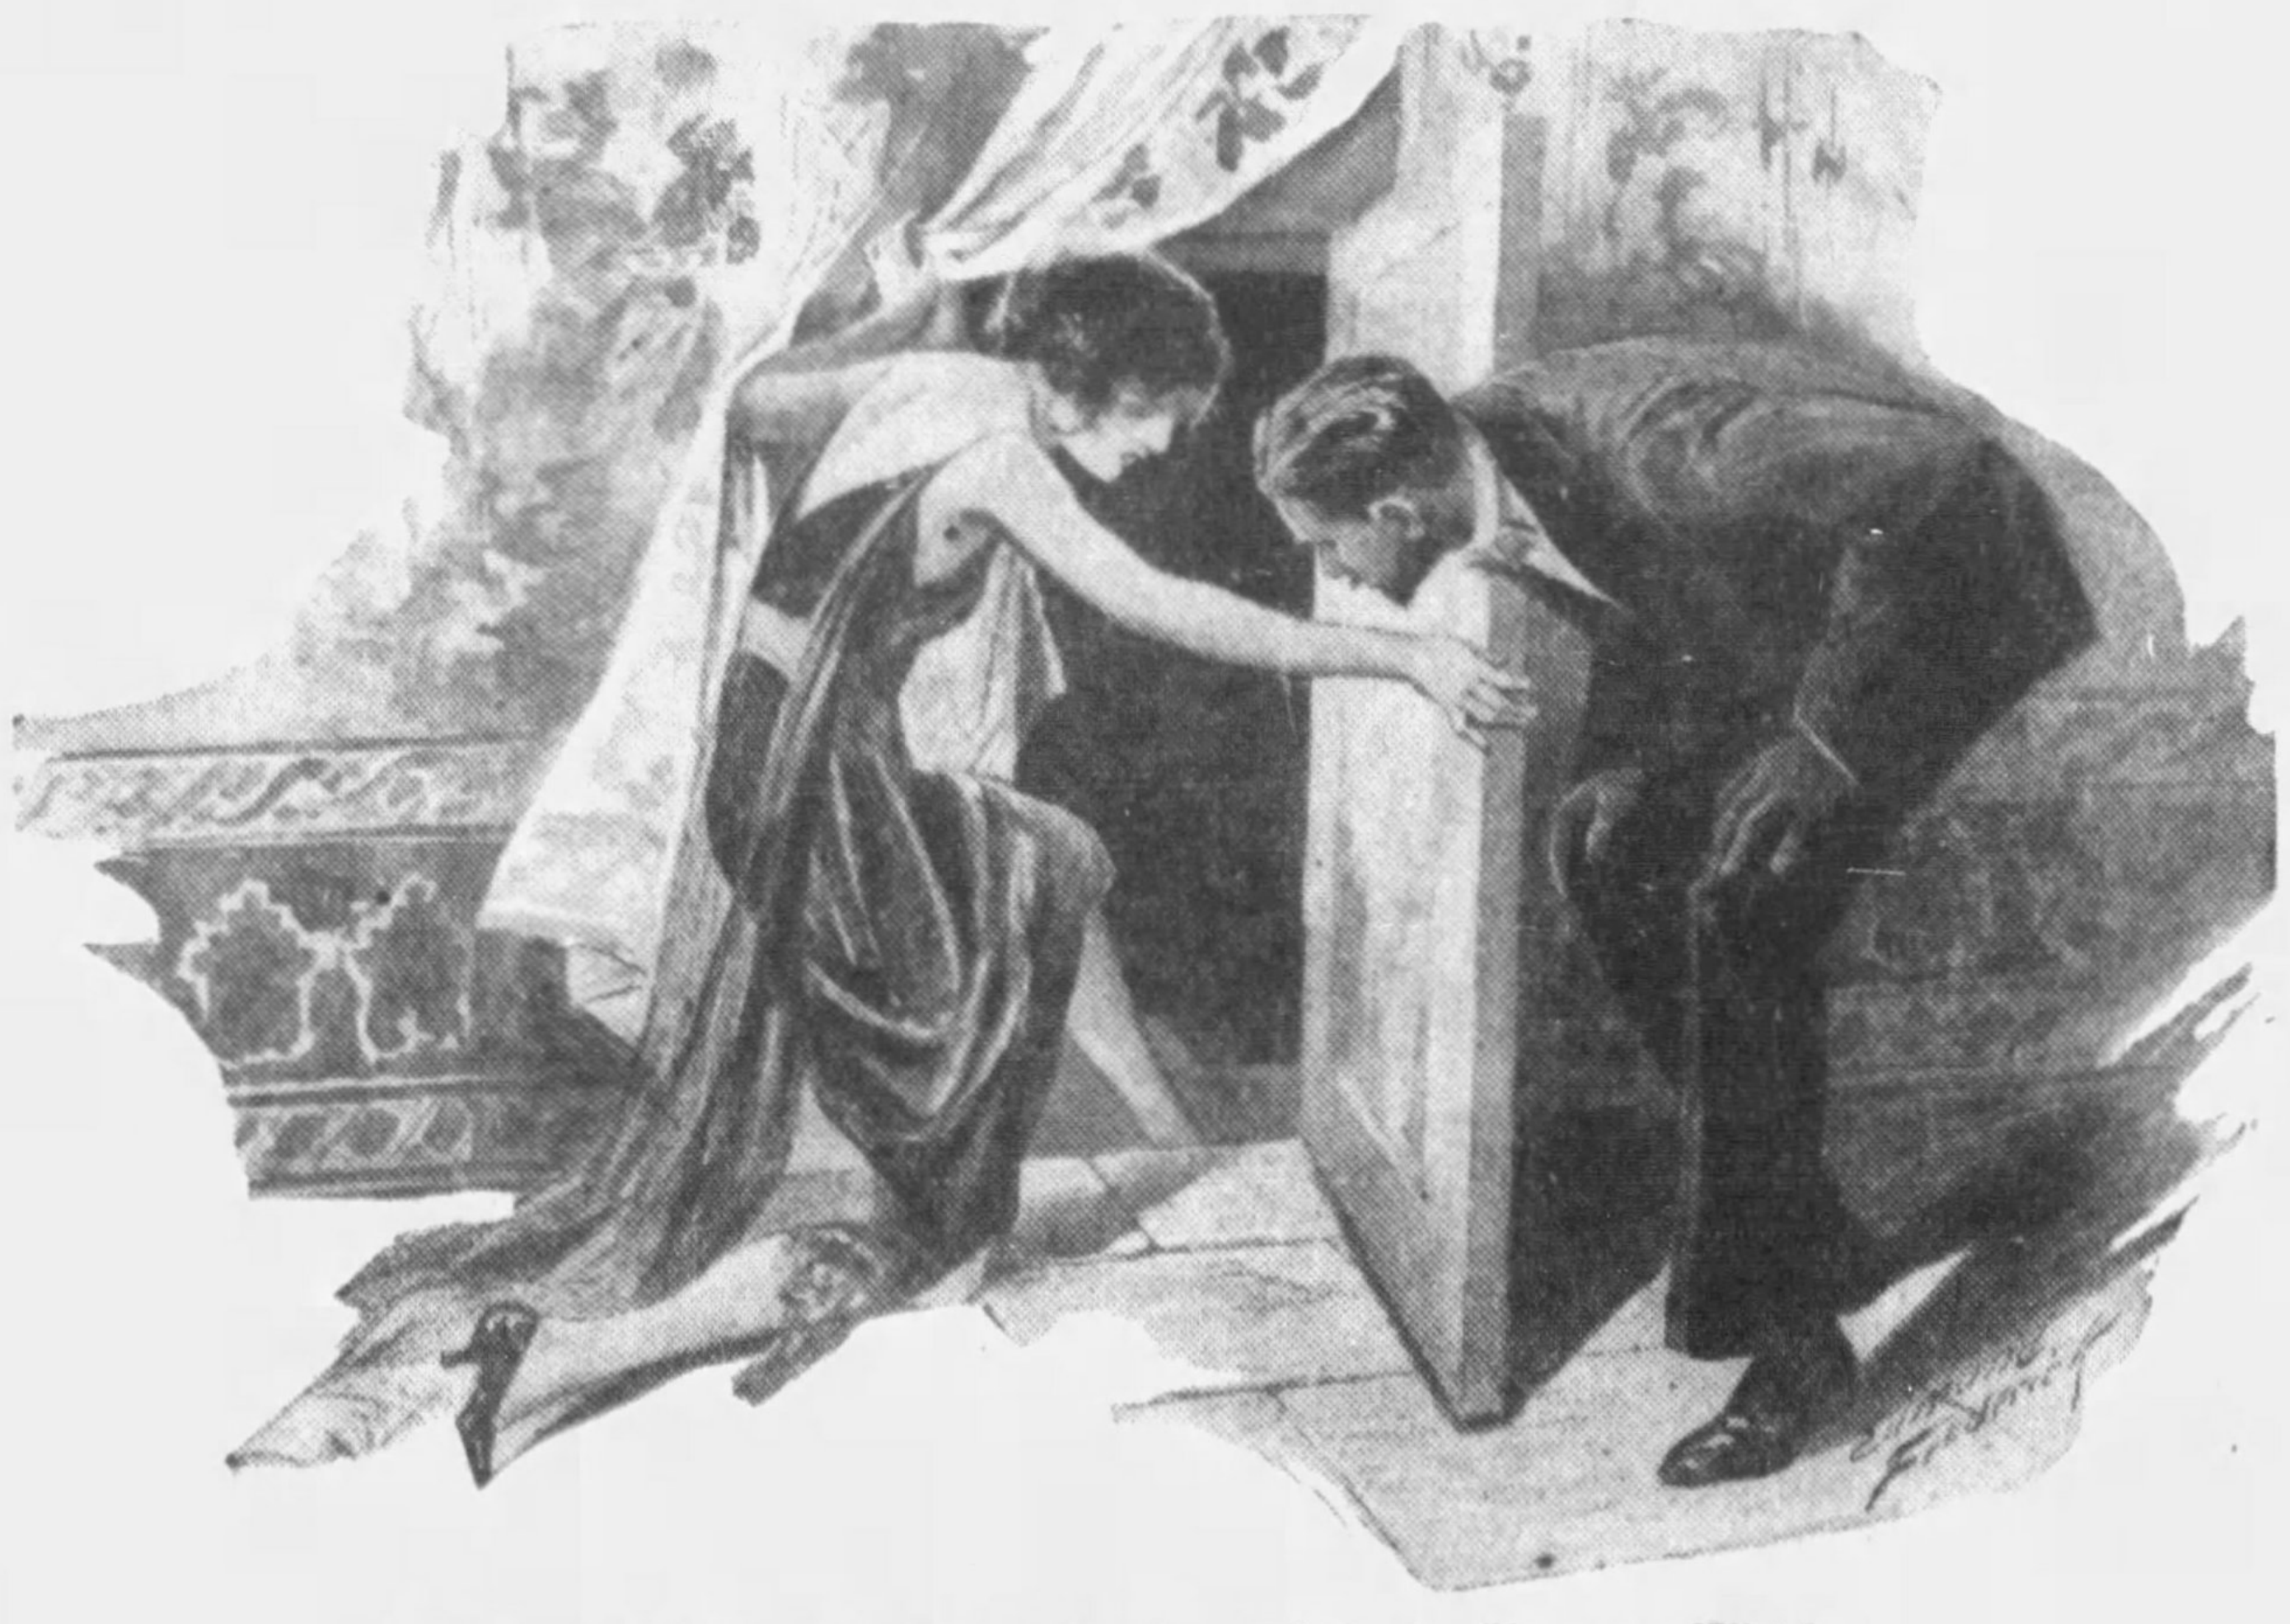
Helena rose, and crossing the room lifted a tapestry which concealed a low door in the wall. Pulling open the door, she disappeared down a flight of stone stairs toward the dungeons.

I remained alone, in the dimly lighted room, a prey to the cold wind that entered like a knife around the windows and to my own imaginings.

Ten minutes later she reappeared and sat down silently beside me.

"If I only knew what it is he is planning," she whispered.

Helena, who was always so courageous, trembled, and it was not with cold.



Helena Rose, and Crossing the Room Lifted a Tapestry Which Concealed a Low Door in the Wall.

"He has gone down again to the banshee's. Yet no one has gone in the banshee's cell since Sir Edward died . . . no one!"

"But, Helena, what is this business about the banshee?"

"There are only three people in the world who know the truth, since Kate died, and they are Sir Archibald, Donald, and myself."

"Who is Kate, and what has all this to do with us?"

"You shall see, Ruddy, you shall see! I am going to tell you a family secret. You remember the story of David, the last of the MacGregors? Well, he was not slain by the wolves. That was a lie invented by Archibald's father, Sir Edward, in order to get possession of the heritage. The truth was that Sir Edward had determined to put David to death, but his wife Elizabeth, who was a MacGregor, persuaded him to spare her brother's life. He was kept a prisoner, fastened by chains in the Green Lady's cell, until his death. A peasant from Oak Village and his daughter, Kate, were imprisoned in the castle, too, to care for the prisoner and see that no one went near him. The peasant died in the castle.

"But Kate, who was only a child, fell in love with David and bore him a son. When Sir Edward learned of it, he had Kate bring the boy up in his father's cell. As soon as he was old enough to wear them, he too was put in chains. He grew up in turn, and the father and son lived facing each other, chained to opposite walls. . . Eventually the father died, and the son, the last of the MacGregors, the last descendant of Rob Roy, is perhaps still there . . ."

"When the peasant died, after telling his secret to Sir Archibald, his place was taken by Donald. But Kate did not die without telling it to me. Donald has told no one. Does he keep guard over a ghost or over a living prisoner? Kate has not been dead long, and she believed that her son was still alive. . . . And now Sir Archibald has gone down into the cell. Do you think for a moment that it is to pray for the souls of the MacGregors? I will tell you what I think: Sir Archibald is preparing to restore the fortune of the MacGregors to their only living representative. To punish Philip, he will tell the truth to the pastor he has sent for, and make restitution. . . . As for me, he would not think of ruining me publicly. He has something else in mind for me—for all three of us—and he is determined to carry it out before his death. I must have disappeared before the family col-

Rudy VALLEE says...

"PUT YOURSELF ACROSS"

America has lost her heart to him—this charming youth who thrills millions with his crooning voice so full of magnetism, pathos, life. What has he that others envy? Is it merely added energy, added physical "drive"?

"For that subtle 'added ounce' of energy
I follow the simple advice of great physicians"

"How you feel has a lot to do with how people feel about you," says Rudy Vallée.

"Lots of folks handicap themselves by getting run-down—sluggish and out of order physically. Naturally they can't 'put themselves across.' They are half sick.

"When I was rehearsing for the Fleischmann Radio Hour I heard so much about yeast that I decided to try it. I was under a terrific strain—playing, singing, rehearsing, planning my talking-singing picture, 'The Vagabond Lover.' Well, what the famous physicians say about yeast certainly worked out in my case. It gave me just that 'added ounce' of energy I needed to keep fresh and 'on my toes'."

A remarkable food, Fleischmann's Yeast brings you quick new energy by purifying and stimulating your whole digestive tract. Elimination becomes regular, complete. Appetite and digestion improve. Complexion troubles disappear.

Start today! You can get Fleischmann's Yeast at grocers, restaurants, soda fountains.

EAT THREE CAKES of Fleischmann's fresh Yeast daily, one before each meal or between meals, just plain or dissolved in water. Every cake is rich in two vitamins indispensable to health—vitamin B and the "sunshine" vitamin D.

White Lies—by Joan Clayton

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

DOROTHY PRESCOTT has been hunting a job for two weeks when she accidentally meets young Randolph Holt, son of the head of Holt & Co., one of New York's greatest department stores, who is instrumental in securing her a job as a model.

Dorothy's first assignment is to show a dress before wealthy but spoiled Ruth Bradford, her mother and Hugh Ferisee, a society favorite. Ruth takes the dress, but the next day it is returned, and in one of the pockets Dorothy finds a ticket to the exclusive Hartwell costume ball. After some qualms she goes to the ball.

A man with a scar, masquerading as an Apache, dances with the beautiful blonde Dorothy, and when he tries to kiss her Hugh Ferisee interferes. The dancing suddenly stops with the announcement that the famous Hartwell diamonds are missing and that someone has come in on a stolen ticket. While the guests are unmasking Hugh helps Dorothy escape. At her boarding house she discovers the Hartwell diamonds in her pocket wrapped in a handkerchief.

She decides to return the diamonds in the morning, but the papers inform her that the police are seeking a girl Raffles and a man accomplice. Knowing that no one would believe her story and that Hugh would be implicated she puts the jewels in a safe deposit box until the hue and cry shall have died down and she can return them safely.

At her boarding house the same evening she finds that a detective has called and searched her room. Through a newspaper advertisement she becomes the room-mate of beautiful and sophisticated Lulu Lorillard. The detective trails her to Lulu's when she moves.

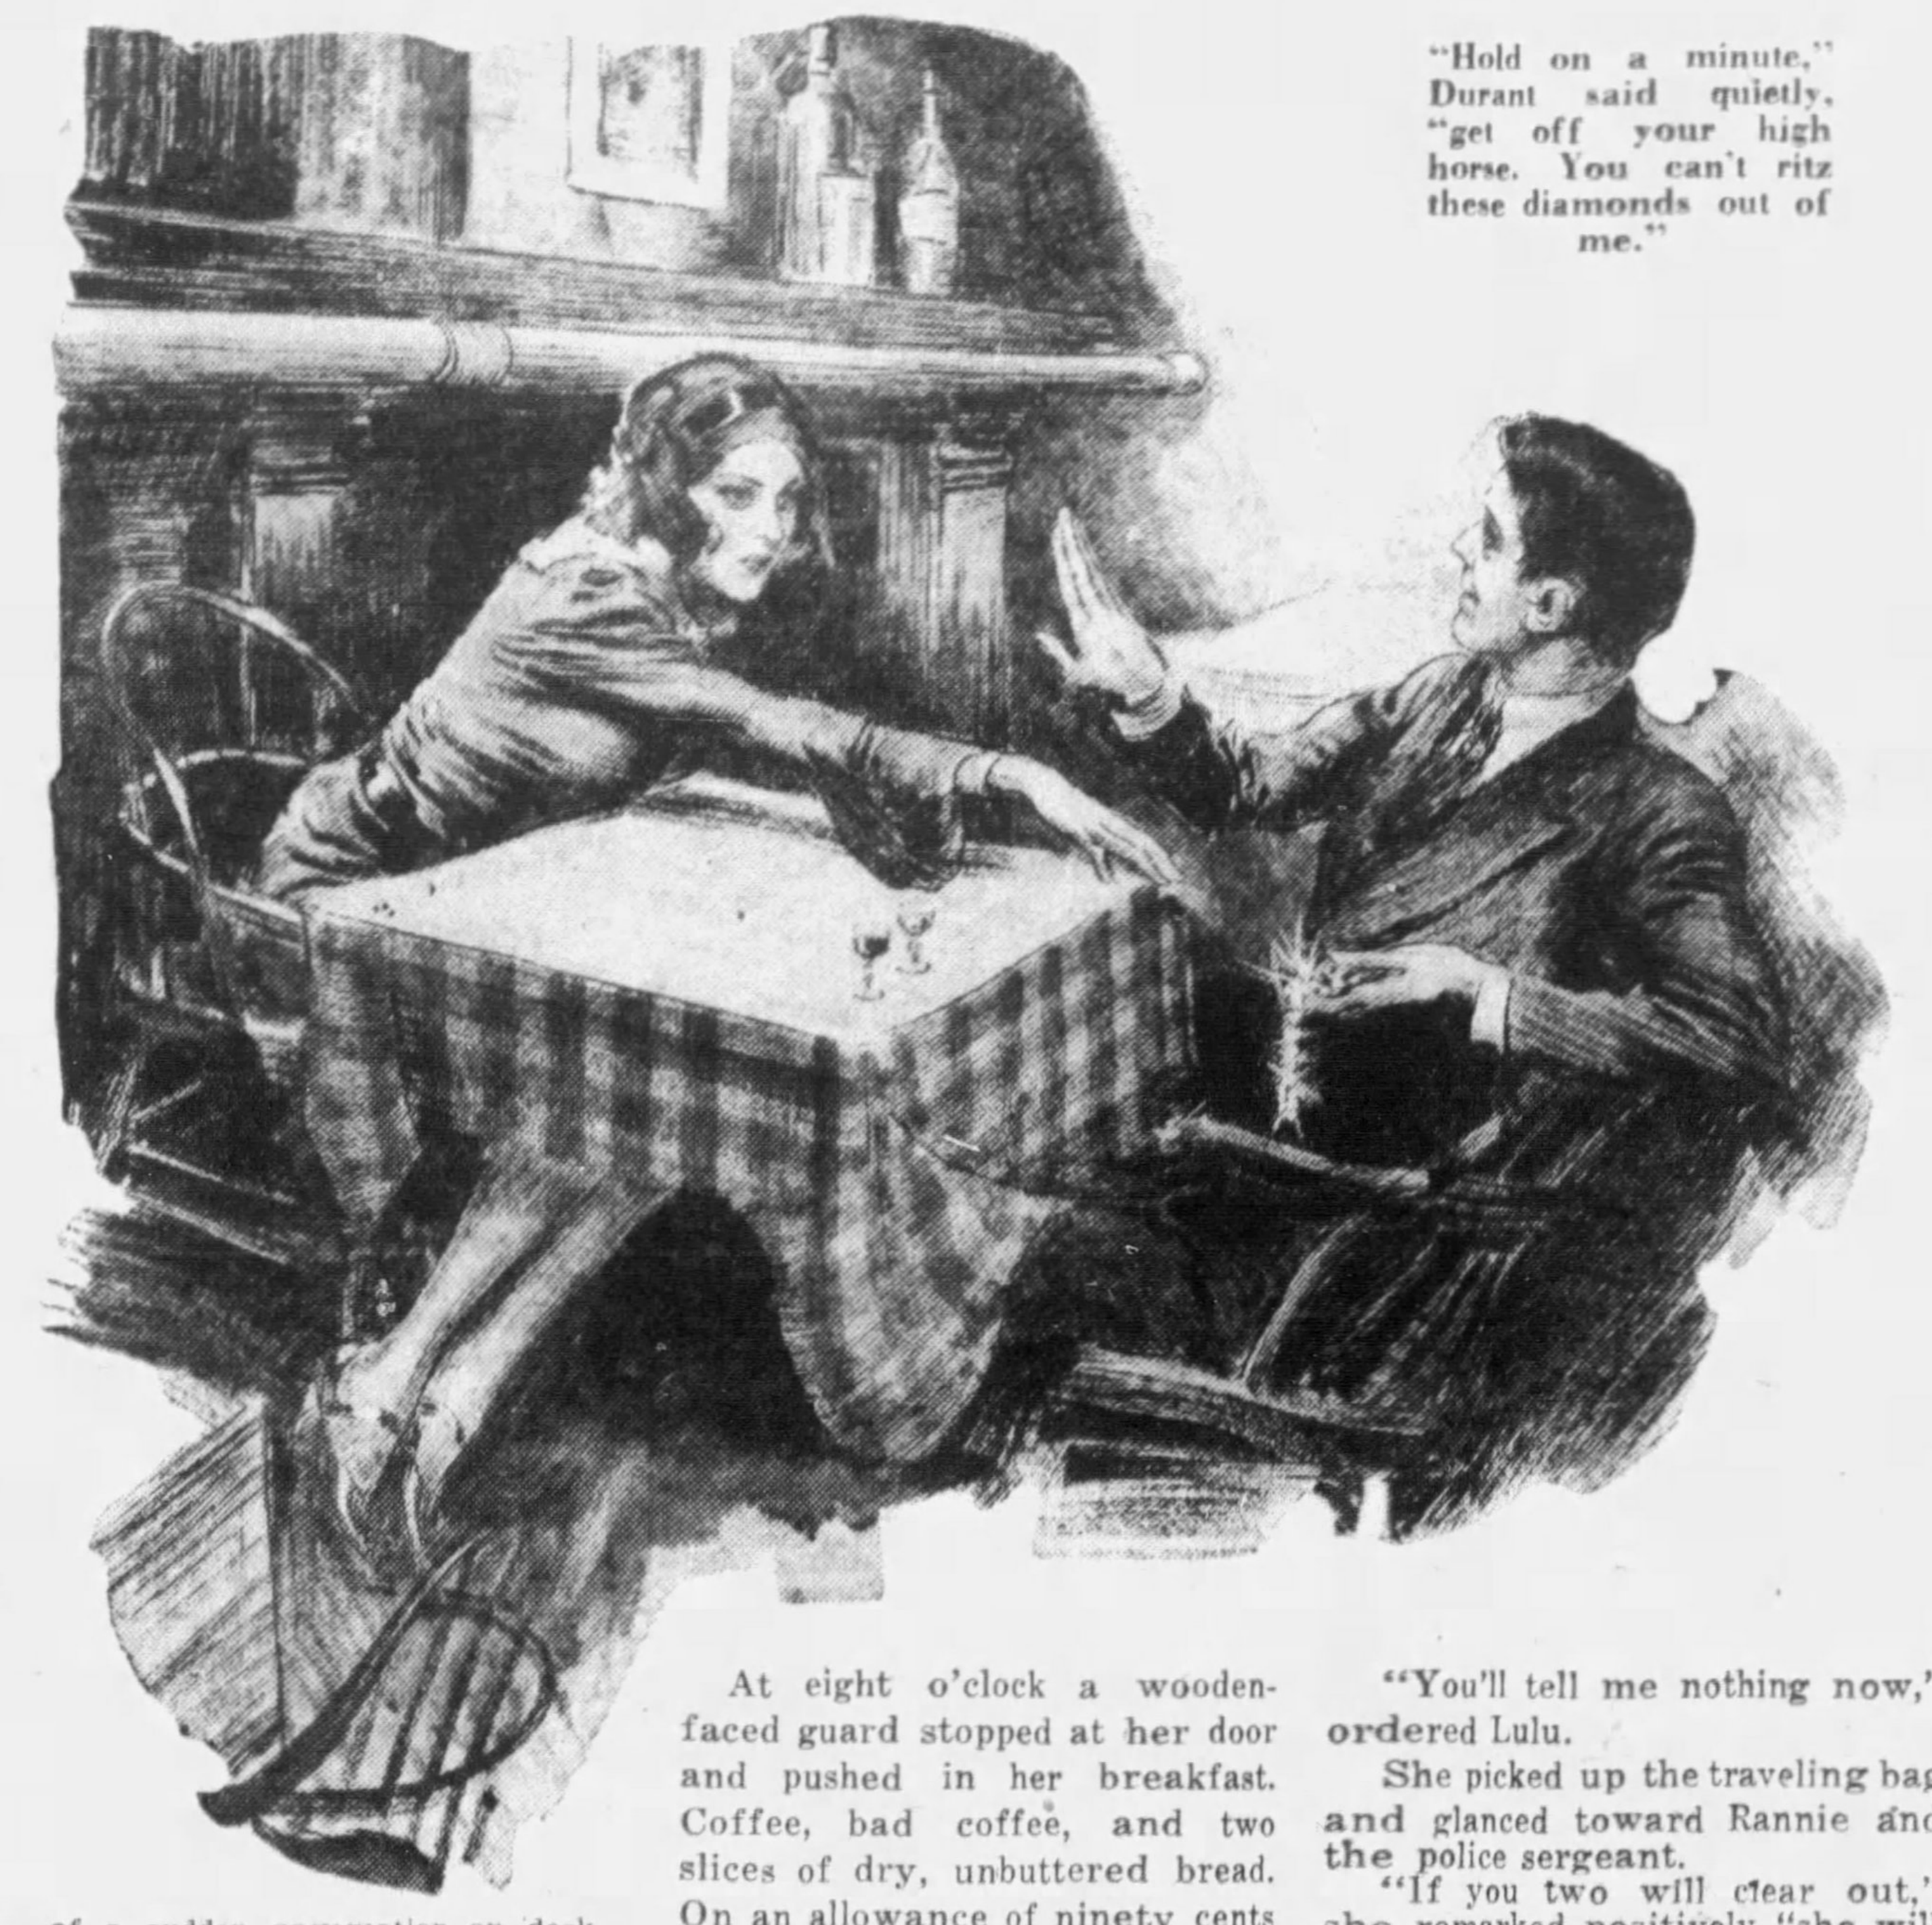
Dorothy tells Rannie the whole story and he identifies the diamonds as paste. Rannie's father learns of Dorothy's acquaintance with his son and discharges her.

Lulu gets Dorothy a job as hostess at Jerry Montoya's Mad-House Night Club. At the club she sees Hilma Hartwell with the man with the scar, who calls himself a count, and learns that they are regular patrons, although under assumed names. Hugh visits the club with Ruth Bradford, to whom he is rumored engaged, and advises Dorothy to quit. She gives notice, but determines to return the bogus necklace to Hilma Hartwell before she leaves. When she tells Hilma about the diamonds Mrs. Hartwell raises the cry of "Thief!" and Dorothy escapes with the help of Jerry Montoya.

As Dorothy returns to the apartment she catches a glimpse of the detective waiting. She tells the whole story to Lulu, who warns her against Jerry and then confesses that she is married to him. They move secretly, without leaving a forwarding address, and take a new apartment. Dorothy goes to see Hugh, and they quarrel because she refuses to confide in him the truth about the diamonds. Lulu takes a position as manicurist and Dorothy becomes a model.

Dorothy continues to see Hugh, and as her love for him grows his attitude becomes more impersonal. When she receives a note from him inviting her for a day's cruise on his yacht she takes the paste diamonds with her, determined to tell him everything. Once aboard the yacht, she discovers that the note was forged by Jerry Montoya, who desires her as much as she hates him, to lure her into his power. The boat puts out to sea, and under cover of a sudden commotion on deck she slips overboard and is picked up by a revenue cutter which is pursuing the yacht.

Locked up as a material witness, Dorothy hides the diamonds in the pocket of a topcoat belonging to James Durant, who wrapped it about her when she was rescued. When he takes the coat back the jewels go with it.



"Hold on a minute," Durant said quietly, "get off your high horse. You can't ritz these diamonds out of me."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Out!

THE next morning, after a night of confused and wretched dreams, Dorothy awoke early, with a throbbing head and a severe cold. For a moment she remembered nothing. She had been through a terrible strain the day before, a greater strain than the fast-moving incidents had at the time permitted her to realize. Then her eyes crossed the bars of the door, and all at once she knew everything. She sank back to her hard cot and pulled the blankets over her head. With a shiver of disgust she discovered that they were gray and stiff with dirt. She pushed them back, sat up and raised her fingers to her aching head.

The reverberating corridors were loud with the shrieks of women shouting in various keys for breakfast. One hardy soul had already started a phonograph and the cheap, raucous melody poured into Dorothy's cell:

"I never loved but three men in my life,
My father, my brother and the man that wrecked my life."

She covered her ears to shut out the sound, but the music poured on and on! The same record was repeated ceaselessly. She heard someone vainly cursing the phonograph.

Wearily she forced herself to her feet. Walking to the cracked basin she began to wash her face. Skewered to the wall was a spotted, wavering mirror and she observed with astonishment the reflection of her face. She had imagined foolishly that her very features would have changed. She looked a little wan and pale, to be sure, but that was all.

A memory of the matron passed through her mind and she shuddered. How would she ever escape this place with no money, no influence, no experience with the fine points of going in one door of a jail and out the other? What assurance had she that the matron had made those telephone calls? Lulu had no other way of learning where she was or what had happened to her.

Scratched on the white-washed walls with the point of a pin were names, telephone numbers, ribald verses. Dorothy's eyes dropped to the stone floor and she noticed with a curious catch in her throat the worn track that many feet had made from bed to basin. A track cut in solid stone.

She arranged her hair as best she could, without the help of brush or comb, and walking back to the cot sank heavily on its edge. She could see the guards walking up and down, up and down. Overhead in a similar cell another woman sat in a similar position; above her there must be another. Tier after tier, tier after tier. Cells stretched all around her, cells that she could not see.

At eight o'clock a wooden-faced guard stopped at her door and pushed in her breakfast. Coffee, bad coffee, and two slices of dry, unbuttered bread. On an allowance of ninety cents a day for each prisoner, rations must necessarily be a little less than satisfying. Dorothy managed to choke down the coffee, but the bread she left severely alone. Around the edges it looked, well, not quite clean.

All morning she sat on her cot waiting for time to pass. She thought often of Rannie and Lulu, of Hugh Ferisee, but as if they were people she had known and loved a long time before. Her own despair and illness combined to create in her an illusion that they had all deserted her, gone pleasantly about their own pursuits while she sat in her cell and waited. She was too weary for tears, too ill really for any thoughts of a future more immediate than the questioning Donelly had spoken of the night before.

Her mind turned with dread to the memory of his grim face and searching eyes. What would they expect to learn from her? She knew nothing of rum and drugs; knew nothing of Jerry and his activities. She had heard of the third degree, had heard that it was applied alike to the innocent and the guilty. She waited in an extremity of nervous terror for them to come to take her away. There was nothing in the cell, not so much as a magazine to distract her thoughts from the coming ordeal.

She had fallen into an uneasy sleep at four in the afternoon when she was aroused by the sound of a key turning in the lock. She sat up with a startled cry of fear and though she was still plunged in sleep her eyes were wide open and staring. For a frantic moment she imagined that Jerry had returned. Then her eyes cleared. She saw it was the matron. So they had come for her, at last. She dug her fingernails into the cot and waited for the words she so dreaded to hear.

"Go away," she said in a whisper, knowing even as she said it that the other would not go. The matron ignored her words.

"Well, dearie, you're going to leave us," she said. "They've arranged bail for you."

As Dorothy continued to stare at her, seemed to listen with no understanding of what had been said, she repeated cheerily, "You're free, dearie—that's what I'm telling you. You can leave now."

Her voice dropped. "I hope," she added, "you won't forget those of us as was good to you."

Then Dorothy understood well enough. She looked at the speaker with such open contempt that the matron's eyes dropped.

"We'd better be getting along," she said harshly. "Most folks would seem grateful like."

Without a word, Dorothy followed her through the barred, open door, down the corridors that were less long now that she was to leave them. She kept her gaze straight ahead, fixed on the matron's unhandsome neck—she dared not turn her eyes to either side to meet the eyes of others who, unlike herself, must remain. The matron abruptly stopped at the door, swung it back and gestured her inside.

Standing at a desk in the center of the room were Lulu and Rannie, both looking, even in Dorothy's first glance of recognition, worn and tired. At the opening of the door, Lulu dropped a bag she was carrying and the two girls flew into each others' arms.

"Oh, Lulu," Dorothy sobbed in an ecstasy of relief and still-remembered terror, "I want to tell you—"

"You'll tell me nothing now," ordered Lulu.

She picked up the traveling bag and glanced toward Rannie and the police sergeant.

"If you two will clear out," she remarked positively, "she will change her clothes."

The sergeant's face was silly with surprise as he meekly followed Rannie. Several times Dorothy started to speak but each time Lulu waved her toward the open bag.

"Not till you're fed," she insisted. "Save it till then."

So, with trembling fingers, Dorothy made the change, tossing aside her stiff denim skirt and waist for a sports dress of soft blue, tearing off her ruined hose for others of cobwebby lisle. Lulu had thought of everything. She sat perched on a chair watching Dorothy swiftly become her old, familiar self.

"We'll eat first," she said. "I know prison swill."

Her nose wrinkled. "You know what becomes of old rubber boots? They use them to make coffee for jails."

Dorothy was surprised to find herself smiling at the accuracy of the description. Already those horrible hours were slipping into the past. Afterward she was surprised to learn how little really she could remember about them.

When Rannie saw her again—the police sergeant did not immediately return—he said awkwardly:

"I've just fixed it all up for you outside. The case is to be dropped flat, at least so far as you are concerned. Lulu and I convinced them that you were of no possible assistance as a witness against the Lucky Lucy, even in the improbable event of their catching Jerry and his gang redhanded. It was an outrage, their holding you in the first place. I didn't even have to make the bail. I just promised to produce you if and when you're wanted."

So that episode was over. Dorothy drew a long breath. Her incoherent thanks were cut short by both Lulu and Rannie. A few minutes more and the three of them stepped as casually into the sunshine as if they had just completed a formal call.

The sky bent over them in an arch of tender blue, over the hurrying, indifferent crowds struggling through the slush of melting snow. A day like Spring, with clean, washed air and shop windows flowering into fragile, butterfly clothes for the South, quite arrogantly unconscious of the fact that to the millions who streamed past, the South meant only rotogravure pictures in the papers.

"Oh," cried Dorothy, with a catch in her breath, "I'm so happy."

Rannie and Lulu exchanged a glance.

"Come on," said Rannie, "let's eat. I'm starving."

They turned into a nearby Wilds, ordered their ham and eggs, and settled back to wait. Lulu, as might have been ex-

The Compelling Motive to Expand. 8. The Real Spur to Achievement. 9. Pilot Your Own Ship. 10. Don't Let Well Enough Alone.

Two million copies of Dr. Marden's books have been sold. They are printed in twenty different languages. They are endorsed by some of the world's most successful men.

So, get this little book by Dr. Marden. Read it—over and over again. I promise you that it will be the best success tonic you ever took—that it will give you the spirit and the power to interpret, understand and profit by your desires, your talents and your opportunities.

With the Marden book, you receive—also free—another book which tells how, with less that $5 capital, I started in my spare time and built up a new kind of a real estate business that netted me more than $100,000 in less than five years. And it tells how I have helped hundreds of men and women pull themselves out of the rut of hard work and small pay—build up independent businesses of their own—make more money than they ever made before.

Here are just a few examples of what my book has done for others and what it can do for you:

R. J. Sanders, 55 years old, made $1,057.50 his first four months in a small Tennessee town of only 1,500 population. E. G. Baum, 50-year-old bookkeeper, out of a job, got my free book, followed its advice, made $8,000 his first year in my kind of a real estate business. Mrs. McGinley, of Texas, had an invalid husband, got my book and made a fine profit on her first deal, which was a $35,000 sale.

What Big Men Say

John Wanamaker said: "I would, if it had been necessary, have been willing to have gone without one meal a day to buy one of the Marden books."

Charles M. Schwab said: "Dr. Marden's writings have had much to do with my success."

J. C. Penney said: "I owe a great deal of my success and the success of the J. C. Penney Co. to Dr. Marden."

Lord Northcliffe said: "I believe your writings will be of immense assistance to all ambitious men."

Judge Ben B. Lindsey said: "Dr. Marden is one of the wonders of our time. I personally feel under a debt of obligation to him."

Chauncey M. Depew said: "Your writings are of great value for the encouragement and instruction of men and women."

Robert L. Abell, former Illinois painter, followed my instructions and averaged monthly earnings of $335 in his spare time only. P. W. Budinik, former Michigan barber, made $950 his first six weeks—an average of $158.33 a week. A. V. Arnold, a railroad man, started in a strange town and made $1,500 his first two weeks. Tony Maurell, former New Jersey barber, made $4,133 in less than three months. And if you want to read about really big earnings, there is Thomas E. Mone, Jr., insurance solicitor, who cleaned up $40,000 in two years. And think of Gus Roeder and his wife, who ran a hot-dog stand. I started them in real estate and they say they have made $150,000 in four years. And I have a letter on my desk from Samuel Soifer, who hits the highest record of all. He says that his second year in my kind of a real estate business netted him $70,000.

These earnings may sound big to you, but they are all true. You can't ignore facts. You can't deny truth. And I have hundreds of such letters on file in my offices for inspection at a moment's notice.

There is no room here to tell you any more about the astounding success of men and women, of all ages from 21 to 79, and from all walks of life, who have changed their whole business lives through the reading of my free book.

So get this book now. It is filled with money-making business facts and stories of business success that will amaze you. You don't have to take my word for this. You don't have to take anyone's word. Just get my free book of facts and proof. Then judge for yourself.

White Lies—by Joan Clayton

ed, had her say first.

"You had us all scared pink," said. "When I got home and found your note I called Feri-[illegible]s office and learned he wasn't even in town, hadn't been in since Tuesday. Then I rang up Jerry. They told me at the club he was aboard the Lucky Lucy. You had mentioned a cruise, you remember. Well I guessed the rest."

"But," gasped Dorothy, "the police—"

Lulu's face grew grave. Rannie leaned across and patted her hand.

"Go on," he said, "go on."

Dorothy felt a queer pain in her heart as she looked at them. Something had happened to those two. Rannie's eyes now were for Lulu and not for her. Indignantly she stopped herself. She was glad, of course—glad that Lulu was so evidently radiantly happy.

In some embarrassment Lulu straightened up. Her eyes said to Dorothy, "You didn't want him. Don't you remember you told me?"

Her lips said slowly, "Well, kid, the police were my fault. We had no way of chasing that blamed boat—no way at all, and I had a hunch you were on it. So little Miss Fix-It tipped off the harbor police. Jerry's been running liquor and worse down from [illegible]. They were glad of the chance."

Dorothy made a pattern of her knife and fork.

"I—I jumped," she said. There was before her a vision of that [illegible] black water.

"I know you did," Lulu answered. Her face was very still. "I don't slop over often—" she said nervously, and then was silent, let her sentence go unfinished.

They were all embarrassed by the display of feeling. Rannie whistled a few bars from a popular song and said cheerfully, "Well, it's all over now. Tell her our news."

Dorothy quite suddenly did not want to hear their news. The first happiness of her freedom, the first joy of smelling the fresh, clean air had been dissipated by the intrusion of something which left her alone and frightened at her loneliness. Something she had expected from both of them had been casually lost, and she was brooding over that as she spoke quickly.

"Don't tell me. I know and I'm so glad," she said.

Perhaps, after all, her words had a forced, artificial sound. Lulu flushed and Rannie looked uncomfortable. No one said anything for a moment. Grasping for a subject, something to break the shell of silence, Dorothy spoke restively.

"You—you said Hugh was out of town when you called. Where is he?"

Lulu looked at Rannie. Almost imperceptibly he nodded.

"He's gone to the Bradfords' Winter lodge for two weeks," Lulu answered.

"Oh," said Dorothy flatly. She lifted her head slightly.

"That's right," she went on, "the season is open. The hunting season I mean."

She felt their eyes upon her. Gently she slid her ham and eggs toward the center of the table and arranged her knife and fork on the edge of the plate.

All at once her nerves gave way and she pushed back her chair, numbed by the completeness of the disaster. She had lost Hugh. That one fact stood out clearly and beat a sad refrain in her mind. Hugh Ferisee was gone and the paste jewels were gone.

Her eyes wandered to the white tiled walls and hanging on the row of steel hooks she mirthlessly counted nine gray topcoats. Gray topcoats. They brought back the memory of another. In its pocket, somewhere, quite near the initials J. R. D., lay the jewels.

Lulu seemed to be looking at her from a great distance. Lulu's face that was made for rosy, artificial lights of evening seemed a little hard in the blazing morning light of the restaurant. Had her friendship for Lulu too grown a trifle shop-worn?

"Why," she asked dully, "did you leave me in jail last night? The matron tried to phone, or said she did."

She cloaked what might have sounded like an accusation with a wan, apologetic smile. Rannie had no curiosity, she only wanted to talk about something which had nothing to do with the Hartwell diamonds, nothing to do with Hugh Ferisee, something which would wipe the understanding sympathy from the faces of the two lovers who were her friends.

"Darling," answered Lulu in a hurt voice, "we didn't know where you were. I sent in an anonymous tip to the police just on the bare chance you were aboard. I couldn't know. If you weren't aboard I didn't want to risk mixing you up with it. We were nearly crazy last night—we located you by the evening papers today."

Dorothy's eyes darkened.

"I didn't think they had my name," she said. That would be the last straw.

"They didn't," said Lulu.

Rannie interrupted. "We spotted you by the description. Read all about yourself in the Evening Star. That reporter is good."

He pulled a newspaper from his pocket and tossed it to her. With interest she glanced through the story.

Obviously the reporter had been aboard the revenue cutter. Her eyes returned to the signature above the story. The reporter's name was James Rushmore Durant!

CHAPTER XIX.

James Rushmore Durant.

THE telephone operator at the New York Evening Star was very tired. It had been a busy day, and all afternoon she had been pestered by a persistent feminine voice demanding conversation with James Rushmore Durant.

"Sorry, Mr. Durant ain't—isn't in yet. I told you before he wasn't due till four o'clock. I don't think there's any use phoning again before five. He generally runs an hour late."

She slammed the plug back and Dorothy ruefully hung up the receiver. At five the telephone operator was more humane.

When she realized that at last she had James Rushmore Durant on the other end of the line Dorothy was decidedly nervous. After all, what could she say to a man who might be an entire stranger.

"I know it will seem an odd request, Mr. Durant," she began in a clear voice, "but would you mind meeting me a few minutes? I can explain my business when I see you."

If Mr. Durant was surprised he was gallantly willing. When she slid the telephone back into its cretonne prison she had agreed to visit him at his office. She dressed herself carefully and took a subway to the downtown offices of the Star. At Chambers Street she got off and turned toward the ragged skyscrapers that were Park Row. The New York Star Building itself rushed breathlessly upward for many stories and was an inconspicuous part of the downtown skyline.

In the reception room on the seventh floor Dorothy seated herself self-consciously, smoothed her skirts and for an instant observed the tip of her nose in a small vanity. A minute or so later Durant strode out into the reception room and looked around, observing each of the three waiting women with a quick, intent scrutiny. Dorothy recognized him immediately. He was the brown-eyed, brown-haired chap who had thrown his topcoat around her. He was puzzled now—she could tell that from the frown between his brows—but eager to have at the interview.

She beckoned and he slouched over. Dropping beside her he said easily:

"Well, what about it? Surely you don't want a job on a newspaper? Even if you do, I can't get it for you."

Dorothy smiled at his excess of caution and she saw a surprised look, a look of half recognition flicker in his eyes. Carefully, with hands that shook a little she pulled off her tight, black hat and laid it in her lap.

"You'll have to imagine the evening gown," she said in a conversational tone.

Durant started. His voice instantly lowered.

"How about collecting some ham and eggs?"

He jingled the change in his pocket.

"Who knows," he continued lightly, "maybe I can set us up to coffee as well."

Without waiting for an answer he moved back into the office and returned a moment later wearing a black, slouch hat, which had a cigarette hole burned neatly through the brim. Over one arm he carried a wrinkled gray topcoat. Dorothy's eyes fixed on the coat. She laid her hands on the collar and pulled it back so that she could just see the initials J. R. D. Durant watched her with a slow, curious smile.

"I hope you didn't mind," she said nervously.

The reporter laughed shortly. He thrust his shoulders into the coat and left it hanging unbuttoned.

"Guess you had some anxious moments," he said casually.

His words were pleasant enough, but there was something in his tone which Dorothy found disturbing. Her chin came up.

"Who did you think I was anyway?" she asked. "I mean at first—when I phoned."

Durant answered politely. "Whatever I thought—now I know better."

Dorothy bit her lip. He was going to be a harder person to make explanations to than she had imagined. She began in a small voice, "I think I left something in your pocket—wrapped in one of your handkerchiefs."

Durant grinned. "Correct," he said. He patted the pocket of his topcoat.

"As a matter of fact," he confessed, "there's never been anything like that in my pocket before."

Dorothy waited for him to make some gesture toward returning the necklace. When he failed to, she said slowly:

"I'm in no position to force you to return it, but I wish you would."

They were waiting, in the hallway, for the elevator. Durant pushed the bell impatiently and turned on her a sharp, questioning look.

"Don't talk about it now—not till we get food," he said. "I haven't eaten since breakfast."

Silently they pushed their way through the crowds of downtown workers, hurrying for subways and ferries, their arms full of groceries, brief cases and folded newspapers. Durant held her arm very tightly and together they made a battering ram through the crowds. Dorothy had never in her life been propelled so rapidly or so efficiently through traffic.

"How would you like a few drinks first?" shouted Durant above the cries of newsboys, the rumble of trucks, the roar of the elevated trains.

Dorothy shook her head. "I'm only hungry," she said plaintively.

From under the jaunty brim of his hat he stared at her in surprise, his brown eyes incredulous.

"This place is O. K.," he insisted. "All liquor is tested and besides I carry no knockout drops. With my instant appeal I don't need to."

"I'm on the wagon," Dorothy murmured.

They turned a corner.

"Well," said Durant, "I'm not. You don't mind stopping, do you? I know what we'll do. We'll go to Hank's. Then I can drink and you can eat. Who knows, maybe you'll decide then to tip a flagon with me. I'm not a bad guy to string along with."

He squeezed her arm.

"I'm sure you're not," answered Dorothy dubiously.

"Of course," he continued honestly, "you know as well as I do that newspapermen aren't pay dirt for gold diggers. But maybe I could help you other ways—in fact I'm sure I can."

Dorothy opened her mouth for a spirited reply, then closed it. Perhaps, she thought, it would be better to let this rather impertinent young man hang himself with his own rope.

She was relieved when they reached Hank's, a dark, dismally lighted place up three tremendous flights. Durant, evidently a familiar of the place, led the way, apparently oblivious of the torn carpet, the hideously dirty paper and the gas lights on the landing. On the fourth floor he stopped before a door with long streamers of peeling paint and carefully knocked three times. A small square of wood popped inward and a dark head was thrust into the aperture.

"Hello, Mr. Durant," said the head. A moment later the door swung back.

If Dorothy had expected anything romantic she was disappointed. The room they entered was scarcely as large as her living-room. It was cluttered with square tables, whose red and white checked cloths were grimy and wrinkled. There were no other guests. She followed Durant to a corner and he pulled out a chair for her at a table which leaned dispiritedly against the wall. He reached over, picked a menu from another table and shoved it toward her. Dorothy, who had been trained to the left side of menu cards, glanced with astonishment at the staggering price list.

"But, Mr. Durant," she protested, "I thought you said—" She paused delicately.

"What?" he asked.

"This place is horribly expensive," she announced flatly. Glancing around she added innocently, "I don't see why."

Durant laughed in an unamused way and answered rather stiffly, "Even newspapermen aren't so hard up as you seem to imagine I am."

Two drinks of Scotch whiskey were set down upon their table. Durant looked at Dorothy inquiringly. She shook her head. In quick succession, he swallowed both drinks. That done, he lighted a cigarette and tilted back his chair to watch her. His hand reached for his pocket.

She said nothing. At last he spoke.

"Well, I held those diamonds out on the police. I thought there might be a story in them," he added firmly, lest she misconstrue his intentions. Still she said nothing so he went on in an accusing voice, "They don't belong to you, do they?"

"No," answered Dorothy truthfully.

His face lit with surprise. This was not what he had expected.

"You're a cool one," he remarked, and held up the necklace.

Dorothy leaned toward him, her hand outstretched, then drew back.

"Mr. Durant," she said in a cold voice, "you seem to completely misunderstand the situation. I thought a good newspaperman was supposed to go on facts, not fancies. I didn't come down here to be put through any third degree by you. After all, you only know that those diamonds were in my possession. I told you myself that they didn't belong to me. For the rest—it's none of your business."

"Hold on a minute," he said quietly, "get off your high horse. You can't ritz these diamonds out of me. Why should I return them when you told me yourself they didn't belong to you?"

As she waited for him to continue, her face tense with anger, he said calmly, "I'm not so big a fool as you seem to believe. I looked up the jewel robberies for the last few months, and, from the pictures and description, these seem to tally pretty well with the Hartwell diamonds."

Dorothy sat down suddenly. "All right," she said defiantly, "they were planted on me at the Hartwell ball."

"So," he jeered. "I seem to have heard that story before, or maybe I read it somewhere. Maybe you read it too."

Dorothy was so furious with rage that she could have slapped him across his grinning face. Instead she clenched her hands tightly and burst out:

"Well, Mr. Know-It-All Durant, perhaps you can explain why those diamonds are paste."

"Dear, dear," sighed Durant,

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Well does the fashionable world know how the SALINE METHOD defeats these 7 Common Ailments

1 CONSTIPATION . . . Sal Hepatica flushes away waste products by stimulating the release of the natural secretions in the intestines. Whenever you wake up in the morning with a thick, coated tongue—or with any of the other symptoms of constipation, clear away the stoppage by taking two teaspoonfuls of Sal Hepatica in a large glass of water.

2 HEADACHES . . . To relieve the congestion which causes so many headaches, take 1 teaspoonful of Sal Hepatica dissolved in a large glassful of hot water and repeat in 15 minutes if not relieved. For chronic headaches take a teaspoonful in water daily before breakfast.

3 AUTO-INTOXICATION . . . This is the popular term applied to the self-poisoning that arises when food wastes ferment and set up poisons which bring about a general lowering of physical vitality. To correct this prevalent trouble take one teaspoonful of Sal Hepatica in a glass of water daily before breakfast until relieved.

4 BAD COMPLEXION . . . To keep the blood stream clear of the impurities that so often cause blemishes and skin eruptions take a teaspoonful of Sal Hepatica in a large glass of water immediately upon arising—for a week, or as long as necessary to clear the complexion. Don't be tempted by rich foods.

5 RHEUMATISM . . . As an eliminant in rheumatism flush out the system at once with a laxative dose of Sal Hepatica—2 to 4 teaspoonfuls in a large glassful of water. And then keep free of systemic poisons and acidity by taking 1 to 2 teaspoonfuls of Sal Hepatica in a glassful of water a half hour before each meal and before retiring.

6 INDIGESTION . . . For indigestion take a teaspoonful of Sal Hepatica in a glass of hot water and repeat in 15 minutes if not relieved. If you are subject to frequent attacks of indigestion take a teaspoonful of Sal Hepatica with your morning glass of water.

7 COLDS . . . The first step in clearing a cold is to flush out the body with two to four teaspoonfuls of Sal Hepatica in a glassful of water. Continue the use of Sal Hepatica each morning before breakfast until your cold is gone.

FOR generations, wealthy Europeans have found in the saline springs and spas a wonderful means of relief from suffering.

On their physicians' advice, they visit the famous cure-stations at Vichy, Carlsbad, Wiesbaden, and there regain their health and beauty by drinking daily of the health-giving saline waters.

For it is a well-established fact that intestinal stoppage—constipation—is almost always the real source of headaches, skin blemishes, stomach disorders and even of more serious ills, such as rheumatism, auto-intoxication, liver and kidney troubles. And the saline treatment is the safe and approved method of combating this common foe of health.

In Sal Hepatica, you have the practical American equivalent of the natural saline spring waters. Sal Hepatica brings you the same benefits and gives remarkable relief from a long list of human ailments.

Sal Hepatica cleanses the intestines of wastes and poisons—thoroughly, gently and promptly, correcting constipation by stimulating the natural secretions in the intestines. It neutralizes acidity, and helps restore the normal functions of the liver and kidneys—thus bringing relief from the ailments described on this page—and from other common ills traceable to the poisons of waste.

Sal Hepatica is pleasant to take and mild in effect. Simply dissolve a teaspoonful or two in a large glassful of water. It froths up into a foamy, sparkling, refreshing drink.

Take it upon arising or a half hour before any meal. Follow the instructions given in the column to the left for the correct treatment of your particular ailment.

Ask your physician concerning the "why" and "how" of the saline method. Get a bottle of Sal Hepatica at your druggist's today. Keep free of constipation. Take Sal Hepatica when you need it.

lapses. But I shall not wait for his permission to disappear. Do you understand now why we must escape? All that I have left in the world is my jewels and your love."

"What do you think he has in mind?"

"Oh, something very simple and quite appropriate . . . I crept downstairs behind him . . . I listened to the noise of his steps and Donald's. Sir Archibald went into the banshee's cell and Donald followed him; but before going in Donald gathered up some chains he had brought there. If the last of the MacGregors is restored to his title, there will be no one in the banshee's cell, and that would not be proper. . . . But the old order would be continued if we were chained there in his place. And we could watch each other die as the young MacGregor watched his father, David. I know Sir Archibald. I saw him in the Orient. To pass the time away he would find a little extra torture, such as saving our souls. . . . As for Durin, I don't know what—"

"Never mind Durin! You and I must not let ourselves be caught in this trap."

"It just occurs to me," she said, sitting erect. "The clergyman! Perhaps Sir Archibald has sent for him to say the final prayers before walling us in. . . ."

"Stop!" I said, "this is too horrible. . . ."

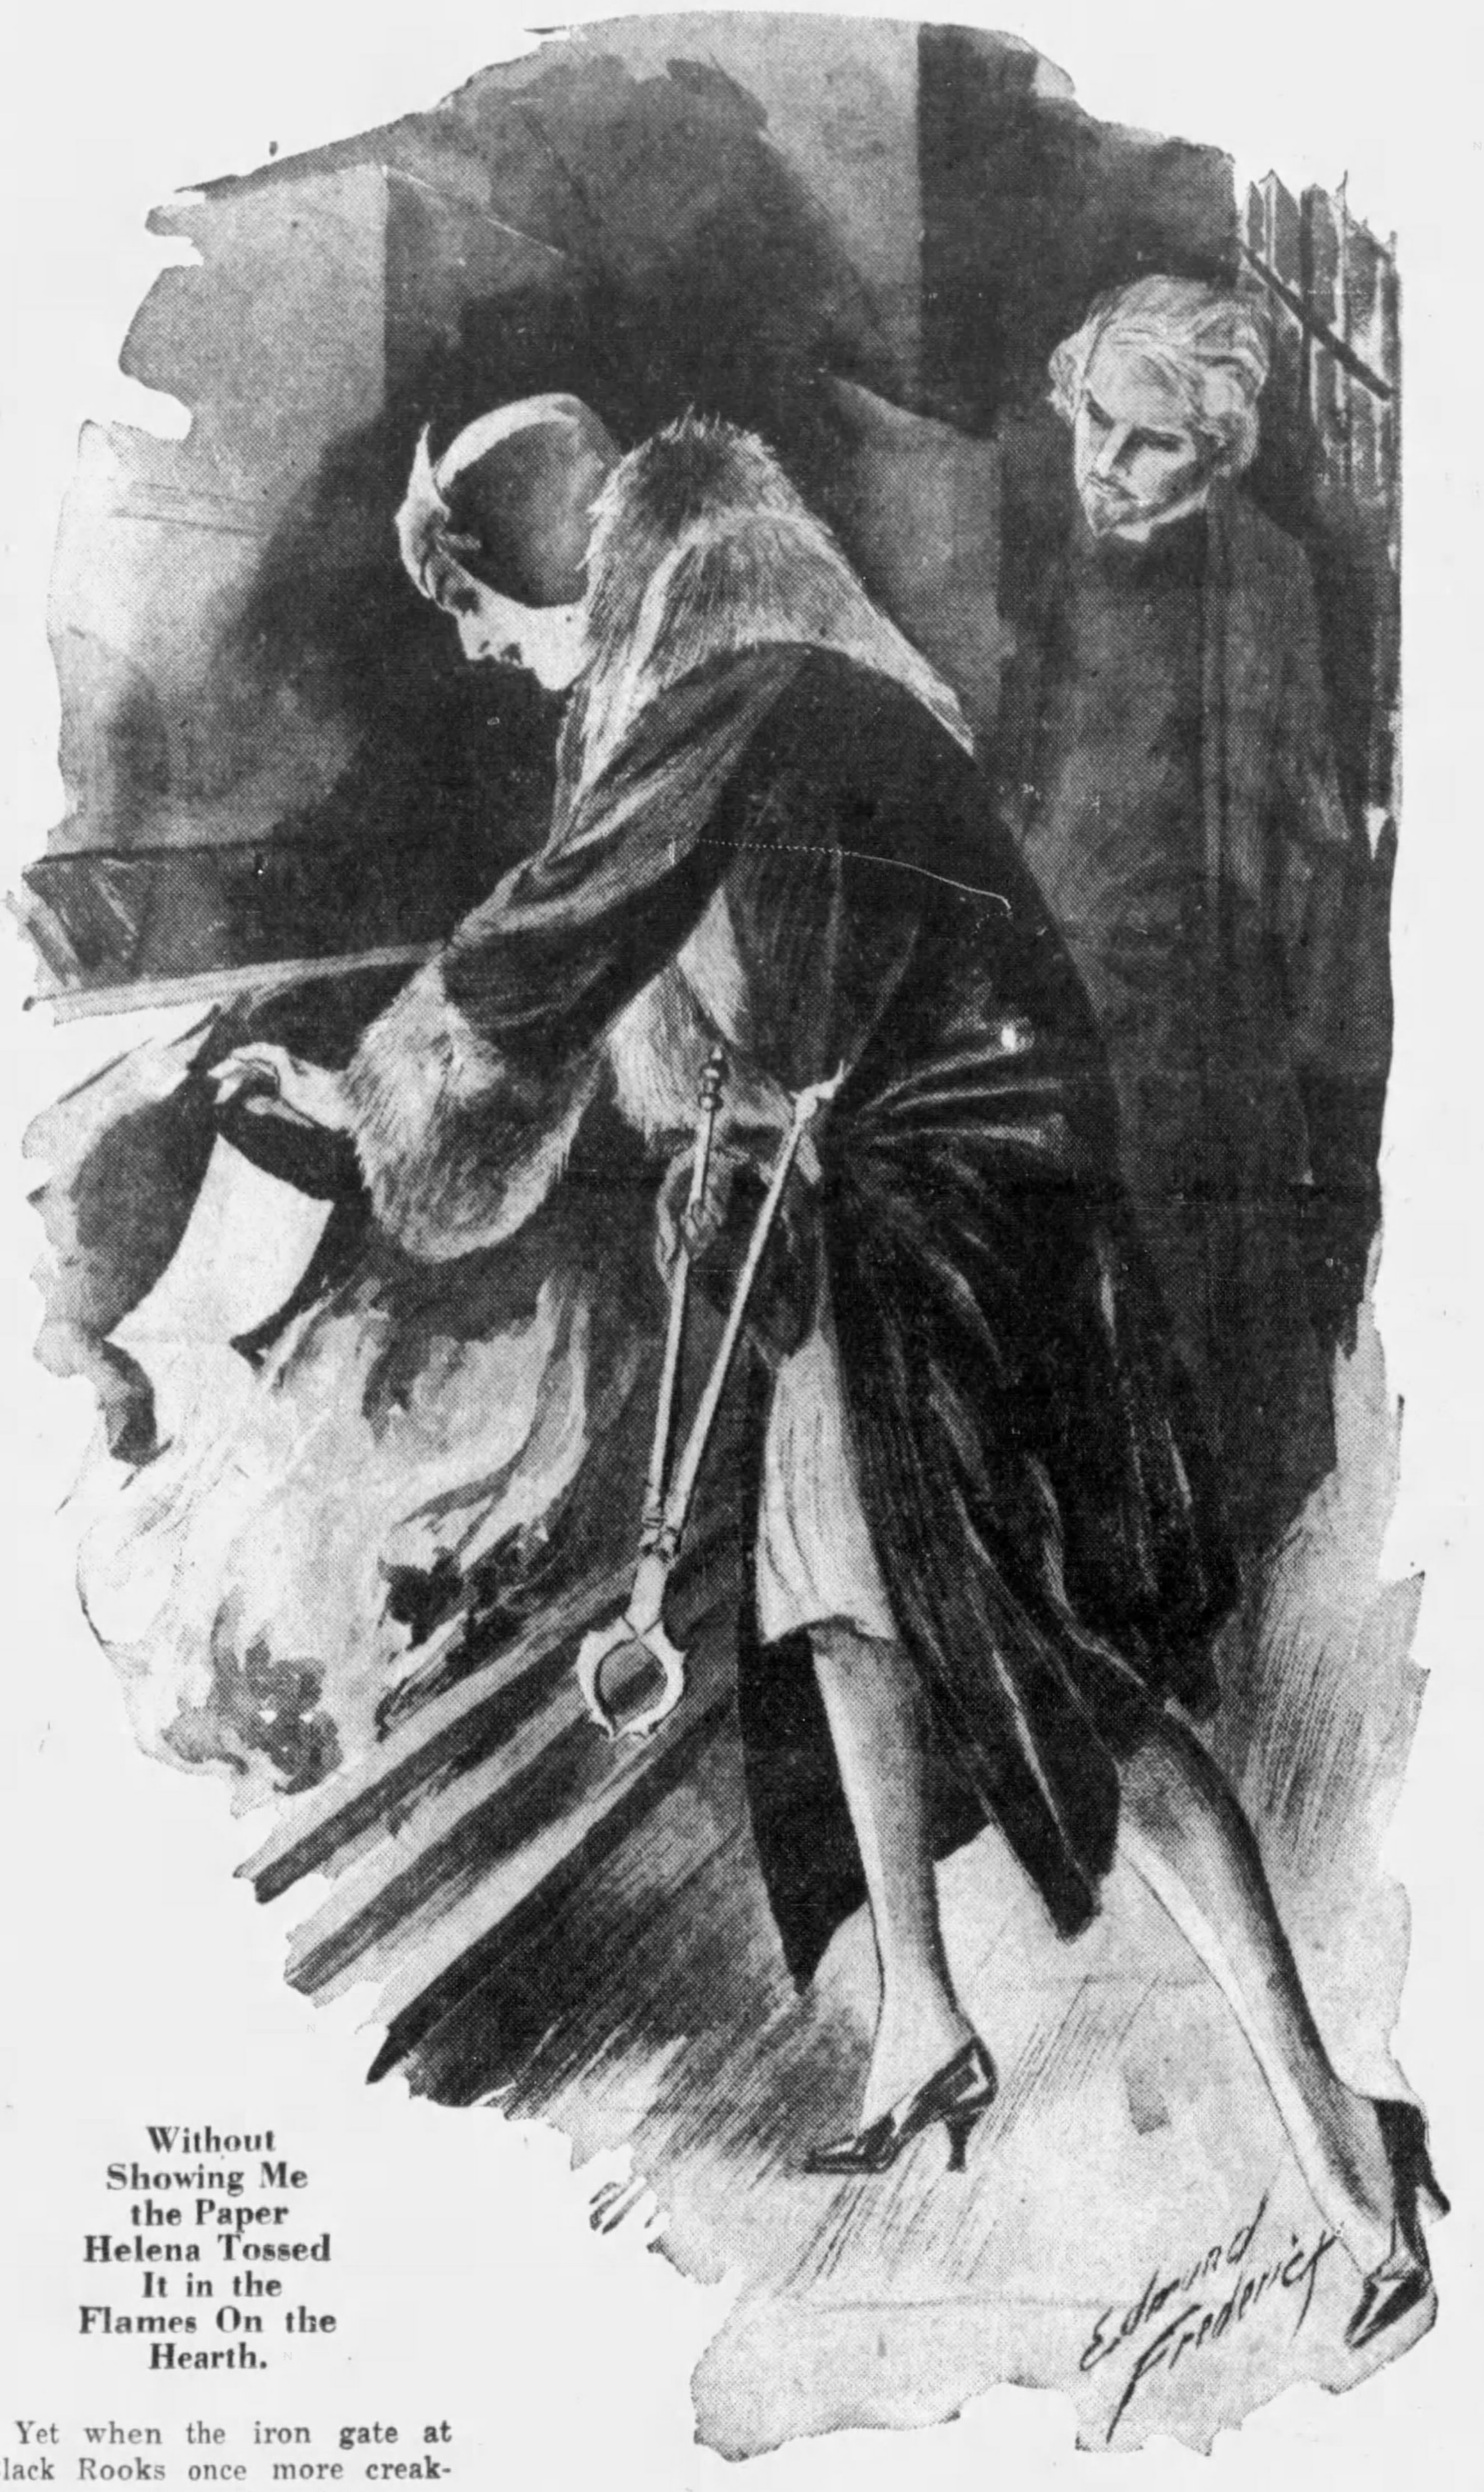
I took her in my arms and closed her lips with mine. The hideous danger that hung over us added a dagger of fear to our kiss. Her arms closed about me, her lips clung to mine with pleading, passionate abandon. And in that kiss all consciousness of our difficulties vanished; together we were lifted into a white light of ecstasy. I felt the warmth of her exquisite, yielding body against me, the beat of her heart, the yearning of her blood. And when, finally, we drew apart, I was ready to attempt anything she proposed.

The next day, which was to leave its mark on all the rest of my life and plunge me into an existence where I would never again find peace, brought me the proof that a scheme intelligently conceived and well prepared needed nothing more than a little effort, a little risk, and a little coolness of head to succeed.

Everything went through as Helena had prophesied. The telegram from Paris arrived at the proper hour. I wrote a brief note of regret to Sir Archibald, whom I did not wish to disturb, and Helena drove me in her roadster to Stirling. Still accompanied by her, I bought my ticket and we went out on the platform to wait for the London express. By then it was dark. At one end of the platform, Helena guided me through a wicket gate, down a flight of iron stairs, and we were out of the station.

The next step was to get back to the car. In the gloom of the great stone wall that lined the embankment, she handed me, one by one, the articles of my disguise. From head to foot I was turned into a Scotch clergyman.

Under my crown of white hair, I meditated on one subject: Success of the venture ahead of me. At the edge of the abyss over which I tottered, my only hope was a swift stroke which would free me forever and make it possible to seek refuge in a new part of the world. To flee without a question did not even occur to me.



Without Showing Me the Paper Helena Tossed It in the Flames On the Hearth.

Yet when the iron gate at Black Rooks once more creaked open and swallowed me up, the sense of being stifled that I had already experienced before each of the illegal tasks Helena had set me, was not spared me. But it lasted only a moment.

She led me to the door of Sir Archibald's apartment, and knocked softly. The page opened, his finger on his lips. His Lordship was asleep. The boy gave no sign of being surprised to see me and invited me to enter, while he closed the door—with polite excuses—in Lady Helena's face.

A moment later I was alone with the invalid, who was in a deep sleep. Bobby had evidently received instructions as to what to do. He requested me to wait until his Lordship awoke, for he had asked for me several times that day.

The room was in a favorable obscurity. A night lamp burned on the table; beside it stood the partly emptied glass of the sleeping draught; the old man's heavy breathing was the only sound to be heard in the room.

I made a few movements about the room to assure myself that it would be safe to start. Nothing happened. Without waiting longer, I slipped my hand under the pillow and felt the leather bag, which I drew towards me cautiously. Dropping it in one of the capacious pockets of my pastor's overcoat, I tiptoed to the door, drew the bolt and gained the hall, closing the door behind me.

The door of Helena's room stood ajar, and she was waiting for me. Once inside, I handed her the bag, trusting that this time we would not have the disagreeable surprise that had been our only reward on the previous occasion, in her hotel at Deauville. And, indeed, the jewels and the necklace were there! Helena emptied the bag over her bed; a sheet of heavy foolscap folded twice, fell out with the jewels.

"What did I tell you, Ruddy?"

Her anxiety, which she made no effort to conceal, was plainly visible on her face as she read the paper.

"Ah, we were not a minute too soon!"

Without showing me the paper Helena tossed it in the flames on the hearth, where it writhed and blackened before crumbling into a pinch of ashes, as Helena poked it with the tongs. When it had completely disappeared she lifted her head:

"We are saved, Ruddy."

Pouring the jewels back into the bag, she took my face in both hands and gave me a long kiss of loving gratitude.

But there was no time to lose in congratulations or thanks. We made our way back to the outer gate with a dignity calculated to inspire respect. The halls were dark, and we passed only one or two servants, who bowed before me.

"You are sure you don't want someone to drive you back?" asked Helena, in the presence of the porter.

I shook my head.

"The village is so near."

That had also been rehearsed between us. On our arrival at the castle, she had given the porter to understand that she had just met me a half-mile from Black Rooks and had picked me up in her car. She said good-night to me at the gate. Thus, it would be easy for her to appear to have been deceived, like everyone else, by the supposed pastor, who would obviously be suspected, in the morning, of the theft. Everything, as I have said, had been marvelously foreseen by her!

With my lantern (for the good pastor had brought a lantern to light him along the road), I set out. But a hundred yards from the castle I turned in the opposite direction from Oak Village. An hour later, after following Helena's careful directions, I was in a little town which tourists had made popular and which had its garage. There no questions were asked. I had discarded my clergyman's costume, and the owner of the garage himself drove me to Edinburgh. From there I was driven, after one more change of costume, and a little rearrangement of my features (I was becoming an old hand at camouflage) to Dundee, where I caught the boat to Holland. It was agreed that I was to wait for Helena in Rotterdam. She had promised that she would join me within forty-eight hours.

The first thing I did, on setting foot on shore in Holland, was to throw myself on the papers. A wire from Edinburgh filled the column of "latest news," and the blood rushed to my head as I read: followed by the sub-title: The Murderer Wore the Costume of a Clergyman. And beneath that, a second sub-title: The Murderer Escaped with Jewels Estimated at Thirty Millions.

MURDER OF
SIR ARCHIBALD SKARLETT

I did not need to read the article. I knew now what it would say. . . . And I could wait as long as I liked for Lady Skarlett. For now there was no need for her to flee, nor for Durin, either. They would be undisturbed, now, in their castle of Black Rooks. And Durin would enjoy the fruits of my Herculean labors. What an ending to my career! And what a masterly stroke they had used to dismiss me! To have made me steal the jewels from the husband's room and disappear; then to have strangled the husband behind me, thus laying both the thefts and the murder at my door.

Ah, they understood each other well, that rascal and his sorceress. And to crown the adventure, Helena had seen to it that I left empty-handed.

There was nothing to do but accept the inevitable. There are times in life when that is the highest art. Yet it was nothing compared with the art Helena had used to envelop me in an atmosphere of terror, with her tales of hereditary vengeance, haunted cells, and slow death that awaited us in the dungeon of Black Rooks. No doubt about it, she had twisted me around her little finger. . . .

I spent ten days in hiding in Holland. But it was time wasted. I had nothing to fear unless they denounced me, and they had as much reason as myself to keep silent. They had sealed my lips with a burning seal, red with blood. . . .

This time I suffered no flurry of anger; the blow was too complete, too stunning. My life, my plans for the future, my trust in Helena, had collapsed under me like a house of cards; and I spent hours in my room at the hotel in Rotterdam, meditating over the ruins. I read all the papers with avidity, but found only an occasional paragraph devoted to the murder at Black Rooks.

The clergyman's disguise had been found in a swamp in the forest, but the trail of the clergyman had been lost. The inspector from Saint-Jean had come, and had given it as his opinion that the crime was the work of the eternal Mr. Flow. He had been more lucky than at Deauville; but the jewels had cost him a high price. For in the past he had always worked without murder. But he had proved that, if necessary, he would not shrink even from that.

The Edinburgh papers published a detailed article on the great grief of Lady Skarlett. Her friends found her unconsolable, and she had only praise for her late husband. Poor Durin, who owed so much to Sir Archibald since the ridiculous accusations that he was Mr. Flow, himself was overwhelmed by the tragedy.

This final crime of Mr. Flow's moreover, had proved Durin's innocence, for it was known that he had not left the castle that night, whereas the murderer, disguised as a pastor, had entered and left with that audacity which had established the reputation of the Man of a Hundred and One Masks throughout the world.

In his despair, Durin left the service of the Skarletts and disappeared from view. Meanwhile, I had returned to Paris, taken up my practice again, and resumed my long, peaceful talks with the charming Nathalie. More than ever I appreciated the exquisite affection and quiet understanding that I found at her fireside. With infallible intuition, she realized that I had been plunged in some horrible experience. But she asked no questions and did not force her sympathy on me. The two sisters had taken an apartment of their own now, close to the bank where Clotilde had found a place in the department of disputed claims, and were keeping house. Many evenings during the long Winter that followed I tramped through the snow and drizzling rains, to be welcomed in their bright cozy retreat. Clotilde was carrying out her program as she had planned. Her intelligence, her efficiency in every task she undertook, and above all her masculine power of will, guaranteed her eventual success. Nathalie was as purely feminine as her sister was masculine; and while Clotilde grew impatient and fretted at the universal stupidity and weakness of mankind, Nathalie accepted these things with a wise and unspoken understanding. After the tortuous ways of Helena's vivid but incomprehensible temperament, I found this serenity of Nathalie's unutterably soothing.

One evening in the Spring, as I stopped on the Boulevard to buy a paper, I learned from a discreet, two-line notice that Lady Skarlett, whose period of mourning was not yet over, had been privately betrothed. Her fiance, it was added, had come from northwest Canada, after seeing her picture in the paper, to ask for her hand in marriage. The name of the fiance was given as Sir Douglas Cherfield.

I did not have to be told who this Douglas was. Ah, Helena! Helena! You have them both now, your jewels and your Douglas! The famous necklace hangs once more about your shining throat. But do not forget that the hands which restored it to you have themselves formed a necklace of a different kind, and with fatal effect, about the throat of your husband! Take care lest, some night, this other necklace shall also be yours! I too have known your desires and your lies; but Douglas may be more merciless in punishing than I. . . .

At the word "lies" the paper dropped from my hand, and I stood motionless on the sidewalk, while the unceasing traffic of the Boulevards flowed past me. Had they been lies, or was there perhaps merely one more prisoner in Black Rooks? Not in the dun-

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Makes One Look Younger.

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair at home.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with a comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

"UGLY SKIN MADE ME AN OUTCAST"

but almost overnight it was a different story

"Skin eruptions and blackheads repel others. Squeezing only made my skin sore and blotchy. I had given up hope of relief when a nurse told me to get Rowles Mentho Sulphur. She explained how its Phenol removes infection as its Sulphur clears the skin and the Menthol soothes and heals the sore, raw tissue. Overnight I looked better. And in a few days my skin was clear."

With amazing ease, Rowles Metho Sulphur safely clears the skin. It is also good for dry skin, itching torture and eczema. Insist on Rowles Mentho Sulphur for best results. All druggists.

VREELANDS HAIRERBS

Bald Men Look! FREE

One Full Ampoule of my amazing Hairerbs fluid which I discovered myself and which grew hair on my head.

This Ampoule is absolutely free. Don't send any money. There is no C.O.D. No charge whatsoever. All I want is an opportunity to show you the fluid with which I grew hair on my own and other men's heads. Merely mail the coupon below for Free Ampoule.

I grew my own hair just as it shows here

I will prove to you FREE that I can grow hair, quick.

Here is How I Used to Look

I was just as bald as this picture. It is a true photograph without any tampering or retouching. It is exactly like I used to look. Then look at the full head of hair I have in the picture on the left!

As I have stated so often, I don't know whether I am the first man who discovered this great secret, but I do know I have it, that I grew my own hair and that I am growing hair on the heads of other men.

Bald Men It's No Joke to Be Bald!

These are exact untouched photographs of Miss Augustine Raimondo, 2350 East 25th Street, Cleveland, who was almost entirely bald and who had to wear a net covering in the school room. She was a very unhappy young lady. Physicians, hospitals and clinics told her that she would be bald for life. She saw one of our advertisements, became interested and began taking treatments with Hairerbs. The growth of hair was surprisingly fast. A hairy fuzz began to appear after twelve treatments. More hair came steadily until today Miss Raimondo has a full head of hair which is daily becoming more luxuriant. This case is open to investigation by anyone.

What I accomplished on my own head and on other heads I believe I can do for you, provided you are under 45 years of age and loss of hair was not brought about by burns or scars or other causes leading to absolutely dead hair roots. Anyhow, I must succeed or your money is refunded in strict accordance with my guarantee. My home treatment is simple, and easily applied.

Mail This FREE Coupon!

Mail the coupon today—Right Now—I will send you, immediately, one full Ampoule of my marvelous Hairerbs fluid which I discovered, of which I hold the secret and which grew my own hair on my own bald head. Besides the Free Ampoule of Fluid, I will send photographs, names and addresses of men and women who successfully used my Hairerbs Fluid for dandruff, falling and loss of hair.

Amazingly Easy Way to get into ELECTRICITY

Don't spend your life waiting for $5 raises in a dull, hopeless job. Now . . . and forever . . . say good-bye to 25 and 35 dollars a week. Let me show you how to qualify for jobs leading to salaries of $50, $60 and up, a week, in Electricity —NOT by correspondence, but by an amazing way to teach, RIGHT HERE IN THE GREAT COYNE SHOPS. You become a practical expert in 90 days! Getting into Electricity is far easier than you imagine!

Learn Without Lessons in 90 DAYS

By Actual Work—in the Great Shops of Coyne

Lack of experience—age, or advanced education bars no one. I don't care if you don't know an armature from an air brake—I don't expect you to! I don't care if you're 16 years old or 48—it makes no difference! Don't let lack of money stop you. Most of the men at Coyne have no more money than you have.

Railroad Fare Allowed

I will allow your railroad fare to Chicago, and if you should need part-time work I'll assist you to it. Then, in 12 brief weeks, in the great roaring shops of Coyne, I train you as you never dreamed you could be trained . . . on a gigantic outlay of electric apparatus . . . costing hundreds of thousands of dollars . . . real dynamos, engines, power plants, autos, switchboards, transmitting stations . . . everything from door-bells to farm power and lighting . . . full-sized . . . in full operation every day!

No Books-No Printed Lessons

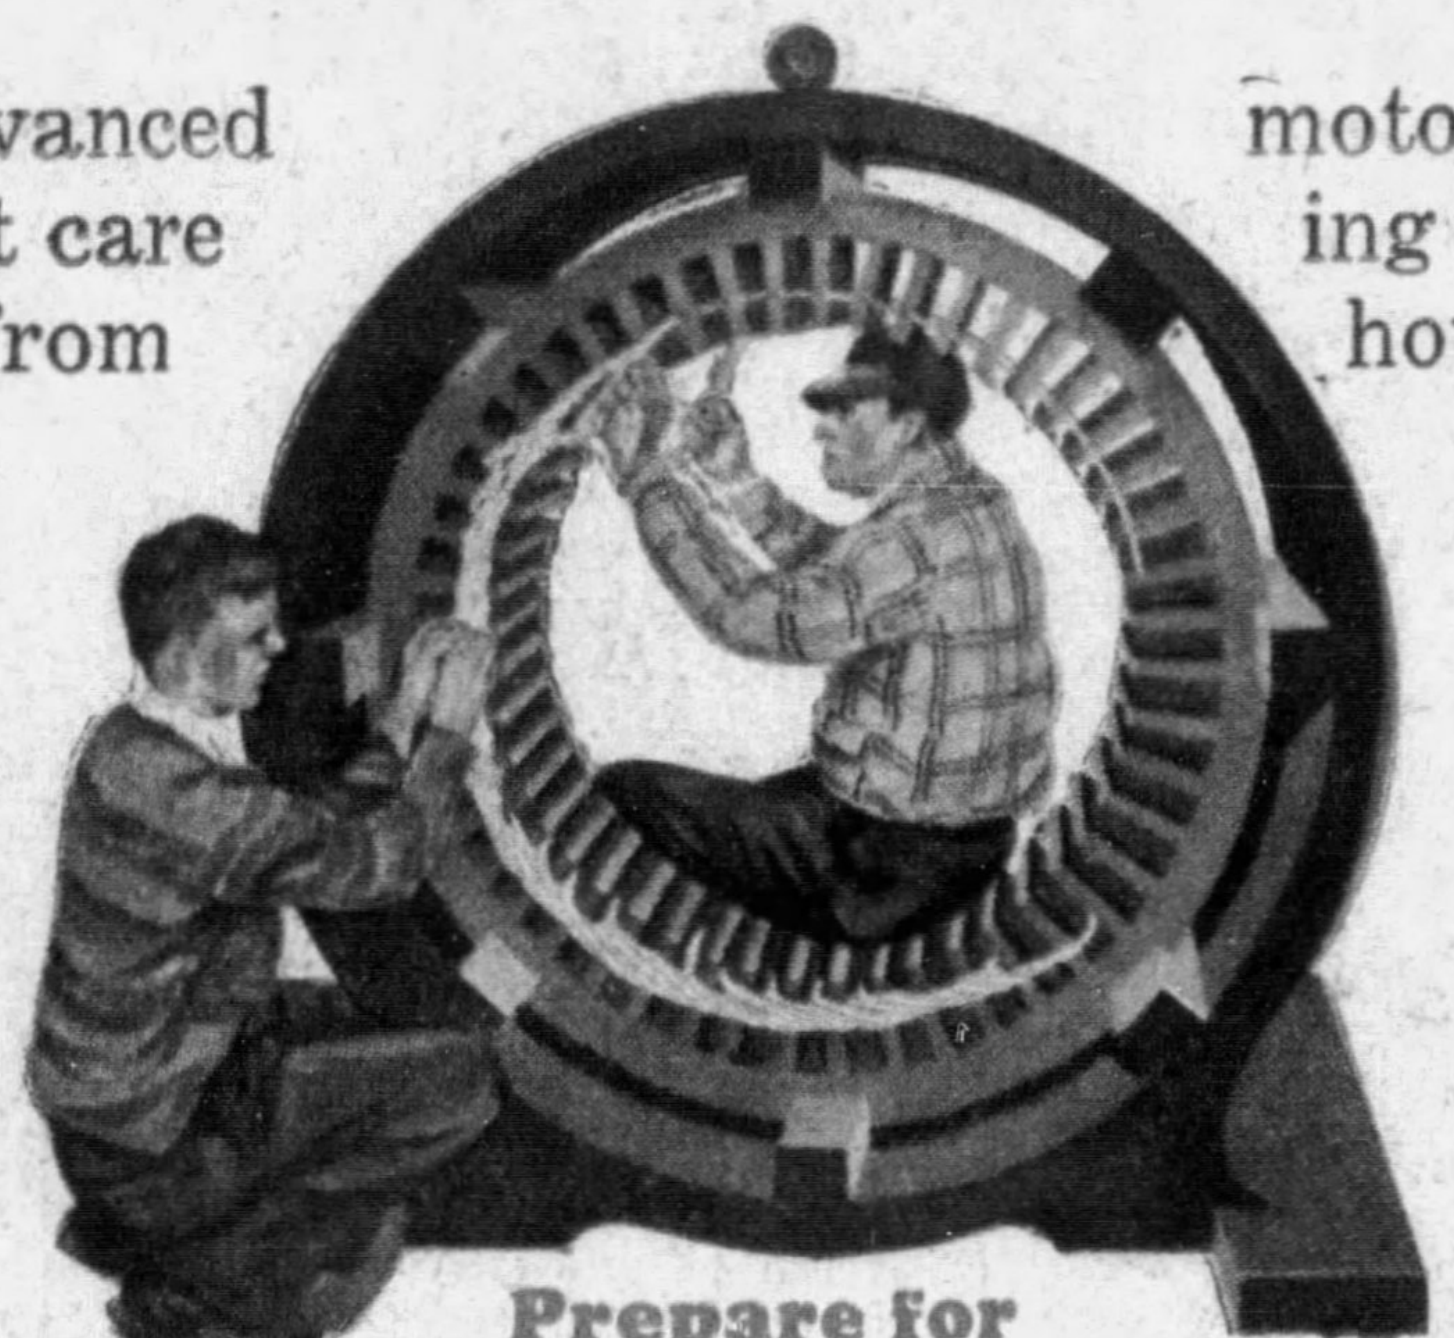
No books, no baffling charts . . . all real actual work . . . right here in the great Coyne school . . . building real batteries . . . winding real armatures, operating real motors, dynamos and generators, wiring houses, etc. That's a glimpse of how we make you a practical electrician in 90 days, teaching you far more than the average ordinary electrician ever knows and fitting you to step into jobs leading to big pay immediately after graduation. Here, in this world-famous Parent School—and nowhere else in the world—can you get this training!

Jobs-Pay-Future

Don't worry about a job, Coyne training settles the job question for life. Demand for Coyne men often exceeds the supply. Our employment bureau gives you a lifetime service. Two weeks after graduation, Clyde F. Hart got a position as electrician for the Great Western Railroad at over $100 a week. That's not unusual. We can point to Coyne men making up to $600 a month. $60 a week is only the beginning of your opportunity. You can go into radio, battery, or automotive electrical business for yourself and make up to $15,000 a year.

GET THE FACTS

Coyne is your one great chance to get into electricity. Every obstacle is removed. This school is 30 years old—Coyne training is tested—proven beyond all doubt—endorsed by many large electrical concerns. You can find out everything absolutely free. Simply mail the coupon and let me send you the big, free Coyne book of 150 photographs . . . facts . . . jobs . . . salaries . . . opportunities. Tells you how many earn expenses while training and how we assist our graduates in the field. This does not obligate you. So act at once. Just mail coupon.



Prepare for Jobs Like These

Here are a few of hundreds of positions open to Coyne-trained men. Our free employment bureau gives you lifetime employment service.

White Lies — by Joan Clayton

"I think you might have done better than that. That can be so easily checked."

"Check away," said Dorothy defiantly. "Are any jewelry stores open tonight in this neighborhood?"

She pulled her coat around her. "Come on, let's find out," she insisted. "I don't want to eat with you."

Durant's eyes remained dubious.

"You'll have to admit that story has a funny sound," he said argumentatively, "and though I have never lined myself up particularly with old John Law I can't see why I should return stolen property to you, when it looks very much as if you were responsible for the stealing. You might tell me the whole story—that is, if you want to," he concluded indifferently.

As she hesitated he said, "You need not be afraid I'll print anything you don't want printed. I'll promise that."

Dorothy hesitated a moment longer, weighing the situation from all its angles. James Rushmore Durant was hardly the person she would have chosen for a confidant. But unless she told him the story she realized unwillingly that he would never return the necklace, even if he discovered that it was a fake. Besides, there was the additional fact that he was a newspaperman, and must be, in his own way, a competent investigator.

Perhaps he could find the happy ending for her unhappy difficulties.

She took a long breath and plunged into her narrative, sketching in every incident from the Hartwell Ball to the moment she leaped into the icy, harbor waters. "But the strangest thing," she finished slowly, "is that Jerry Montoya said the diamonds were worth as much to him paste as real. Isn't that queer?"

Durant had listened with absorbed attention. As her voice came to a close he whistled. "It's a rum story," he said. "Must be true. Nobody's imagination could work that thing out."

He placed his chin on his hands a moment and turned his thoughts to the problem.

CHAPTER XX.

An Unexpected Invitation.

"IN the first place," James Rushmore Durant said slowly at last, "you have to consider the people who are involved. There's the Count. I wouldn't put it past him to steal from his hostess. That's right down his alley. But what's to be gained from planting paste diamonds on an innocent bystander? Think of Montoya a minute. Obviously he didn't steal them, else he couldn't have been so delighted at the chance of lifting them from you. There's a funny thing too. You can figure out some possible connection between the Count and Mrs. Hartwell but how in the world does Montoya figure? Why would the Count and Mrs. Hartwell go so often to the Mad-House Club, particularly when Mrs. Hartwell's reputation is shaky as it is?"

"I don't know," said Dorothy hopelessly.

"Your coat might have been chosen as a hiding place, a temporary one for the real jewels," he said. He pondered a moment and then asked suddenly, "Are you sure they couldn't have been switched on you after you got home?"

Dorothy shook her head. "It's simply not possible."

Instantly he discarded the theory he was building up. Dorothy was amused now to observe how he took every word of hers as the gospel. He lighted a cigarette and considered the problem afresh.

"I'm afraid there's not much in that remark of Montoya's," he said reluctantly. "He was just trying to bluff the diamonds out of you—didn't believe you. It would have been a good joke if he had been hung up with the paste."

But Dorothy was not convinced.

"No, he meant that he would just as soon have paste. I know he meant it," she said definitely.

Durant laid his cigarette on the edge of the table and leaned toward her.

"I must have seemed pretty hardboiled at the first," he said sheepishly, "but now I'd like to work this thing out if you'll let me. You permit me to keep the necklace and maybe I can find out where it was made. It's barely possible that the person who stole the real diamonds meant to turn suspicion on you, until he made his getaway, though, heaven knows, it sounds weird enough. But if we found out who had owned the paste ones, maybe—"

Dorothy smiled. Everything that Durant was eagerly suggesting she had thought of before—thought of and discarded.

His enthusiasm was somewhat dashed. "It's a good idea," he said with an injured air.

"Go ahead," said Dorothy wearily, "I only wanted the necklace to produce in case I'm arrested."

"That's the girl," he approved. "We'll work this thing out in no time. It will make one peach of a story. You don't mind my telling my city editor enough of it so I can go out on the story. Having the newspaper behind me might make a lot of difference."

"Go ahead," said Dorothy again. She smiled wryly. "You might even manage to arrange bail for me when Hilma Hartwell locates me and has me arrested for the theft of her necklace," she added.

"Don't worry too much about what Hilma Hartwell can do to you," he said. "You might make a deal with her, for that matter. She's got a red hot past that she's always afraid will come to her husband's ears. She nearly landed in the divorce court on her last escapade."

Durant crushed out his cigarette and lighted one for Dorothy.

"It's not very pretty," he went on. "She forged her husband's name for thirty thousand. There wasn't any open row because somebody covered and Henry Hartwell, that old saint, never learned about it, still thinks she's an artless child. There were rumors that she had lost on the ponies, but I thought myself that the Count de Rochmont's new sport car might be the explanation."

Dorothy was unutterably sick of the whole sordid business. "Can't we go home now?" she pleaded. "I'm really awfully tired."

Together they taxied to the apartment. Durant talked enthusiastically of his various plans, but Dorothy was too tired to listen. She felt that his efforts were doomed to failure, that the white lies she had spun bound her too tightly for release by an alien hand. After all, in the last analysis, she knew well enough that to Durant she was only the possibility of a good story. She left him at the door. He would have followed her in, but she felt that she would go mad if she had to hear another of his theories. She almost shut the door on his flow of words.

Lulu, who was leafing through a magazine, looked up as she came in, sank to a chair and exhaustedly pressed her hands to her eyes.

"You should have stayed home," she said. "Guess who's called at least six times?"

Dorothy sat up quickly, her hands dropping to her sides. "Who?" she asked.

"Hugh Ferisee," exclaimed Lulu dramatically. She leaned back to enjoy her effect.

As Dorothy turned away from the telephone, after a conversation with Hugh Ferisee, she felt partially relieved, yet at the same time she was left disturbed and vaguely unhappy. It had not been easy, that conversation. She was so preoccupied with what had been and what had not been said that she did not notice that Lulu was regarding her anxiously from across the room.

"Everything all right?" asked Lulu at length.

Dorothy hesitated. "He asked me to come up to Kingston for the weekend. So did—Ruth," she said in a low voice.

"And you're going?" prodded Lulu.

"I said I would," said Dorothy doubtfully. "I wish I hadn't. Ruth doesn't want me to come. I could tell that from her voice."

"To blazes with Ruth," interrupted Lulu. "She doesn't count. Hugh wanted you all right, didn't he?"

"He sounded as if he did," admitted Dorothy. "He sounded really worried—said he couldn't imagine what had happened to me. His office phoned him that you had called there trying to locate me. He said that he had gone crazy—thought something terrible must have happened to me."

"What did you tell him?"

Dorothy's frown was troubled. "I told him that I had been called out of town and you had overlooked my note. Oh, Lulu," she cried despairingly, "I've told him so many lies now that I'm afraid to face him. He didn't believe what I told him, I know."

Lulu studied the burning tip of her cigarette for a moment and then said cheerily, "That's no way to start a weekend—you've got to remember that you're going on the enemies' ground. This Ruth sounds poisonous to me."

"She is," agreed Dorothy fervently.

"Why don't you make up your mind to start from scratch with Hugh. It'll be a good joke on Ruth to stage the reconciliation at her place. Tell him everything, now that you have the chance. Heaven knows, he's given you enough opportunities."

Dorothy rose. "That's just what I'm going to do," she said definitely. "I can get a train in the morning."

"What about Chalmers, what about your job?" asked Lulu. "Chalmers thinks you're sick, I know. I 'phoned him."

"That's all right," answered Dorothy, "he leaves tomorrow for Florida. He won't be back until after the Christmas holidays, so at any rate, I won't have my job to worry about."

Any woman would have understood the care with which Dorothy selected and packed her clothes—three guilefully simple sports dresses, with wide suede belts; two evening gowns, one of severe white satin, cut discreetly high, the other a tricky, frivolous affair of printed chiffon with rowdy, flying panels. At the last minute she thrust in a skating costume and an afternoon dress, too fluffy for her own taste. She meant to risk no borrowed clothes. The shoes she put in last—black satin pumps, brown satin (just in case she needed that afternoon dress), brogues, square and absurdly sensible, and the pride of the collection, golden kid with wide, upjutting buckles of gold and rhinestones.

Lulu watched, making suggestions from time to time.

"Well, baby," she said, as the bag snapped shut, "you'll give 'em a run for their money."

Dorothy thought that too as, in the morning, she stepped from the train at Kingston. Nothing could have been more smart for traveling than her soft, black suit with its great collar of silver fox and her jaunty-brimmed, black hat.

Ruth and Hugh were waiting for her in one of the Bradford cars, a roadster which Ruth herself drove. Hugh, muffled in coonskin, vaulted over the side into the snowy road and loped toward her.

"Gee, I'm glad you're here," he said simply. He took both her hands in his and looked straight into her eyes. "We're going to have lots of fun," he promised.

For the first time, Dorothy was glad that she had come. It had been so long since her last silly, youthful weekend. She felt responsibilities of all kinds roll from her shoulders.

Hand in hand, giggling like high school children, they stumbled and slid over to the car where Ruth sat, her gloved hands poised on the wheel. She gave Dorothy one quick, smiling look, but a look so enveloping that Dorothy felt she had mentally catalogued every detail of her costume from her black oxfords to the drooping gardenia in her buttonhole.

"Heavens," said Ruth admiringly, "you look as if you had just unpacked yourself from tissue paper. You make me feel like a hag."

Dorothy laughed self consciously. Ruth's compliment carried somewhere in its depths a faint jeer, a suggestion, perhaps, that one did not dress so carefully for the country.

She felt Ruth look at her a second time, more sharply. "I've seen you before somewhere, haven't I?" she demanded suddenly.

Dorothy shook her head. She was a little frightened at the puzzled, searching look in the other girl's eyes. Her arm trembled beneath Hugh's.

"I never forget faces," said Ruth postitively.

"If we don't get inside soon," complained Hugh, "we'll have no faces for you to remember. They'll be frozen off."

With a half apologetic laugh, and a still puzzled face, Ruth started the motor. Hugh flung Dorothy's bag into the rack and the two of them climbed into the car. Hugh, seated in the middle, attempted manfully to hold the robe over both, but as the car shot forward it appeared he would be unsuccessful.

The wind whipped down the heavy collar of Dorothy's coat, and, vaulting over the low slung door, bit through her thin stockings. Hugh's nose rose in scarlet glory from his face. Only Ruth seemed undisturbed, comfortable, in the bitter cold. She was one of those rare people on whom changes in temperature seem to have little effect.

Dorothy would have bitten her tongue out before she protested at the terrific speed, but Hugh kept up a half humorous flow of complaints, urging that she slow down.

"A hothouse plant—just a hothouse plant," Ruth jeered.

With that she stepped more vigorously on the gas and a dizzying succession of white-coated fields, marked with fences like the fancy icings on wedding cakes, swept by. Dorothy tugged futilely at the robe. She felt that Ruth was glancing toward her across Hugh's shoulder. Leaning back easily she managed to gasp:

"It's really marvelous speeding through the cold this way. I love it."

A few minutes later she was amused to discover that their speed had diminished perceptibly. She had a small private smile at that, but Hugh was too grateful to draw inferences that any woman would have understood.

But all rides must end, even when they seem endless. It was actually sightly under an hour when Ruth pulled up triumphantly before a great, rambling house of gray stone covered with the bleak, brown skeletons of ivy, surrounded by a stiff row of dwarf cedars, startlingly green under their powdering of snow.

As their wheels ground to a crackling halt in the hard packed snow under the porte cochere, the front door opened and a woman, who had evidently been fighting off the forties for some time, stepped out on the porch. She was without a coat and, after one glance, decided not to venture her fragile slippers in the snow.

"Ruth, Ruth," she called in a complaining voice, "it's really dangerous to drive so fast in this weather. If you won't consider your own life you might consider your guests."

Ruth tossed aside the robe and crawled from under the wheel. "Don't be silly, mother," she said impatiently. "They loved it."

Mrs. Bradford subsided. She was a mother in the modern manner, a mother who had been assured so often by her daughter that she was silly, prudish and mid-Victorian that she had come to believe it.

"Your father," she said helplessly.

"You know yourself how father drives," exclaimed Ruth.

Meekly Mrs. Bradford surrendered, just as she always surrendered. Nothing more was said of Ruth's driving.

As Dorothy stamped up the steps, trying to warm her numb feet, Mrs. Bradford took her hand and gently made her welcome. "It was nice of you to come," she said.

Ruth, lingering near Hugh, who was unlimbering Dorothy's bag, overheard and said rudely, "For that matter it was kind of us to have her—wasn't it Hugh?"

"It certainly was," he agreed comfortably.

A doubtful expression crossed the elder woman's face at the badinage. Dorothy said firmly, "Not so nice as it was of me to come."

All three of them, even Mrs. Bradford, laughed. But Dorothy was not quite at ease. She was hardly sure enough of how much Ruth was fooling, how much she was in earnest. Already she wished that she were back in New York.

She wished it as a trim maid unpacked her clothes, and exclaiming over their chic, hung them on padded green hangers, faintly scented with the ghosts of Summer blossoms. From its cheerful wood fire to the slim green vase holding a spray of azaleas, the room spoke of a hostess, who was thoughtful of her guests. But already Dorothy knew that that hostess was not Ruth.

The Notorious Mr. Flow — by Gaston Leroux

geon this time, but nevertheless a prisoner, bound to the will of Durin more inescapably than if chained in the moldy, rat-ridden cell of the Green Lady?

No, I could not believe in the innocence of Helena. The whole adventure, from my first conversation with Durin in the Paris prison, had been too deliberately carried out. In a flash it passed before me, like the film of a movie, and I knew that Durin and Helena had cranked the camera. I saw her as she had received me, that first night at the Royal Hotel in Deauville, her great limpid eyes of an Egyptian princess smiling at me with promises she had no intention of keeping. . . . I saw the haggard faces in the Inner Hall that night I had won a million . . . a million! . . . Our supper on the kitchen table of Jacob's house in Rouen, when Helena had poured the wine and cut the bread and cheese, after . . . well, after the job was finished. . . . My plunge into the water at Rouen, with the police baying at my heels. . . . . Georgette. . . . Trompette! At the vision of Trompette my heart welled with gratitude. . . . And last, the somber, menacing towers of Black Rooks. Helena's smouldering beauty veiled by northern mists; the depths of her perfidy, and the heights of her strange, incalculable passions. . . . Woman or demon, her troubling beauty had served many ends. . . .

I shook myself as if to break off a nightmare too vivid to be real. The lights were going on along the boulevards and honest citizens were returning to their homes after a good day's work. I turned in the direction of Clotilde's and Nathalie's apartment. There the lamp would be burning softly in the Spring dusk, a pleasant bustle of preparation for supper would enliven the room, and an affectionate welcome would await me. There I would find peace, and—perhaps—happiness.

But I had tasted of a more dangerous ecstasy than happiness, a more divine intoxication. Would happiness now be enough?

The End.

Three dangers to avoid

- dry scalp
- falling hair
- dandruff

They all come from lack of care and they all lead to baldness. Fortunately there is a simple treatment that guards against all three dangers, and makes your hair easier to manage, too. To keep your scalp in the pink of condition, make this a regular practice—before your shampoo apply a little "Vaseline" Hair Tonic directly to the scalp. Rub it in vigorously with a rotary motion, continuing this massage until the scalp feels loose and the whole head tingles. If your hair is dry and brittle, use more "Vaseline" Hair Tonic and if possible leave it on over night. Then shampoo as usual. Easy, isn't it?

Vaseline HAIR TONIC

"Vaseline" Hair Tonic is sold at all good drug stores, in bottles of two sizes with a convenient shaker-type top. Made by the Chesebrough Mfg. Co., Consolidated, 17 State Street, New York.

Hot Drinks for the Low Temperature Weather

By Mrs. Christine Frederick,
The Distinguished Authority on Household Efficiency.

THE BOWL that cheers in these chilly and snow-wrapped days is most certainly a steaming one. For nothing is more productive of goose-flesh and congealed blood than a cold draught on a zero morning, afternoon or evening!

Of course there are the old standbys and foibles—tea and coffee, and adults can indulge in these dissipations for the most part without many qualms of conscience. But what of the children who usually drink milk—and cold milk at that—these low temperature months?

Most children rebel at hot milk because, heated, milk seems to lose something in flavor and to have an insipid flat taste. However, if mother will put a small bit of butter in each glass, season the milk with a speck of salt, a most delightful result will be gained.

Now, on the market, are so many tasty mixtures of milk, malted and evaporated, plain and flavored, that there is endless variety of choice for hot milk beverages for everyone. The rich nutty flavor of the malted milk is basis for heated drinks that put warmth in the body and energy in the mind. But nowadays the housewife does not have to rack her brain or finger recipes to concoct a quick, delicious and nourishing drink of powdered milk, for there is made now, through the efforts of scientific skill and care and experiment, a perfect chocolate-flavored malted milk containing the necessary Carbohydrates, Fats, Proteins and Mineral Matter to make a complete food, and also a food that can be prepared almost instantly. A few spoonsful of this new mixture added to hot milk—or more added to hot water—make a quick and healthful satisfying drink for children or invalids or for anyone who appreciates the soothing effect of a food drink—good as well as "good for you."

There are, of course, the evaporated milks, and their richness and desirability in all kinds of cooking are well known. Too, it is a boon to know that of this evaporated milk one can make, to top off the steaming cocoa, a frothy "whipped cream."

This is the way to do that.

Place the unopened can of milk in a pan and cover with cold water. Heat to boiling point. Remove and chill quickly. Pour milk into a bowl which is surrounded with ice and salt. Whip with rotary beater, remembering that a small quantity whips more swiftly than a large.

We must not forget the "near coffees" in our dissertation on hot Winter drinks, and I think that of all the wonderful drinks for cold weather, these powdered coffees are best when served this way:

Near-Cafe-Au-Lait: Heat one cup of water in a little pan and one cup of rich milk in another. Dissolve two level teaspoons of powdered near-coffee or any immitation coffee mixture, in a little pitcher, and then, taking the pan of boiling water in one hand and the pan of boiling milk in the other, pour in two streams, simultaneously, into the pitcher! There is something about this "joint" pouring of the milk and water that makes a better-tasting and more delicious drink—as the French know when they so mix that famous cup—Cafe-Au-Lait.

But suppose, you say, that we do not like milk and never drink it and just can't bear to think of it! Ah, then you must like fruit juices, for it seems an unfailing truth that those who do not like milk crave the acid of fruit—oranges, lemons, grapes.

In the old unregenerate days now gone forever, folks had to warm their noses and melt the icicles from round their hearts with a spiced wine punch which we may at least immitate now with a good prohibition drink that is better by far.

Hot Spiced Punch: 6 lemons, 1 pint bottle grapejuice, 2 oranges, 4 quarts hot water, sugar to taste, spices. Method: Squeeze lemons and oranges and add grapejuice and sugar and water. Take 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon, 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves, tie in a little gauze bag and "steep" for five minutes in boiling water (a cupful). Add this strained spiced water to the punch and serve very hot in little wine glasses.

Many foods not thought of as beverages can be used as such and are often just the zestful drink that the finnicky appetite desires. Bouillon cubes can just as well form the basis for a meat-flavored drink that is served as a drink and not as a soup. With sandwiches and cheese-spread crackers, nothing could be more appetizing than a clear, hot drink of this sort.

Too, there is clam nectar, rich in iodine and reminding one of the Summer camp, the smell of the sea. In tall thin glasses, topped with a speck of butter and a tiny dash of pepper, this sea-food drink supplies pep and go unmeasured.

If fresh clams can be obtained, prepare the nectar in the following manner.

Wash clams thoroughly, removing all sand. Place them in a covered kettle in which there is no water. Cooking clams in water dilutes the nectar—and they have within them all the moisture that is necessary. When the clams have "opened" their shells, they are done, and can be removed to a platter and served with the customary melted butter. The nectar, clear and pearly in the pan, is then strained and you have your princely drink! Never add salt to clam nectar. The ocean has more than supplied this, and if you find the liquid too salty, you may then judiciously dilute.

If you cannot get fresh clams, buy the canned. They are good, excellently prepared, and on Puget Sound where most of the clam canneries are situated they are dug and canned the same day.

Just strain off the minced or whole clams and save for fritters or soup, using the juice or nectar heated—a dash of pepper, a little butter and salt if it seems desirable. Canned clams may need salt—though the fresh ones never do.

I am sure that no one need feel chilled externally or cold within, when so many fine soothing and nerve-making drinks are easily at hand.

How to Make Fruit Cake

WASH and dry 1 pound raisins and 1 pound currants. Pass raisins, 2 ounces candied orange peel and 2 ounces candied lemon peel through food chopper. Thinly slice ½ pound citron. Mix ½ pound sifted flour with ½ tablespoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon mace, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon allspice and ¾ teaspoon salt and sift over the raisins and currants. Cream ½ pound butter, add ½ pound sugar gradually and then beat in 6 well beaten egg yolks. Add to the fruit and flour mixture, ½ cup fruit preserves, the juice of 1 lemon, ¼ cup canned grape fruit and ¼ cup orange juice. Mix thoroughly. Fold in 6 stiffly beaten egg whites. Line two loaf cake pans with buttered paper. Put about half inch layer of the cake mixture in each pan and spread evenly with the thinly sliced citron. Add another layer of cake mixture. Repeat until all the citron and cake dough are used, having cake mixture for the top layer. Bake at 250 degrees for 5 hours. Remove from oven, let stand in the pan until cool and then remove from the pans. Store in a covered tin box.

Pleasant Economies for the New Year

By Mary Lee Swann,
The Well-Known Writer and Lecturer on Cooking.

Boston Brown Bread.

MIX and sift 2 cups sifted graham flour, 1 cup sifted cornmeal, 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ¼ cup lightbrown sugar and 1¼ teaspoons baking soda. Add ½ cup seeded raisins and mix well. Mix ¾ cup molasses and 1¼ cups sour milk and combine with the dry ingredients. Beat until well blended. Pour the mixture into one-pound greased baking powder cans, filling them about two-thirds full. Steam over hot water, about 5 hours, or bake in a moderate oven at about 325 degrees for 1 hour.

Gingerbread.

MIX and sift 2 cups flour, 1½ teaspoons soda, 2 teaspoons ginger, ½ cup sugar and ½ teaspoon salt. Combine ½ cup molasses and 1 cup sour milk. Add to dry ingredients and beat well. Add 4 tablespoons butter, melted over hot water, and ½ teaspoon cinnamon, and beat vigorously. Turn into a greased baking pan and bake in a moderate oven, or about 350 degrees, for 30 minutes.

Boned Chuck Ribs of Beef.

SELECT a 4 or 5 pound boned and rolled piece of chuck rib roast. Rub with flour and dot with bits of beef fat or lard with larding fork. Put on a rack in the roaster uncovered in a very hot oven at about 500 degrees for 20 minutes. Add water to cover the bottom of the roaster but not to reach the meat on the rack, open the valve in the lid of the roaster, cover with the lid and bake in a moderate oven or about 300 degrees, 35 minutes per pound.

Swiss Steak.

SELECT a piece of round steak about 1½ or 2 inches thick. Pound 1 cup of flour into the meat, first on one side and then on other, until all the flour is used. Put 3 tablespoons fat in a frying pan, and in the hot fat brown the floured steak on both sides. Sprinkle 1 teaspoon salt and a few grains pepper over the meat, add ¾ cup water, 1 finely minced onion, 3 cups strained tomato pulp and 2 cups parboiled macaroni or rice. Cover and simmer until the meat is tender, or about two hours.

Orange Sauce.

MIX 1 tablespoon cornstarch with ½ cup cold water, a few grains salt and the grated rind of 1 orange. Cook about 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add 1 tablespoon butter and 1 egg yolk, beaten with ½ cup sugar, to the hot mixture. Stir constantly until egg is cooked. Fold 1 stiffly beaten egg white into the hot mixture. Add the juice of 1 orange and 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Teeth Whiter Today Than Yesterday—Sparkling White Tomorrow for Unmarried Girls

Test this amazing Kolynos Antiseptic Foam with its Unique Dry-Brush Technique that gets astonishing results — quickly restores teeth to their natural, gleaming whiteness

by removing Bacterial-Mouth (You have it)

IF the mere thought of your teeth causes bitter regret, switch to Kolynos. Within a few days you will discover to your delight how brilliant and sparkling white your teeth can be.

As your dentist will tell you, ugly yellow discoloration, decay, and even gum diseases are unnatural. They have a common source in a condition that confronts all of us—all the time.

It is due to germs that sweep into the mouth with every breath. They thrive and attack teeth and gums. Authorities call it Bacterial-Mouth.

Remove this condition and teeth whiten amazingly. The ordinary tooth paste won't do it. But Kolynos will. It quickly and safely kills the germs that cause Bacterial-Mouth.

Dentists Approve Amazing Dry-Brush Technique

Use no water with Kolynos. It is totally different from any tooth paste you have ever used. It permits the wonderfully effective Dry-Brush Technique, approved by dental authorities. For each brushing a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush is prescribed.

As soon as it enters the mouth Kolynos instantly multiplies 25 times. It becomes a surging, antiseptic foam, cooling, refreshing, and smooth.

This foam gets into every crevice, pit and fissure. It kills germs that cause Bacterial-Mouth. It purifies oral tissue and neutralizes acids that promote decay. It combats tartar.

Without injury to teeth or gums it cleans teeth down to the naked white enamel—makes them sparkling white as they were in your childhood.

Safeguards Beauty

For 3 hours after each brushing this famous Kolynos Antiseptic Foam continues to polish teeth and guard you against Bacterial-Mouth.

Switch to Kolynos and see how gloriously white your teeth can be. Scrub teeth and gums vigorously morning and night—using the Dry-Brush Technique. Within 3 days your teeth will look whiter—fully 3 shades. Gums will look firmer, pinker. Your mouth will feel cleaner and fresher. And you'll understand why this amazing dental cream is winning thousands of new users every day. Get a tube from your druggist. Or fill in and mail this coupon for a FREE 2-weeks' trial tube.

Two Entirely New Cars

HUDSON'S Great 8

a fine-powerful-fast eight

IN TEN BODY TYPES AND MANY COLORS

We count this our greatest achievement. From front end to tail light it is a new design. In appearance and finish it is commandingly beautiful. In speed it is faster than you will probably ever care to drive. And in smoothness it surpasses anything we know.

It outranks anything we have ever done in design, performance or value. The bodies, being Hudson designed and Hudson built, have an individuality that conforms to no standardization model. A wide variety of colors permits each owner to express his own taste.

The roadability and riding ease is not excelled by any car at any price. And the price at which it sells questions the wisdom of ever paying more for any car.

To Sell in Hudson's Well-Known Price Range

ESSEX Challenger

EIGHT BODY TYPES
Such a wide variety of color that each buyer can satisfy his own good taste at no extra cost.

with even faster speed . . with greater power . . . with quicker get-away . . . also challenges in good looks—in real values—in reliability and in price . . .

The Super-Six motor is made smoother and given a wider performance range. The motor retains every advantage you know in economy and long life.

It is a longer, roomier Challenger. Three won't crowd the rear seat. There is room for your hat. You don't have to squeeze into the driver's seat. It doesn't look like any other car. The radiator is different. The fenders are different. Your own choice of a wide variety of colors.

You won't be content with any less comfortable or less good-looking or less distinctive car. You will know what smoothness means. You will understand the meaning of relaxed driving. It is a thoroughbred automobile. And it challenges too in price.

ESSEX challenges all—and remains at a price all can afford

REAL COWBOY PAINTS REAL HORSES—E. W. Gollings, who has a ranch and rides the range near Sheridan, Wyoming, spends his spare time in painting and drawing scenes of cowboy life. Declining invitations to exhibit his canvases in art galleries and museums, Cowboy Gollings finds life on the plains quite to his liking, associating with the Indians, breaking wild horses and going on camping expeditions with friends from the East. Most of this artist's work has been done for his friend William I. Berryman, Trust Officer of the Union Trust Company, Pittsburgh, who makes annual pilgrimages to the Golling ranch in Wyoming. This splendid action picture of a bucking horse was painted at Mr. Berryman's express wish, and has qualities comparable with that found in the work of Remington, Russell and other well known painters of Western life.

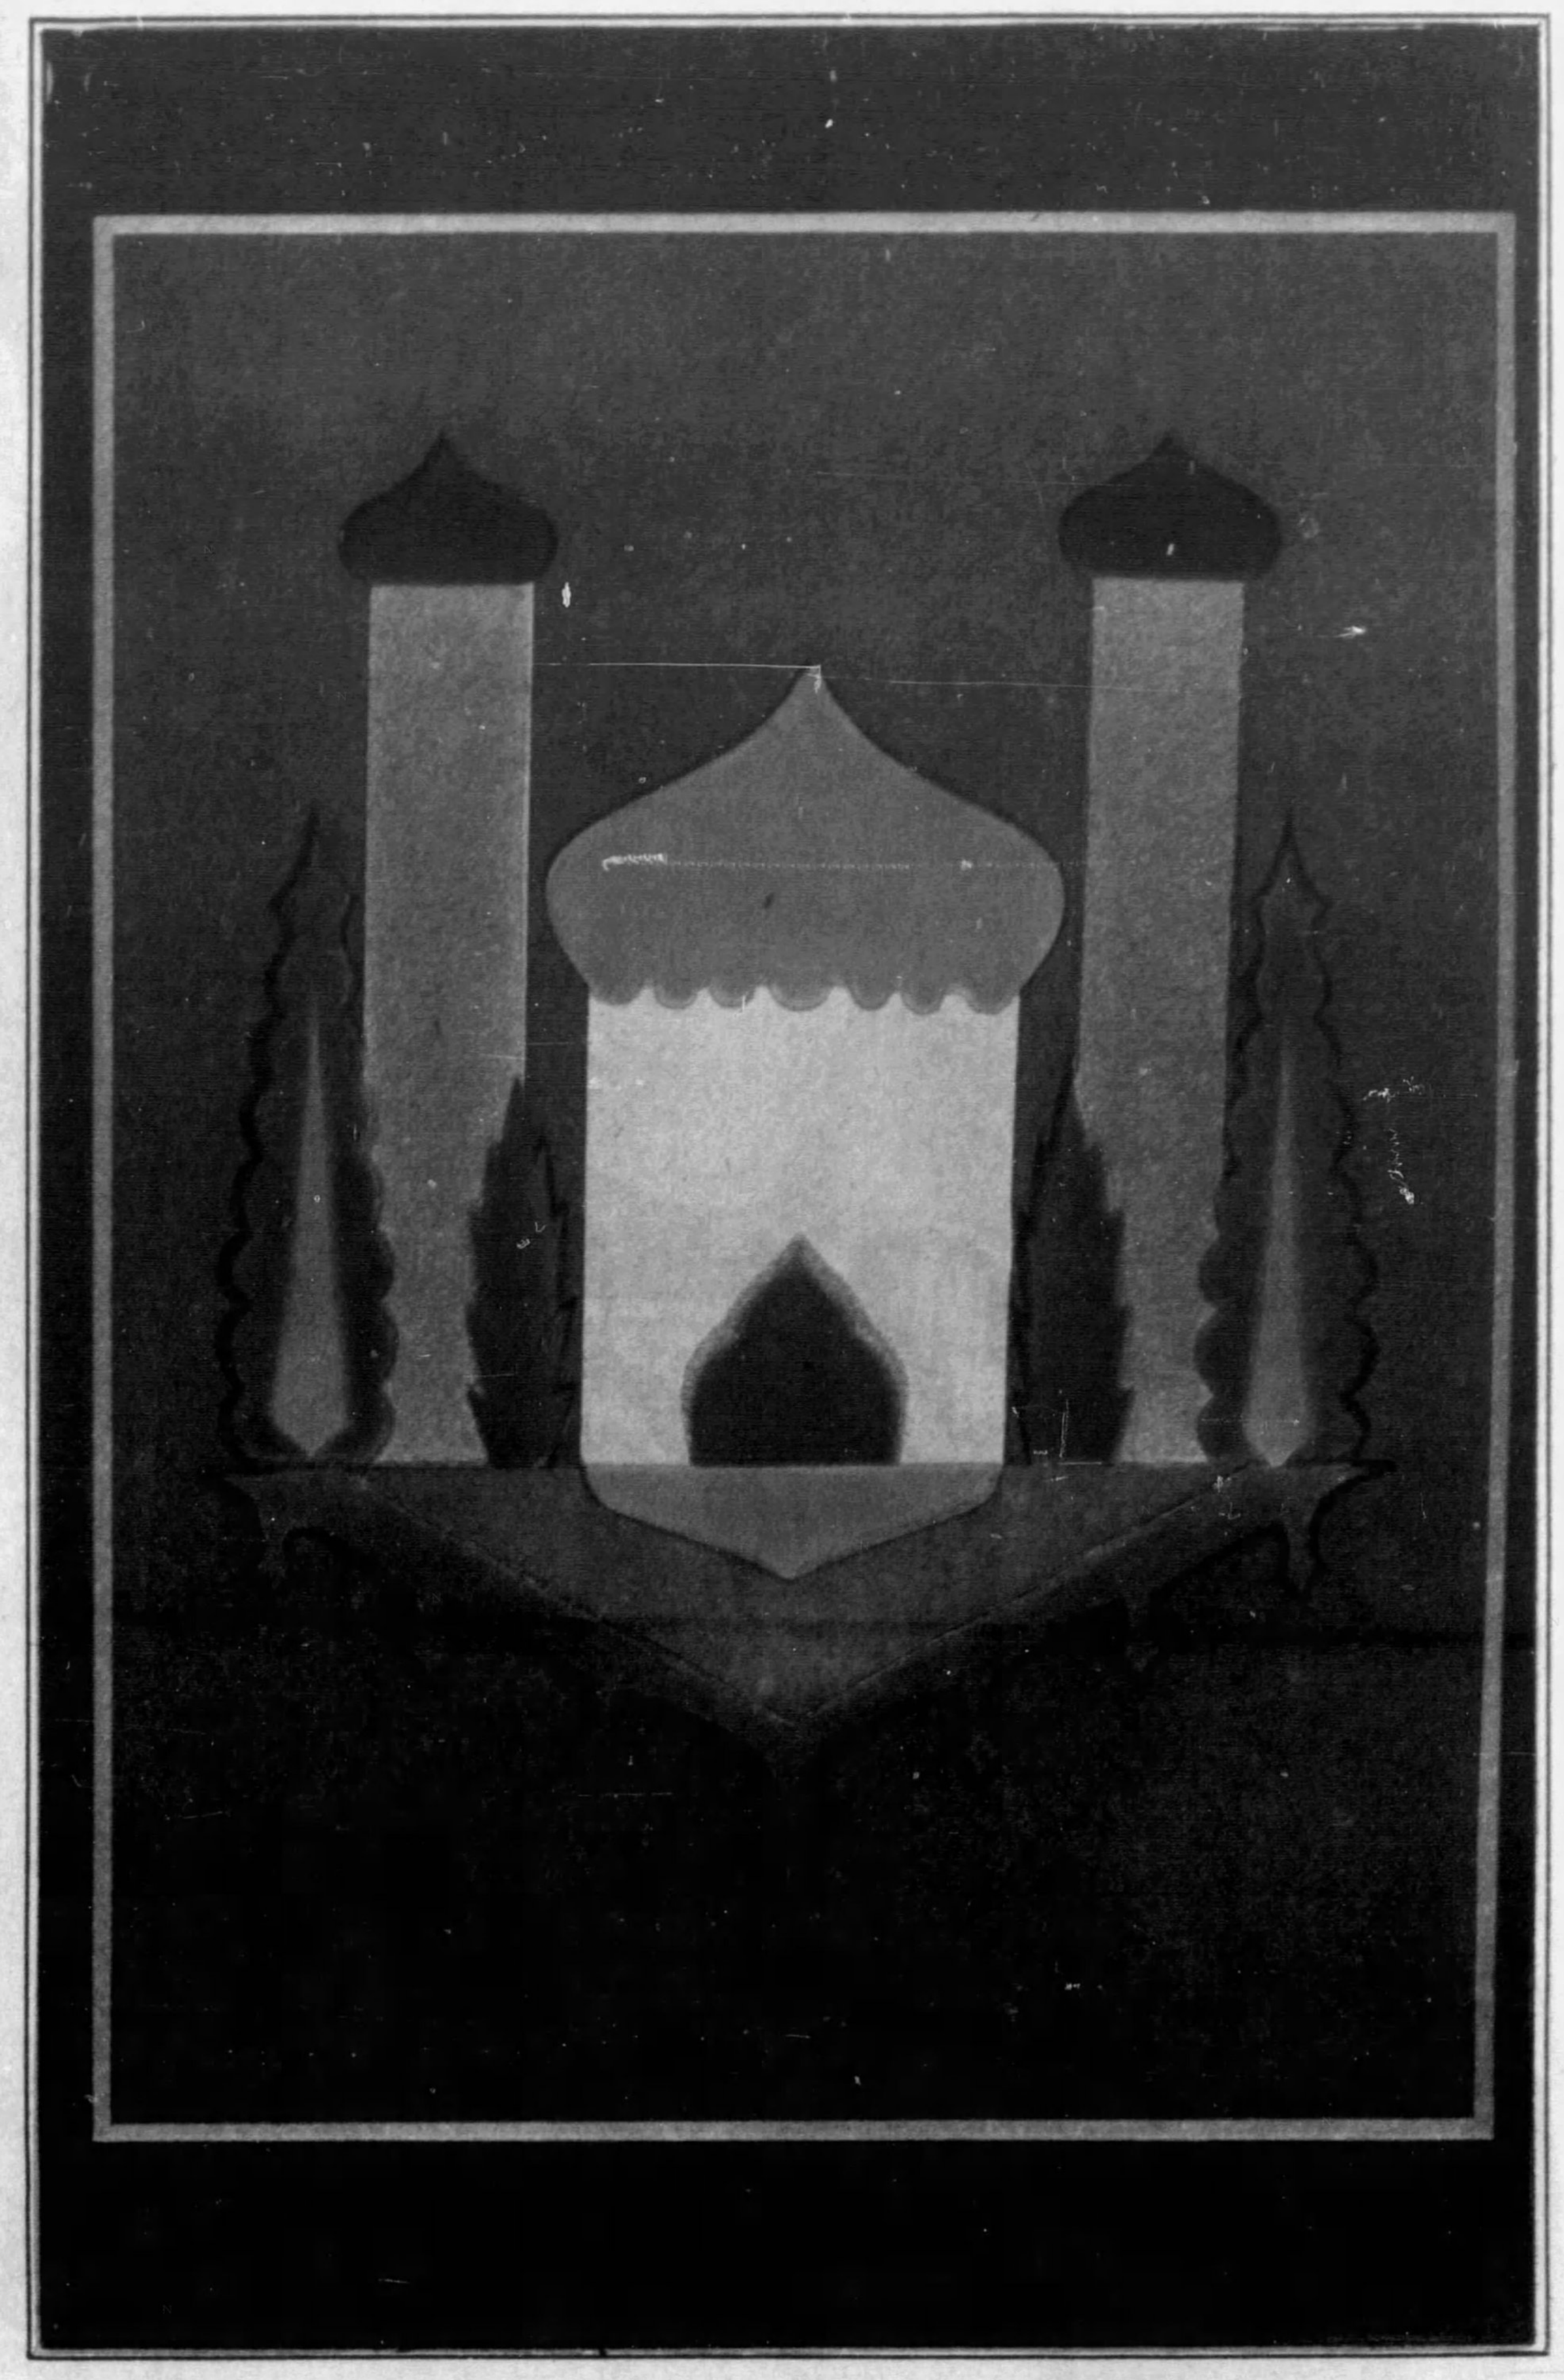
FIRST OF SERIES OF REPRODUCTIONS OF SCHOOL PUPILS' ART WORK.

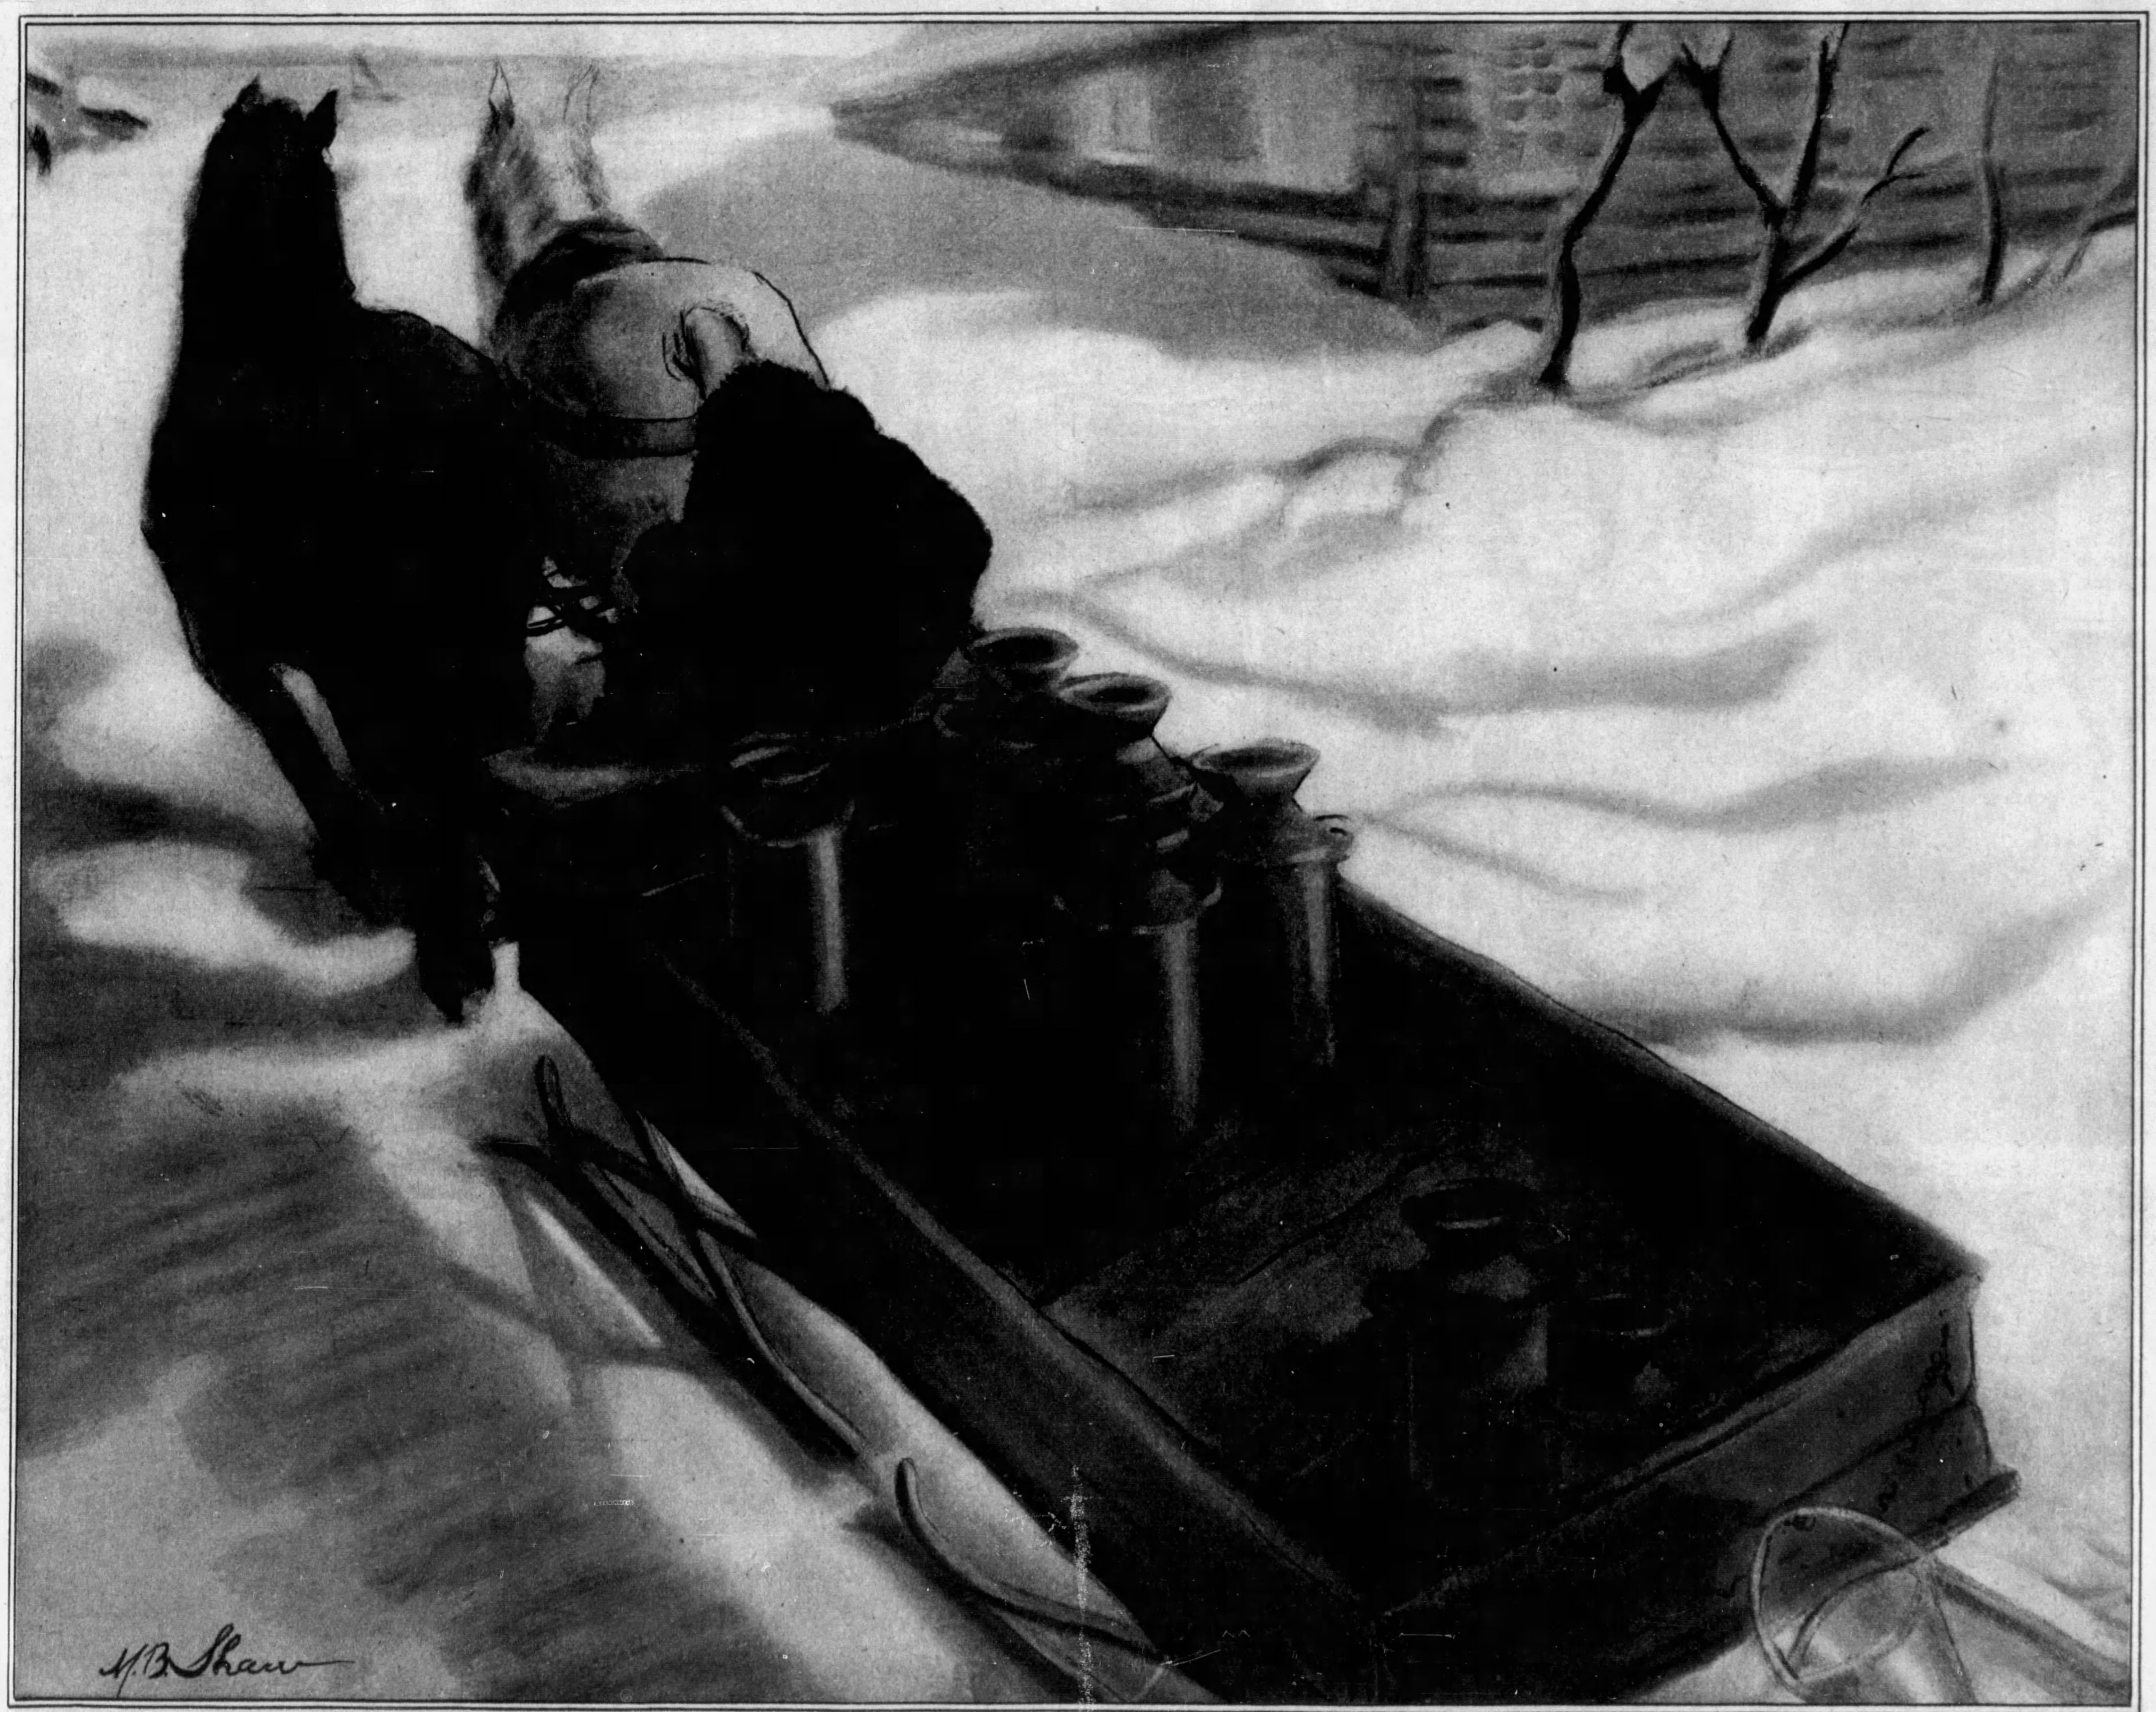
Right—This is an architectural composition done in paper cutting for beautiful color harmony. It is the work of Helen Hempel, an eighth grade student at Troy Hill School. Each week there will be shown in this section an example of the work done in the art department of the Pittsburgh Public Schools, under the direction of Elmer A. Stephan, director of art. The work will be gathered from all sections of the city and from various grades.

"LA PROMENADE"

By William J. Glackens.

This canvas, alive with vibrant and scintillating red, was one of the popular paintings in the recent Carnegie Institute International Exhibition.





"MORNING IN MINNESOTA"

By Mary B. Shaw.

The artist, a Pittsburgher, attended the art school at Carnegie Institute of Technology and has been a member of the faculty both there and at Carlton College, Northfield, Minnesota, where the picture on the left was painted. This canvas, exhibited at the last show of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh, won the prize awarded to the most meritorious painting exhibited by a woman. Miss Shaw is a member of "The Studio" colony in Central Court, William Penn Way.

"THE OIL WELL DRILLER"—By H. M. Brett The quest for oil has been as spirited as the quest for gold. The first oil well in America was drilled near Oil City and for a time this state was the great petroleum producing section. Now, however, Oklahoma and California are the "flush pools", with Texas and other midwest states steady producers. Overproduction, though, has curtailed the recent output.

"AN OLD ENGLISH CABBY" By Rowland R. Murdoch The artist, who died in 1917, was one of the best known illustrators ever to work on Pittsburgh newspapers. His pen and ink illustrations of important events were graphic and accurate. Coming from Philadelphia, Murdoch created a name for himself here and both his pen and brush portraits were valued. The above study of the old type of London cabby now hangs in the Pittsburgh Press Club.

"STILL LIFE" By Otte Skold This interesting painting, which was exhibited in the recent twenty-eighth Carnegie Institute International Exhibition of Paintings, is by one of the outstanding leaders of the Swedish modern school of painting. Skold is represented in the Stockholm National Museum and in many private collections. This painting is unusual and original in composition and color.
